Some of the members of the Boys' Senior basketball squad tested their skill in game with girls from the Girls' Senior group. With surprise, the boys found it not as easy as they had expected to penetrate the girls' defence. But all ended well with the serving of doughnuts and a social interlude was enjoyed... James Morrow, ex-member of the Older Boys' Parliament, has taken a sudden interest in the law. He spent an afternoon last week in attendance at trials in the County Court at the Court House and returned to school the next day certain that the Bar is the only thing for him.... Haig Kelly, star of the Senior rugby team, has been out of school for the past few days with water on the knee. He will be missed from the line-up of the basketball team.

EVERY NEW CRISIS NARROWING DOWN MARGIN OF SAFETY

France Debated Some Weeks Ago An Attack On Germany Lecturer Declares

WAR IS COMING

Despite the series of highly-spectacular international "crises" which have exploded on the world out of the Spanish civil war in bewildering succession during recent days, the marching of German soldiers into the de-militarized Rhineland a month ago was the incident which really brought the world to the brink of a new war, Professor E. W. McInnes of the History Department, Toronto University, reputed observer of international affairs, told a large audience here Friday evening.

"I am convinced France debated seriously launching an attack on Germany," he said. "The French believe they might fight Germany sooner or later and felt it would be wiser to go to war with the Germans immediately while they were less ably prepared than wait for the time when they will be fully ready. I believe the only considerations which stopped them were the uncertainty of British support and the fear that their domestic political turmoil would result in trouble at home in case of war."

Danger Spots

Professor McInnes spoke as the second of the series of university extension lecturers scheduled to appear this winter. Sponsored by the Friday Night Supper Club, the lecture was given in the Y.M.C.A. auditorium, a capacity crowd filling the room. Professor McInnes' topic was, "Danger Spots in Europe."

He spoke of the recent series of international crises as "boils on the body politic." When one boil wanes, another appears in any unexpected place, he said.

"All the materials of war are lying around and have been lying around for some time, but recent events have demonstrated that the world can come amazingly close to war without war." He said that the succession of highly serious incidents and their failure to lead to war has led some persons to hope that at last the nations have come to the conclusion that wars must be avoided. But he then proceeded to draw a picture of the world situation which would indicate that a war sooner or later is inevitable.

Fascism vs. Communism

The world rivalries resulting from the spirit of nationalism have given way to something deeper now, the conflict of two social systems—Fascism and Communism, he said. Germany, Italy and Japan are lined up in the Fascist cause and great Russia stands for the Communistic cause. Britain, France and United States, the champions of democracy, represent a third contender in the conflict, he stated.

The Fascist want war and disorder, hoping to gain old territories, colonies and raw material sources but upsetting the present order, he continued. The democratic powers and Russia want peace, for they run the risk of losing what they already have through war and stand to gain nothing for the cost would far exceed any possible profit.

War Coming

In view of this situation, the powers desiring peace will put up with many impudent advances by the Fascists and will steer their ways around many crises but, at the same time, will fight when a certain limit has been reached, he continued. They will fight while they still have the advantages of greater wealth and more complete preparations over the Fascists, he said.

"Every new crisis narrows down the margin of safety. In the end the democracies are going to be pushed to a point where they will have to fight. The decisive event may come at any of a half dozen different places."

A RISKY PASSAGE.

The Chemong floating bridge was in bad shape earlier this week, one side of the structure being under water. HE HAD A STOWAWAY.

A local motorist had just driven out of his laneway Friday night and had started to pick up a little speed when suddenly a man ran out into the roadway in front of the car and violently waved to the driver to stop. The machine was brought to a standstill by a somewhat startled motorist and the individual who had played the role of traffic officer broke the news to the driver that he had a passenger he didn't know anything about. There was a cat perched up on top of the car and the kind-hearted pedestrian was afraid the animal would be swept off when the machine got moving faster.

THE CIVIC DINNER.

J. O. Herity Of Belleville Gives Lecture In Trinity United Church

JAMES WHITCOMBE RILEY

A genuine and understanding love of poetry, and a wide knowledge of the works of the great poets of the ages, was evidenced by J. O. Herity of Belleville, in his inspirational lecture given in Trinity United Church on Friday evening, on the theme, "The Life and Works of James Whitcombe Riley," the event being under the auspices of the Men's Club, and the occasion the first open meeting of that organization.

Mr. Herity lifted his hearers from the realm of "things mundane" into the rarer atmosphere of the world of the imagination and left them with the desire to study further the works of the beloved "poet of the children," the speaker claiming that he also had a keen understanding of mature human nature, and could likewise be called "the poet of the seasons," repeating the best known of the seasonable poems, "When the Frost Is On the Punkin'," in proof of his assertion.

The chair was occupied by Dr. J. Middleton, president of the Men's Club, who introduced the guest speaker of the evening, mentioning that Mr. Herity had been a school teacher, then had "graduated" into newspaper work, and is now Industrial Commissioner and Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of the city of Belleville. An enjoyable feature of the program were the solos by Maurice Park, the second one of a group immediately preceding the lecture, "O Heart of Mine," by James Whitcombe Riley, being especially appropriate. Miss Mabel Clarry accompanied Mr. Park at the organ.

Prefacing his lecture with a remark frequently heard, "Nobody reads poetry now—it has been relegated to the museum of things no longer really required," Mr. Herity declared this statement is entirely unwarranted by facts; "poetry has filled a far more potent and effective place than has science; science speaks only in the realm of material things, while poetry speaks to the soul. Think of the poetry of the Bible, a great portion of which was originally written in metrical rhyme; similarly the great hymns of the churches; and how powerfully they have contributed, and in such an auspicious manner, to the advancement of our spiritual life."

Defining poetry as "the language of the imagination," the speaker dwelt informatively on the history of poetry, in its varying forms such as the madrigal, the lyric, the stately measures of Holy Writ, the epic, the drama, the parody, the limerick, and "even the annual crop of 'Odes to Spring' soon to be again on the market," and added that poetry often expresses a world of truth in a single line, such as "An honest man's the noblest work of God."

Life of Riley

Coming directly to his theme for the evening, Mr. Herity outlined the life of James Whitcombe Riley, telling of his birth on December 7, 1849, in a log cabin, in a sprawling frontier town, Greenfield, Indiana, now however a beautiful city of four thousand inhabitants, which the speaker had personally visited last summer. The poet's father, Reuben Riley, was a lawyer, and when things had prospered with him he built a substantial and handsome home, which is now occupied by sister-in-law of Whitcombe Riley, and which the speaker had also visited, and where he had seen among other treasures, a paper-bound volume containing twelve poems, the poet's first publication, only a few copies of which are now in existence.

"His mother was a woman of culture, and a model of motherhood, and she gave to her son a rich endowment. Riley himself left school when he was but fifteen years of age; his talents were varied, he was musical, and both sang and played; he had some skill in sketching and drawing, and in dramatics; he recited his own songs and sketches in public, and when he later went on the lecture platform he had such contemporaries as Mark Twain, Bill Nye, and others. He was not only incomparable as the poet of childhood, but he was also the 'poet of the common man,' and possesed a rare mastery of dialect."

As a fitting memorial to the poet, Mr. Herity found in Greenfield a monument surmounted with a statue in bronze, the inscription stating that it had been erected by the school children of America. Among the childhood poems recited were "The Raggedy Man," "The Happy Little Cripple," and "Little Orphan Annie," the speaker explaining that he has the latter on a record as given by the poet himself, and the original "Orphan Annie," was Mary Alice Smith, who was adopted into the Riley household and who had special skill as a teller of ghost stories and witch tales. She was eight months younger than Riley, married in her early twenties, and passed away in her twenty-seventh year.

Riley a Bachelor

In connection with the recitation of the poem, "An Old Sweetheart of Mine," it was mentioned that James Whitcombe Riley remained a bachelor until the end of his life, and that in his later years he became painfully shy in the presence of women. After his death, however, a considerable number of women came forward and claimed to be the original of the poem, none being able to substantiate their claim.

"When news of Riley's last serious illness was given out, it created general consternation, Edgar Guest voicing the popular feeling with his touching line, 'We need him, Lord; this world of our ain't had enough of Riley yet. To give us songs of love and cheer, Don't take him from us, Lord, I pray'.

"On July 22, 1916, in his sixty-sixth year, following recurring strokes of paralysis, one of the kindliest souls that ever came to cheer this sad old world, passed on. He is buried in Crown Hill cemetery, and his grave is marked by a magnificent tombstone, which I have personally visited, and which fittingly indicates the final resting-place of Indiana's most distinguished son."

The lines of the poem which has the recurring refrain, "He is not dead, he is just away," appropriately concluded a lecture that had provided an evening of pure delight for the listeners.

Perry J. Giffen, one of the vice-presidents of the club, voiced the thanks of the audience for the literary treat which Mr. Herity had provided, and the chairman added some words of appreciation for others who had assisted in making the evening a success. The National Anthem dismissed the gathering.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

Sunday, January 17.

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE is a fairly auspicious one with active conditions in connection with writings, publishing or promotional programs. Employment is under good influence for recognition or preferment from superiors. Be careful, however, not to make any rash or impetuous moves or indulge in any forms of excesses or recklessness.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for an active, lively and progressive year, with new business and contracts under favorable aspect. Employment is also under rather fortunate auspices for advancement or favors. But be wise in indulging in reckless, tempestuous, or impetuous conduct of any kind.

A child born on this day may be lively, versatile and energetic, with tendency for salesmanship, promotion or advertising, and he may want to be constantly doing something and making changes. Properly handled, without impetuosity, this will prove an asset.

For Monday, January 18.

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST is a dubious one, especially in the handling of funds. Speculation, gambling and personal extravagances or indulgences may prove hazardous. Also be alert to schemes, treachery and shun anything that might cause scandal. A change of advantage is probable and private engagements may prove lively and pleasant.

Those whose birthday it is are on the verge of a year in which much depends upon individual sagacity, good judgment and personal self-control. Avoid speculation, gambling and extravagance. Be on guard against cause for scandal and refrain from schemes and plots. A pleasant personal adventure and possibly a change are foreseen.

A child born on this day may be clever, shrewd and have talents of an unusual or original order. But it may have tendencies to impulsive and indulgent moods, with poor judgment in handling its funds.

TAYLOR IS FINED FOR SPEARING RATS

Curve Lake Indian Must Pay $50 Or Go To Jail

LINDSAY, Jan. 16—Noah Taylor of the Curve Lake Indian Reserve was fined $50 or two months in jail Friday by Magistrate Gee, having been found guilty of damaging muskrat houses and spearing rats. On the charge of resisting an officer Taylor was found not guilty. Taylor's two brothers and two Knott brothers from the reserve are serving time on similar charges.

Noah Taylor was convicted on the evidence of his younger brother, who told the story of the two brothers skating on Sturgeon Lake when they spied Deputy Game Warden Rutherford of Fenelon Falls. They left the lake, but were accosted by Rutherford, and told they were under arrest. They were carrying rat spears ten feet long.

The Indians fled to the lake, and Rutherford fired his shotgun to frighten them. They put on their skates and dashed across the lake, with Rutherford speeding after them in his automobile. When the game warden overtook them and jumped out to arrest them, Albert Taylor, the youngest, struck the officer in the face, whereupon Rutherford crashed him on the head with the barrel of his gun. The two grappled; Albert Taylor was tied up, but Noah sped away across the fields and bush.

Peterboro' Company Get Big Tent Order

J. J. Duffus, M.P., returned from Ottawa this morning after attending the opening of Parliament. He said he missed the Vice-regal formalities in the Senate Chamber but was present when the Commons met.

"I had to visit several of the Departments at the time of the formal opening and I was particularly interested in a matter before the Department of National Defence. Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons has submitted a tender for tents and marquees which resulted in a contract for upwards of $5,000 with the probability of it being increased," Mr. Duffus said.

LINDSAY YOUTH PLEADS GUILTY WARSAW THEFTS

Two Young Men Remanded For Sentence By Magistrate Until Friday

TRUCK ALSO STOLEN

Pleading guilty to a charge of stealing a motor truck, and to a couple of charges of breaking and entering and theft, Royden Rowe, of Lindsay, was this (Saturday) morning remanded for sentence until Friday next on his appearance before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C.

Cleveland Bonisteel, 27, of the same town, who pleaded guilty to one charge of breaking and entering and theft and not guilty to a second charge of a similar nature, was likewise remanded to the same date.

Police allege that the pair came here from Lindsay early Friday morning and after stealing a motor truck owned by the makers of Canada Dry from outside Empress Hotel went to Warsaw and broke into Hilliard Darling's store there and into the office of George Taylor's mill. Cigarettes, stamps and other small articles were said to have been stolen.

Rowe, a young married man, was arrested at his home in Lindsay on Friday evening by Provincial Constable David Silvester and Detective-Sergeant William Meagher of this city, while it is learned Bonisteel was later apprehended by Lindsay police. The stolen truck was found abandoned on the outskirts of Lindsay prior to the arrests. Neither of the pair was represented by counsel on their appearance before the Bench.

Doughnuts Tell Youth's Future

DOUGHNUTS may not rank with tea-leaves as a medium of clairvoyance, but in this incident of recent restaurant occurrence you can look through them and read character and the future of not one but of two persons. And you could safely predict that a young lady who lives somewhere across the London street dam and walks out Saturday nights with a young man whose place of employment is within range of the post office, that this young lady won't have to worry about bills from the butcher and baker if the aforementioned walking out ends up the middle aisle. The incident was an exceedingly trifling one, no doubt, but there was a touch of genius about it, suggesting that the young man, who is something of an ace in his craft is missing his read vocation. Finishing his lunch the other night he decided he wanted one doughnut. Their price is two for a nickel to all coustomers at King Lee's place. But this youth wasn't spending a whole nickel. And he wasn't buying two doughnuts and giving one of them away, or leaving half of one on his plate as improvident diners would do. So he conceived this idea: "I'll tell you what you do, give me one doughnut to-night and I'll get the other one to-morrow night," and the very novelty of the suggestion put it across. But just once, or at least for one customer, because the King isn't going to open a doughnut day-book for all and sundry who might copy this bright idea of buying "sinkers" by installments. And if that conception doesn't indicate the instincts of a horse trader, then what else would? But, the youth was born out of his time, because the horse-trading era seems to have passed. However, looking through the doughnut anyone can see that this young man is never going to need an old age pension, and his wife will have fur coats and all the frills and gadgets that sprout from bank accounts.

Once again Conny Smythe, manager of Leafs, has brought Jackson up into the Leafs' camp. This season Art has been blazing along the ice lanes with the Stars, scoring 15 goals and accounting for 18 assists for a total of 33 scoring points. RUNNERS PERFORM NEW YORK TONIGHT

Both Venzke And Cunningham Will Sprint—Weast Also On List

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—(A.P.)—For the first time since the Venzke-Cunningham-Bonthron mile matches became "the thing" several seasons back, the spotlight on an indoor track campaign shifts from middle distance doings to the sprints to-night in the 69th Regiment track and field games.

While both Gene Venzke and Glenn Cunningham will show their stuff, a 60-yard sprint, bringing together several outstanding dash men, including Columbia's Herb Weast who set a world's 100-metre indoor record a week ago, tops the bill.

Weast will find a lot of competition from such other speedsters as Robert Rodenkirchen, the Jersey City schoolboy who missed a chance to make the American Olympic team last summer because of a technicality; Eddie O'Sullivan, New York star, and New York University's Manny Krosney.

Venzke and Cunningham are entered in 1,000-yard events; but will not have a chance to renew their rivalry which they picked up in the Knights of Clumbus games last week, when the rugged Kansan whipped his Pennsylvania rival at 800 metres. To-night each will start from scratch in races of the series of three 1,000-yard handicaps. The third of the series finds Manhattan's fast Lou Burns as the scratch entry.

SPRINGY ELASTIC POSTURE A NECESSITY.

18. Elasticity and Skiing

A "theory" lesson on skiing technique eliminates days of tiresome work on the snow—provided the student grasps the idea of its purpose. That is why I repeatedly draw to attention of readers the principles that I first enunciated in these articles.

Elasticity in the erect, half crouch and low crouch running positions permits the body to react and adjust itself instantaneously in every emergency.

Only a body which is completely loose, with muscles relaxed, is ready for immediate action. It should again be emphasized here that the squat position illustrated yesterday practically eliminates elasticity as the points are bent to their limits and no longer under control of the muscles.

In the correct running positions the greater part of the sudden jars caused by bumps and strains is absorbed by the joints; the squat creates a condition of maximum strain adversely affecting reaction of the joints when they are called upon to counter an unexpected jar or strain, and in addition soon sets up extreme fatigue. Skiing should be enjoyed, not labored at; therefore, fatigue is taboo.

C.G.E. Juniors Win Girls Cage Battle

C.G.E. Juniors opened their Ladies' Basketball League schedule last night at the Y.W.C.A. with a 6-3 victory over Westclox It was a classy low-scoring game with both sides stressing defensive play and checking well. The count at halftime was 3-3 and the Electrics had enough punch in the last frame to sink a basket and a free throw. E. Lynch shone for the winners and got all their points while J. Crowe notched the three points for the Clockmakers. All the players on both teams showed up well. The teams:

Westclox: J. Crowe, E. Walsh, Z. Florence, A. Flynn, N. Pammett, L. McNaughton. D. Dawson, L. Turcotte, F. Davis.

C.G.E.: V Bartley, M. Heard, E. Foster, P. Baxter, F. Knowland, Z. Birkhoff, E. Lynch.

Referee, J. Cooper; umpire, E. Ascott.

P.C.I. Girl Cagers Beaten By Cobourg

The P.C.I. girls' basketball team dropped the first game of their interscholastic Lakeshore group schedule here last evening to Cobourg by a 20-10 score before a big and enthusiastic crowd of rooters at the local gym. The visitors floored a smart squad, showing nice combination and shooting as well as checking the locals up closely. The P.C.I girls showed promise but lacked their excellent team play of last year at this early stage of the season. M. McPherson, W. Saunders and I. Wray looked best for the losers while A. Dufton with 14 points and J. Young with six shone for Cobourg. M. McPherson got six and W. Saunders three for P.C.I. The teams:

Cobourg—A. Dufton, J. Young, K. Shorey, D. Threop, P. Austin, J. Leonard, R. Henderson, F. Spooner, M. Jeop.

P.C.I.—M. McPherson, M. Lundy, W. Saunders, R. Allan, D. Glover, I. Wray, J. Fowler, J. Ottewell, M. Juby, L. Lawless.

PERRY HIGH PRO IN TENNIS SHOW

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Frederick John Perry, the paddle-footed, pipe-smoking British player is worth the money to pro tennis. Whether he is worth a top price of $9.90 against Ellsworth Vines in the alternating hush and handclapping of Madison Square Garden is something else again.

Even the experts who led off on their wrong-guessing for 1937 by picking Vines over Perry in the Briton's pro debut agreed that a sorely-needed personality had come to the ranks of the tennis mercenaries.

Not forgetting that Bill Tilden with his enormous ego and constant carping was the greatest box-office draw once upon a time, they hailed the advent of Perry as the lift that would keep the pros from handing the game back to the amateurs for a time, at least.

From the moment he stood at attention under a spotlight while the band played "God Save the King" (and the ring-worms who infest the place ordinarily wondered why they were playing "My Country 'Tis of Thee") until Vines eventually folded, Perry was a showman.

Puts On Act

Whenever he passed a linesman, Perry ruffled that gent's hair. He minced all over the court on oversize feet that do a duck-waddle—with never an extra step.

The befuddled critics, who found some solace in the fact that Vines was a bit sicker with influenza than Perry was, were pulling for the Englishman before it was over. You cannot hate a man who is totally unperturbed by the biggest crowd that ever saw a tennis match—at a $9.90 top.

At set point, a gallerite let out a loud, uncomplimentary sound as Perry tossed up the ball at service. Perry echoed the sound as he let the ball fall to the court without serving. Nothing ruffles him.

In fact, he is at his best when the fury is at its height—and in the past he has been at his worst when the going was easiest. Bill Tilden once sized him up as "the best-worst or worst-best tennis player I ever saw."

After their first pro match Vines confided that Perry's earnings prior to his professional venture which stands to net his something between $75,000 and $100,000 in his "honeymoon year" was $10,000 for some movie work in England. This payoff was not exactly cricket when Perry was ranked as an amateur, but it lightened the burden of those who sent him around the world as a tennis player.

Ski Enthusiast

"She'll be coming down the mountain when she comes," is an appropriate ditty with regard to Miss Martha Perry of New York, shown here as she started down a mountain ski run at Corviglia, Switzerland. Miss Perry is one of the entrants in the ski race.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(C.J.P.)

JUNIOR O.H.A. steals the sporting spotlight here Monday eve when the young Belleville crew comes to the Brook to play our Colts. While the intermediate Petes are having one postponement after another and getting low in funds, the local Colts go merrily ahead with their schedule. This will be their second home game of the season but Belleville's first showing here this winter. The Quinte squad trimmed the young Petes by a 4-3 score in Belleville last Monday, so the latter outfit will be burning for revenge in this tussle. Should be a dandy scrap between two speedy, well-matched teams. The cold spell will make ideal ice, the players will make merry, and the fans—no doubt, in large quantities—will make for the rink Monday.

* * * * * *

THE PETES have an intermediate tilt 'gainst Trenton Fliers in Belleville next Tuesday. Lot of local fans express surprise that Trenton can support two teams—they have it all mixed up. These are decidedly different outfits, having no connection at all. The Trenton town team is a "B" squad, supported by Trenton and playing home games there. Whereas the Trenton Fliers have an open-air rink for practising out at the Airport—a couple of miles from Trenton and play in Belleville. Their players are fliers or workers around the Airport, and half a dozen imported hockeyists from Ottawa and Camp Borden. They play in the "A" class and are much better than the Trenton town team.

AN INTERSCHOLASTIC basketball tournament will be held for two days in Toronto the last of March and first of April. It is open to the Province and will likely have another big entry. Last year, two P.C.I. boys' teams made a fine showing before losing out, while the P.C.I. girls went through to a title. The tourney will be conducted by Warren Stevens, athletic director of Toronto University and a former grid and cage star himself. An interscholastic hockey tournament will be held in London on March 19th and 20th. P.C.I. cage teams are not superstitious and will not mind in the least playing on April Fools Day in the Ontario finals!

SENIOR CITY Basketball League opens tonight at the Y.M.C.A. at eight bells. Leaders' Corps play the Orphans first, with St. Paul's then meeting C.G.E at nine. A dance will follow the final contest. And Church Cage Loop melees in the "Y" gym this e'en are: St. John's Bantams vs. George St. at six, and Murray St. Juveniles vs. St. Andrew's at seven. With seven cage tilts yesterday, looks like this town is basketball conscious, eh?

PLANS ARE going right ahead for the big Winter Sports Carnival here the final weekend this month. There isn't enough snow yet to worry those with snow-ploughing contracts but we've still got two weeks to go and much fluff can fall 'twixt then and now. Main items, we understand, on the program is ski-ing at Nassau, fancy skating at the Brock St. rink, and a dog derby through local streets. Of course, there'll be a band, a parade, some dancing and this and that, as well. It is a city-wide affair with everyone co-operating and, with a decent break in luck, should go over with a bang—and establish Peterborough as a fine sports centre in winter months.

* * * * * *

A QUORAM of the Church Hockey League executive met last night at the home of the ailing president, Lloyd Parnall, for the weekly meeting. They dealt with one suspension and arranged to play postponed games this coming week, as well as reviewing those played last week. As a result of the free-for-all in the St. George's senior scrap, E. Tice of that team is under suspension for one game for climbing over the boards to get into a fight. He received a match penalty at the time but a substitution was allowed as he was off the ice when the battle broke out. The George St. player, who received a major and match penalty at the same time, left his team one man short for five minutes.

* * * * * *

BESIDES THE regular scheduled games in the Church Puck Loop, these tussles will be run off if the weather acts reasonable: Seniors—St. George's vs. Murray St. at nine Monday, Murray St. vs. All Saints at nine Thursday, and All Saints vs. George St. at nine on Monday, January 25th; juveniles—Mark St. vs. Murray St. at seven Wednesday, All Saints vs. St. John's at seven Thursday, and St. Paul's vs. Trinity at eight Thursday. This is a big and very active minor hockey circuit and a few days' soft spell knocks the various schedules seven ways for Sunday—to say nothing of three cocked hats.

* * * * * *

GETTING BACK to basketball for a minute, there was a fine crowd to see the Cobourg-P.C.I. interscholastic battles at the local school's gym yesterday e'en. Our junior and senior boys' teams won handily but the P.C.I. damsels' were beaten to start their season. The big floor bothered some of the visitors a bit but the cage play wasn't at all bad for first games of the season. The local junior boys and the girls go to Port Hope on January 29th. Plenty of action also at the Y.W. last p.m. as three girls' games were run off to start the Ladies' Loop. Results of all these tussles are listed elsewhere.

HITHER AND yawn: No word on the Tweed-Belleville junior O.H.A contest last night—must have been postponed . . . . Knox United Badminton Club of this town defeated St. Paul's of Lindsay up there the other day in three out of five matches . . . . The Colts and Petes will workout as usual this evening at the Brock; the cold spell arrived a few hours too late yesterday for the O.H.A. game . . . . Bun Kingdon's shoulder is coming along okay and he may be playing Monday night . . . . Big open 'spiel of the winter at the curling rink is next Tuesday, drop in and look 'em over . . . . For the information of the Protest Committee of the Senior City Hockey League, that rule reads: "No O.H.A. players may play in the City League" . . . . If the weather keeps right, there'll be a flock of hockey scraps these parts next week.

LOCAL COLLEGIANS DEFEAT COBOURG

P.C.I. Senior Basketball Team Opens Schedule With 33-13 Win

The P.C.I. senior boys opened their Lakeshore interscholastic basketball group schedule Friday night with a 33-13 victory over Cobourg in the P.C.I. gym. A large crowd, with many girls present, cheered the locals on as they piled up an impressive win and gave promise of being a real threat in this group race. Cobourg looked weak, though they rallied somewhat late in the fray and made it more interesting.

From the outset, P.C.I. held a distinct edge with fine combination, their short passing plays keeping the ball in enemy territory most of the way. Nice shooting and effective checking were shown by the Peterborough crew. Davern was high scorer in a fine performance, getting 13 points and looking good on his backchecking. Galley ran him a close second with 11 points while Gemmell notched five with Smith and Johnston scoring two each. The defensive playing of Turner, Smith and Gunsolus was a feature. Payne, Guy and LeBeach shone for the losers, Payne being high man with six points. The half-time count was 21-4. The teams:

Cobourg: Payne, Ravendale, Platt, Bennett, LeBeach, McKenzie. Eagleson, Drury, Guy.

P.C.I.: Davern, Galley, Gemmell, Gunsolus, Smith, LeClaire, Johnston, Laing, Turner.

Referee—J. C. McClenaghan.

Knox Badminton Club Defeat Lindsay Team

LINDSAY, Jan 16.—St. Paul's Anglican Badminton Club entertained Knox United Badminton Club, of Peterborough, at an inter-club match at the Marsh Memorial Hall. At the conclusion of the tourney, hosts and visitors mixed for some friendly games following which refreshments were served by the Lindsay club. The tournament was in charge of President R. L. Gamble.

Men's singles — R. L. Gamble, Lindsay, defeated R. McDonald, Peterborough, 15-4, 15-1.

Men's doubles — Ralph Cherlton and C. Cadd, Peterborough, defeated B. Kennedy and B. Hill, Lindsay, 18-13, 7-15, 15-6.

Ladies' doubles—Mrs. Ruth and B. Black, Peterborough, defeated Doris Clarke and Marion Cochrane, Lindsay, 18-15, 15-7.

Mixed doubles—Alice Davis and Ormond Benson, Peterborough, defeated Jean Fowler and Bert Dickerson, Lindsay, 15-7, 15-7.

Since turning professional, the world former No. 1 amateur tennis player, Fred Perry of England, has started a tour of the United States with Ellsworth Vines, United States pro. champion. In his first professional matches he decisively defeated Vines. The brilliant British ace is shown playing a ball in Madison Square Garden, New York.

BRADDOCK PANNED FOR NOT FIGHTING TO DEFEND TITLE

Secretary Of N.B.A. Predicts a Capable And Willing Heavyweight Champ This Year

DISCUSSES BOXING

By EDWARD C. FOSTER
(Executive Secretary, The National Boxing Association)

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Jan. 16.—(AP).—It seems impossible to say anything about boxing during 1936 without mentioning the greatest upset of the year, the defeat of Joe Louis by Max Schmeling.

I believe it was a great thing for boxing because many people had been led to believe Louis was invincible. Schmeling's victory proved to the whole world that this sport was on the level. From reports coming into this office, boxing is increasing in favor all over the country, it certainly seems to have earned this increased patronage, for I believe that the boxers and their handlers are doing a much better job than they have in the past three or four years. And there is no question but that quite a few championships will change hands during 1937.

To Help Veterans

The National Boxing Association, with its 36 member states, is earnestly working now on a plan to alleviate some of the tribulations of old, broken-down boxers. It is planned to organize a fund to be earmarked for indigent boxers.

The heavyweight division is certainly in a chaotic condition. There is no reason in the world why Jimmy Braddock should not have been compelled to defend his title within the year after he won it, or declare publicly that it was impossible for him, owing to physical disability, to continue as champion. However, there seems to be a rainbow in the sky, and 1937 no doubt will see the heavyweight division represented by a champion who not only is capable, but willing to defend his title.

My own personal hope is to see another Louis-Schmeling bout. I do not wish to detract from Schmeling's great victory over Louis in New York, but I believe another contest between these two might very well produce an entirely different result.

TWEED ENTERS SCHOOL GROUP

High School Loop Takes In Also Stirling, Madoc And Marmora

PLENTY OF ACTION

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Jan. 16.—Not to be outdone by the Junior O.H.A. and the Senior League, the Tweed High School entered the Interscholastic loop, and the following schedule was drawn up:—

Jan. 8—Stirling at Tweed; Stirling, 0.; Tweed, 0.
13—Madoc at Stirling.
15—Marmora at Madoc.
18—Tweed at Stirling.
22—Stirling at Marmora.
28—Tweed at Madoc.
Feb. 1—Madoc at Marmora.
5—Madoc at Tweed.
8—Marmora at Stirling.
15—Stirling at Madoc.
19—Tweed at Marmora.

With three leagues in operation this season, and the return of colder weather, it is expected that the hockey fans will be given lots of puck chasing to view. In the first game of this series, played on the 8th of the month, the High School fans were given a thriller, as both Stirlingites and the Tweedites went off the ice after 70 minutes without tallying a single counter. If this is to be expected for the remainder of the schedule, the older league will have to step up a bit to attract attention, as the younger teams are showing lots of scrap and punch this season, which the ardent hockey fan enjoys.

COMPOSER DIES.

LONDON, Jan. 16—(AP)—Harold Samuel, 58, pianist and composer who won musical renown by giving six separate weeks of recitals of Bach's works in London, died yesterday.

Birthday Greetings

To Harvey Jackson, left wing star of Toronto Maple Leafs, who will be 26 years old tomorrow. The Busher saw his greatest days between 1932 and 1934, when he, Charlie Connacher and Joe Primeau formed the famous Kid Line. He had a bad season in 1934-35 but is going so well now that he has a fine chance of getting back to his scoring form of a few years ago.

Extra Games

As in former years, the Belleville team will play their home games on the opposing team's home ice. This will give each centre an additional game to view, and provide lots of competition, as the Belleville team is always looked upon as a leading contender for the play-off honors of the league.

Referees will be selected from the following: L. Dennis, Havelock; A. Weir, Belleville; J. Watson, Madoc; J. Quinn, Tweed; M. McWilliams, Marmora; J. Ackers, Stirling.

A new team in the league, Norwood-Havelock, will certainly be watched when they step on the ice, as this is the first time in many years that a team from this centre has invaded this area for a try at carrying off the blade sport honors.

BELLEVILLE TEAM BE HERE MONDAY

Belleville Juniors and the local Colts tangle Monday evening at 8.30 in the Brock street rink in a scheduled O.H.A. junior "B" fixture. It will be Belleville's first appearance and the second showing of the locals here this season. The Quinte tribe slipped the Colts a 4-3 reverse in Belleville last Monday and are hoping to repeat. The Colts claim they outplayed Belleville before and will knock them for their first defeat of the winter here Monday. First place in the junior group standing is at stake in this contest.

With colder weather predicted over the week-end, fast ice is assured and a redhot junior battle may be expected. The teams are both speedy and classy, besides appearing extra well-matched. A big crowd of fans will likely take in this scrap which promises to be packed with action and good play from start to finish. Neither coach has announced his starting lineup as yet, but Belleville will likely ice the same team that beat Peterborough before while the Colts may have one or two changes from their last game.

How to Make a Splendid Cough Remedy at Home

Cough medicines usually contain a large quantity of sugar syrup—a good ingredient, but one which you can easily make at home. Take 2 cups of granulated sugar and 1 cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking! No trouble at all.

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a 16 oz. bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of really splendid medicine for bad winter coughs. It makes a real saving for you, because it gives you four times as much cough remedy for your money. It lasts a long time, never spoils, and children love it.

This is a very effective, dependable, quick-acting cough remedy for the whole family. Quickly, you feel its penetrating effect in the air passages. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes and makes breathing easy. You'll be more than delighted with its quick effect in clearing up bad coughs.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine, in concentrated form, a well known and reliable soothing agent for winter coughs. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

A Friend to the Aged As the Years Creep On

MILBURN'S HEALTH AND NERVE PILLS

In the later years of life we start to lose that snap and vigor of our younger days. The blood does not circulate as it once did, the vitality is on the wane, and the nerves not just as steady as they used to be.

Little sicknesses and ailments seem harder to shake off; and evidences of a breakdown begin to appear.

Those who wish to maintain their health and vigor and retain their energy should use Milburn's H. & Nerve Pills at this time of life.

Chief Scorer of Ranger's Rookie Squad

Rookies on Lester Patrick's New York Rangers are certainly going places in a hurry. Neil Colville of the rookie line of the Colvilles and Shibicky, is well up with the scorers of the National Hockey League. He is following close on the heels of such established scorers as Larry Aurie and Marty Barry of Detroit, Johnny Gagnon and Sweeney Schriner. Colville was brought up with his brother and Alex. Shibicky from Rangers' farm team, Philadelphia Ramblers, this season. The sensational Mr. Colville is displayed here.

PERRY IS HANDED HIS FIRST DEFEAT IN PRO VENTURE

Vines Three Times Beaten Turns Tables On Briton In Fourth Battle

TAKES 3 OF 4

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 16—(A.P.).—Ellsworth Vines, United States professional tennis champion, handed Fred Perry, former czar of the amateur courts, his first defeat as a professional last night. The game scores were 6-3, 5-7, 6-4, 6-1.

Vine's victory came after he had thrice been beaten by the pipe-smoking Britisher, and after Vines left a hospital in Chicago Thursday, ending a several days' period of recuperation.

Perry, the recently turned professional, defeated Vines in New York, at Cleveland and Chicago. Then the stars met last night before a near-capacity crowd that Duquesne officials estimated at 7,000 in the fourth of the series that will take them to forty of the country's large cities.

Except for the second set, which went to the lanky Englishman, Vines displayed a decided superiority, and at times piled up points without seeming to extend himself.

This occurred notably in the third set, when the winner captured the first three games he served without allowing his opponent a single point.

In the tenth and deciding game of the third set, a rush of general admission customers poured on to the court directly back of Perry, and he halted action until attendants blocked the stampede.

The play started evenly, but in the fifth game Perry had trouble serving and defaulted on the first and third points. He trailed 40-0 and struggled hard, managing to put over two points before Vines took the game for a 3-2 edge.

The ninth game of the first set went to deuce four times before Perry smashed the set point too hard sending the ball well over the baseline and giving Vines the set, 6-3.

LINDSAY TROUNCES BOBCAYGEON BY 6-5

Lively Intermediate Slugfest Is Full Of Arguments And Penalties

LINDSAY, Jan. 16.—Lindsay Legionnaires took Bobcaygeon Intermediates into camp last night by the score of 6-5 in a fast, exciting game. It was a hectic struggle and the feeling grew tense when Lindsay disputed two goals scored by the visitors in the last period. Arguments were as numerous as penalties, Lindsay led the way in the initial period by 2-0 and increased the lead by 5-1 in the middle period. For Lindsay, Heatlie was very effective, playing his position well and getting three goals. Whitfield and Gerster were also fast, with Louecks and Fever putting up a good defence. Both goalers showed class.

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE-CRACKER.

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, our intermediate hockey team is having a lot of trouble trying to give the hometowners a chance to look them over. Fri. nite we was all set to see them and the Flyers from Trenton tangle in what promised to be a wow of a game but it is 1 of the 1st principles of hockey that she is played on ice and they wasn't enough at Brock st. cushion to cool the cocktails for a W.C.T.U. convention so the old ball game was washed out just like the clash with Belleville last week. So here it is the middle of January and the Petes intermediates aint performed at home yet which must be some kind of a record or other.

Kids May Get Brake

The weather man promises a little more frigidity in the air during the next day or 2 so maybe the Jra. which is billed to play Belleville here Mon. nite will have more luck. That should be quite a battle, neighbors. The Belleville gang took our lads for a ride early this week, bumping off the Buckland-Burgess-Calladine entry 4 to 3 in a torrid game and the Petes is fairly aching for a chance to get that 1 back here Monday night. The Belleville kids will be just as anxious to cop the duke theirselves and get a firmer hold on 1st place in the group race, so they oughta be plenty of excitement from the 1st gun all through the melee. The Peterborough outfit win theirselves a game in Tweed the other nite and they found the villagers which had strengthened up with 'teen age lads from all over the district was tougher opposition than in their 1st start. However the Petes had enough scoring punch to come down in front 6 to 4 on a sheet of very bad ice.

The Pro. Doings

In the cash loop, Mac, the Canadiens and Detroit continue to lead the parade in their sections and the way them 2 machines has been going they're all primed now to clash in the final series for the N.H.L. title. Injuries to a player or 2 don't seem to make no difference. Detroit has been without Capt. Young their defence star for weeks and Herbie Lewis is out of the last few games but the Red Wings go right along winning and Thurs. nite they step into New York and blank the Rangers, their nearest opposition, 2 to 0. Meanwhile the Canadiens has been travelling at top speed with Pit Lepine and Paul Haynes 2 of their centre ice stars both on the hospital list. They even found time to knock Detroit off recently and not many of the comrades are doing that this year.

Well, Mac, that seems to be about the issue for the week. When local hockey has been hung out on the end of the limb like it has been its tough to get much to chatter about in this weekly epistle.

Better luck next week. Meanwhile I sign myself with the usual classickical signerature.

Sportfully Yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

HARVARD, TORONTO PUSHING McGILL IN COLLEGE SERIES

Montreal Who Lost 6-4 To Queen's Last Night Play U. Of T. Tonight

WIN WILL TIE REDMEN

TORONTO, Jan. 16 (CP).—McGill University's undisputed leadership of the young International Intercollegiate Hockey League hasn't a chance of surviving another day. There are three games booked tonight in the college circuit and its dollars to doughnuts Harvard and Toronto pull even with the undefeated Redmen from Montreal.

University of Montreal, who dropped a 6-4 decision to Queen's at Kingston last night, invade U. of T. with the winner getting two points that will tie them with McGill. On the season's play, Toronto should win handily as should Harvard against the Tigers of Princeton and Dartmouth against Yale.

Queen's wasted little time against the French-Canadian pucksters from U. of M. Kentry shot them into a lead after two minutes' play, and Johnny Munro and Catlin made it 3-1 after Leger's goal. Hepburn, McGinnis and Cawer all scored a singleton for Queen's before Gagne counted for the Montrealers late in the second.

It was one power play after another in the third period, and they brought U. of M. a couple of goals. Gagne scoring his second and Lecavalier firing home with only a half-minute to play.

Queen's, undefeated in two starts, moved into a share of the second place tie. But they can't do anything about the leadership because they're not scheduled again until next Friday.

Whoever wins the Dartmouth-Yale game will get their first points of the season, both teams have dropped their first two starts. Princeton has lost four straight and haven't shown anything to warrant confidence against the powerful Harvards who have defeated Toronto in one of their two games.

A.Y.P.A. HOLDS ITS BALL AT MARMORA

Beautifully Decorated Hall Lends Fine Touch To Evening's Entertainment

MARMORA, Jan. 16.—St. Paul's A.Y.P.A. held its annual ball in the town hall on Friday, painstaking decorators having given an artistic touch to the interior of the hall and council chamber. The stage was arranged to represent a garden scene and red and green hangings adorned the windows.

Study Club Meets.

The regular monthly meeting of the Holy Name Study Club was held on Monday evening. Mr. J. O'Neil, president, was in the chair and several new members were welcomed. Following the business meeting, Rev. Father G. Martin gave an instructive address on "The Life of Christ" and "The salvation of those outside the body of the church." C. F. Nicholson read a short paper, entitled, "The story of the tea plant." At this time several ladies favored the meeting with their presence and the rest of the evening was spent playing bingo.

CALL OFF STRIKE.

KITCHENER (CP).—On strike since Thursday January 7, Kitchener reliefers today voted to call off their protest strike and return to work on Monday. The move was made largely, according to an association bulletin, to give the new board a chance to study the problems of the unemployed.

LAKEFIELD

ONLY EXPERIENCE GIVES TO PARENTS RIGHT TO CONTROL

Welfare Of Child First Consideration In Decision Of Lakefield Group

UNUSUAL DISCUSSION

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 15.—"Parents have the right to dominate children only because of their wider experience and greater knowledge of life," a discussion group decided, on Monday evening, when the Young People's Society of Lakefield United Church held their regular weekly meeting in the Sunday school.

"Parents have no right to force their will on their children except when their will coincides with the welfare of the child. What the welfare of the child is, the parent is in a better position to ascertain than is the child, because of the parent's wider experience of life and his greater knowledge of the world. For this reason the child should be willing to obey the parent. There should be, however, a spirit of co-operation and comradeship in the home, the group decided. Rev. George Kelly, who led the discussion, said he was not alarmed at the absence of the family altar in the home. "It is far more important that an atmosphere of Christianity should permeate the home, and family relationships at all times, than that there should be a definite period set aside each day for family worship."

The group drew up a list of some of the desirable and undesirable features in a perfect home. They are:—

Although "being poor" should not affect the happiness of a home, absolute poverty makes it difficult to maintain an ideal home life.

The discussion was brought on as a conclusion to the topic of the evening which was presented by Miss Zelma Darling, entitled: "Homes—Tyranny, Anarchy or Democracy?"

Control, Great Factor

"None of us can truthfully doubt for a minute that control is one of the greatest factors in a well-balanced home," Miss Darling said. Tyranny, that is, severity, alone, however, cannot bring those happy surroundings which we as children and parents desire so much in our homes. A child should not be driven to obey, but should be shown the helpfulness and happiness of it.

Nor is anarchy (that is, a lawless condition) to be tolerated in either home or state. Unruly individuals make unruly communities, and unruly countries, until the whole world is affected. Let us each, then, do our part to put down such conditions and bring light, understanding and order into our homes.

With regard to democracy (that is, equality), and the home, Miss Darling went on to say that democracy is a deceiving word and that there has never been any democracy in action. Co-operation should be our objective, and only can this be realized by an understanding between parents and children. Just how to handle children, to create such an understanding requires a great deal of planning. How to make children know that measures of discipline used by parents are designed to bring ultimate happiness to the children, is a difficult task.

"But with the dawning realization that before long the roles may be switched, the children may uncover the fact that parents are often a misunderstood class, deserving far more sympathy and respect than they usually get.

"So let us, as children of to-day, and parents of to-morrow, give to our own fathers and mothers the understanding and co-operation that we in later years would like to claim from our children," Miss Darling concluded.

The meeting was in charge of Miss Mary Webster, Christian Fellowship Convenor, and the program was an exceptionally fine one. President Wallace Hendren read the scripture, Freida Webster and Doris Chittick, in costumes, sang the old favorite, "Put On Your Old Gray Bonnet," which delighted the audience. Myrtle Armstrong gave a delightful medley of familiar tunes on the harmonica. Rev. Kelly, Recreation convenor, entertained the gathering before the program, with an hour's fun in the form of games and contests.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE SPOTS

Once upon a time, after Uncle Wiggily's cold ears had been warmed by the cat lady's stocking-leg muffs and his cold nose made warm by the snow Mrs. Mew rubbed on it, the rabbit gentleman hopped out of his hollow stump bungalow to have another adventure.

"I hope I may have a real exciting one," said the bunny.

He did. And it wasn't long coming, either. All of a sudden, as he was hopping along through the woods, he looked toward a large tree and behind it he saw some spots.

"Ha! I know what those spots are!" whispered Mr. Longears to himself. "They belong to a Leopard. A Leopard has a spotted coat of fur as if he had been using a fountain pen and it leaked all over him. But what is a Leopard doing around here? I hope he doesn't see me. He's one of the worst Bad Chaps."

Well and truly did Uncle Wiggily speak. For a Leopard is a very fierce and hungry animal, always glad when he can have a rabbit for his dinner. Uncle Wiggily knew this. But he also knew that Leopards don't live in cold countries. They live in the jungle where it is always warm. Leopards can't stand much cold.

Uncle Wiggily Hides

"Yet, unless I am seeing things that aren't here, I am looking at a spotted Leopard behind a tree," whispered Mr. Longears as he crouched down in the snow to hide.

"But what can a Leopard be doing here, around the Orange Ice Mountains where I have my hollow stump bungalow? This Leopard must have escaped from a circus or a zoo. And perhaps he will be very glad to get back home. For the circus or zoo is always kept warm for jungle Leopards."

Not being able to solve the puzzle of the spotted Leopard, Uncle Wiggily hid and watched. Every once in a while he would see the spots move to one side or the other of the tree. Then the bunny would say to himself:

"Oh, the Leopard is coming out now! He is coming to get me!"

But each time the spots remained in the same place, just behind the trees, and Uncle Wiggily was beginning to think perhaps the spotted Leopard was caught in a trap.

"But if he's in a trap he would howl," thought the rabbit. "And this Leopard isn't making any noise at all."

The Bad Chaps

Wondering and wondering what it was all about, Uncle Wiggily, all of a sudden, heard a noise. It was a scrinching, scrunching noise on the snow. Some one was coming. Quickly Uncle Wiggily looked around. He saw coming toward him the Fox, the Wolf and the Bob Cat.

"Oh, surely this is an adventure!" thought the rabbit. "If I run one way the Leopard will catch me. If I run the other way the three Bad Chaps will catch me. Oh, dear!"

But, all of a sudden, the Wolf howled:

"Look! Look! There's a Leopard hiding behind that tree!"

"A spotted Leopard!" mewed the Bob Cat.

"Let's run!" whispered the Fox. "The Leopard can fight all three of us!" So away ran the three Bad Chaps.

And then, as Uncle Wiggily watched, the spots moved out from behind the tree. But it wasn't a Leopard at all. It was just a little girl who was wearing a collar made from the spotted fur of the jungle Leopard. Just a little girl, and her name was Gloria!

Then Mr. Longears knew he was safe, for Gloria wouldn't harm him. And how she laughed when the funny old rabbit gentleman hopped away over the snow. What a jolly adventure.

And if the hair brush doesn't scratch the back of the rocking chair and make it jump off its legs, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the ant lady.

C.G.E. Seniors Win Girls' Basketball

C.G.E. Seniors served notice they will be hard to top in the Ladies' Basketball League this winter when they stepped out in the opening game at the Y.W. last night and copped a 30-2 victory over the "Y" Quakers. Dishing up a strong passing and shooting attack and checking their rivals up tightly, the Electrics dominated play from beginning to end. They piled up a lead of 20 to 0 in the initial inning and had things their own way in the last half. E. Hodson was the big scorer with 10 points while M. Hodson got six, A. Craig, E. Bradley and D. Schultz four each and M. Woods two. The lone loser to tally was M. Sullivan with two. The teams:

Junior P.C.I. Squad Wins Basketball Tilt

The P.C.I. junior boys opened their Lakeshore group interscholastic schedule in the local school gym last evening before a good crowd of fans with a 33-6 victory over Cobourg. Speedy plays marked this fixture with the local lads showing too much foot and passing ability to work in close and then ring the ball with nice shooting. The losers battled gamely but failed to make it a tight contest as the P.C.I. cagers piled up an impressive margin and overshadowed their rivals at all times. Dougherty led the winners in scoring with 14 points, while Cutting tallied nine. Weir and Sedgwick four each, and Foster two. Wilkins got four for the losers and Lucas and Turpin one apiece. The teams:

MARMORA

DELORO SAFETY COMMITTEE HOLDS ANNUAL BANQUET

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Jan. 15.—The annual banquet and meeting of the Deloro Safety committee was held on Thursday evening. The banquet was, as in former years, held in the staff dining room, and its good reputation was fully sustained.

At its conclusion, the chairman of the Safety committee, R. A. Elliott, voiced the appreciation of the committee to the directors and management for their generosity in providing the fine repast, the gathering signifying its approval of his sentiments with loud applause.

S. B. Wright, general manager of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company, led in a vote of thanks to Mrs. P. Smith and her staff for the excellent serving of the meal.

Adjournment was made to Deloro Hall, where the regular monthly meeting was held prior to the annual meeting. R. A. Elliott presided. Following roll call and confirmation of minutes, G. Brooks reported for the Suggestions committee. He read over twenty-eight suggestions received during December. C. T. Nicholson presented the report of the Competitive committee.

14 Awards Made

Fourteen of the suggestions received during December were given an award, the first prize being a day's holiday with pay. An additional prize was given for a suggestion received in a previous month as a result of the yearly recapitulation. The star again was awarded to the general department. W. L. Rigg gave an encouraging report as chairman of the Inspection committee. No floating member was appointed for the current month. J. A. Rice gave a report of prone method practices held in the metals department. The committee in charge of these practices was asked to hold them in the engineering department during January. C. H. Buskard gave the monthly statement of the Benevolent Relief Funds.

W. R. Reynolds gave the concluding report of this session, that of the Publicity committee. He mentioned the distribution of safety first circulars, calendars and the committee's own New Year letter.

The monthly meeting adjourned at this stage.

Accidents Prevent Dividends.

The annual meeting was opened with F. Paquet, secretary, reading the minutes of the last annual meeting. The chairman's report was then given. Mr. Elliott in course of an interesting resume, said that no dividends were being paid as a result of accident prevention work though general industrial conditions were more prosperous. He observed that Deloro's record had made no contribution to this increase of accidents.

The increase in fatalities and the amount of compensation paid out in 1936 over that of 1935, he illustrated by quoting from a letter which F. A. Bapty, secretary of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company had received from the Industrial Accidents Prevention Association's office. Continuing his report, Mr. Elliott elaborated upon the figures shown on the following two charts which were hung on the wall.

Lost days per year which came under compensation:

Take 2Deloro safety ... ...

Four Clear Records

Mr. Elliott next mentioned that the four foremen who had clear records for the past year were G. Brooks, H. O. Loveless, E. Hewitt and H. Smith. Owing to having a perfect attendance at meetings, G. Brooks with H. A. McNally of the staff will attend the annual Industrial Accidents Prevention Association's convention, to be held in April.

Mr. Elliott, proceeding, referred to the St. John Ambulance course which had been conducted by Dr. Crawford, and had some words to say about accidents in the home and on the highway. "We must teach those in our homes the principles of safety first and accident prevention," stressed the speaker. He concluded by asking for continued cooperation and tendering his appreciation to the management for their support of the plant's safety work.

No Accident in 15 Months

F. Paquet, in giving the secretary's report, summarized the activities of the various sub-committees. He included reference that had been made at the monthly meeting to the fact that the plant had completed 15 months without having a compensation accident. He said that 29 candidates had tried in the St. John Ambulance class and all had passed. He announced the representatives of the four departments which had been appointed on the committee for 1937. They were: Silver Plant, W. Simmons, Sr. Oxide Plant, T. Cousins. Engineering Division, J. Ethier. General Division, H. Auger. He finished his report in urging that all maintain a safety conscious attitude. Proposing the adoption of the reports, Mr. Wright said the reports showed the effect of safety first work. He thanked all committees for their part and was particularly pleased at the good showing of the St. John Ambulance class. "The company will continue to support your work in every way possible," he remarked, in conclusion.

Officers Re-elected

The election of officers proved a re-election. The following are the executive: Chairmon, R. A. Elliott; Vice-chairman, W. L. Rigg; Secretary, F. Paquet; Assistant Secretary W. R. Reynolds, W. R. Reynolds, retiring member of the Trustee Relief Board, was re-elected for the 3-year term. The personnel of the sub-committees was left unchanged. H. A. McNally and H. Rennie were re-elected auditors.

Certificates Presented

Next followed the presentation of certificates by Mr. Wright to the members of the recent St. John Ambulance class. Those receiving were: Simeon Smith, David Rattray, William Smith, William Meehan, Donald Robertson, Clifford Watson, William Simmons Jr., Floyd Loveless, George Brooks, Charles Nicholson, Cyril Tandy, Marshall McCoy, Michael Corrigan, Hugh Brady, Maurice Barlow, Gordon McWilliams, Robert Elliott Jr., Frank Grant, John Eggett, John French, Percy Gray, Arvi Koski, Harry Loveless, William Rigg, Harold Nayler and Donald Regan.

Special Medal

F. Paquet, who has been successful in passing three such examinations, received the special medallion of the association, and a deserved ovation on the part of fellow members of the committee.

Asked to say a few words, Mr. Wright contented himself with remarking how pleased he was at hearing of the large number of suggestions being received in the course of the year. He appreciated the spirit behind them in that they were sent in whether they would be considered worthy of carrying out or no.

F. A. Bapty added his congratulations for the good work carried on, and, referring to the letter which he had showed to the chairman, from which the latter had paused in his report to make observations on, he said: "It does seem a shame that over a man was killed every day last year in industry." He noted that the interest in accident prevention was still being well maintained at Deloro.

W. L. Rigg, vice-chairman, referred to his inspections of the plant, and said that from the safety point of view, the plant was getting into fine shape.

Men Must Know Their Job

H. W. Sabine, called upon for some remarks, said how much he appreciated the courtesy and consideration shown him in that he was afforded the chance to be present to hear with interest of the splendid work done for safety at the plant. He referred to the changed attitude of to-day towards safety and health. In getting good results for safety first, it was a matter of care and study of knowing the job.

W. R. Reynolds, last speaker, in course of some apt remarks, said he was proud to have had a little part in the year's good record.

Four reels, two showing the manufacture of nickel, and two the manufacture of monel metal, through the courtesy of the International Nickel Company, were shown on the screen, and the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

SPRINGVILLE, Jan. 16.—Mrs. Harry Clark was hostess on Wednesday afternoon to the Women's Missionary Society of Springville United Church, when they met at her home for their regular monthly meeting. The roll call response was good with nineteen answering by scripture verses.

Mrs. Jack Whitfield conducted the devotional period, a most suitable sermonette on "Thoughts for the New Year." Business of the day included an invitation from Mrs. M. Johnston, that the quilting and "pot luck" dinner be held at her home next Tuesday, January 19. The invitation was gratefully accepted and necessary arrangements made for the purchase of materials.

Mrs. J. Grandy's kindly invitation to her home for the "World Day of Prayer Service", February 12, was also accepted. Mrs. A. Hunter was appointed convenor of the service of prayer. Mrs. M. Johnston expressed her appreciation of W.M.S. and W.A. remembrances during her recent illness.

Delegates for the Presbyterial were appointed, Mrs. M. Johnston and Mrs. Jack Whitfield. Annual reports were given by the secretaries and treasurer, showing a slight increase in money raised toward allocation. Five new members were added in the past year. Interest in the meetings is shown by an average attendance of 21 with a membership of 17. The strangers' secretary reported faithful attendance to the sick by her many calls and letters.

The program consisted of a reading by Mrs. (Rev.) Seymour, "New Year Reverie," and the sketch of Julie M. Lippmann's book, "Martha and Cupid," by Mrs. A. Hunter. The meeting closed by prayer, led by Mrs. W. Whitfield and the president.

A most delightful lunch was served by the hostess to whom a unanimous vote of thanks was expressed.

LAKEFIELD

MRS. DAVIS GIVES PAPER ON INDUSTRY

Women's Institute Hears Informative Talk On Development In Canada

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 16.—"Canadian Industries" was the topic under discussion at the regular monthly meeting of the Lakefield branch of the Women's Institute which was held on Wednesday afternoon, in the Memorial Hall here. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Stanley Higgins, vice-president, took the chair.

After a report given by the secretary regarding the short course on "Home Utilization of Wool," which was held last week, and at which there were 15 members enrolled, a report was given by the relief committee who stated that three cases had appealed for help. After discussion it was decided that help should be given two of the cases. The wool committee reported that about 40 pairs of mitts had been knitted, and were ready for distribution, of which several pairs had already been given out.

Mrs. C. W. Garbutt gave a report of the Christmas cheer dispensed, stating that a donation of $5 had been received to apply on the Society's Christmas cheer fund. Fourteen shut-ins had received Christmas boxes of fruit, and fifteen persons had received cards from the Institute. Arrangements were made for a card party to be held in the parish hall on Thursday January 21, under the auspices of Mrs. Stanley Higgins' and Mrs. N. A. Moore's groups, the proceeds to be used for relief work.

It was decided that a special meeting, to which the Junior Institute would be invited, would be held, at which Mrs. Howard Bullock, the Society's president, who has been attending a local leaders' training course on "Buymanship," which is held in Peterborough for representatives from each branch in the district, would give a report of the course. The treasurer reported a balance on hand of $21.35.

Enjoyable Program

Mrs. Amberson Davis was in charge of the program which was all closely related to the main topic, "Canadian Industries." In response to the roll call, each member gave the name of an industry carried on in Peterborough county. Slips of paper were distributed to various persons, each of whom had to give a one-minute talk on the industry named. After the main topic, the meeting closed with a contest in which members had to give the location of the industries named.

Mrs. Davies in her paper on "Canadian Industries" said that "Industries are the back-bone of any country. Canada stands in the forefront of the general world-wide recovery, according to statistics of industrial production, unemployment, wholesale prices and foreign trade.

"Canada is fortunate in having a large variety of industries, of which agriculture, a very important one, may be divided into such divisions as dairying, fruit-raising, poultry-raising, etc.

"The pulp and paper industry ranks first among Canadian manufacturing industries in value of products as well as in the number of persons employed and the salaries paid.

"Canada's mineral industry ranks second in importance, in the value of production. She produces more nickel than any other country in the world; and more asbestos. Her production of cobalt, gold and copper are the second largest in the world. She stands third in the production of silver and zinc, and fourth in lead.

"Today, the nickel industry is world-wide. Nickel is used across the seven seas to the farthest corner of the world. By its use, kitchen and household appliances have been modernized. Even our clothes retain their subtle shades of colour because nickey alloys supplied the dyer and cleaner with containers which resist corrosion. The great usefulness of nickel lies in its ability to combine or 'alloy' with other metals.

The Fishing Industry

"The fishing industry of Canada is imporjant because of the extent of the Canadian fishing ground and the high quality of the product.

"The raising of fur-bearing animals is rapidly attaining a place amongst Canadian industries.

"When pitchblende was discovered on the shores of Great Bear Lake, in 1930, the possibility of mining it was not considered because of the impracticability of getting machinery in, and the ore out. Now, a modern mine operates there. Shafts have been thrust down and a plant capable of handling 100 tons of rock a day has been installed. One hundred men are permanently employed and comfortably housed. Three thousand miles away, at Port Hope, Ontario, a radium refinery has been established where the ore is reduced to the marketable form.

"Another important industry is the Christmas tree trade. Canada receives $325,000 each year from the sale of Christmas trees. The United States buy one-third of their Christmas trees from Canada," Mrs. Davis concluded.

LIFFORD LINE

BRIDGE FLOODED BY HEAV / RAINS

Detour Is Necessary On Road Between Orono And Lindsay

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LIFFORD LINE, Jan. 16.—Local men have been engaged during the past week in most unseasonable road work and travellers from Lifford have been inconvenienced by the necessity of resorting to circuitous detours. Unusually heavy rains and premature spring torrents were instrumental in inundating a much-used bridge on the county-provincial highway between Orono and Lindsay near the home of Mr. Harry Neals between the eighth and ninth concession of Manvers.

This bridge was put in by William Neals, Richard Wilson, now among the oldest residents of this vicinity and the late George Wilson and George Staples.

The recent rains succeeded in forcing a passage eight feet deep and the length of a car with a depth of two feet of frozen gravel left elevated. The road was marked "closed to traffic" although several traversed the treacherous passage at their own risk. At the present, workmen are busy at repairing the structure for temporary use. Those travelling from Lifford to Bethany have been detouring either through the property of Councillor Herbert Neals or by Lifford school.

Swamp is Flooded

Pigeon swamp, west of Lifford, has been so badly flooded of late that it became necessary to travel to Lindsay either by use of the Yelverton-Janetville route or by Fleetwood. Water reached to the running boards of ordinary cars and when frozen the lower types of motors made slow progress. In case of those attempting to speed through the great depth of water, the engine parts became so wet that the cars refused to move, the passengers finding themselves in an unenviable position.

Fields on high lands are being badly cut with torrential rains, several deep passageways being forced in an individual field. On account of the prolonged autumn of 1936 many farmers were able to plow twice their fields and leave them in a fine level condition ready for spring seeding and find recent developments very unwelcome. It is thought that the frost has almost completely left the soil and it is hoped that an early fall of snow with colder weather will soon favor the unusually large acreage of Fall wheat which is noticed throughout the surrounding countryside.

Hoping For Snow

Farmers are hoping for a covering of snow also in order to haul by the use of sleighs their winter supply of wood. Many granaries are so depleted this winter owing to the summer's drought that it has been found necessary to replenish them from local elevators or car loads shipped to local stations. This and various other lines of employment for farmers has been greatly retarded owing to present road conditions.

LAKEFIELD

HYMNS STUDIED BY YOUNG PEOPLE

St. Andrew's Y.P.S. Has Interesting Program At Regular Meeting

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 15. — An interesting program was put on by the devotional department of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Young People's Society on Monday, Jan. 11, when the society held its first meeting of the year in the Sunday School Room. After the usual opening exercises and business, the meeting was turned over to Mrs. J. C. Smith, convenor of the devotional department, who was in charge of the program. Mrs. Smith devoted the evening to the study of incidents connected with, and in one case the reasons for, the writing of three favorite hymns: "Art Thou Weary?" "Under His Wings," and "Jesus, Lover of My Soul." Ethel Blakely, Mrs. Turk, Mrs. T. W. Chaplin, and Mrs. Smith all made interesting contributions to the program.

Britain's telephone calls increased 127,000,000 in a year.

LAKEFIELD

BIBLE BASEBALL PLAYED BY CIRCLE

United Church Organization Plans To Hold "Buy-a-Brick" Drive

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 16. — The regular monthly meeting of the Mission Circle of Lakefield United Church was held on Wednesday evening at the home of the president, Miss Mary Webster. An interesting feature of the evening was a Bible baseball game for which the Circle members were divided into two teams. Mrs. W. J. Charlton, leader of the group umpired the game, and kept the ball rolling by tossing questions based on Chapters 7, 8 and 9 of Genesis at the two sides. Each question correctly answered was a run for the side which had answered correctly, while those who had answered incorrectly were eliminated. Miss Helen Burgess' side defeated Miss Mary Webster's team by a narrow margin when Madeline Charlton scored the winning run.

The meeting opened with a hymn after which an impressive call to worship embodying the text, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of theee my brethran, ye have done it unto me," was read responsively, the girls being led by Mary Webster.

"Buy a Brick" Campaign.

The business of the meeting was discussed at this juncture, when a book of bricks was given out to a number of girls in preparation for a "Buy a Brick" campaign, in which the members are joining. The idea is to raise money for missions, and each brick is sold for five cents to anyone interested in the missionary cause. Monthly envelopes were distributed for use by members. Miss Cora Charlton, financial secretary, brought up the idea of a mother and daughter banquet, but the idea was decided impractical for the time being. It was decided that a social evening with a special program to which mothers and friends would be invited, would be held in April.

Miss Helen Burgess, supply secretary, asked each girl to procure materials for an article for a layette and suggested that the work be brought to the meetings each month, which suggestion was greeted with approval.

The program, consisting of three selections from the study book, "Men and Women of Far Horizons" was given very capably and made exceedingly interesting by those who took part. Marion Payne, who told the story of "A Night Call to a Korean Village"; Isobel Brown, who spoke on "A New Beginning for Chinese Farmers"; Nora Webster, who talked on the theme, "Among the Mango Groves." Miss Cora Charlton arranged the program.

ROUND LAKE PAIR GUESTS AT SHOWER

Friends Honor Mr. And Mrs. Tom Anderson With Many Gifts

(Examiner Correspondence.)

RUSH POINT, Jan. 16.—A miscellaneous shower was held in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Anderson at the home of Mr. Anderson's mother at Round Lake settlement on Friday, January 8.

The popular young couple, who were recently married, received many beautiful and useful presents. In spite of the icy condition of the roads a large crowd of relatives and friends from the settlement, Rush Point and Havelock were present.

Music for the dancing was supplied by the young people of the neighborhood including Messrs. Bob Marshall, Art Anderson, Randall and Ivan Ellis, Murnie Barton, Arnold Whitney, Lloyd and Winston Petherick.

A midnight a sumptuous luncheon was served and enjoyed by all. A number of young people then delighted the crowd with songs to the accompaniment of the guitar. Mr. Isaac Anderson received vigorous applause for popular readings.

In a few brief remarks Mr. Ian Anderson thanked the friends and neighbours for their good wishes and hoped they would come often and enjoy the hospitality of their home.

After some clever exhibitions of step-dancing a number of couples enjoyed round dancing and the sets then resumed their places and continued their square dancing till the early morning hours.

LAKEFIELD MAN KILLED WALKING ALONG HIGHWAY

Thomas DeRussieu 36, Struck By Car Said To Be Driven By Frank Kilborn

INQUEST IS OPENED

Driver Claims He Was Blinded By Headlights Of Oncoming Car

Precedent was established here over the week-end when on Sunday afternoon a jury was empanelled under Chief Coroner Dr. J. C. Smith, to inquire into circumstances under which Thomas H. DeRussieu, 36, of Lakefield met his death.

Father of four young children DeRussieu sustained extensive head and internal injuries when struck by a motor car as he was walking home from Peterborough to Lakefield at 11 p.m. Saturday. He died at Nicholls Hospital at 7.15 a.m. Sunday without regaining consciousness.

The accident occurred on the straighway immediately north-west of Nassau turn on Highway 28. Frank Kilborn, 44, superintendent of The Canadian Nephaline Company who recently came to Lakefield from the United States is the alleged driver of the car involved.

Provincial Motorcycle Constable Lloyd A. McClure who investigated did not detain the driver in custody. He could not state whether a charge would be laid, pending the outcome of the inquest.

Blinded by Headlights

Claiming he was blinded by headlights of an oncoming car as he rounded Nassau turn homeward-bound from Peterborough to Lakefield, Kilborn declares he did not see DeRussieu, who was walking with traffic on the right hand side of the pavement, until it was too late to avoid an accident.

Bringing his car to a halt, Mr. Kilborn and his wife, sought aid from Russel Jones of Hastings, who was the first motorist to arrive at the scene of the accident. The severly injured pedestrian was rushed to hospital in the Jones' car. Dr. Herbert N. Young attended.

Following DeRussieu's death which occurred about eight hours later, Dr. Smith ordered a post mortem examination of the remains. Drs. W. S. Fitzpatrick and R. F. Noti of Peterborough performed the autopsy at Webster's Undertaking Pariors in Lakefield on Sunday afternoon.

JUDGE J. MADDEN WILL PROBE RIOT

Napanee Jurist Accepts Nixon's Invitation To Make Public Inquiry

TORONTO, Jan. 18 (CP).—Judge James Madden, Napanee, has been named by Acting Premier Hon. Harry Nixon as commissioner under the Public Inquiries Act to conduct an investigation into the Sunday riot at the Ontario Reformatory, Guelph, and the escape of 35 prisoners.

Mr. Nixon made the following statement: "I have requested Judge James Madden of Napanee to conduct an investigation into the trouble at Guelph, and he has accepted the commission under the Public Inquiries Act.

"Judge Madden had a good deal of experience in the Kingston Penitentiary riots, being sent as special judge to handle the cases arising from them. He will come to Toronto tonight to see me. Tomorrow he will go to Guelph for a preliminary investigation while the episode is still fresh. As soon as he can conveniently arrange his affairs, he will proceed with the inquiry. He will probably advise us in a day or two of the date for the investigation."

Mr. Nixon said the Madden investigation would be public.

OTTAWA, Jan. 18 — (C.P.). — Conservative Leader Bennett will lead off the debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne in the House of Commons this afternoon, he announced on his arrival here to-day. He stepped off the train amid the cheers of followers who had assembled on the station platform to welcome him on his return from a world tour.

After the moving and seconding of the address by junior members of the Government, which will probably occupy the first hour and a half of to-day's sitting, the Conservative Leader will follow the usual custom and review the Government's conduct and proposed legislation.

"I'm not prepared, but I'll go on just the same," said Mr. Bennett. To the suggestion he might ask for an adjournment, he replied: "Oh, I wouldn't think so, would you, Sir George (Sir George Perley). Perhaps you will make it."

Prisoners Run Wild Wreck Reformatory Seven-Hour Outbreak

Over 150 Escape During Melee And Excitement Of Dozen Fires

FEW ARE INJURED

Blame Bad Food, Ban On Christmas Gifts—Officials Say "Youthful Exuberance"

By Ted Farah

GUELPH, Ont., Jan. 18 (CP).—An army of plumbers, electricians, carpenters and tradesmen invaded the Ontario Reformatory today to restore order in the big building, ransacked yesterday and last night by hundreds of rioting prisoners who shattered every breakable article.

As quiet reigned on the prison farm, guarded for the first time in years by men armed with rifles, Provincial police in all parts of Western Ontario watched highways for 35 prisoners who made a clean break during the disturbance.

The 700 or more convicts locked in cells late last night when 200 guards and police put down the uprising were given breakfast in their cells. Only a few trusties were permitted to go about their work on the 800-acre farm. Prison work shops did not open today.

Plastered with mud from their unsuccessful race towards freedom over soggy country last night, 10 prisoners were held in cells at the Guelph Police Station. The entire district was under special surveillance and authorities said they believed many other escaped men would return voluntarily during the day.

Not since the Kingston penitentiary outbreak in October, 1932, has a riot flared so ominously behind the walls of any penal institution in the province.

Nearly all of the 700 convicts housed in the reformatory broke loose in a sunday demonstration that lasted from mid-afternoon till 10 o'clock before it was quieted by guards and police called from nearby cities.

150 Free At One Time

Windows were smashed and smoke rolled from the reformatory into a dreary, rainy night as the screaming prisoners, bent on destruction, milled about the dormitories. Scores nimbly scaled roofs and scurried away in the darkness. At one time it was reported as many as 150 were missing.

Inside the buildings the rioting went on, unchecked for hours. Tables and beds were wrecked and pieces of the broken furniture wielded as clubs by the frenzied mob.

The rioters surged through dormitories, chapel, library, kitchen, hospital and recreation room. Furniture was smashed to kindling. Matches were set to bed clothing and mattresses and flaming masses were tossed through the broken windows.

Library books were piled on the floor and burned. Pieces of tables and chairs were fed to the flames that could be seen by hundreds of watchers gathered outside. More than a dozen fires blazed at one time: with flames shooting from windows of both wings of the main building.

The prisoners could be seen dashing about like Dervishes, shouting in derision at guards and police.

Few Serious Injuries

There were no serious injuries in the few brief clashes between officials and rioters.

Sergeant A. T. Maguire, chief custodian officer, was reported to have been mobbed by 40 prisoners. He suffered a severe cut when struck over the head and was knocked unconscious but returned to duty shortly afterward.

Provincial Constable L. T. Keller was struck with a baseball bat but was not seriously hurt. One convict suffered a fractured ankle when he jumped from the kitchen roof in attempting to escape.

C. F. Neelands, Deputy Provincial Secretary, called from Toronto at the first outbreak of trouble, denied that dissatisfaction with quality and quantity of the food caused the disorders.

Launching his investigation even before daybreak, he called the dis-

PARLEY ON STRIKE LASTS 5 MINUTES G. M. HEADS QUIT

Refuse To Negotiate As Long As Pickets Occupy Flint Plants

TROOPS STAY ON DUTY

DETROIT, Jan. 18 (AP).—Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, announced today, after a brief meeting with high General Motors officials, that "the conference is off."

Martin made his statement as he and five associates left the conference room in the General Motors building where negotiations to end widespread strikes were to have opened today.

The General Motors executives designated as conferees in the negotiations, headed by William S. Knudsen, executive vice-president, were in the room only five minutes. Knudsen and his associates, John Thomas Smith, general counsel, and Donaldson Brown, chairman of the finance committee, refused to comment when they emerged from the room.

Martin's terse statement indicated that General Motors had refused to open negotiations because strikers continued to occupy two Fisher body plants in Flint.

Union Orders Men To Stay.

The union cancelled plans for the men to leave the Fisher body plants Nos. 1 and 2 at Flint yesterday, accusing the large automobile-manufacturing corporation of "acts of bad faith which would destroy the purpose of the negotiations."

As one of these "acts" the union cited General Motors' promise to bargain with a committee from the "Flint alliance," which said it represented a majority of the corporation's employees in that city. The alliance was formed to crystallize anti-strike sentiment and is headed by George E. Boysen, former Flint Mayor.

The board of strategy directing the strike decided that "violation of the agreement by the corporation makes it imperative that the sit-down strikers remain in the plants until the whole controversy is settled."

In Flint, where a strike riot broke out a week ago tonight, 2,300 National Guardsmen remained on duty.

Irish Cadi Proposes Police Referee With Solicitors As Seconds

REAL ROW BEST

CROSSMAGLEN, Northern Ireland, Jan. 18 (C.P.). — What started as an assault case may end as a fight, if the disputants accept the advice of Major J. D. McCallum, resident magistrate at Crossmaglen, County Armagh, Petty Sessions.

Major McCallum advised two men concerned in the assault case to have "a decent stand-up scrap."

Adjourning the case for three months, he said, "My experience is that when parties have a real good row they get over it quickly and finish good friends.

"If you want to continue this dispute, get the police-sergeant to act as referee in a decent stand-up scrap, with your solicitors as seconds, while I am agreeable to act as timekeeper."

DUKE KENT'S VISIT TO PHRENOLOGIST CREATES FURORE

Husband Of Married Woman Who Accompanied Him Turns On Press

CHARGES PERSECUTION

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(CP). — Newspaper publicity given a visit to a phrenologist by the Duke of Kent in company with a married woman was denounced as "persecution" by W. E. D. Allen, the woman's husband, in a letter to the (London) Times.

A long cable in the New York Times quoted Allen's letter as follows:

"In connection with the press persecution initiated as a result of a casual and utterly harmless visit of my wife to a phrenologist in company with a member of the Royal family," Allen wrote, "I should like to record the fact in your columns that my mother-in-law, an elderly lady in weak health, living alone, has been reduced to a state of nervous exhaustion by the relentless attention of reporters."

The London newspaper Sunday reference said the Duke had received a large number of letters criticizing him for his visit to the phrenologist, who tells a person's fortune according to the "bumps" on his head.

"Mrs. Allen," the paper declared, "is a beautiful society leader, formerly well known as Paula Gellibrand and later as the Marquise De Casa Maury. Mrs. Allen has known the Duke since he was a junior officer in the navy and has been a frequent visitor to the Duke and Duchess of Kent's home in Belgrave Square."

The Letter.

Allen, in his letter to the Times, said:

"If the liberty of the press in this country is to be expressed in the form of persecution of individuals of all classes in the community—for the same treatment is extended to the victims of minor incidents in poorer homes—it is high time measures were taken by Parliament to put some restraint upon the license, which amounts to an intolerable and ever-growing scandal. Otherwise certain individuals who have grown rich upon ruthless exploitation of other people's private lives will find they have come into conflict with men who are not in such a helpless position as some who have recently been tortured on the wheel of the yellow press."

HEPBURN STILL OPPOSES SEAWAY

Regards It As Beautiful Vision —No Power Shortage In Ontario

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Jan. 18 (C. P.). — Premier Mitchell Hepburn is still opposed to the St. Lawrence River waterways and power development scheme, he said here late yesterday before leaving on a health-seeking trip to Arizona. He referred to newspaper reports that United States was again considering the proposal.

"I still regard the St. Lawrence scheme as a beautiful vision," he said. "I will not alter my views until I have been shown without peradventure of a doubt that the project is needed.

"We are still paying about a million dollars a week for deficits arising from operation of Canadian railroads. Completion of the trans-Canada Highway will cost a very large sum of money, with about $800 per mile each year for maintenance. Besides, there is no shortage in Ontario demanding development of St. Lawrence power."

Last Minute News Flashes

GUELPH.—Six more escaped prisoners of the Ontario Reformatory were captured today hiding in a suburban barn. The capture of six men in a barn on the property of A. B. Chalmers, north of Guelph, reduced to 35 or 36 the number still at large, it was estimated at the Reformatory. Earlier it was announced 35 were being sought but the estimate was revised upward during the day as authorities checked records.

NO PROSECUTION IF ESCAPED MEN RETURN TO GUELPH

Nixon Gives Pledge — Thinks Outbreak Was Not Planned

TEN CAPTIVES TALK

By John W. Tibbs
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, Jan. 18 (C.P.).—Acting Premier Harry Nixon announced to-day that 35 escaped prisoners from the riot-torn Ontario Reformatory at Guelph will not be prosecuted if they surrender to police, return at once to the institution or have their parents notify authorities where they can be found.

"I want to say, if any of these young chaps who seized the opportunity to escape think better of it, if they wish to give up voluntarily, surrender to police or have their parents advise of their whereabouts, I give them my personal assurance there will be no additional penalty because of their escape," he said.

The reformatory riot was not planned, Mr. Nixon thought.

"In my opinion it was spontaneous, not premeditated," he said. "The young fellows decided to put on a show, and put on a real one. There is not the slightest suggestion this trouble had been brewing.

"Things are very quiet now" he said, after talking to Mr. Neelands

28-Inch Spread World's Best Hungarian Says Of Moustache

Octogenarian Spends Hours Each Day Putting Curl In It Around Ram's Horn

FINDS OIL HELPS

KAPOSVAR, Hungary, Jan. 18 (A P)—John Kontra, aged 81, came forth today to claim the world's moustache championship—with a 28-inch entry.

Stretched, the adornment measures 14 inches on each side. As the crow flies, however, each wing is about eight inches.

That is because of its curl, the result of hours of lavish care. A ram's horn is best for this purpose, Kontra said, and he spends hours patting the moustache along the curves of the horn, using oil to make it conform.

The practice almost brought disaster. The special oil wasn't available one night as Kontra was getting himself and the moustache ready for bed. So he had to take oil from a burning lamp in his stable.

Then he lighted his pipe. Flames burst forth. One eye was badly hurt but the moustache was unharmed.

Kontra was taken to a hospital for treatment. His ram's horn went with him and doctors and nurses not only dressed his ailing eye but helped him care for the jet-black moustache, which flourished as it never had before.

Eastern Ontario Has Large Supply of Power Available If Required

Chairman Of Hydro Power Commission Addresses Rotary Club

PLAN DEVELOPMENT

Madawaska Development Will Give East Another Large Block Of Power

"There is no power shortage and there is not going to be one," declared T. Stewart Lyon, of Toronto, chairman of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, in addressing a representative gathering under the auspices of the Peterborough Rotary Club at the Empress Hotel to-day. "As a matter of fact," he added, "I have some 18,000 horse-power available right now for which I hope to develop some buyers out of this meeting."

Mr. Lyon devoted the main part of his address to discussing the power situation in Eastern Ontario. He told of the revised agreement with the Quebec companies, informed the gathering that there had been no repudiation so far as Eastern Ontario was concerned, told of the projected power development on the Madawaska, and dealt with the negotiations with the Federal government for greater control of the waters of the Trent system for power purposes.

"It is within the knowledge of many business men in the Trent Valley," said Mr. Lyon, in dealing with this point, "that the Commission is at present negotiating with the Gvernment at Ottawa the terms of a new power pact, under which the waters available for the generation of energy at the various dams along the Trent Canal and adjacent waters shall be utilized to a much greater extent than formerly for the production of power, rather than for the maintenance of navigation facilities for non-existent vessel traffic.

"We expect, as a result of this negotiation, a much greater measure of co-operation between the Canal authorities and the Commission's officers in the release of water as and when needed for power production. Even if this negotiation were to fail—of which we have no fear—business men in Peterborough and elsewhere may reassure themselves that there is no danger of a power famine."

While the desirability of sufficient water for navigation was appreciated by all, the Hydro chairman pointed out it was more important for the power-users of Peterborough and other points that they should have a continuous supply of energy available, than it was for the nine-foot level should be maintained for purposes of navigation.

A Representative Gathering

It was a splendid gathering that Mr. Lyon addressed. In addition to the members of the Rotary club, representatives of practically all the industries in the city were present as guests. Mayor Macdonald, Warden James Gifford, Reeve Milby of North Monaghan, G. S. Matthews, E. R. Shirley and Roland Denne, members of the Peterborough Utilities Commission; J. J. Duffus, M.P., and many other guests were in attendance. Chris. G. Graham, president of the Rotary club, was in the chair, and the visitors were welcomed by Rotarian Ross L. Dobbin.

The speaker was introduced by Gordon S. Matthews, chairman of the local Utilities Commission, who remarked that Mr. Lyon was the first Hydro chairman to visit Peterborough since the days of Sir Adam Beck.

"Of more importance than any other, concerning the people of the Eastern Ontario System, is the problem of a continuity of supply of power," said the Hydro chairman. Last summer, when the waters of the Trent System failed to to provide sufficient power to keep the industries of the Trent Valley in operation, the frequency changer, installed at Chats Falls as an incident to the cancellation of the Niagara System's power contracts, was brought into use to provide a temporary supply of 60-cycle power for the Midland district. It provided some 20,000 H.P. for a considerable period, which was transmitted over the Chats Falls-Leaside line.

Had that line been carrying its full load of 25-cycle power under the Quebec contracts, the position of the industries in the Trent Valley would have been quite serious, and not a few shut-downs would have been inevitable. The fact that one of the transmission lines could be, and was put into service for the transmision of this 60-cycle power to your System indicated the necessity for a general improvement of transmission facilities throughout the Eastern System. There was power available from Gatineau on

CONVICTS SEEMED BENT ON WRECKING GUARD RELATES

Smashed Everything In Sight, But Only Two Officers Get Hurt

MATCHES IN ABUNDANCE

GUELPH, Ont., Jan. 18 (C.P.).—Guard X. of the Ontario Reformatory, who told his story on condition his name be withheld, to-day gave a narrative of the riotous outbreak among the 700 prisoners that wrecked the interior of the big provincial institution.

His calm recital came after quiet had settled over the reformatory and police were scattered through the city and countryside in a drenching rain to round up the 100 or so prisoners still loose.

"A large group of prisoners was in the auditorium during the afternoon listening to the sermon by a Salvation Army officer from Kitchener," said Guard X. "There was only one guard present.

"The first intimation of trouble came when another guard rushed in and shouted that the men were rioting in another part of the reformatory.

"The bunch in the auditorium gave no trouble. I told them to stay where they were and rushed to the tower, where apparently the trouble had started. Most of the men broke through the roof of the dormitory and got into the kitchen.

All Climb Over Roof

"Some of them smashed the windows and climbed out onto the roof and dropped five feet to the kitchen roof. The hundred or so that got away and who are still missing, didn't bother going into the kitchen .... they just jumped over the kitchen roof into the courtyard and escaped over the power house. The rest of them went into the kitchen, smashed everything they could lay their hands on and then proceeded to rampage through the whole building.

"I told them, 'it's no use, boys, you'd better quieten down or you'll get hurt in the long run.' But they didn't pay much attention. They were picking up everything they could find and running up into the dormitories, the school rooms, the libraries and offices, where they started fires.

"They had plenty of matches, as there are no restrictions on their use. The only guards who were hurt were Sergeant Maguire who acci-

MOIRA THREATENS TO GO ON RAMPAGE IN TWEED DISTRICT

Freakish January Warm Wave And Rains Put Water At Record High

ICE IN STOCO HOLDS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Jan. 18.—In accord with other centres as regards the freakish January weather, Tweed has for the first fifteen days of January, above the monthly average precipitation, having recorded 3.48 inches; the average being 3.40. Of this total only 3.02 inches was recorded as snow.

The average maximum temperature for this period was 38 degrees above with an average minimum of 21 degrees above, being a record warm period. A high of 51 degrees was recorded on the 8th and 14th of the month, while a minimum of 3 degrees above was recorded on the 6th and 7th.

The heaviest precipitation fell on the 13th when 1.66 inches was recorded and 1.00 inch on the 8th. Three inches of snow fell on the second and .02 inches on the 15th.

Moira Running High.

As a result of the heavy rains, the Moira river is at nearly an all time high, and it will be many days before it subsides. Fortunately for the more southerly villages, the ice is holding in Stoco Lake, although it is possible, that with the warmer weather of Sunday, will result in a rapid breaking up of the ice. A noticeable upheaval took place most of Sunday, and large areas became flooded as the water broke through to the surface.

To add to the dangers of places below the lake, a heavy rain commenced late Sunday afternoon, which if it continues, will raise the water level of the river still further and result in heavy flooding. Part of the Memorial Park and the lower part of the village on the lake and river fronts were inundated and as a result form the only skating available at present for the younger folk, the lake being in too dangerous position for this pastime. No ice has formed on the river despite two cold nights when the temperature dropped to 6 degrees above on Friday and Saturday.

As a result of the high river level, a large section of the Point is under water and ice, and damage to the trees has resulted, one large elm being completed uprooted and forced up on the ice at the mouth of the river.

BENNETT ARRIVING LATE TO TAKE PART IN OPENING DEBATE

Will Determine Tory Stand Regarding Tabling Of Abdication Correspondence

C.C.F. TO MAKE FIGHT

OTTAWA, Jan. 18—(C.P.).—Debate of the address in reply to the Throne Speech was scheduled to start to-day in the House of Commons, but Conservative Leader Bennett who ordinarily would lead it was not expected in the Capital till evening.

Mr. Bennett arrived yesterday in Halifax after a four-months' tour of the Empire and his appearance in the House was awaited with keen interest. His attitude, it was thought, would govern to a considerable extent the administration's decision how much it will make public concerning its conduct during the November constitutional crisis in the Empire.

Norman McLarty (Lib., Essex West), was scheduled to move the address and Dr. C. J. Veniot (Lib., Gloucester) to second it.

Public interest, usually centered on the Throne Speech reply debate, appeared occupied more with the constitutional question. James S. Woodsworth, bearded C.C.F. leader, has on the Order Paper a resolution demanding production of all correspondence and other documents relating to the question of Edward VIII's abdication and George VI's succession. Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the House last Thursday the Government did not consider it in the public interest that the correspondence should be tabled.

The Prime Minister's statement on the change of sovereigns will be made when the bill now before Parliament to ratify the constitutional changes comes up, unless a debate is precipitated earlier by a motion on the Order Paper calling on the Government to table the correspondence.

Wants All Tabled

The motion by Mr. Woodsworth asks the Government to table copies of all correspondence, telegrams and other documents between the made, Dr. Smith sitting in the police court room at Peterborough empanelled a jury, the members of which were driven out to view the scene of the accident in a misty drizzle of rain.

Just before the inquest was adjourned until Tuesday at 8 p.m., the members of the jury also inspected the Kilborn car at Duffis' garage. Those empanelled for jury service were: Messrs. L. L. Maguire, foreman; Stanley Kerneghan, John Gillespie, Joseph Odette, Charles Lloyd, Alphonse Madden, Thomas Miller, C. W. Nicholson, George James, Joseph Maher, Fred Lajoie, Percy Golds.

Addressing the jury Coroner Smith told them he had adopted the unusual course of opening an inquest Sunday because he was anxious they should have an opportunity of inspecting skid marks and other evidences at the scene of the fatality, before they become obliterated by the threatened fall of snow or rain.

Worked As Trapper

DeRussieu, resident of Lakefield for seven years, had the reputation of being a good worker. He had recently been unemployed and had augmented his slender income by trapping for furs. It was said that he left home at three o'clock Saturday afternoon and walked into Peterborough to dispose of a fox skin.

At one time DeRussieu was employed as a laborer at the Lakefield plant of The Canada Cement Company. He had also worked on highway construction projects in the district.

DeRussieu leaves his widow (the former Laura Parks of Bannockburn), and four children: Iva, 13; Thomas, 10; Ruth, 8; and Carl, 5.

The funeral is to be held on Tuesday afternoon with the Rev. W. J. Creighton officiating at services. Interment at Hillcrest Cemetery, Lakefield.

THE BLOODHOUNDS BAY

By WALTER S. MASTERMAN

CHAPTER 41

Sylvia, preparing tea for Reid while on a surprise visit to his cottage, explained why she was here.

"You know the Abbey a little," Sylvia said to Reid. "The servants are all at the back, and after what has happened here no of them would venture out except to answer a bell. Lady Severinge has gone out, and James told me I might take your meal instead of one of the maids." She paused. "He said he thought perhaps you would care to see me."

"I should think I do," he said fervently, and then, feeling he was rather too emphatic, "I should have got up and gone down to the Abbey if no one had come."

She handed him the cup, her hand shaking a little, and sat down.

"Of course, we can't stay where we are, though it's quite comfortable, and James brings us food but whoever it is that is trying to get hold of the children may hear that we have disappeared and think we have left the house. I though Mr. Selden might be able to give us some advice."

"Good Lord!" Recollection came to Reid, and he sat up, almost upsetting his tea. "There is no time to lose. Colonel Graham was going to use his bloodhounds, as he did to trace Sir Henry—"

"Now I told you to keep cool," she said firmly. "If you must know, he did bring his bloodhounds. We were terribly scared, and took refuge in the room behind the organ loft. I don't know exactly what Mr. Selden did, but from hints that James has dropped he led them off the track, and they never found us."

"Thank goodness for that, but we can't go on in this way; something must be done."

"I have the utmost trust in Mr. Selden. I believe he knows a good deal more than we think—but I really must be going, I promised the twins I wouldn't be long."

"I am coming with you," Reid said quite emphatically.

"You mustn't; you are unfit. That's why I came here, I was afraid you would so something desperate."

In the soft darkness only faintly illuminated by the glow from the oil stove, Sylvia heard him moving from the couch. She reached out her hands to stop him, and for a brief moment he held her to him, her young body clasped closely, and her breath on his cheek. An almost irresistible desire to kiss her took hold of him, and his lips sought hers, but although she made no resistance he tore himself away.

Sylvia's arms dropped, and almost listlessly she said, "If you must do this mad thing, I'll fetch your things."

She turned swiftly, and he heard her ascending the stairs, he fancied rather lifelessly.

"Will you have a light, or can you dress in the dark?" she asked, putting his things on the couch.

"Wait a moment." He hurriedly put his clothes on, and then struck a match and lit the lamp. Sylvia looked very white in the light, and remained standing by the staircase leading to the bedroom.

"I am coming with you," he said doggedly. "I'm not going to leave you alone in that place."

"Very well, if you must," she replied, not looking at him.

"What is the matter?" He spoke roughly, annoyed with her and himself.

"Nothing whatever." She began to put the remains of his meal, which he had hardly touched, into the basket, with her back to him.

"I'm sorry, Sylvia," he said gently, coming behind her.

She turned a crimson face to his. "Whatever for?"

You know quite well. I was going to kiss you just now."

He would not answer to her mood. "It's not that, Sylvia," he said earnestly; "it's not fair. I can't express it properly, or you'll think me a prig. I mean, I know a kiss here and there means nothing to many people, but I've never had anything much to do with girls, and well—I didn't mean it that way."

A silence fell between them, and Sylvia wished he had not lit the lamp—wished she hadn't come at all. He stumbled hopelessly.

"I mean, I thought you might think I was just like Colindale, taking advantage of the fact that we were alone and—insulting you."

"I should never think that," she said faintly.

The position was intolerable. He knew that love between them was impossible, with his odious past and uncertain position.

"Let's go, if you insist on coming," she said in a strangled voice, and turned to the door.

"I've loved you ever since I first saw you in the moonlight, looking like a saint, in spite of the horror on your face," he muttered, forgetting everything in a sudden sense of longing to tell her.

She turned slowly, but there was no smile on her face, only a growing look almost of terror.

"When was that, Jack?"

"On the night of the murder," he blurted out, his weak state and the sight of her face throwing him off his guard.

Her deep blue eyes were staring at him in positive horror. "The night of the murder—you were in the Abbey that night?"

"I was."

He watched her steadily, but with a beating heart, searching for one look of suspicion. He cursed himself for his folly.

Then he saw a soft look come to her—she held out her little hand.

"I don't know what you were doing there, Jack," she said, very gently, "and I won't ask. When I trust anyone, I never alter my opinion, I would rather you did not tell me."

He took her hand and held it, a look of intense gratitude on his face.

"Thank you, Sylvia," he said humbly, "I was a fool to say anything, but what I told you is the truth. I have never loved a soul in my life, man, woman, or child, until I saw you. It's not a sloppy love affair," he went on almost angrily, "and it can't have a happy ending, as they say in books. I could never marry you, even if you wanted me—no! There are no entanglements," he laughed bitterly. "That is why I just stopped from being a cad and kissing you in the dark."

Sylvia laughed softly, almost happily. "You poor boy. Don't say anything more about it, and don't worry till we are finished with this terrible business, but you shan't be done out of your kiss."

She drew him to her, and held up her mouth, and with a sob he took her in his arms.

"And now for the Abbey," he said, at last releasing her.

They set out in the close darkness, hand in hand, fearless now, and ready for the worst that man can do, for perfect love casteth out fear. James admitted Sylvia—he had been standing at the open door in deep concern at her long absence.

He gave a start when he saw Reid, but Sylvia, in a hurried whisper, told him that Reid knew all, and had insisted on coming.

"I am very glad," he said simply, "if you are well enough. It will take a weight off my mind."

He hurried them along the dark corridor to the library. A bright fire was burning in the great hearth and the children were sitting in the firelgh playing cards, for they dared not switch on the lights. They greeted Reid with delight as part of the great adventure they were having. After the dull round in their old playroom, with intervals of walks in the grounds, this was all splendid. The secret hiding place thrilled them, and the absence of lessons and use of the great library, which they had never been allowed to enter, gave them both a sense that they were highly important and of considerable value. The arrival of "Uncle Jack" was part of the game and they made him sit down and join them.

"Where do you sleep?" he said, glancing round the huge place.

"That's a very great secret," Joan said, with round eyes full of mystery.

"Mr. Reid knows," Sylvia said.

"You shouldn't have told him—we wanted to show him ourselves."

"I think Miss Lawrence," James broke in, "it would be better for you to retire. You see," he added addressing Reid, "we have Hucks here now as a night watchman, and it might cause suspicion if he found this door locked every night. Mr. Selden though it better that they should use the room behind the organ as a sleeping apartment."

There was a question in the remark, and Reid said:

"You mean that I ought to go and sleep in the room you had ready for me? I am not leaving Miss Lawrence. As soon as she has put the children to bed, I shall join her, and remain in the passage or somewhere handy."

"I think that is a very good suggestion, if you are well enough," James said gravely. "This waiting time has been very trying for us all, and Mr. Selden has some new plan, I know. We can't go on hiding them indefinitely."

Sylvia went with her charges to the panel, and disappeared with a smile at Reid. The life-sized portrait of an ancient Severinge moved back and closed again behind them.

Jack waited in the library after James had gone, promising to keep the worthy night watchman in conversation. Presently he heard a slight sound, and Sylvia's whisper, "Come along."

$200,000 DAMAGE TO REFORMATORY

Superintendent Thinks Only 35 Took Part In Actual Rioting

GUELPH, Ont., Jan. 18.—(CP)—Just a lot of "undisciplined young fellows together" resulted in the rioting at the Ontario Reformatory last night, said C. G. Neelands, deputy provincial secretary. The incendiarism and wrecking of the prisoners caused $200,000 damage.

After directing the police and guards in rounding up the rebellious prisoners into the cells from dormitories ruined by fire and violence, Mr. Neelands said ordinarily there were about 74 prisoners occupying cells in the institution, some by preference and some for discipline.

The rest of the 705 on the roll of the reformatory are accommodated in the dormitories. Tonight and for several nights they must sleep in the cells.

The autorities did not find it necessary to handle the men violently and no guns were displayed. One tear gas bomb was exploded.

Show of Force Saved Day.

"Our show of force subdued all the excitement," Mr. Neelands said.

At the same time the deputy provincial secretary did not minimize the seriousness of the outbreak. There will be an investigation. The ringleaders will be dealt with.

"It was the liveliest affair of the kind ever in this institution," he said.

Dr. J. D. Heaslip, superintendent of the reformatory, estimated there were 35 prisoners actually engaged in the rioting. Twenty-five had declined to eat their lunch. This was the first inkling of the trouble. At 3 p.m. the rioting and the pillage started.

Dr. Heaslip declared he had heard no previous complaint.

Prudential Staff Holds Gay Gathering.

One of the gayest parties in a long series of pleasant affairs when members of the Prudential Insurance Company's staffs from the city and out-of-town points in this division get together for an evening of fun, took place on Saturday evening at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club, and was featured by the presentation of service awards to A. W. Wray and W. F. Sidey, of the Peterborough office, and M. F. Mackie of Orillia. Seventy-three people were in attendance.

A delicious dinner was served by J. Bidwell, the club steward, and his staff. Small, flower-decked tables were laid in the large solarium, where lights were shaded by decorative yellow and orange shades that matched the iridescent tints of the large shell which forms an orchestra stand. John I. Allen, superintendent of the local office, presided.

Honored guests of the gathering were the three men to whom especial presentations were made, and their wives, His Worship, Mayor G. A. Macdonald, and the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, pastor of Mr. Wray's church, with Mrs. Sutcliffe.

Arrangements were in the capable hands of C. W. Nicholson of the Peterborough Prudential staff, who supervised a splendid entertainment and also arranged a very unique opening for the program of the evening. This was a faked broadcast from CFRB, Toronto, in which Mr. Nicholson, at a microphone in the adjoining lounge, and speaking with the traditional speed and accent of a radio announcer, welcomed the guests and started the evening on a striking note.

"We are pleased to have in the city of Peterborough such men as John I. Allen", he said. "That is one of the reasons why our city stands high, because we have such men here who are willing to give of their time and money to benefit the community."

Mr. Allen, speaking of Prudential records, announced that in the Peterborough division, with approximately forty staff members, including the girls in offices, there are twenty-two who belong to what is known as the Prudential 'Old Guard', totalling two hundred and ninety-five years of service; "A remarkable record". He went on also to outline the manner in which the Prudential Company takes care of its long-term employees.

The presentation of a gold locket set with a diamond, which represented the company's award for twenty-five years of service, was made to A. W. Wray by his pastor, the Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe, who spoke of the latter as a man possessing many rare qualities and who, in church work, is a deacon who "deeks".

Presentation of five-year bronze pins were made to Mr. Mackie and Mr. Sidey by C. W. Nicholson and Art Moffatt, while lovely bouquets of flowers for Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Wray, Mrs. Mackie and Mrs. Sidey, were presented by E. Jeffrey of Cobourg, T. J. Best of Peterborough, W. L. Brioux of Oshawa, and H. C. Slater of Orillia.

A beautifully-illuminated address, done by a special artist in the company's head office, was also presented to Mr. Wray with his twenty-five year badge.

Mr. Allen thanked the Mayor, Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe and Mr. Nicholson for his extensive work in preparing the program; W. McLaren proposed the toast to 'The Ladies' in a characteristically humorous speech, and Mr. Nicholson spoke of the various donations of favors for dinner; samples of Quaker Oats' products from J. E. Sullivan of the Quaker Oats Company; of Ovaltine from the A. Wander Company, per A. Rhodes; and little white clay pipes from P. J. Harrison, grocer.

The evening closed with bingo games and a "Wheel of Fortune".

Among the guests of the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Eric Howe, who were observing on Saturday the fifth anniversary of their wedding.

Guests included the following: His Worship, Mayor G. A. Macdonald; the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe and Mrs. Sutcliffe; Mr. and Mrs. John I. Allen; Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Wray; Mr. and Mrs W. F. Sidey of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Mackie of Orillia; Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Nicholson, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Best, Mr and Mrs. R. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. W. McLaren, Mr. and Mrs. A. Moffatt, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Shadgett, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Howe, Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Vannest; the Misses E. E. Taylor, H. Jackson, M. Pitchford, D. Kelly, Kirn, C. McCarthy; Messrs. D. Lillico, C. E. Richmond, all of Peterborough.

Other guests from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hawkins, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Brioux, Mr. and Mrs. K. A. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. I. A. Turpin, Miss C. I. Wilcox, G. M. Clack and Mr. Blackler, all of Oshawa; Mr. and Mrs. E. Jeffrey, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Cockburn, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond, Miss M. E. Walden and Miss Isabel Raymond, all of Cobourg; Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Greenfield of Bowmanville; Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Wanner of Port Hope; Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Moore of Midland; Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Lightfoot, Miss E. M. Ryan and H. C. Slater, all of Orillia; J. A. Goodwin of Barrie; R. S. Nelson of Campbellford; A. A. O'Neill of Lindsay.

J. I. Allen (32 years); A. W. Wray (25); A. Moffatt (18); W. McLaren (16); E. Jeffrey of Cobourg (15); T. J. Best and H. C. Harris (14); W. E. Wright of Peterborough, F. P. Cockburn of Cobourg and D. M. Wanner of Port Hope (11); C. W. Nicholson of Peterborough, W. L. Brioux of Oshawa and C. E. Hawkins of Oshawa (8); R. Ross (7); R. S. Nelson of Campbellford (6); H. C. Slater of Orillia, M. F. Mackie of Orillia, and W. F. Sidey of Peterborough (5). (Mr Slater received his bronze pin last year)

Ladies of the office staff who also qualify in the same category include the Misses E Taylor and H. Jackson of the Peterborough office; Miss M. E. Walden of Cobourg; Miss C. I. Wilcox of Oshawa; Miss E. M. Ryan of Orillia.

New Branch All Saints

Officers of the recently-formed Teen-Age branch of the Women's Auxiliary of All Saints' Church were installed at the close of an enjoyable supper prepared by the girls, under convenorship of Ruby Leach, with especial guests in the Rev. and Mrs. J. D. Paterson and Miss Gwendolyn Dobbin, president of the Evening branch of the Women's Auxiliary.

The installation ceremony which followed took place in the chapel and was preceded by a devotional period conducted by the branch leader, Miss Dorothy Allen.

Mrs. Paterson then installed the first officers of this new branch, presenting to each a lighted candle with the words: "May your influence for good shine forth as the light from this candle." Then, as the officers stood holding their candles, the hymn, "Breathe on me, Breath of God," was sung softly.

The president, Miss Peggy Baxter, then took charge of the meeting. The Rev. Mr. Paterson spoke briefly, wishing the girls every success in their new branch, and also pronounced the closing benediction.

Officers are as follows: Miss D. Allen, Leader; Mrs. J. D. Paterson and Miss Gwen Dobbin, honorary presidents; Miss Peggy Baxter, president; Miss Audrey Leach, vice-president; Miss Iva Lackie, secretary; Miss Gwen Friendship, treasurer; Miss Doris Avery, Dorcas secretary; Miss Beryl Johnston, Literature secretary; Miss Ruby Leach, Social convenor; Miss Eleanor Glover, pianiste.

First Lady's Gown

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is pictured here wearing her inauguration evening costume. It is a gown of graceful lines in satin of a very pale silvery blue tone, that is to be known as "White House blue". The gown features a high cut bodice, and a new type "V" neckline, as well as the slightly flaring skirt with short train. Fox fur, dyed blue to match the color of the dress, borders the long scarf. Constable and company of New York supplied the gown the president's wife will wear on the inauguration evening.

Wide shoulders and slim waist emphasized by the "laced" bodice closing, makes this princess dress different from anything you've seen.

It reveals interesting fabric texture in sleek lustrous black satin crepe. The tricky collar and lacing form such effective trim of the dull surface of the crepe.

The slender skirt has a grand swinging hem.

To sew it! Just straight seams from shoulder to hem to join and stitch the sleeves and the collar.

Style No. 2574 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42-inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch material.

MARK ST. CHURCH HAD GOOD YEAR

Most Successful Annual Meeting Held By Ashburnham's United Church

On Friday evening the annual congregational meeting of Mark Street United church was held in the Sunday school auditorium. It was attended by quite a large gathering of members and adherents of the church.

The meeting was the first to be held since the Rev. E. Rowland assumed his duties as pastor.

After a brief devotional service, conducted by the minister, the business meeting commenced with Mr. Rowland acting as chairman. M. Pomeroy was appointed secretary for the evening.

The reports of the various organizations compared quite favorably with those of the past few years.

Mr. Rowland expressed himself as being quite pleased with the reports and the progress the church has made considering the congregation were laboring under the handicap of a mortgage. He declared himself firmly behind any endeavor the church would make to clear itself of a debt of this nature as using his own words, "that he would never rest until the mortgage was burned."

Owing to the retirement of four members of the board of stewards, the following were re-elected: Gordon Eason and Ernest Lillico, who have already served faithfully several years, together with two new members, namely, Allen Stevens and Keith White.

Mr. Gray and Mr. Robb were elected by acclamation to the session.

Concluding the meeting the pastor thanked those present for their co-operation in making the meeting a decided success, closing with the Benediction.

Speaking here he said by the use of modern knowledge of Diet the average height of the population could be increased two inches and the average weight seven pounds.

"Yet millions will die needlessly before this new knowledge so painfully minted, becomes current coin," he said.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta

THE EDUCATION of the human mind commences in the cradle and the impressions received there frequently exert their influence through the whole of life. Principles which take the deepest root are those implanted during the seasons of infancy, childhood and youth.

—Logan.

Dear Friends:

It is often said that the "sins of the fathers are handed down from generation to generation," but it is never supposed that the virtues of the mother can be handed down also, and may be so much more powerful that it counteracts the other, and maybe wipes it out entirely.

Just a few days ago, a group of us were talking about heredity and some thought that we followed closely in our parents' footsteps, and some thought that environment played a larger part than heredity, and I was of the latter group.

If all the faults of our parents were handed down, we would be a sorry race now. If the virtues, the love, the training of the one, (whether it were father or mother), could not counteract the bad effects of the other on our natures, then there would not be any use in training.

But we are all born with the chance if only we grasp it, and if we lie back and say "one of my parents was bad, so what chance have I," then we are simply letting life play with us, and that is no good. I have seen folks who had drunken parents, who were so disgusted with drunkenness, that they would not touch the stuff on any account. I have also seen those whose parents were the essence of all the virtues, go wrong in every way, and who could blame it on heredity?

No, the whole thing hangs on the education we received in the home, and the earlier it begins, the more firmly imbeddied it becomes. If a mother is careless of her reputation, if she is a liar, or a sneak-thief, then the child follows her example.

That is why, when a young one goes wrong, people ask what kind of a mother had they, that this should happen. And yet, for all the training and examples they see day by day, they are a free agent, and can make or mar their life, as many appear to do, and what can heredity or home life do about it?

"You can lead a horse to water, but cannot make him to drink," and you can train a child or youth, but you cannot always restrain them from folly. Not one of us can say "I will do so and so with my child and know definitely that he or she will always be good or sensible, or industrious, or successful.

Each and everyone is a personality, and if they allow themselves to be easily led, what can anyone do about it, but themselves? Yet, in the end, the training they had may cause them to see the error of the road they are travelling, so that they turn aside from this that they have chosen, back to the one which will bring them most happiness.

Some of us learn the easy way, and some choose the hardest way. But we all have to learn that living the best life brings the best satisfaction in the long run.

We may go astray, we may choose the murky things of life, but if the seeds of decency have been planted deep in our youth, we shall come back the decent way after all our suffering.

And the funny thing is, that people who have been trained properly, never really enjoy the nasty things they choose. They have a feeling all the time that they are lowering themselves, that this they are doing is beneath them, and not nearly so much fun as they have been led to believe.

It is hard to think that some people really enjoy being bad, but it is true all the same. And it is equally true that others cannot let themselves go, because there is something inside them which holds them back, no matter how much they want to be one of the crowd.

And now, where are we? I still maintain that we have the chance to make something of our lives if we try, that God made us free agents, and that altho' some of us are born weaker than others in willpower, yet it can be strengthened just as bodily ills can be made well again.

So, don't lie back and say "my parents or grandparents were such and such, so what chance have I?" With the help of God and a strong determination, you can become anything you want, so keep on trying your best.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Give the C.N.R. a Chance

Hon. Clarence D. Howe, Minister of Transport in the Dominion Government, proposes to write off a billion dollars from the now stated capitalization of the Canadian National Railways. It is not meant that debt to that extent will be dissipated by such a gesture, but it will not be standing against the railways.

The manner in which the component parts of the Canadian National Railways were secured by the government is a good example of how things never should have been done. There is the old Grand Trunk Railway stock of $165,627,738 which was found by the arbitration board of 1921 to be worth nothing at all, and yet that appears among the assets listed in the annual financial statement of the railway. That stock is held in Britain, and when the holders of it see it listed as an asset naturally they cling to the belief they should be paid for it as the government took over the railway. In 1918 another board of arbitration found that Canadian Northern stock valued at $100,000,000 should be placed at $18,000,000.

When the government took over the old railways they were virtually in bankruptcy; there was not a money maker in the lot. Many of the lines were competing with each other and the equipment was away below the requirements of safety or of good railway practice. And yet all these things were scooped up by the government, and the bonds behind them were honored and guaranteed. Truth is much of the stuff was worth nothing at all.

That is the justification for writing off a great deal of this mythical capitalization as far as charging it against the Canadian National Railways is concerned. Putting a number of decrepit roads together and calling them by another name would not make them profitable, and we do not believe that any road under any management could show a profit while trying to carry the heap of figures stacked against the C.N.R. If the capital is placed at something within reason it may be found that the government which arranged the taking over the lines has been the cause of the annual deficit rather than the C.N.R. itself.

Bring It Out in the Open

Toronto police in one day raided three places where it was alleged bets were being taken and paid off on horse racing. In these three places there were 162 persons who after being taken to police headquarters and charged were allowed their freedom on bail, the total of which was $11,250.

The Examiner believes that similar raids could be carried on in almost any city because betting on horse races is a general practice. It has been so for years, and the Toronto raid, though spectacular, reveals nothing which is new.

When the racing season is on in Toronto the 162 individuals now in trouble could have gone to the race tracks. They could have walked in daylight to the wickets of the parimutuel establishment and there whacked up all the money they had on any particular horse. If that horse won they could go out openly and collect their winnings. They would not have been arrested because the government approved of it all and was taking its share of the proceeds. And if a government is in need of revenue we consider that is a good place to get it—from those who bet on the horse races.

It has been urged, and with good reason, that it would be much better to bring horse race betting right out in the open and recognize it and make revenue from it. Toronto would be a good place for the government to try such an experiment. It would be better to have the business conducted under reliable auspices than to have it driven into cellars and attics where the doors are barred. If it were done openly half the mystery of the business would be taken away, and the sensation of beating the law would be dried up. Such offices should be as open and public as the betting booths at a race track, and the government could tax the turnover.

We quite well realize there are those who will not agree with such a suggestion. They are opposed to betting on horse races. In that belief this paper shares, but the trouble is there are so many people who think otherwise. The people who were arrested in Toronto will be fined, but they will bet again. They will do it secretly, and we believe that driving the business out in the open would be better than having it housed behind closed doors. If such an experiment did not work to advantage then it could be dropped.

Why Bother About It?

It is quite evident that all cables and correspondence which passed between London and Ottawa during the negotiations prior to the abdication of Edward VIII will not be made public. We do not believe any good interest will suffer as a result.

There is no actual record even in London of what transpired between Premier Baldwin and the former king on the several conferences which they held. In a general way it is known what Edward proposed and what parliament refused to do, but there would be no stenographer present to write down the conversation between monarch and premier. For that reason there is no exact record.

The Canadian parliament, we understand, is going to start out with the intention of being over with its session before the time of coronation, and in that event it has little time to waste in debating what caused Edward to abdicate as king. It would be merely putting old straw through the mill.

How the Thing Spreads

A report was sent out from Washington telling that two new battleships would be armed with 16-inch guns, and 16 inches is not far removed from being the width of the printed surface of the page you are reading.

What happened? The news was printed in the Japanese newspapers, and the cartoonists and writers became industrious in their interpretation of the Washington report. In picture and word they made it certain the giant guns of United States were going to be pointed directly at Japan in an effort to dominate the Pacific.

And today there are millions of people in Japan who have been informed of this new danger, and already the agitation starts anew in Japan that there must be more ships and greater guns in order to meet this new menace from across the Pacific ocean.

If an individual or a town were going to be hit with a large shell we do not know whether 14 inches or 16 inches in size would make much difference, but when people are seeking for reasons to advance and increase the cause of the race for more armament and greater armament then the two inches means a great deal. It is a point on which the world is somewhat crazy at the moment.

Experimenting With Death

Edward Moss works on a farm near Wingham, and some time ago purchased an old car, the kind which had curtains. This he changed and made a closed-in top for it. Next move was to make something to heat the car for winter use. This was done by constructing a casing around the exhaust pipe and bringing the heat into the car. There were several experiments, but the last one was when Mr. Moss was pulled out of the car and revived, a near-victim of monoxide poisoning. Through faulty construction his heating device was filling the interior of the car with poison.

At Harvard University in Boston four scientists and two students have for weeks been experimenting with the effect of carbon monoxide gas as it comes from the exhaust of motors. They have demonstrated that this colorless and odorless gas gives no warning whatever to its victim. Those who experimented with it did so in a sealed chamber and they knew the gas was coming in, but they could not detect it. They tried sitting down and keeping quiet, and also taking exercise in the room. When they took exercise the effect of the gas was felt much more rapidly. There is agreement that collapse comes when the blood is one-third saturated.

Not in any case did any experimenter have the sensation of being "put under," and there was no tendency apparent to fight against the increasing influence of the gas. When the man in the sealed chamber felt he had gone far enough he was removed, but meantime he had been recording all his sensations. There was sufficient knowledge gained to make it clear that carbon monoxide acts with a fair degree of speed, and it works accurately to produce unconsciousness and then death. So do not leave your engine running in a closed garage.

Looking for Industries

We have been looking at reports of inaugural meetings of a number of council, some of them in cities and others in towns, and in many places the suggestion has been made that some action must be taken to secure some new industries. Probably all the communities feel the same about it; they have done so for a long time.

If we are facing a period when there is going to be industrial expansion, then it is time to do some thinking. Securing new industries is an old subject, and it is one about which a number of municipalities have learned a good deal, and they have also paid a good price for their instruction.

Now and then a large industry does decide to establish a branch factory, but the people in charge of such business know pretty well where they want to go; they are not looking for something for nothing, nor are they going to locate where they are unable to work to advantage.

We believe some of the most lasting results have come from the establishment of small industries by men who thoroughly understand their business, who have a knowledge of markets and who are well aware of all the business hazards they will have to take. It has been found that such industries have gone through times of depression in better condition than others more imposing in size and name.

One weakness is that too many municipalities are looking for people on the outside to come in and do something for them in the way of increasing scope and extent of their industrial activity. Residents of such communities in possession of financial strength prefer to keep their resources carefully invested in places where the risk is small. They much prefer some other person to enter and provide the sinews for the industrial expansion of which they talk so much.

It might be well, too, that some attention be given the promoter. In a time when expansion is spoken of he generally makes his appearance. In other years he has cut quite a swath through the province and a fair amount of the grain has gone to his mill.

There are certain communities which should receive preference in the establishment of industries for the simple reason they deserve it. During years when times were hard they have kept their financial house in good order; they have not placed heavy mortgage against the future; they are not suggesting to a prospective industry that it bring its employees to a community where they must share in paying a debt in the creation of which they had nothing to do. Such communities where debenture debt is on the way out stand in the preferred class today.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Over a thousand Sudbury youngsters have been victims of mumps but the sorest victims are those who took the disease during the Christmas holidays.

If winter comes can spring, etc. Toronto folk anxious to secure grounds for their picnics next summer lined up at the city hall the other morning before 4 o'clock.

Only two persons in every ten who apply for driver's licenses at St. Louis know how tall they are, according to officials. But they all know they can drive expertly.

Premiers Patterson of Saskatchewan and Bracken of Manitoba held a conference before discussing relief finance problems with the Federal Minister of Finance. It looks as if the boys are ganging up on Charlie Dunning.

Some one has advocated noise-proof helmets for the use of school teachers. That might be hard, however, on the youngster who gives his first correct answer of the year and then finds the teacher has not been able to hear it.

And now Port Hope authorities turn once again to the question of flood control. The trouble seems to be like the Irishman's leaking roof; when its raining it cannot be fixed and when there is no rain there is no need of fixing it.

Because her husband wanted her to see a movie film she had already seen a Massachusetts woman has been given a divorce on grounds of cruelty. There are screen productions that would almost justify that verdict.

Some of the German regimentation has its good points. The rule just announced by the Berlin municipal bus company that boys and girls must surrender their seats to older passengers without waiting to be asked to do so is a case in point.

The Globe and Mail intimates that the freckled 15 year old Perth boy who spent more than $1000 of his uncle's money during a spree in Toronto will probably be freckled in a place that does not show. At least he will be tanned.

France is preparing to negotiate a new war debt agreement with the United States but off-hand we would say that the chance of Uncle Sam getting anything like the face value of his claims is so remote that the American taxpayer will never know the negotiations were on.

DISCOVERY

(By A. R. K.)

¶ I used to argue quite a lot, and tell the people what I thought, I guess I'd often bray; but I have changed my mind since then, I tried another way with men, the old one did not pay.

¶ I told Joe Bones who runs the store, he should not run it any more, he was a clever gent; he was an honest man with wit, his present job he ought to quit, and run for parliament.

¶ And when the Christmas time had come, Bones' lad came to me on the run, he had a box for me; Joe Bones sent me a turkey bird, together with a kindly word, likewise a pound of tea.

¶ The landlord came to seek his rent, he took from me my last red cent, I offered him a chair; no more I called him funny names, I said he had a set of brains, and he should run for mayor.

¶ Next week he came and made a call, he thought he'd paper up the hall, and paint the kitchen too; he said if rent day found me tight, I should not shiver in a fright, some time next week would do.

¶ So I spread salve on folk I meet, I've learned by now to do it neat, and it works rather quick; and I find how they're all the same, the big men or the very plain—they like it pretty thick.

Replenishing Our Hardwood

(From the Chatham News)

THOUGH THE veteran pine tree of the original forst that once clothed most of what is now called "Old Ontario," disappeared long ago, there are still some patches of hardwood left, here and there as survivals and reminders. Apparently these are doomed to extinction, either by natural decay or artificial utilization. Maple, elm and birch are all valuable in the construction of houses and the making of furniture, but the supply of these trees is quite limited, while the demand for woods is constantly increasing. Even at the present rate of consumption the available supply will soon be exhausted, and it becomes an important question how to replace it. The answer, in a single word is "reforestation."

In the pre-Cambrian rock district lying immediately north of what is still called "Old Ontario," which extends from the Severn and Trent Rivers on the South to the French and Mattawa Rivers on the North, there are millions of acres that have been stripped of their pine forests, but on which many valuable hardwood trees are still standing. These should be taken into account by the Ontario Government, and all the procedure necessary to their economic utilization should be devised and applied without loss of time.

On many farms in "Old Ontario" there are still to be seen patches of the original forest, most of them made up by the trees above mentioned, all of which are rapid growers, and for all of which the markets of the United States and Great Britain will sooner or later be insatiable. Besides these little forests are many patches of land which are quite unfitted for agriculture, and on which selected trees might usefully be planted in groves large enough to force the individual trees to slough off their lower branches as they mount up, and thus become genuine forest giants fit for future economic uses.

It would well repay any farmer in "Old Ontario" to visit the government's "Norfolk gardens" and see what has been accomplished there within a few years. Forestry has been reduced there to an art as well as a science, but an art so absolutely simple that any farmer can understand and practice it on his own land. The Norfolk soil is barren sand unfit for ordinary agriculture, but it grows trees rapidly and perfectly. So will any sandy soil anywhere else, when it gets a chance. No forest on a farm should be turned into a cattle "run," if the purpose of its existence is to develop trees for utilization. The "underbrush,' which cattle will destroy, should be allowed to grow for the purpose of killing off the branches of the valuable trees.

All this will be perfectly carried out by nature herself if she is allowed a chance to practice her own laws of activity; all the farmer can do is to play the part of the onlooker and student.

A NOTABLE FOG.

(Manchester Guardian)

MANY THINGS have happened since the last ten days of November, and some of them have been large enough to drive weather conditions out of most people's minds. But the close of last November was in parts of Lancashire, Cheshire and the Midlands a period of really memorable fog, and the last issue for 1936 of the "Meteorological Magazine" yields some professional tributes to the sustained vileness of that visitation.

Thus it is recorded that "the period November "19-28 in the Manchester and Liverpool areas was characterized by almost continuous fog" and "such continuity has not been experienced before by any members of the staff of this station." When the plague was at its worst on the evening of November 27 "visibility at times was 1 to 3 yards," and even professional recorders of weather conditions, for once trusting less to instruments than to indignation, are moved to reflect that "on these occasions the smoke and dirt in the fog were indescribable."

After two or three days of the visitation " a black, wet slime" discolored grass and shrubs, a pilot at Speke Airport encountered "almost black" ice, and several cotton mills which were not equipped with air-purifying plant closed down because the available air "was soiling the yarn as it was being spun."

BRIDGE ADDICTS.

(American Mercury)

THERE ARE about 4 million bridge players in America—a very respectable total which needs no exaggeration. The estimate is based on the number of bridge cards sold per annum, divided by the average number of decks used per family. Compare this, if you please, to the 1 million golfers, 100,000 registered chess players and 3 million tennis players.

The card game next in popularity to bridge is pinochle, which is substantially confined to cities and towns with a preponderantly German or German-Jewish population. Player statistics are unavailable, but a reasonable estimate can be made from the sale of pinochle decks, which is only a fractional percentage of those used in bridge, somewhere in the ratio of 1 to 50.

It might also surprise many to learh that 33 per cent. of all American bridge addicts still play auction. The percentage is rapidly decreasing, however, and is largely confined to country towns.

As to the earnings of professional bridge players, any expert will answer truthfully, albeit sadly, unless he happens to be one of those who wish to convey the impressioin that they are very "big shots" indeed. Any player who thinks he can earn a decent income by gambling at bridge is a fit subject for my definition of an expert—"an unbalanced mentality superimposed on a misspent life."

Letters To The Editor

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics

KEEP OFF THE GRASS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Alderman Gordon's cheap gibe at the expense of one of our most efficient councillors, — who,—page Chief Newhall, does know what he is talking about,—reminds us of the story of the London slum urchins. Bill said to Tom,—"What's grass, Tom." "Dontcherknow? "That's the stuff as yer keeps orf of." From the many reports in various newspapers, one gathers that the new council handed the alderman enough boards to last during his term of office. He started by inviting the council to lunch to discuss council matters. The wise old owls did not go, and probably the others did unwittingly, or they would have absented themselves.

The alderman can be a very valuable man if he will co-operate as the Mayor said at the opening meeting. Playing a lone hand is in order at a euchre drive, but not at a council meeting. To his credit, be it said, he deserves praise for taking up the case of the maimed child, along with other good souls,—and also for his motion to have the license of the wine shop closed, when it comes up for renewal in March. He was backed in the latter, but not in the former case, when the council were lethargic.

Yours Truly,
INTERESTED

It Would Need An Army.

(From the Leth bridge Herald.)

MINORITIES wouldn't have any rights if Mr. Kuhl, the Social Credit M.P. for Jasper-Edson, had his way. If they resisted or disagreed he, would attack them with armies so as to force them to accept the views of a so-called majority.. That line of argument is in complete accord with the course Bolshevist Russia has followed since the Revolution. "Armies," and Mr. Kuhl hints at the possibilities of armies being used in Alberta, had to crush Russian minorities. The treatment of the Kulaks bears testimony to the drastic course that was followed into Alberta in his determination to possess the so-called social heritage. The Anglo-Saxon ideal of democratic procedure would be blown to the winds to be replaced by a policy of might is right.

Did the people who voted for Social Credit vision an army as being required to enforce their views? Did they vote for a dictatorship and the crushing of minorities? Some may have, but only a minority of bigots of Communistic traits. Social Credit leaders deny they have sympathy with Communism, but if what Mr. Kuhl hints at is to be interpreted at its true value, it means that if need be Social Credit is prepared to bring its program into effect in Alberta by force. It may come to that, and is so it may not prove to be a bloodless revolution. There has been far too great a tendency to overlook the minority in Alberta. If some opinions expressed were accepted as the truth, the outside world must have come to think of Alberta as being without a minority. The vote in the general election of 1935 showed Social Credit to have about 53 per cent. of the total vote. Isn't 47 per cent, a considerable minority? Remember also that in the 53 per cent. were many voters who did not accept Social Credit; they voted for Social Credit candidates for various reasons, the least of which was to express belief in the theory of Social Credit. Alberta's minority may prove to be more aggressive and powerful than Mr. Kuhl, the erstwhile school teacher, has any conception.

It is well, however, that this gentleman made his outburst and insinuated that an army might be necessary. Alberta now knows what is running through the minds of some of its S.C. leaders.

Loaded With Expenditures

(From Toronto Saturday Night.)

THE Ontario Government undoubtedly executed a neat piece of piracy when it possessed itself of the income-tax revenue of the municipalities with the assurance that it was merely going to collect it for them, and then proceeded within six months to redistribute it so that the larger cities get some two millions less than they used to. The moral obliquity of that action depends to some extent, however, on the right of the former owners of this revenue to claim it; and concerning that right we have always been more than a little doubtful. The proper functions of a municipality are almost wholly concerned with property—the protection, servicing and improvement of property. It seems logical that the revenue for these purposes should be raised from property. An income tax, falling in part upon incomes wholly made outside of the municipality, and perhaps largely expended outside of it, has very little relation to property, and has moreover a definite tendency (though this is a matter for the municipality itself to consider) to drive wealthy citizens into suburbs, satellite towns and rural areas, a tendency which is greatly aided by the modern facilities for easy transport.

The trouble with municipalities at the present moment is not that they are being deprived of income taxes, but that they are being loaded with expenditures which have nothing to do with the servicing of property, and very little local bearing. We fail to see that the costs arising from a nationwide state of abnormal unemployment have any connection with municipal finance whatever, or that they ought to be imposed upon the municipal treasuries. Responsibility for the fact that they have been so imposed is difficult to apportion between the provincial and federal governments under our (in this respect unfortunate) dual sovereignty system; but we incline to feel that the major part of it must rest with the Dominion, as having more responsibility for general business conditions, and more elastic sources of revenue for dealing with abnormal ends.

Canada's Smallest Newspaper

(From the Saint John Herald-Telegraph.)

THE STORY of The Tiny Tattler, "Canada's smallest newspaper," is a story of the ambitions of a lad who is making his dream come true.

About four years ago, Ivan A. Shortliffe, 14 years old, residing in the little village of Central Grove on Long Island, off the Bay of Fundy shore of Digby County, Nova Scotia, conceived the idea of starting a newspaper. He acquired a small hand press and an assortment of type and got out his first issue, creditable enough as a start, but displaying its publisher's lack of equipment. The effort, however, attracted the attention of friendly printers in the vicinity, and offers of type and other material were made to the youthful publisher, and accepted. So The Tiny Tattler was born. A few copies were printed and distributed in the vicinity of Long Island every fortnight.

But the fame of The Tiny Tattler and its editor spread to the mainland, and to other provinces, and today with the announcement that the publication will henceforth issue weekly, its circulation is announced as approximately 5,000 copies. This is a record worthy of any weekly, and of many daily newspapers.

The current issue, Vol. 4, No. 26, consists of 16 pages, each four by six inches, and containing news notes from Westport, East Ferry, Tiverton, Freeport and Centreville. It has an editorial page, devoted in this issue to the change-over from a bi-monthly to a weekly, ending with these fine sentiments: "The aim of every weekly is to serve its public not only with a reliable local news service, but also assumes the responsibility of fighting everything opposed to the welfare of the public and giving untiring support to every cause whereby the public might benefit. This is the true aim of the weekly newspaper, and it is to this goal we shall continue until The Tattler's career is ended."

THE WESTERN SPIRIT.

(Ottawa Journal)

SENATOR BUCHANAN'S Lethbridge Herald says Southern Alberta "is looking with confidence to the future." That is one of the many things we admire about Lethbridge and its territory and its Herald. Is there a crop failure? Next year is another year. Are these factors in the political situation to cause alarm? The people, after all, have their share of hard Canadian common sense.

And so the Herald, reviewing a year which did not come up to Southern Alberta's expectations, admitting its shortcomings, casts its eyes onparative failure in the wheat crop caused by drought in some areas, production of new wealth in the Herald's area dropped by only $6,000,000 in 1936, from $40,625,000 to $34,630,000, and in many lines of activity it is able to report definite expansion and development.

Thus, with full appreciation of the difficulties in the way, the Herald surveys the future with confidence and optimism. It is the typical Western spirit which never knows defeat, which makes of misfortunes ward and upward. Even with a somits stepping stones to greater achievement, which is the spirit on which the experience on which solid progress is based.

HUNTS WITH CAMERA.

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

THE DEATH of a man who was noted as a big-game hunter would not arouse much regret and sympathy outside his family and among hunting men, but the death of Martin Johnson in an airplane crash in California is likely to be regretted by millions of people.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson were mighty and fearless hunters but they did very little hunting with guns. They occasionally shot wild animals in the jungles when they needed food, or in self-protection, but primarily they did their hunting with cameras. They "shot" film instead of bullets. No big-game hunters ever displayed more enterprise, more patience and skill than the Martin Johnsons did in order to get close to a wild beast or a group of them so that they might film or photograph them in their natural state. In doing so they often had to stalk their quarry for days, living in "blinds" on the ground or up trees and at times scarcely daring to breathe for fear of scaring away these timid animals. They took much greater risks than ordinary hunters because they had to get much closer.

The results of their courage were some of the finest animal films ever seen, films which were not only excellent screen entertainment but intensely instructive. Hunting with a camera is a much more valuable recreation than killing and bringing back a head or a rug. By the untimely death of Mr. Johnson a remarkable partnership has been broken, and much sympathy will be felt for Mrs. Johnson who is in hospital with a broken knee.

VALUE OF WALKING.

(Chatham News)

ARE THE young people of the present generation going soft physically? Directors of dancing in Hollywood say that they are, and they blame it all on the family car. Recently a director was forced to examine one thousand young girls, in order to select one hundred capable of standing the strain of a dancing act. He says that most young people have "automobile legs," with muscles so soft that they cannot endure even moderate exercise. They ride too much in cars. This director says that young people use their legs so little in these days that it is a wonder they are able to walk.

This latter observation is no doubt over-stating the case; but it is a fact that the ancient and honorable exercise of walking is losing favor these days. Young people are driven to school. They must have the car if they go to a movie or a dance. Even when they go to visit friends in another part of the city they must ride.

On the other hand walking is one of the most beneficial forms of healthful exercise. The automobile is a wonderful invention, and we are told that more new cars have been sold in Chatham and Kent County this year, than have been sold in any other single month since 1929. It indicates that prosperity is not only coming back—it is already back. But if it means that more people will ride when they should be walking, prosperity will really be a calamity as far as health is concerned.

Orderly Recovery Urged At Royal Bank Meeting

Speculative Booms and Resultant Depressions Must be Prevented if Capitalistic System to Survive, States Morris W. Wilson, President and Managing Director—Recommends Commission to Investigate Financial Relationship of Dominion, Provincial and Municipal Governments.

Sydney G. Dobson, General Manager, Reports Continued Progress in Bank's Business — Deposits Up $56,000,000 — Profits Improved—Business Undoubtedly on Up Grade.

Warning against the dangers of a speculative boom, and a plea that recovery be maintained on an orderly basis, were outstanding features of the address of Morris W. Wilson, President and Managing Director, at the 68th Annual General Meeting of the Royal Bank of Canada.

That recovery was well on the way there could be little doubt, and "even the most sanguine would have hesitated a year ago to predict progress as great as that which has been accomplished during 1936," stated Mr. Wilson.

In addressing the meeting, Mr. Wilson said, in part:

"A serious drought again affected large areas in the West, with results that were disastrous to the farmers immediately concerned. Those farmers who reaped good crops last year benefited materially by higher prices, but, in the midst of a broad recovery, farm income has lagged behind.

"It is gratifying that the stocks of grain in Canada are again of normal proportions. Nature is in a fair way to take the Government of Canada out of the grain business. It is sincerely to be hoped that she will not be drawn into it again.

Industries.

"Prices for newsprint have shown a slight increase during the past year and this, together with a heavier volume of sales, has brought encouragement to the newsprint industry.

"In the lumber industry there has been a satisfactory volume of demand from Great Britain ever since the beginning of their building boom. This demand has been maintained during the past year and is the most important factor in the improvement of conditions in lumbering.

"The value of Canadian mineral production established a new high record in 1936, amounting to approximately $350 million compared with $312 million in 1935. The prospects of the Canadian mining industry are more favorable than at any time in the past.

"Throughout the manufacturing industries of Canada, volume of production has been above the level which prevailed in 1926 and in October reached the highest point recorded since July 1929.

Employment and Relief.

"At the moment manufacturing employment is close to normal. In mining, as a whole, the number employed is greater than at any time in our history. In trade the volume of employment is not unsatisfactory. Under these circumstances, I cannot but feel that the time has come to examine with care our lists of those receiving unemployment relief. It is a notable fact that there has been no census of unemployment since 1931. At a time like the present a biennial census would give our various governing bodies facts which would help them in determination of policies.

Division of Taxes.

Over a wide field of economic legislation it is virtually impossible to guess whether ultimate authority rests with the Province or with the Dominion.

"Let us secure a review of the whole subject by a Royal Commission with the object of resolving these complexities. Changed social and economic conditions have thrown responsibilities on various governing bodies that were never contemplated at the time of Confederation, and as a consequence it is found increasingly difficult, in some instances, to meet these additional responsibilities with the sources of revenue at their disposal. Having regard to the necessity of maintaining the national credit, if it is at all possible some solution must be found which will permit both provinces and municipalities to continue the service of their public debt in full.

Individualistic Democracy.

"It is the fashion in certain quarters to say that the system of capitalism—or, as I prefer to term it, individualism—has failed.

"In the past it has adapted itself to changes in economic conditions and social concepts, and there is no reason to think that such adaptations will not continue to be made. In fact, they must be made if the system is to survive. With Communism, Fascism and Nazism in competition, individualism will survive only if the benefits which it provides to the community continue to be greater than those conferred upon people living under other organizations of society.

"If we would set an example to the world we must manifest that unusual degree of self-control which restrains booms and thus avoids subsequent depressions.

Money.

"It is for this reason then that the present monetary situation is an outstanding challenge to economic individualism. Can a popular government, such as that in the United States, for instance, deal effectively with the monetary situation? The revaluation of gold by the United States and the reduction in the gold value of other currencies, made almost unanimous this past year by the capitulation of the European gold bloc introduced a dynamic inflationary force into world economy. It is encouraging to note that this potentiality seems to be understood by the monetary authorities in the United States and that they are taking definite action. The world has not previously experienced a period when borrowing rates have been so low for so long a time. If continued on this basis an unhealthy and artificial situation will develop. Easy money is a powerful force; it operates somewhat slowly, but to wait until it is evident that speculation is out of hand will be to create conditions which can be corrected only by depression. In some quarters we are asked to believe that the increased government regulation of general economy may make it possible to continue low interest rates more or less indefinitely. I feel strongly that this view is not correct and that the action now being taken is by no means premature. By use, if necessary, of the huge reserves already accumulated it will be possible to prevent any serious interruption in recovery. It is surely better that we maintain the upward trend for a prolonged period and that recovery shall proceed in an orderly manner, with the minimum of encouragement to irresponsible speculation. We must on no account allow recovery to degenerate into boom — the forerunner of depression. Individualistic economy will stand or fall, depending upon its ability to prevent depressions.

General Manager's Address.

In reviewing the annual balance sheet, Mr. S. G. Dobson, General Manager, referred with satisfaction to an increase of $54,668,757 in total assets, which now aggregate $855,588,457, and to an increase in deposits during the year of $56,879,909. Mr. Dobson said in part:

Current Loans Situation.

"The demand for loans in Canada was again disappointing, though there have been indications during the last few months of increased requirements for business purposes. While advances under the heading of Current Loans in Canada decreased $41,251,783 during the year, this does not mean that the requirements of our ordinary borrowers were that much smaller. The reduction is fully accounted for by repayment of two special loans, namely, about $33,000,000 due by the Wheat Board liquidated principally through the sale of surplus stocks of wheat held under Government control, and the repayment of approximately $10,000,000 due by the Canadian Pacific Railway, being our participation in the loan to that company made by the chartered banks of Canada under Dominion Government guarantee.

"I give this information to correct an impression which casual consideration of this item in our Balance Sheet might create, that is, that business is still undergoing a process of liquidation.

"In this connection it is interesting to note that total commercial loans in Canada of all banks are only 50.46% of the amount outstanding at the end of 1929.

"Due to increased volume of business, I am pleased to report an improvement in Profits of $301,492. While not large, this is an encouraging trend.

Improvement in Business.

A review of conditions in Canada and other countries in which the bank has branches, indicates a definite improvement in business in Canada and in practically all of the foreign countries in which we are represented. Business is undoubtedly on the upgrade, and I look forward to 1937 with a greater feeling of confidence than has been justified for some years.

METHODS CHANGE, BUT NOT HABITS

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 18—(C.P.)—Twentieth century methods were used to make an arrest reminiscent of the Gay 90's.

Patrolmen Ed. Payne and R. V. Paschal took a tip from their patrol car radio and sped several blocks to arrest a Sabbath tippler "for operating a bicycle while intoxicated."

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 18. — Trade estimates the world's wheat carryover this year would be the smallest since 1925 did much on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange on Saturday to offset bearishness engendered by declining export offers in the international market.

Moving up briskly toward the last, wheat prices closed ⅛ cent lower to ⅛ higher, at virtually the best levels of the day, after being off 1½ cents earlier.

Short-covering prompted by a forecast only 300,000,000 bushels of wheat would be on hand next July 31 encouraged the rally. The world's average carryover is 700,000,000 bushels.

Earlier, a general downward revision of export quotations led to sharp recessions in most markets. Canada's No. 1 Northern wheat, Vancouver shipment, was offered at $1.50⅝ a bushel, c.i.f. Liverpool, a 3¾-cent recession.

Argentina exporters lowered their prices to $1.25⅝. Australian wheat was offered at $1.35⅝, 1⅛ cents under Friday's price.

300 FRED SMITHS FORM OWN ORDER

Hold First Annual On Ground Everyone Should Do Something Silly Once a Year

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP)—On the ground "everyone should do something silly once a year, 249 persons named Fred Smith or Mrs. Fred Smith last night held the "first annual" banquet here of the Benevolent and Protective and Completely Universal Order of Fred Smiths of America.

Organized by a New York advertising executive named Fred Smith, impressed by the fact he 'crossed wires' with five other fellows named Fred Smith in one day, the group gathered to "elevate and elucidate and amalgamate and allocate all the Fred Smiths in the world and see that they get the fame that's coming to them."

There are now more than 300 enrolled members of the order from coast to coast, marshalled by haphazard inspection of telephone books and newspaper publicity. No dues and no qualifications, except that you be named Fred Smith — Fred Smythes are rigorously excluded.

can always come in and talk to me," he said.

"As the result of the smashing in the kitchen the men had no supper. The superintendent thought the men just started on a rampage and did not intend it to go so far.

Know Ringleaders.

The superintendent said the authorities had a "pretty good idea who the ringleaders were."

The rioting left the reformatory chapel and hospital as well as the dormitories in ruin. What furniture was not smashed was burned or scorched by the fires the men started all over the place. The "Custodian Building," scene of the flare-up, is regarded as fireproof, but the floors and window sills were fuel for the flames.

Twenty of the staff of 74 guards were on duty when the trouble started. It was visiting day and some difficulty was experienced separating the callers from the prisoners.

While the fires were being started some of the men battered the light gratings from the windows with benches. After that escape over the roof of the one-storey building and to the ground was easy.

Three of the escaped men were arrested shortly afterward and confined to the Guelph police cells. One of them was intoxicated.

Two cars were reported stolen in Guelph, presumably by reformatory men. All Ontario police have been notified to be on the lookout for men in blue denim.

PRISONERS RUN WILD IN OUTBREAK

Prisoners told newspapermen that trouble had been brewing for several weeks. At lunch time, they said, 30 prisoners refused to accept food on their trays and stalked out of the lunchroom to the dormitories.

Guards followed them and took away four of their number, the convicts related. In protest the remainder began breaking up furniture and setting fire to bed clothes. The insurgent spirit spread quickly to all sections and the guards on duty were helpless to restore order, but they did nothing, officials said, to aggravate the rioters.

Some Drunk When Captured

Many of the escaped prisoners were captured on the reformatory grounds and in the city of Guelph, a mile away. Some were drunk when caught.

Two were picked up along the railroad tracks in Guelph waiting for a train. Others were caught by police patrolling the countryside on foot and in motor cars.

At least 100 of the convicts escaped from second storey windows, dropping to the kitchen roof and then into the courtyard. They scampered across the yard, scaled the powerhouse and fled into the wet night. Two automobiles were reported stolen in Guelph during the night.

Inspector Jordan of the Provincial Police at Kitchener took charge of the contingent assembled at the Reformatory. Chief Constable Harold Nash of Guelph marshalled his entire city force to help guards quiet the prisoners and round up those who escaped.

The tear gas bombs were said to have been thrown by Provincial Police to break up a destructive mob in one of the dormitories. The officers shouted warnings at first and were greeted with jeers. The bombs were thrown and the prisoners reeled from the room, choking and weeping.

In the "tower," the central part of the building between the two wings, prisoners raided Sergeant-Maguire's office. They broke furniture and typewriters and took away a heavy ball and chain, relics kept by the sergeant.

The ball and chain were used to smash billiard tables in the recreation room and other furniture.

Most of the reformatory prisoners are less than 25 years old. The maximum term in the institution is two years less a day.

One Guard's Opinion.

One guard, with 20 years' service had his own opinion of the uprising.

"The trouble is that this place is run more on the lines of a college than a prison," he said. "There was a time when these fellows were treated like convicts. Now we're more like nursemaids than prison guards. Maybe this will change things back again."

"Our show of force subdued all the excitement," said the provincial official, who directed guards and police throughout the disturbance. He did not minimize the seriousness of the outbreak, adding it was the "liveliest affair of the kind ever in this institution."

Dr. J. D. Heaslip, superintendent of the reformatory, gave his opinion that only 35 prisoners were actually engaged in rioting. He said he had heard no previous complaints about food.

He said officials had a "pretty good idea who the ringleaders were."

CONVICTS SEEMED BENT ON WRECKING GUARD RELATES

dentally got injured in trying to stop the rioters, and one policeman, who got a jet of fire extinguisher in his eye.

"Outside of these two, the guards were not hurt. The inmates seemed more concerned about creating a lot of damage, than they were about doing anything else. I don't know just how many escaped over the kitchen roof, but there must have been pretty near 100 if not more. We haven't checked up yet."

Prime Minister and any Canadian official with the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom or representative of the British Government of Crown regarding the proposed marriage and abdication of King Edward and accession of King George.

While not actually refusing eventually to table the correspondence, the Prime Minister, Thursday, left the impression his statement would give all the information the House would require. He would make the statement at an early opportunity, he told the House, after which "if honorable members have questions which they would like to ask of myself or of other members of the Government, we shall do our best to reply to them, and perhaps the House might then consider whether it would wish to have more in the way of correspondence."

Unless Mr. King's statement proves more comprehensive than they expect, the C.C.F. members were determined to make a fight to have copies of the actual correspondence tabled. The attitude of the Conservatives will likely be decided at a party caucus.

When Mr. King told the House on Thursday the Government had no further documents relative to the change in monarchs to be tabled then, the Conservative members raised no objection. They will be much influenced by the advice of Mr. Bennett, fresh from London and from other Empire countries where he doubtless talked over the situation.

The Empire Stand

The House was told last week by Mr. King that the governments of Great Britain and other Dominions had not favored tabling the correspondence arising out of the constitutional crisis. He denied immediately, however, Mr. Woodsworth's remark on Friday, that Canada had paid too dearly to please the British Government during the crisis.

Practice in more recent years has been to wind up the debate on the address in a couple of days at most and Parliament may be in the midst of a debate on the constitutional crisis by Wednesday. In order to make as much progress as possible, the main estimates are expected this week.

The Senate will resume on Tuesday when the first order will be the resolution of loyalty to the new Monarch passed by the Commons on Friday.

"Relief, including agricultural relief, and the general financial situation," Premier John Bracken of Manitoba said last night, will be subjects of conversations this week among Premier W. J. Patterson of Saskatchewan, Dominion Finance Minister Dunning, and himself.

Specific nature of the discussions, expected to last until Tuesday, was not disclosed. The Western Premiers reached here yesterday and expect to see Mr. Dunning to-day.

Unprincipled Fur Buyers Are Encouraging Law Infractions

MUSKRATS INCREASING

Publicity relating to court cases where Indians have been accused of breaking the law, and a number of other statements regarding the condition of Indians was responsible for a gathering of the council of Curve Lake Indians at the office of Indian Commissioner V. M. Eastwood on Monday morning. Present were Chief D. E. Whetung, Councillors George Taylor, Sr., Albert Whetung, James McCue; Secretary George Coppaway, and the agent, V. M. Eastwood.

The feeling of the meeting was voiced in a statement from Mr. Eastwood which said:

"The statements of individuals appearing in the papers, without exception, have been made without any effort to ascertain the facts. The statements are false and grossly misleading, tending to cause continuous infractions of the game laws of the province which have been framed for the promotion and control of the fur trade of both the Indian and the white alike.

"The statements in regard to relief are most incorrect. Every appeal has received immediate attention. For verification this can be referred to the Chief and Councillors of the Band with whom I am in almost daily touch and receive from them reports on conditions as well as making personal investigations myself. These men have first hand information and are not neglectful of their duties. Work has been performed for the fifteen days of January for which wages amounted to $121.15. For the same period relief expenditure has been $127.00. This past week a division of the proceeds of the sale of some timber amounting to $605.54 was divided in equal shares of $36.50 amongst seven families. A total of $853.69 has been distributed in the fifteen days."

Limited to Food, Clothing

"Requirements are limited to food and clothing as all have their own homes. Medical and dental services are adequately provided as well as schooling and religious instruction. An ample supply of drugs and medical supplies for all ordinary ailments where a doctor is not required, is constantly maintained at the Reserve, for all. Fuel is available in plenty and can be readily obtained.

"The school is in charge of two teachers with 1st class certificates. Sixty pupils attend with an average attendance record equal to any white school. All matters of importance are reported to this office by these teachers. There have been no reports of conditions such as have been appearing in the newspapers nor have I seen any undue neglect. It is exceedingly unfortunate that misleading statements have been made by individuals on their own account and on the behalf of groups.

"The matter of relief is being regularly used as an excuse for breaking the laws of the province. Unprincipled fur buyers have little hesitation in encouraging these infractions for considerable profit to themselves, for instance: muskrats are taken out of season for which the law-breaker receives twenty to twenty-five cents from the fur buyer. These pelts are then held for several months and then marketed with legal pelts for $1.75 to $2.00. It is most difficult to convict these individuals.

"A considerable number of the members of the band lease marshes for their spring trapping which is an important source of income. The Indian who resorts to spearing only takes from fellow members of the band who abide by the law and cause heavy loss to these people with very little gain to themselves."

The majority of the band are honest, industrious and law-abiding and look at the prominence given the activities of a small minority group as reflecting detrimentally on the remainder of the Band."

Chief Dan Whetung was certain the newspapers gave a good deal of space every time an Indian was in trouble. "When one of the Indians does something which is not right," stated the Chief to the Examiner, "then you give him a great deal of notice, and we think far more than the white man gets. Then too you are always careful to make sure it is stated that it is an Indian who is being prosecuted. In that way we feel the people generally get the idea that the Indians are breaking laws all the time while they are not. There are white people who break laws and there are Indians who break laws, but there are many more white people who do not break the laws and the same with the Indians. The great majority of them never do break the laws."

There was a general murmur of assent in the meeting when some one made mention of the school on the reserve where 60 Indian children are in attendance, and reference was made to the days when none of the children had ever passed the entrance.

"Good school and good teachers," was the opinion of several of the members of the Council, and it was apparent the Indians are proud indeed of their school and the manner in which the children are getting along there. W. Rome, the principal, and Miss Bertha Long, the other teacher, are held in high regard.

Muskrats Out of Season.

The Examiner asked members of the Council if Indians who were taking muskrats out of season were doing so because they were hungry or because they wanted to sell the pelts to those who were carrying on a bootleg business in furs. It was admitted there were places where such pelts were being sold, but it was also stated it was extremely difficult to secure a conviction. That in turn loosened up a general discussion on muskrats in general.

"Yes, they are good to eat," was the opinion of Chief Whetung. "I know we had some people from Toronto up our way and we gave them a meal of muskrats, but did not tell them what it was. Just the best parts were cooked for them and they ate every bit of it and liked it. Muskrat is good to eat," and there was no use taking a vote on that point because it seemed to be carried unanimously, with Mr. Eastwood reserving judgment.

"Muskrats are increasing since frogs have been taken for sale," was another statement made, and there was a good explanation on this point.

"The frogs will eat the young muskrats." Mr. Eastwood stated that frogs have been brought to his office here to prove it, the frog having a young rat inside.

"How big are the rats when young?" asked The Examiner.

Chief Whetung put his hand up on the desk and measured off a small space with his fingers, saying "about like that."

"About the size of a field mouse?" suggested the reporter.

"Yes, just about that size," was the answer.

"And how many in the family?"

"Oh, I should say the average batch runs from ten to twelve," said the Chief.

There are 308 Indians on the Curve Lake reserve, an area which is about 1,400 acres in extent. It was stated also that with better schooling some of the younger men were able now to leave with a good chance of securing employment the outside world, in industries and other places and several instances of this were cited to show that the future ought to be better than the past, and the feeling was that the school on the reserve was entitled to the credit for the change.

As a parting bit of instruction Chief Whetung turned to The Examiner representative and advised: "Do not make it appear that the Indians are law breakers any more than white people and when you want something in your paper about the Indians and their families and children be sure you get it from some person who knows the Indians.

For Tuesday, January 19

An active and important day is presaged from the predominant planetary configurations. There may be opportunities for substantial gain in many directions, especially if the small things and details be given proper attention. There are certain elements of secrecy or subtlety which may be turned to good advantage. Good news of an intriguing or secret nature may prove helpful and the recognition or co-operation of elders may be attracted.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of peculiar and rather subtle situations, with intriguing news to assist them to better themselves and enhance their good fortunes. Fidelity, diligence and attention to small opportunities and details may win the support and preferment of elders.

A child born on this day will have a fine mind, be studious, diligent and prone to give proper value to details, thus gaining the confidence and support of its superiors.

at Guelph. "Repairs are going ahead rapidly, and things are running as usual."

So far as Mr. Nixon knows there has been no reduction in the number of guards at the reformatory, he said. He thought it unlikely complaints over food had caused the trouble.

"Prisoners are served on the cafeteria style," he said. "They take all they want, and the quality is the best."

What 10 Escapers Did.

GUELPH, Ont., Jan. 118.—(CP), — Ten youths who scattered in all directions from riot-ridden Ontario reformatory, seeking freedom through last night's fog and rain, found themselves thrown together to-day in a cell block at city police headquarters.

They willingly told of their adventure through the night, their brief flights from bondage which ended in capture.

"I was stealing a hack but I didn't get that far," said a good-looking youth with reddish hair. "I'd just got the motor turned over when a couple came along." Two citizens caught him in the car at Fergus, 14 miles north of Guelph, and turned him over to the police.

"I was trying to get a passenger train out," said a small, dark youth who was arrested by city police along the railroad tracks. "The train was just goin' out when they got me."

Drunk, Knew Nothing

A bland colored boy wasn't sure where he was or where he was going when he was picked up. "I was drunk—I dunno," he explained. "I was jest wanderin'—by the tracks, I guess." He said he was intoxicated on a combination of hair tonic and face lotion.

Two 17-year-olds were trying to "bum a lift" on one of the main highways leading out of Guelph when police came along in a car. The two said they ran through the rainy night. One ran a block before a pistol shot barked behind him. He stopped. His companion went two blocks. Another shot was fired and he stopped, too. The city officers took them back to headquarters. One of the lads, sent to the Reformatory because he had escaped from Bowmanville Industrial School, said he was heading for Toronto.

Four prisoners banded together and fled as far as Rockwood, seven miles from the Reformatory. Cold, hungry and miserable, three of them with only two months still to serve, they decided to call it a day and surrendered.

Four Wait for Police

They entered a store of Rockwood and the store-keeper said there wasn't a policeman in town. So the four stood on a corner shivering and waited until a carload of Guelph city police drove along. They told the officers who they were and asked to be taken back. They were in for shop-breaking.

A black-haired young man admitted stealing a car in Guelph and driving 45 miles towards Toronto. Then, trying to turn around on a slimy country road, the front wheels of the machine ran into a ditch. He couldn't back out.

Discouraged by hunger and cold, he walked a mile into a town whose name he didn't know and there a policeman picked him up. He was sent back to Guelph.

"I just wanted to get to Toronto, that's all," he said. I wanted to get away from that Reformatory."

ADVERTISING PETERBOROUGH.

Peterborough's big winter sports carnival, to be held the week-end of January 30 and 31, is already giving this city plenty of publicity. As a proof is the fact that the Canadian National Railways system is advertising the event on its special excursion posters these days; the notices reading, "Attraction—Peterborough, Ont., week-end of January 30-31. Invitation Ski Tournament." All this publicity will help not only the carnival but the business community generally.

ALTAR BOUND.

Louis Yeates is viewing with alarm the employment situation these days. He said yesterday: "Since the Elite Restaurant opened, 14 of my waitresses have left to get married, and now my head waitress, Mrs. J. Plant, is altar bound." Though rather pleased with the air of a matrimonial bureau his place employs, he was somewhat concerned wondering whether it was the qualities of the food or the beauty of his staff which attracted the eligible men. He intends bringing in a new head waitress from Toronto.

"LIFE" IS SUBJECT.

"Life" was the subject of the lesson-sermon for Christian Science Churches on Sunday. The golden text was, "The Lord is the portion of mine inheritance and of my cup: thou maintainest my lot...Thou wilt show me the path of life" (Psalms 16: 5, 11). Selection from the Bible included the following from Psalms 36: 7, 9: "How excellent is thy loving-kindness, O God. Wherefore the children of men put their trust under the shadow of thy wings. For with thee is the fountain of life: in thy light shall we see light."

Only 24 Fags Found In Package, Youth Writes to Company

A Downie street youth protests he is not a Scot. He says it was just a matter of the principle of the thing.

A few days ago he bought a package of a well-known brand of menthol - cooled cigarettes. The package was supposed to contain 25 cigarettes but it felt rather loose so he counted the contents. His worst suspicion was confirmed. There were only 24 cigarettes in the package.

Down sat the young man and addressed a firm rebuke to the great tobacco firm responsible for manufacture of the cigarettes. He had found the brand to his liking over a period of several years, he wrote, and wished to continue smoking the cigarettes. However, he explained, he did not want to feel that he had to count the cigarettes in each package he bought.

Last week he received a reply from no less a personage than the president of the tobacco company. The reply read:

"We thank you for your letter calling our attention to a package of —— cigarettes you have purchased containing only twenty-four (24) cigarettes.

"The matter has been referred at once to the inspector of our packing machines and we hope it will not be repeated.

"We take pleasure in sending you under separate cover a package of —— cigarettes to prove our appreciation of your remark."

Not Content To Leave Problems Of Marketing To Government Experts

IMPROVED BANKING

The day when the farmers of Canada were content to work their farms blindly and leave the problems of marketing and other agricultural problems in the hands of governmental "experts" has passed, H. B. Cowan, secretary of the Canadian Chamber of Agriculture, declared in an address to the Open Forum in George Street United Church Sunday afternoon. Farmers of the Dominion are now determined to have a hand in charting for themselves the course of agriculture, he said.

During the past six years, all authorities have been telling farmers to produce all they can and leave their other worries in the expert hands, Mr. Cowan continued. Farmers did just that between 1930 and 1936 and produced more than the public could buy, he said. The production of butter increased 65,000,000 pounds, approximately 35 per cent. A surplus of wheat was produced and as many as 200,000,000 bushels overhung the market as a carryover from one year to another, he reminded.

"Although the farmers were producing more, they were going into debt faster," he declared.

In setting about to deal themselves with the problems of agriculture, Canada's farmers have recognized as one leading problem a need for improved banking arrangements, Mr. Cowan said. The banks had been developed more to suit the needs of commerce than agriculture and were of little use to the farmers in the difficulties in which they found themselves during the economic depression. Farmers wanted long term loans and still needed them but the banks were averse to lending money over long terms, wishing to keep their resources liquid in times of depression.

Dissatisfaction with the present banking system is leading to radical thought and making possible such movements as that of Aberhart in Alberta, Mr. Cowan said. Such problems led to the formation of the Chamber of Agriculture which now represents 600,000 members. Each province except Quebec now has a provincial Chamber of Agriculture and it is expected one will be formed in Quebec in the near future, he said.

WOMAN SUFFERS SHOULDER INJURY

Cars Skid Into Ditch And Mrs. R. Mills Is Injured

Mrs. R. Mills of 191 Murray street this city sustained a dislocated right shoulder, when an automobile driven by her husband skidded into the ditch at Greenbank on the Whitby-Lindsay Highway on Sunday. The mishap occurred as the couple were returning to Peterborough from Toronto, and was caused by glare ice which formed on the pavement as a misty drizzle of rain commenced to fall. Mr. Mills declared he was driving at a speed of around thirty miles-an-hour when the car ahead of him went into a skid. He reduced the speed of his own car, but it went into a skid and slid backwards into the ditch. The body of the car was badly wrecked when the auto struck a telephone pole and Mrs. Mills sustain injury. After receiving medical treatment at Lindsay she proceeded home to Peterborough. Several other cars were reported to have been experiencing trouble on the slippery surface in the same locality.

SLOT MACHINE WARNING.

STRATFORD, Ont., Jan. 18 (C.P.) —Police Chief R. J. Beatty of Stratford announced on Saturday his department would take prompt action against slot machine operators who permitted juveniles to play on the machines. The warning was issued after two youths confessed they had stolen money to operate the machines.

EASTERN ONTARIO'S SUPPLY OF POWER ALWAYS AVAILABLE

the line to Kingston, but the Kingston line to the west had not the capacity to carry the power required. Oshawa especially would have been out on the end of the limb, had the Chats Falls-Leaside transmission line of the Niagara System not been available for the use of Eastern Ontario.

So far as Eastern Ontario was concerned, there was no repudiation of the Quebec contracts. The only contract in which your System was interested was the 60,000 H.P. contract of 1927 with the Gatineau Power Company. This contract provided for the delivery, during the ten years 1927-37, of a maximum quantity of 60,000 H.P., increasing year by year throughout this period at the rate of 6,000 H.P. per year. At the present moment, had the contract not been modified, the Eastern Ontario System would have been under the necessity of paying for 54,000 H.P. at a price of $15 per H.P. per year for 25 per cent of the quantity, delivered in the vicinity of Ottawa, and $14.70 per H.P. per year for the balance, delivered at Smiths Falls. This would have been increased on November 1st, 1937, to 60,000 H.P.

Finding that there was no immediate need for this quantity of power, the Commission, on revision of the contract, agreed to pay $12.50 per H.P. per year for 42,000 H.P. and accept that quantity for delivery; $10 per H.P. per year for 9,000 H.P. to be held as immediate stand-by, and $1.75 per H.P per year for 9,000 H.P. to be held as general reserve, to be called up as firm power at $12.50 per H.P. per year, whenever need for it developed throughout the Eastern Ontario System.

Under these revised conditions, the Commission, during the present year will pay to the Gatineau Company $630,000. Under the former contract it would have paid for 54,000 H.P., partly at $15.00 and partly at $14.70 per H.P. per year. The total payment would have been slightly over $795,000 The revision of the contract, therefore, saved the Eastern Ontario System, during the present year, $165,000 on its purchased power bill, and did not lessen the quantity of power available to be called into use from the general reserve and immediate stand-by category set up, when occasion required. The Commission is, therefore, in a position to supply immediately 18,000 H.P. for which the municipalities can find no profitable use.

Behind this reserve there is the Madawaska power development. The Madawaska properties, including a small development at Calabogie and Gaetta and important water powers on the Madawaska and Mississippi rivers, were acquired by the Commission almost seven years ago, at a cost of over $1,800,000, with the special intention of obtaining from these sources additional power for Eastern Ontario, when the Gatineau contract was drawn upon to its ultimate capacity.

It has cost Eastern Ontario some $35,000 a year for interest on the portion of this investment allocated to power sites, ever since 1930, and this, of course, has been added to the annual cost of power supplied wholesale by the Commission in Eastern Ontario. In addition a very considerable amount of interest upon that portion of the Madawaska investment, represented by the existing power stations, was not earned because there was no means of introducing the power from these stations into the Eastern Ontario System. Last year the Commission ran a line from Madawaska to Carleton Place, and the surplus of power from these stations is now being included in the general Eastern Ontario System supplies. A revenue of some $40,000 per year is now obtained from these hitherto unprofitable stations.

The Madawaska Development

Plans are now in the course of preparation by Dr. Hogg for a power development at High Falls on the Madawaska. The initial quantity to be supplied will be not less than 20,000 H.P. and may range up as high as 30,000 H.P. This installation would provide 25 per cent of all the power now being used in Eastern Ontario by the contracting municipalities.

The Madawaska, with some development of the storage lakes in the upper stretches of the river, is capable of providing, at a reasonable low rate of investment, per horsepower, not less than 120,000 H.P., or more than the total present consumption of the Eastern Ontario System.

The property is owned by the Commission—really owned by the municipalities of Eastern Ontario System—and there was no reason at all for keeping it out of use and bringing into the province, from the other side of the Ottawa, power which the Eastern Ontario System is under no obligation to take. The Madawaska plant will be turning out power before the 18,000 H.P. still to be called up under the Gatineau contract is required by the municipalities in Eastern Ontario.

Two Old Contracts

Costs are being steadily reduced for the municipalities in the East, but reduction has been retarded by two contracts that have heretofore given Ottawa and Kingston great advantages over the other cities of the eastern part of the province. Under an old contract, made many years ago, 20,000 H.P. of Ottawa's supply is provided at a rate of $11 per H.P. per year by the Gatineau Company. Kingston gets 4,000 H.P. of its supply at a rate of $24 per H.P per year, which, during the years of depression, was materially less than the cost per horsepower levied upon the cost municialities in Eastern Ontario.

Even yet conditions show dreadful inequalities. For example, Oshawa during the year ending October 31st, 1936, paid the Commission $306,819 for 12,690 H.P., measured at the peak of the load. Ottawa, because of its low original contract, covering today more than two-thirds of the power supplied to it, paid $301,888 for 28,000 H.P. Oshawa's rate, therefore, was just about two and a third times as much as that of Ottawa. Kingston paid the Commission $151,007 for 6,078 H.P. whereas Peterborough for 7,140 H.P. paid the Commission $215,841. Perhaps a better illustration is Belleville, which is entirely a cost municipality. Belleville takes 4,306 H.P. at the peak, and paid to the Commission $138,846, or very little short of Kingston's bill, although Kingston had the use of over 2,000 more horsepower.

Until inequalities such as these are straightened out, the Eastern Ontario System will not be a co-ordinated operating system, such as the Niagara, Georgian Bay and Thunder Bay Systems.

Power Costs

Mr. Lyon concluded his address by dealing for a short time with what he termed the basic philosophy of power costs, pointing out that every great development had the effect for some time afterward of shoving power costs upward. Referring to the St. Lawrence development, he said that under the terms of the agreements that had been arrived at, the effect upon power-users of Eastern Ontario were this development to be undertaken would be to increase the cost at least $10 per horse-power.

The speaker referred briefly to the Quebec power contracts which, he declared, would in their original form have represented a cost of over twelve million dollars a year to the Niagara system, whereas the total revenue of that system was only $24,540,000. Power bills would have been increased by at least 25 per cent.

Rotarian James Dutton moved a vote of thanks to the speaker, and it was adopted amid hearty applause.

FARMER FEARING DYNAMITE BLAST BLOW UP HOUSE

George Woodcock Of Dummer Fears Attempt Be Made To Blow Up Home

FIERY CROSS SCARE

Distraught since a fiery cross blazed on his farm a week ago, George Woodcock, 60-year-old Dummer Township settler, sought aid here during the week-end to frustrate a rumored plot to blow up his house.

Gossip reaching his ears led him to believe, he said, that certain individuals were planning to dynamite his home and force him to move off the farm, the ownership of which is in dispute. He is at present living on it rent free. Mr. Woodcock sought information as to what steps could be taken to repel any night marauders, who might endeavor to harm him, his family or the property.

According to Mr. Woodcock, he intends to move out next week in any event, but has been afraid to go to bed at night since the demonstration of the blazing cross. His farm is located in a sparsely settled area near the head of Stoney Lake, about 30 miles northeast of Peterborough.

OUR WISH

"God bless our group, and may it be,
A credit to our church and Thee;
Inspire each boy to do Thy will,
And every Scout law to fulfill;
Be with each one in daily life
And help him to encounter strife.
Give him a will to fight for good,
For, after all, he knows he should;
Have him look to Thee as guide,
Be ever, always at his side."

The above poem is by Frank R. Pammett and is the closing theme in the anniversary number of St. John's Group paper. Each of us should make this our prayer at night. Good hunting, Frank.

In absence of Scouter F. Ford, St. John's Troop was in charge of Tom Hooper and Art Pritchard. Skipper G. Groombridge distributed banquet tickets to the boys at camp fire, and with John Hooper's assistance, gave the Parish Messengers to the boys for delivery. This is the fourth month the troop has rendered the rector this service.

St. Paul's Cub Pack joined with St. John's Pack for the evening; Miss L. Bull in charge. A very enjoyable evening was carried out.

An error in last week's issue. I reported Leslie (Bud) Groombridge as White Fang; this should have read Brown Tip.

Great was the activity at St. James'. A new brother was accepted into the pack, whilst two Brothers were invested as full-fledged Cubs. Grant Finnie and Wes. Ellis took their Cub promise to do their best. W. Hayes is the new Brother.

Reg. Leether and Ken. Meehan are the first Cubs to leave St. James' Pack and enter the Troop. This they did during a going-up ceremony.

Still we go along: as Norris and Floyd Dafoe were invested as Tenderfoots in the troop.

Edgar Roberts presented Rev. F. W. Craik with his badge as chaplain of the troop. In turn the Rev. Mr. Craik presented E. Cooke with his carpenter's badge and C. Davis with the handyman's badge. This is the fifth badge Davis has earned this year.

At St. John's Rovers a tentative program was drawn up. Tom Hooper was appointed Rover Mate for one month awaiting investiture.

A very pleasant meeting was held at the Scouters' club. Scouter Groombridge gave up chairmanship of the Indian village, and Scouter George Houghton took over this work. Let us all get behind George in this matter and do what he wants us with a smile. Also it was decided to have Scout hockey. A.D.C. Ernie Wolfe was chosen to look after the arrangements; only one stipulation being made. No games are to be played on troop meeting nights.

At Sacred Heart it was decided to enlarge the group committee from three to five men. The two new members being W. Grady and Wm. Prindible. The new officers of the committee are W. Grady, chairman; H. Legrow, vice-chairman; and Mr. Hallihan, secretary-treasurer.

Two definite objectives were set by the group committee. First, at least one Scouter be sent to the Leaders' conference at Niagara; Second, That everything will be done to run a troop camp this year.

Dropping in on St. Andrew's Troop we were glad to welcome a Scout to our brotherhood in the person of Lloyd Williamson. Lloyd is now a member of the Eagle patrol.

Our ever keen friend Akela Pete Dominic was a welcomed visitor and took charge of the game period.

Good Scouting all.

LEADERS CAPTURE SENIOR CAGE GAME

While St. Paul's Take Other Half Of Basketball Double-Header At Y.M.C.A.

Two exciting games opened the Senior City Basketball League schedule Saturday evening in the Y.M.C.A. Gym. before a large crowd of fans. Leaders Corps defeated Dominion Life 34-18 in the opener: and St. Paul's took a 27-21 verdict over C.G.E. to wind it up. A dance followed these games. With Leaders' Corps drawing a bye, games next Saturday will be St. Paul's vs. P.C.I. at eight, and C.G.E. vs. Dominion Life at nine.

A number of players were tried out by Coach Ken Kingston of Dominion Life, but the strong Leaders' Corps piled up a safe lead in the first half and held it. The game was speedy and smart all through, with the winners being pressed hard the second period. It was 16-6 for the Leaders at half-time. Stranger shone for the winners with 11 points, while Hammell led the losers in scoring with seven. The teams:

Leaders' Corps.—Broadley, Stanger, Wolstenholme, Hunter, Rennie, Gadd, V. Holmes.

Referee, Jim McClenaghan.
Scorer, K. Kingston.

A Keen Battle

The second struggle was even more hard-fought with the count 18-15 for St. Paul's at the half-way breather. These teams dished up a fine battle, being quite well-matched and with a bunch of classy players on each line-up. Neat passing and shooting were shown, with some close checking. Thorburn drawing four fouls and A. Holmes three. Marsh led the winners in ringing the ball with 12 points, while Richardson had eight for the other squad. The teams:

St. Paul's.—McIntyre, Marsh, Sedgewick, Weir, Thorburn, Morrow, Pulkinghorn, Ascott.

C.G.E.—Richardson, A. Holmes, G. Hunter, Cameron, Magee, Palmer.

Referee, G. Gunsolus.
Scorer, R. Dyer.

Office Crew Loses To Wiremen By 4-1

Wire Dept. defeated the Office crew by a 4-1 score in the first game in the C.G.E. Shop Hockey League played Saturday afternoon before a fair-sized crowd in the Brock St. rink. It was a fast, smart tussle all through with the Wiremen having more scoring punch to gain the verdict. Pammett notched the first for them on Akers' pass in the second. The same player scored again unassisted, and Heal got the other two, one on E. Williams' pass and one on an assist from Pammett. Starr took Williams' pass to sink the only Office counter. Heal, Harding, Pammett and E. Williams stood out for the winners; while Murphy and Williams went best for the office gang. The losers found Harding hard to beat in the rival cage. The teams:

CHAS. MEDLAND HAS LEG BROKEN

Log Falls On Him Causing Fracture Just Above Ankle

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LIFFORD LINE, Jan. 18.—Chas. Medland had his leg broken here on Friday morning when a log fell on him. Herman Thorne of Omemee was operating a sawing machine in the woodlot owned by Cephas Staples and Medland was raising a log with a hook when it slipped and dropped on his leg, breaking it just above the ankle. The injured man was driven to Bethany, where he received medical aid from Dr. J. J. Hamilton and then removed to Peterborough, where he will spend some days in Nicholls Hospital. Four years ago Medland broke his arm while engaged in similar work.

Well you might not have guessed it but this is really Man Mountain Dean of the grunt and groan game. He has turned, so the picture would indicate, to a much softer sport. In fact is actually trying his hand at the meek and mild task of a golfer's caddie. This is really only a pastime, He will undoubtedly be back to the bone-bending game when the next photo of him is taken.

RIVERS MOUNTING IN MIDDLE WEST

Hundred Of Men Fight To Protect Levees In Missouri And Arkansas

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—(AP).—Turbulent rivers overburdened by winter rains cut deeply into levees today to revive fears of widespread floods in parts of the Middle West.

Hundreds of men patched weakened sea walls in Missouri and Arkansas where flood conditions were acute. Many streams which broke their banks and inundated thousands of acres in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois last week renewed a climb toward flood stages.

Charles L. Blanton, works progress administration supervisor, termed conditions in south-eastern Missouri critical. Fresh "shock troops" joined an army of 1,500 workers, most of them W.P.A. employees, in an effort to stem the raging St. Francis river's assault on levees. Relief agencies sheltered more than 250 families evicted from their homes by flood waters in Stoddard, Butler and Dunklin counties.

In North-eastern Arkansas the White river rose to a 30 foot stage, four feet above the flood mark. Ouachita river flood waters inundated a seven mile area in Southwestern Arkansas. Near Paragould, Ark., the St. Francis gouged two large breaks in the levee, flooding some 7,000 acres and marooning 100 homes.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

When Billy Campbell, who is subbing as umpire for W. G. Morrow, walked into the rink early this morning and took a look at ice No. 7, then looked at ice No. 1, and then looked again at the thermometer and found it to register 2 degrees above freezing, he came into No. 8 and while we did not quite et what he was saying, still he meant that there would be no curling to-day—and once more the Tankard games were hoisted, and the boys can all go back to work.

About to-night, just now it looks anything but.

With regard to the bonspiel tomorrow, we have not given up hope of holding it. The probs are for colder weather to-night, and maybe everything will be OK.

We had, for a hurried bonspiel, a nice crowd out on Saturday afternoon, with the honors going to E. Metcalfe, W. Oke, and W. Harvey.

"By a Plate Glass Skip"

The Agonizer—He is worse than the contortionist, because he does it all with his face. He glares after his stone with hate, fury, doubt, fear, love, joy, ecstasy, and rage, chasing each other over his features. This man ought not to curl at all, nor would he if his wife ever saw him at it.

The Joky Skip—He is very funny when he is up, but in deep gloom when he is losing—pernicketty, controversial, strong on the rules.

The Draw Skip—He is unalterably opposed to running shots. They are not skillful and ought to have no place in curling. Yet—in a pinch—at times—he makes a little better running shot than anybody—chips the winner, counts four, and talks about it all the rest of the winter as an agreeable iniquity which he hopes taught the other fellow a lesson.

Others As Well.

There are other kinds of skips, but there are the types which, to me, seem most common from the viewpoint of a spectator. There is the timid skip, for instance. He is afraid to dare anything when the end is against him. Instead of coming into the stone firmly, he comes up short. He is, in fact, a lead misplaced. Some good players ought not to skip at all. They have no idea at all of how to build up an end in a way that will withstand the attacks of the other side. All they see is the tee to which everybody must draw.

These players impose me as having but learned to lead. Only a few skips dare play for a wick. Most of them will draw or smash 'em, whichever you like, but they have no shots but these two. Not one skip in ten can make an overdraw. Nearly all of them respond with a running shot that hits nothing until it damages the wall of the rink.

Curling, I have found, to be a fascinating game which anybody can play fairly well, and in which few excel. It is curious how mediocre most play is. The fundamental error, as I see it, is in making skips of those who are the best players, or by seniority. The best skip, I would say, is the man who can get the best players to play with him, and who can treat them so that they will continue to play with him, instead of evading him with excuses.

"The End"

A champion demonstrates stability.

18. Skiing Stability

Stability in skiing is dependent solely upon natural, physical laws, not upon laws made solely for skiers. It is a thoroughly understood natural law that the larger the area upon which a mass is supported, the greater will be the equilibrium of the mass; that the heavier the body the more stable it will be and therefore the harder to upset. The larger the area of support and the lower the centre of gravity, the greater will be the degree of stability.

This holds good for skiing. We stand on skis and start to move forward across the snow. By bending the knees forward, without lifting the heels, we lower the centre of gravity, which has the effect, from the point of view of balance, of enlarging the area of support.

As soon as the necessary conditions for stability are upset in a physical sense, they must be recreated by a quick shifting of weight which can only be accomplished if the body is flexible. In skiing we upset them by allowing the skis to slide. We recreate stability by carrying the body forward with the skis. By bending the body backwards and forwards, all forces tending to upset balance in this direction are compensated for and by thrusting the knees as far forward as possible, we turn them into springs that react instantly to correct lack of balance caused by unexpected jars such as are occasioned by uneven ground.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(C.J.P.)

THE JUNIOR O.H.A.-ers are at it here tonight, the Belleville Redboys (who wear the Redmen's uniforms) playing our Colts at the Brock. There is no use belittling the Bellevillains, not until our lads have wiped out that smudge on their escutcheon, said smudge being a 4-3 defeat the young Petes suffered—very much—on the Quinte ice cushion early last week. The teams appear well-matched and will battle at the drop of the hat, or even if you keep your chapeau on your bean. These juniors always tear into it from start to finish, and fans can bank on plenty of action and keen competition this e'en. First place in the group is at stake and we simply can't allow Belleville to nestle on the top limb too long.

* * * * * *

BUN KINGDON should be back after a shoulder injury, playing centre on the second line between Brady and Gee Clark. Starr will be on the first trio, flanked by Heal and Wright. Al Clark and Webb will team up on defence, with Jopling and Connelly as alternates. And Harding in goal. Don Crowe is down with a bit of the flu and will hardly see action this game. The Colts play a dashing style that pleases the customers, battling hard but playing clean hockey. If they are clicking tonight, the Quinte squad will suffer its first defeat of the season.

* * * * * *

THAT TWEED-BELLEVILLE tilt the other night had to be postponed but will be worked in later. The Colts go to Tweed this Wednesday while the Tweedsters are back here the 25th. The intermediate Petes play the Trenton Fliers in Belleville tomorrow night, and quite a few local fans are thinking of making the jaunt. Should be a dandy brawl. Belleville and Trenton play on Wednesday, and then the Trenton town team—not the Airmen—come here this Friday for the Petes' first home game of the season. But the locals were twice disappointed on home games, Belleville and then the Fliers being washed out in the rain. It's great hockey weather.

FOUR LIVELY C.G.E. Shop Hockey League contests were staged in the Brock on Saturday afternoon. Wire Dept. beat the Office, 4-1, in the opener; Induction Motors took a 7-6 nod over Industrial Control; Fractional Motors beat the Transportation team, 6-3; and Machine Shop slapped a 9-2 reverse on Switchgear to wind it up. Lots of fast, rugged hockey in these shop loop battles, and they generally draw a good gang of rooters to the rink on Saturday afternoons. Dunno if they'll run any off through the week before next Saturday or not.

LORNE BEARE and Red Wakelin, two elderly Lindsay junior pucksists, who were suspended last winter by the O.H.A. for playing over age in our group, have been reinstated. Wakelin will play for Lindsay intermediates now while Beare must do his goal-minding for Port Perry, his home. He was refused a transfer to the U.S. because he played a game this winter without permission. 'Twould seem the O.H.A. is softening up a bit. Time was, and not so long ago either—eh, Bill Bagnall of Oshawa?—when a suspended gee for being over age was out on the limb for at least a full year, if not two. In fact, Creighton and Gardner of the Petes were barred all last year for daring to take a job back north and returning to their homes a few weeks late. Ah, well, no one is infallible.

DISCUSSING A recent Toronto-Oshawa game in the General Motors' classy arena, Gordon Sinclair of the Star says: "The rink down there is a bit small but not much. A bit rowdier down by the north end where the cheap seaters do their kibitzing and a bit cleaner all around. But it's the same spirit of home town hullaballoo, and the referee is a bandit, so there! The referee last night was Tracy Shaw, who took that Oshawa senior baseball team to its title last fall, and still they razzed him." Fame is decidedly fleeting in the world of sports—today a hero, tomorrow a bum.

SPEAKING OF diamond umpires—well, let's, then—Babe Sheppard bangs the beam on the hay scale at 330½ pounds! His lowest mark in 16 summers of intoning: "Stirrrrrrrike!" has been a mere 280 pounds. This massive, colorful and good-natured arbiter (who drinks half a pail of water at a gurgle on a hot day) will be recalled as the Toronto ump who handled the Kingston-Petes' loop playoffs with Joe Oswin three seasons ago. He also got the call for the Ontario finals last autumn between Oshawa and St. Catharines. Naturally, a large gentleman like the Babe can't be expected to dash around the bases, so he handles the plate and, if you are unlucky enough to have a seat directly back of the plate, the catcher and batter are completely obliterated from view.

PEOPLE AROUND here are remarking on the comeback of the cage sport this winter in Peterborough. We always had a good amount of basketball but this winter it seems to be reaching a new high. The past weekend saw 11 games played, Friday night there were four girls' contests run off in the Y.W. and three interscholastic games at the P.C.I. gym. And at the Y.M.C.A. on Saturday eve, two Church League and two Senior City Loop melees drew a flock of fans. Must be at least 200 local cagers playing these days in organized leagues. Possibly that Ontario title for P.C.I. girls last spring and the visit here of the Edmonton Grads last summer has helped stimulate the game. One lad remarks: "Basketball can be enjoyed in comfort whereas hockey leaves the people cold—but pardon the pun."

OBSERVATION PLATFORM: Names of Bob Dyer and Jack Craig were missed Sat'day in mentioning the P.C.I. juniors' lineup . . . . Mayfairs may play an exhibition puck game in Norwood on Tuesday . . . . No School Hockey Loop games on Saturday owing to soft ice . . . . P.C.I. puckists took a 9-3 beating at the hands of Grove School in Lakefield the other day . . . . Minor hockey leagues will run according to schedule tonight if the ice is okay . . . . What Junior City League hockey tussles are on this week? . . . . Hockey Club officials looked over the surface at the Brock at noon today and said it was pretty good and the junior O.H.A. game will be staged here this evening . . . . Those who predicted a cold snowy winter seem to be all wet, what?

Fractionals Beat Transportation 6-3

Fractional Motors defeated Transportation, 6 to 3, in the third C.G.E. Shop Hockey League game held in the Brock St. rink on Saturday afternoon. Getting an early jump on their opponents, the Fractionals took the lead and held it. Penalties proved costly to the losers, with Vitarelli spoiling his effectiveness by being benched several times. Clarke shone in goal and robbed the losers of several almost-sure counters. Palmer got the first goal for the winners with Bailey getting the next, then Jobe, Palmer, Field and Whatman. For the losers, Kearney scored first, followed by Vitarelli twice on nice work. McDougall and Kearney went good for the Transportation team, and Palmer, Coursey and Higgins shone for the other squad. The teams:

Fractional Motors: Goal, Clarke; defence, A. Spencely, Field; centre, Whatman; wings, Palmer, Coursey; alternates, Jobe, English, Bailey, Roberts, Higgins.

P.C.I. PUCKISTS BEATEN BY GROVE

Lakefield Prep. School Squad Takes 9-3 Triumph Over Local Collegiate Team

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 18.—The Lakefield Preparatory School won a decisive 9-3 victory over the Peterborough Collegiate Institute when the two hockey teams met in a hard-fought battle on Lakefield ice on Saturday afternoon. The Grove team showed superiority throughout the game, and kept up a continuous stream of shots, tallying 9 goals in all. P.C.I. failed to score during the first two periods, but rallied in the final session when Jopling scored twice and Dorris pushed in a third counter. The scoring for the Grove team was done by Frewer 3, Robertson 2, Christmas 2, Peck 1, Shepherd 1. Robertson, Frewer, and Christmas were the stars of the Grove line-up, while Jopling and Clark on the Collegiate defence and Dorris on the Collegiate forward line, put up a good game for the Peterborough scholars. The line-up was as follows:

Machine Shop Win Over Switchgear

Machine Shop proved too strong for Switchgears Saturday in the final game of the C.G.E. Shop Hockey League played at the Brock, the Machinists copping a 9-2 decision. They showed a fast, passing attack with deadly shooting in close, while checking their rivals up all the way. The losers looked below form and seldom appeared dangerous in any department. Ashmore and Leggitt got their only counters. Langton notched the first two for Machine Shop, with Murduff next, Langton again, then Jamieson, Rowbottom, Magee getting two straight and Jones the final one. There were no stars on the Switchgear lineup, while Jamieson, Magee, Rowbottom and Langton went best for the winners. The teams:

Switchgear: Goal, Hope; defence, Whatley, Ashmore; centre, Maudsley; wings, Legitt, O'Toole; alternates, Heal, Peel, Mowry.

LEAFS DEFEAT CHICAGO HAWKS IN OVERTIME

Nick Metz' Tally In Extra Session Gives Toronto 3-2 Triumph

MANY PROTESTS

Karakas Is Injured In Face By High Shot From Thoms

TORONTO, Jan. 18.—Local hockey followers have witnessed some strange hockey exhibitions, but none, probably, more weird than at Maple Leaf Gardens on Saturday night when the Leafs overcame Chicago Black Hawks by three to two in seventy minutes.

Many remarkable incidents occurred before Sylvanus Apps deadlocked the score at two-all in the dying moments of regulation play and Nick Metz whipped in the decisive tally of 2.09 overtime, to the elation of 10,000 fans.

A ragged contest for one period and a half, the contest developed into a hair-raising thriller as Dick Irvin's aroused troops battled with a vengeance to chalk up victory the hard way.

In our way of thinking the locals should have won by two to one in sixty minutes. Apps shot the Leafs to the front in the closing minutes of the opener. The Hawks came back to tie the score on a very questionable goal by Glen. Brydson, and then assumed leadership a few moments later in the second period, when "Mush" Marsh tallied.

"We Was Robbed."

But the worst was yet to come. The Leafs were awarded a penalty shot in the opening minutes of the third period when Earl Seibert tripped Harvey Jackson, who was in a good position to test Karakas.

There was much wrangling before Bill Thoms finally took the free drive and sent the puck straight into Karakas' pads.

Then at 5.17—while Harvey Jackson and Alex. Levinsky in the penalty box together—Bobby Davidson took a pass from Metz close to the Chicago cage, and batted the rubber past Karakas, who fell to smother. Davidson, when shooting, also sprawled and the goal was disallowed on Referee Ag Smith's ruling, it was scored from the crease.

This was the signal for a wild verbal outbreak by the Leafs and their supporters....Programs flew into the air and there was quite a delay before the arguing subsided, the ice was partially cleared of paper, and play resumed.

Stung by this second reversal, the Leafs piled in with a determination. They skated the Hawks dizzy, so to speak, as Clem Loughlin's men drove the puck up the ice at almost every opportunity.

Karakas Injured

The Hawks stood up gallantly until only five minutes remained to play when Goaler Karakas was injured and forced to retire. The game was delayed ten minutes until he returned all patched up and with four stitches in his upper lip. Karakas was hurt when Thoms, in making a passout from back of the net, lifted the puck high, striking the goaler full in the face.

Benefitting, perhaps, from the long delay, the Leafs tore in again upon the resumption and less than two minutes had elapsed when Davidson fought his way clear on the boards and relayed to centre, from where Apps slapped the puck past Karakas from a scramble for the equalizer. Metz, it was, who started the play as he blocked the disc at the Chicago blue-line and slipped it down the boards to Davidson.

Then came the overtime and the winning counter at 2.09. Reg. Hamilton rushed down and passed to Bill Kendall. The right winger drove it over to Metz, who was charging in on the left, and the red-head unleashed a shot that found the mark of Karakas' pads just inside the goal-post.

A penalty to Levinsky, for tripping Harvey Jackson, did not help the Hawks' cause in the remaining moments, but they battled hard and were mighty dangerous to the final bell.

This Goal Questionable

"Pep" Kelly, erstwhile Leaf, paved the way for Chicago's first goal at 9.04 of the second. The little winger drove a hard pass from the right boards. The puck hit Glen. Brydson, parked in front of the net, on the leg and deflected past Broda. The goaler and Toronto players protested vigorously when Referee Smith turned a deaf ear to their pleadings, and the goal was allowed.

Louis Trudell, centreman, sent a pass to "Mush" Marsh just three minutes later to put the Hawks in front. Trudell was checked at the Toronto defence, but batted the puck perfectly to March, who unleashed a quick, low shot that fooled Broda completely.

Canadian Pucksters From England Beaten

In the land where skiing is the popular sport they also enjoy a good game of hockey. This picture, taken at St. Moritz, Switzerland, shows an exciting incident during a game between London-Canadians and St. Moritz. The London-Canadians team is well bolstered with Canadian players who now enjoy their pastime with British teams. London-Canadians lost the game by a score of 2-0. The winter sun casting its rays across the hockey cushion lends an artistic touch to the scene.

YALE 4, DARTMOUTH 3

TORONTO, Jan. 18 (C.P.). — The "Big Three" of the International Intercollegiate Hockey League—Harvard, Toronto and McGill—shared first place to-day and everything pointed to the home-and-home series between these clubs as the ones to decide the college championship.

On the play in the schedule's early games, Queen's have the only chance of upsetting any of the leaders. The Tri-color are unbeaten in two starts but they haven't met any of the real tough clubs.

Harvard maintained its unbeaten record over the week-end, scoring a 6-2 triumph over the winless Princeton Tigers, while Toronto moved up alongside the Crimson, and McGill of Montreal with a 3-2 victory over University of Montreal.

Yale got an overtime goal by Gil Humphrey and a 4-3 win over Dartmouth. The two points taken on the victory were enough to give the Elis second place in the United States section, Dartmouth, like Princeton, still seeking their first success.

Lilie Norm McLelland set the pace for Toronto, scoring the first and third goals, one in each of the first and second periods, before the Frenchmen's attack clicked. In between Max Fullerton potted one.

U. of T.'s Experience Counts.

McLelland's second was the signal for a concentrated Montreal offensive that produced goals from Jean Grignon and Roger Gagne late in the middle period. The attack faded, however, before the U. of T.'s experience in the third, and only Goaler Marcel Barsalou's superlative work held the Blueshirts scoreless in that session.

Princeton, who have dropped five straight, took an early lead against Harvard on Tom Bannicle's tally but Ned Cutter tallied twice for a 2-1 Crimson lead at the end of the first. The Tigers held for another period, though, Harvard only matching Pete Cook's second period tally with one from Leo Ecker.

The Boston Boys went to town in the last period and twice Franky Harding counted to widen the margin beyond overhauling. George Ford put the finishing touches to Harvard's 15th straight victory with the sixth and last goal.

Dartmouth, after taking an early lead, were forced to come from behind twice before the second period ended. They played a scoreless third to send the game into overtime, broken up by Humphrey's second of two goals.

Costello bagged two for Dartmouth and Foster one while Dud Dumphrey and Childs were the other Yale marksmen.

SLIPPING AMERKS LOSE TO BRUINS 3-0

Boston's Victory Puts Them Within Point Of Second Place

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (C.P.).—Boston Bruins slipped another win over the fading New York Americans last night, 3-0, and climbed up to within a point of sectional second place in the National Hockey League standing.

Bun Cook started the game off with a dangerous shot from left that Lorne Chabot handled with difficulty. Lorne Carr came back with a stinger that made Tiny Thompson save spectacularly.

Boston went one up at 12.57, when Hooley Smith split the defence and beat Chabot after feinting the goalie out.

Bruins scored a goal in each period, Hooley Smith, veteran Bruin centre, took a pass from Wingman Leroy Goldsworthy, shortly after the half-way mark of the opening frame to split the American defence and score.

Cooney Weiland broke away from a New York power play near the middle of the second chapter and scored a clean-cut marker to put the Bruins two up. Smith was in the penalty box at the time serving a two-minute sentence because Boston had seven men in action for a moment.

Goldsworthy rang up the third Boston tally at the half-way mark of the last period when he converted Cook's deft relay. The fans numbered about 11,000.

Chicago Continued Streak Of Ill-Luck Brings Losses To Fourteen

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—(CP).— Detroit Red Wings whipped the floundering Chicago Black Hawks, 2 to 0, last night and pulled out three full games ahead of the bunch in the National Hockey League's United States' section.

It was the fourteenth defeat of the season for the Hawks, who gave a scrappy performance, but were whipped largely through a bit of the ill fortune which has dogged them all year. After Chicago had outfought the league-leading Wings through the first period and most of the second, Aurie scored the first goal, grabbing a puck which hopped off the sticks of both Paul Thompson ad Earl Seibert to race in and beat Goalie Mike Karakas unassisted. Barry was serving a penalty at the time.

ST. ANDREW'S WIN CHURCH CAGE TILT

Beat Murray St. Juveniles While St. John's Bantams Defeat George St.

Nearing the close of the Church Basketball League schedule, two good games were run off in the "Y" on Saturday evening, St. Andrew's Juveniles kept up their unbeaten streak by besting Murray St. by a 24-14 count, while St. John's won a hardfought bantam tussle 4-3 from George St. Murray St. can now tie St. Paul's for second place and force a playoff by winning next Saturday against that team. The bantam game had no bearing on the race.

Though shorthanded, the champion St. Andrew's gang proved too good for Murray St., fighting for a playoff berth. The teams were tied at 8-all at halftime but Foster and Pammett went out with four goals and this wrecked the Baptists' chances. The winners again showed nice teamplay and all starred in the win, while K. Gillespie looked best for the losers. The teams:

Murray St.: K. Gillespie, Foster, Pammett, Loomis, Scott, C. Gillespie.

St. Andrew's: Weir, Cutting, Cragg, McPherson.

Referee, C. Davern; scorer, R. Rogow.

Low Scoring

The bantam game was a keen, hard-fought affair with some close checking seen throughout for both sides. Play was quite even with George St. losing through poor shooting, getting but one point out of eight free throws. It was anybody's game with the rivals battling doggedly and holding tightly onto their checks. Richardson and Land looked best. The teams:

St. John's: Castle, Thompson, Sage, Moore, Land.

George St.: Parnell, Parr, Richardson, Burns, Saunders.

Referee, K. Gillespie; scorer, D. Charlton.

Games next Saturday: St. Andrew's vs. St. Paul's Bantams at six, Murray St. Juveniles vs. St. Paul's at seven.

Induction Motors Nose Out 7-6 Win

Induction Motors noosed out a 7-6 victory over Industrial Control in the second C.G.E. Shop Hockey League contest, staged Saturday afternoon in the Brock St. rink. It was a hammer-and-tongs affair, keenly contested all the way, and marked with plenty of scoring and hard checking. Weir got the first for Industrial Control, with Armour scoring next, then Clifford, O'Brien following. Weir tallying again and O'Brien punching in the last. Young bulged the hemp for the first marker for the winners, Archibald getting the next three in a row, Hallihan tallying twice straight and Archibald sinking the winner. O'Brien, Weir and Hawkes shone for the losers; and Archibald, Hallihan and Schultz starred for the victors. The teams:

LULL IN TESTS FINDS ENGLAND SETTING PACE

Under Captain Gilbert Allen Touring Cricketers Make Fine Showing Against Australians

MARKED SUPERIORITY

By H. H. GORDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

England's showing in the first three cricket tests in Australia provides an effective reply to the critics who, early in the tour, were suspicious of the visiting team's strength. As the two countries prepare for the fourth of the five scheduled contests to be played at Adelaide, Jan. 29, the Mother Country has a decided advantage with two victories against one loss.

Marked superiority in all departments of the game has been shown by the touring squad, winner at Brisbane in the opening encounter by 322 runs and again at Sydney by an innings and 22. The third tussle, played in Melbourne, saw the Antipodeans triumphant by 365 runs after nearly six days' play.

Gilbert Allen, Australian-born Middlesex amateur, has won enthusiastic acclaim for his clever captainship of the English eleven. Only once has he been outsmarted in the battle of wits with Don Bradman, Aussie skipper. Even then it was rain more than anything else that wrecked his plans in the third test.

In these days of play-to-a-finish tests, Allen's decision to make the Aussies follow on after they had been dismissed for a first-innings total of 80 in the Sydney test brought chills to the critics on the side-lines. And this despite England's lead of 346. But "Gubby", as the English skipper is known to his intimates, knew the mettle of his bowling staff. Bradman and his colleagues were put out for 324 runs to give the tourists an innings' victory.

Forced to bat on a sticky wicket at Melbourne, Allen threw caution to the winds and instructed his men to hit out in an effort to get the Aussies in for their second innings before the pitch improved. It was a risky proceeding and England was 124 runs in arrears on the first innings. Bradman made an effort to set the Englishmen's plans awry by sending in his tail-end batsmen to open the innings. England's bowlers were practically unplayable and with more than an hour left for play it looked as if the Australians would be dismissed cheaply. One wicket was lost with only three runs on the board and then the rain came down to put an end to England's hopes. The wicket improved over the week-end and the Aussies went on to score 564 runs and win the match.

Veterans Lead Way

Led by Wally Hammond and Maurice Leyland, veterans of many international encounters, England has shown the way to its opponents in the matter of batting. The former, aided by a fine 231 not out at Sydney, has compiled 339 runs in five innings for an average of 84.75. His Yorkshire colleague made two separate centuries to bring his total runs in the three tests to 329 for an average of 80.22.

Although he has two "ducks" recorded against him, Bradman made 403 runs in six innings to lead Australia's run-getters. His spectacular 270 at Sydney stands out as the highest score of the present series to date. J. H. Fingleton, the Commonwealth's outstanding defensive player, has an average of 59.83 compared with his captain's 67.17; a total of 359 runs for six times at bat.

England has yet to find an opening pair of batsmen of the calibre of Jack Hobbs and Herbert Sutcliffe, heroes of a few years ago. Allen has experimented with Charles Barnett, Gloucestershire, T. Worthington, Derbyshire and A. E. Fagg, Kent. Only the former performed up to expectations and there is little doubt that R. E. S. Wyatt, Warwickshire captain, will be brought in as the Gloucesterman's partner at Adelaide. He has been on the injured list for weeks.

AMATEUR COUNCIL PLAN IS PROPOSED

Four Ontario Branches Approached—Co-ordinate Activities, Control Registration

TORONTO, Jan. 18.—(CP)— The four Ontario branches of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada will be asked to ratify a proposal to form an Ontario Amateur Athletic Council to co-ordinate activities of the branches and to control registrations of amateurs within the province. Formation of the council was suggested at a week-end meeting of branch representatives here.

The proposed council would not interfere with prerogatives of the branches, which would retain control of their respective territories, their registration fees and other matters.

Chairman P. J. Mulqueen said the new body would serve as the clearing house for the four provincial branches and would adjust their boundaries to avoid overlapping. It would work in conjunction with the Ontario Athletic Commission, of which he is chairman, in promoting amateur sport in Ontario.

The council would consist of two representatives from each branch, one holding a two-year appointment and the other an annual appointment. Officers would include a chairman and a treasurer chosen annually by the council from their number, and a secretary appointed by the council.

Pending endorsation of the branches, M. M. "Bobby" Robinson of Hamilton was named acting chairman of the new council, with A. W. Steel of the Central Ontario branch serving as acting secretary.

Attending the meeting here were Frank Cameron of Fort William and A. W. Bell of Port Arthur, representing the Thunder Bay branch; J. T. Rowan and H. G. Young, Ottawa, representing Eastern Ontario branch; J. A. Barclay of Thorold and "Bobby" Robinson of Hamilton, the Southwestern Ontario branch; and M. E. F. Kelley, C. E. Higginbottom and A. W. Steel, all of Toronto, the Central branch.

Finances would be obtained from the Ontario Athletic Commission to cover office expenses, remuneration of a secretary and travelling expenses of council members, it was proposed.

Quinte Crew Here For Junior Joust

O.H.A. junior "B" group standing to date:

Team	P.	W.	L.	T.	P.
Belleville	2	2	0	0	6
Colts	3	2	1	0	5
Tweed	3	0	3	0	5

Belleville juniors play the Colts here tonight (Monday) at 8.30 o'clock in the Brock St. rink. It is the first appearance of the Quinte gang—the team that beat the Colts in Belleville last week—here this season, and the second home game of the young Petes. A big crowd is expected to see these classy, well-matched teams battling it out. The Colts want revenge and should win but Belleville may hand them two defeats in a row.

No doubt, the Quinte squad will ice the same lineup that won over the locals before. The Peterborough lineup will likely see Harding in goal; with Jopling, Connelly, A. Clark and Webb on defense; Starr, Wright and Heal on one line; and Kingdon, Brady and G. Clark on the other. Bun Kingdon expects to be back in action, but Don Crowe will probably be out with a touch of the flu. It should be a fine puck contest to watch, with first place in the group at stake.

WOMEN IN MADRID HELD "NUISANCES"

Only Aggravating Food Shortage—War Must Be Won Says Officials

MADRID, Jan. 18.— (AP) —Adamant women, resisting a government decree to evacuate Madrid, were told bluntly to-day they were "nuisances" and a drain on the city's defences against the insurgent besiegers.

Margaret Nelken, writer and member of the Cortes, exhorted them to obey the defence Junta's order, pointing out their resistance aggravated the city's food problem.

"The war must be won," the deputy appealed in a newspaper. "Therefore you women must evacuate Madrid.

"You are trying to be self-sacrificing and are showing civic courage, but yesterday you and a large group of demonstrating women paraded the streets of Madrid crying, 'We're not going.'

"But this war must be won and we have to tell you plainly you are nuisances here and you have no right to be an indirect cause of a food shortage."

JOHN BARRYMORE TO LOSE HIS WIFE

Fourth Venture In Matrimony To End In Divorce As Elaine Charges Jealousy

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 18 —(AP)— The cyclonic romance of Elaine (Ariel) Barrie, 21, and John (Caliban) Barrymore, began in a hospital, flared to public view as a cross country chase by plane and train—and today it was in the divorce court.

The actor struck her ("roughened me up a bit" she said at the time) during a New Year's party at a Hollywood night club. Threatened "to kill or seriously maim" her. Called her "violent, vile, obscene, indecent, profane or opprobrious names."

And all because he was jealous over her stage aspirations.

In filing suit yesterday to end her brief career as Barrymore's fourth wife—they were married November 9 at Yuma, Ariz., after an airplane elopement—she also charged their honeymoon was disrupted by his false accusations of her attentions to other men.

At the home of his trainer, Ken Kelly, where he has stayed since the separation two weeks ago, Barrymore declined to comment.

Wants Reasonable Alimony

Asserting she is without funds, Miss Barrie asked for "reasonable alimony." She requested that Barrymore be required to pay $10,000 attorney's fees and $1,000 court costs out of his earnings, which she estimated in excess of $3,000 weekly.

"I do not intend to ask for permanent alimony," she declared. "All I want is funds to tide me over for the present. I am sorry it had to happen this way. I wish him all of luck."

Expressing concern for community property of securities, cash, contracts, and real estate she said are in Barrymore's possession, Miss Barrie asked a court order to restrain him from disposing or hypothecating them.

ESKDALE, Cumberland, Jan. 18. —(CP).—Cyril Bulman had a surprise while cutting hay from a stack in the Wha House farm here. In the stack he found £2,000 worth of jewelry.

The jewelry was identified as belonging to Mrs. Roberts, wife of the provost of Selkirk. It had disappeared from a drawer in her home while she was staying at Wha House August 15 last. The find included a string of pearls worth £1,500.

How the jewelry got into the hay stack remains a mystery.

Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE ANT LADY

"Oh, my goodness!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily one morning as he opened a letter the post dog had left for him in the mail box. "Oh, dear me!"

"Whatever has happened?" asked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy. "Is it bad news you have?"

"Well, not exactly bad news," answered Mr. Longears. "But it will be too bad for me if I don't do something about it. I suppose on account of Christmas and New Year's I forgot about it."

"Forgot about what?" inquired the muskrat lady housekeeper. "I hope it isn't your income tax?"

"No, I still have time for that," laughed the rabbit uncle. "But this is about the good deeds I am supposed to do every day. This letter is from the Rabbit Scoutmaster, Jack Rabbit, and he wants to know if I did my good deeds yesterday."

"Did you?" asked Nurse Jane.

Good Deeds Forgotten

"I'm sorry to say I didn't," replied Mr. Longears. "But I can do some extra good deeds today and make up for yesterday. It's a good thing Jack Rabbit reminded me. Well, I'll hop along now, Janie, and see what happens. I'd like to have an adventure and also do some good deeds.

Then I can still belong to the Rabbit Scouts."

"Hop along!" said Nurse Jane, cheerful like and encouraging. Then she scrambled into the hollow stump bungalow to wash the dishes and Uncle Wiggily hopped over the fields and through the woods to find an adventure and do his Rabbit Scout good deeds.

Uncle Wiggily, you see, belonged to the Rabbit Scouts. Theye were something like the Boy Scouts but, of course, only animals could be members. Otherwise the two clubs were much the same and doing good deeds was one of the requirements. That means you had to do them.

"Heigh ho!" said Uncle Wiggily as he hopped along. "I wish I could find an adventure and also do a good deed!" No sooner had he said this than, all of a sudden, he heard a voice saying:

"Oh, dear!" It was such a sad voice that, for a moment, Uncle Wiggily thought it might be the echo of his own voice. But he was not in a place where echoes sounded, like in a valley or a cave, so he knew it must be some one speaking.

"Who are you and what is the matter?" asked the rabbit gentleman bravely, feeling quite sure it was none of the Bad Chaps.

An Ant Lady

"I am a little ant lady," was the answer. "And I am having trouble rolling home this meat ball I was lucky enough to find while I was taking a walk. It's a lovely meat ball but I can't roll it. I am so little and the meat ball is so big. Oh, dear!"

"I will help you," offered Uncle Wiggily as he looked down at the ground in a place where there was no snow and where the dried grass of last year showed. "I will help you; it will be an adventure," went on the rabbit gentleman. "And it will also be a good deed. Then I can tell Jack Rabbit I am still a member of his scout troop."

"Oh, you are so kind," Mr. Longears," said the ant lady. "I suppose I shouldn't be out on a cold day like this."

"No, you shouldn't," agreed Mr. Longears. For it was strange to see an ant lady out in the middle of Winter. "Now let me see how I can help you." Then, all of a sudden, as he looked at the ant lady, Mr. Longears began to laugh as hard as he could: "Ha! Ha! Ha!"

The ant lady looked very much surprised and unhappy, as well she might. And if the man in the grocery will play music on the electric coffee grinder for the sugar cookie, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's good deed.

SELWYN

ALL OBLIGATIONS OF CHURCH MET

Encouraging Reports Are Heard At Meeting In Selwyn United

(Examiner Correspondence.)

SELWYN, Jan. 18.—On Thursday evening the Young People's Society of the United Church presented in the church the picture "King of Kings" based on the film of the same name by the great director, Cecil B. De Mille. This picture is based on the story of the life of Christ throughout his years on earth up to the time of and after his Crucifixion. It truly deserved the great approval it received in other places, and was greatly enjoyed by everyone present.

At the conclusion of the showing of the picture, which was directed and narrated by the Rev. C. C. Miller, the various reports pertaining to the church were read. The Women's Association report was given by Mrs. E. Preston; the Sunday School and Girls' Class by Miss Opal Preston; the Young People's Society by Miss Edna Elliott and the Church report by Mr. Bruce Fitzgerald. Rev. C. C. Miller, minister in charge, congratulated the Selwyn congregation in that they have met all their obligations and have remaining a substantial balance on hand. Rev. Miller added that the only obligation that had not been met in full was the Missionary Fund, and this is being contributed by special collection.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the organist, Mrs. Albert Hughes, on her faithful services throughout the year.

After all the business was concluded the W.A. of the church, served very delightful refreshments to all present.

A French engineer claims to have discovered a big oilfield in Kenya capable of supplying the needs of all of British Africa south of the equator.

WARSAW

PASTOR IS INVITED FOR ANOTHER YEAR

Warsaw Congregation Want Rev. J. W. Wilkinson To Remain With Church

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Jan. 18. — On Wednesday evening, January 13, the United Church held its annual business meeting. Reports of church work and organizations were read and showed affairs in good condition. The W.M.S. had reached its allocation. A good sum had been given towards temperance work. The W.A. had assisted materially in finances The Sunday School averaged about one hundred attendance.

Rev. J. W. Wilkinson presided, and spoke feelingly and with pleasure of the results of the year's work. He regretted, however, that several valued members had passed away, whose loss he felt keenly, and he was thankful that in all the charges so many had openly confessed Christ.

The retiring elder, Thomas Clements, was re-elected unanimously.

The Choir Officials.

The choir had held its annual meeting on the previous Monday evening, appointing Mrs. G. G. Taylor organist and choir leader, Mrs. Wilkinson secretary-treasurer, and David Miller, president. This was ratified at the congregational meeting.

James Hawthorne moved that Mr. Wilkinson be invited to remain another year, and on its being seconded, put the motion, which was carried unanimously, and everyone looked happy. Mr. Wilkinson spoke very happily of the invitation having been given by all four charges in the pastorate, of the work of the church in the community, and for himself and Mrs. Wilkinson thanked the people and accepted the invitations. Mr. Wilkinson is in his seventh year here, and will start in the eighth year next July.

After the benediction the executive of the W.A. served a light luncheon and a very happy social half-hour was spent.

Paper on Hymns.

At the United Church Young People's meeting on Monday evening, January 11, at which Miss Esther Menzies presided, Mrs. Wilkinson gave a most interesting paper on three hymns, each of which was sung before she gave her notes on it. The three chosen by the speaker were "Just As I Am Without One Plea" by Charles Elliott, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" by Charles Wesley, and "Rock of Ages" by Toplady.

Institute Meets.

Mrs. Roland Payne kindly opened her home for the Women's Institute meeting on Thursday, January 13. The attendance was fair, Mrs. Weller presided. After opening exercises, which included roll-call, the name of a flower beginning with the first letter of the member's first name. Letters of thanks were read from several recipients of Christmas cheer boxes. Mr. Clarence Telford sent a bundle of clothing for the relief box.

Mrs. Weller spoke of quilt blocks still out. Mrs. McDonald brought her block and several names which can be put on another block. Miss May Payne gave a delightful piano selection.

Mrs. Henry Clements gave a splendid report of the forenoon's work in the project class in buymanship of fabrics which she attended the previous day. She will report the afternoon's work at the next meeting in February.

Miss Collins, who held splendid classes in sewing in Warsaw, held the class. These classes are for the help of the women to know the goods they buy, as on woman depends the major part of home buying.

Personals.

Rev. J. W. and Mrs. Wilkinson motored to Bowmanville on Thursday, January 14, to attend a funeral.

Mr. Charles Calder is engaged as manager of Warsaw Cheese Factory for the 1937 season. He has not yet secured his assistant.

The Anglican people have no church service until spring.

After a pleasant hour had been spent with several contests, the bride was seated under a large white bell, while Miss Ethel Freeburn conveyed to her the good wishes of her friends and a heavily laden, beautifully decorted baby pram was wheeled in by little Joyce Brown and Faye Darling.

Mrs. Bullock thanked her friends in a pleasant manner and the gifts among which was a hand-embroidered buffet set from the Women's Association of the United Church, were opened and admired.

PUT YOUR HEART RAISING CATTLE BREEDERS TOLD

Peterboro Shorthorn Breeders' Association Holds Successful Meeting

SHOULD BUY THE BEST

Great Revival Of Interest Is Indicated In Large Attendance

"The kind of man who should own cattle is the man who likes them," Prof. George E. Day, secretary of the Dominion Shorthorn Breeders' Association, declared in an address to the Peterborough branch of the association at their luncheon Saturday in the assembly hall of Murray Street Baptist Church.

"If you are going to make a success of any business, I don't care what it is, you must have your heart in it; and if you are going to get anywhere with cattle or horses or sheep you can't treat them as a necessary evil. You have got to really like them. If you haven't a love for cattle you haven't the fundamental for success as a livestock man, or woman either. When I go into some barns I find it mighty hard to make myself believe that the owners really like their stock. Too often you find cattle that are bullied and starved and ill-treated by some fellow who hasn't much more brains than a cow in so far as the treatment of animals is concerned."

Professor Day, formerly of the staff of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, said he was referring to the darker side of the picture, and fortunately it was only a minor aspect. There were many first rate livestock men among the breeders of Shorthorn cattle in Peterborough County. Mention was made of two grand champion Shorthorn bulls at the Royal Winter Fair, one bred by Frank Scollard and the other bought from George Whittington and Son by Duncan Campbell and Sons of Moffat.

Improving Prices

Prof. Day reviewed prices paid for Shorthorns at two important sales last fall. At the Campbell-Douglas sale on October 12 twelve bulls averaged $210 and 35 females averaged $300; and on October 26 the combined sale of animals from the farms of King Edward VIII. and T. E. Russell 17 bulls averaged $291, 23 females $361. At the International Livestock show in Chicago bulls averaged $303 and females $225. These prices were distinctly encouraging, Prof. Day said, and indicated a further awakening of interest in the Shorthorn breed.

"But, there is a sad feature to these sales and prices. Ask yourselves what kind of cattle brought the prices I have quoted. How many of us have cattle that would bring such prices If we haven't them, the question is why haven't we. It is a time for heart-searching among Shorthorn breeders. Some of them have kept the faith. They have gone in for good sires, they have culled from the bottom, in many instances they have made sacrifices to improve their herd with an eye to the future. But a great many have drifted in the opposite direction. They bought bulls for the fewest possible dollars irrespective of their value to their herds, and they have culled their herds from the top. What advantage is it to that class of breeder if prices soar? That man can't get any advantage from higher prices simply because he hasn't the cattle that are wanted. Such men are only fooling and cheating themselves and they are not playing fair with the breed."

Should Buy the Best

Professor Day said that the narrow outlook that was disposed to avoid going beyond the immediate district for stock was an obstacle to progress. Breeders should feel that the best they could buy was none too good no matter where the cattle came from, and they should be prepared to pay for that quality. In that connection he referred to the Whittington purchase of a bull that left their hands again last fall and won a grand championship at the Royal.

"You have got to look around anywhere until you find what you know you should buy for the improvement of your herd if as Shorthorn breeders we are going to put ourselves on the map. We are inclined to blame everybody but ourselves, your fieldmen, your officers and so on. We may feel better by doing that, but it won't get you any farther. We should look at our own cattle from the eyes of an outsider, and if we can't see any faults in them we are going to be licked and we won't get anywhere."

The years of depression had been extremely trying, but the men who had been sincerely interested in their breed had made sacrifices and had taken advantage of the time to buy better stock at reduced prices. They looked ahead to the time when the market would move forward again, their improvements centred on the top of their herds, and they were prepared to get some of the advantage of higher prices. Others waited and delayed and when they do make improvements it may be that prices have again passed their peak. If the livestock industry did not progress as it should in this country the responsibility did not rest with one or two men. The blame member should be blame, and rightly so.

Mineral Elements

Prof. Day said that cattle from the western provinces seemed to be bigger boned than the Ontario stock and the differential factor was because the mineral elements in the western soil was not yet exhausted. There seemed to be a deficiency in eastern soils, a condition which every herdsman should look into. Lack of essential minerals might be made up by direct feeding or by fertilization of the soil, or by a combination of both. Prof. Day said that this supplying of mineral deficiency would have a wonderful effect in improving the cattle raised in this part of the country. The Shorthorn breed by its ability to produce weight for age, its easy feeding and rapid production of beef, was maintaining its place of prominence, and for the needs of the general farmers the breeder would do well to pay attention to the production of milk, an asset that stood out in the dual purpose Shorthorn.

Large Attendance

A. D. Runions was chairman of the meeting which was largely attended by farmers and their wives from the neighboring townships. Mr. Runions said it was encouraging to notice the revival of interest as indicated that these meetings had been allowed to lapse for a number of years.

Other speakers were Mayor Macdonald who conveyed the city's greetings, Warden Gifford, J. J. Duffus, M.P. and Wm. Waldie of Stratford, first Vice-President of the Dominion Shorthorn Breeders' Association. T. P. Lancaster, M.P., was invited, but was unable to be present. The program included several guitar duets by Misses Rosborough and Reynolds.

Bancroft Pioneer Arrived When Place Had Two Families

James Vance, Resident For 71 Years, Has Seen Many Changes

HEARD WOLVES HOWL

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BANCROFT, Jan. 18.—A link that goes back to the earliest days of the history of this village is furnished by the remarkable memory of James Vance, resident of Bancroft for seventy-one years during which time he has watched the population grow from two families to nearly one thousand persons.

Mr. Vance, 81 years of age, was born in Boston, Mass., in 1855, and when he was a mere infant, his parents crossed the border and took up residence in Tyendinaga township, Hastings county, soon after moving to Ormsby, sixteen miles south of Bancroft. He was only ten years of age when he accompanied his older brother to Bancroft where they built a log house and began the cultivation of a small farm. When Mr. Vance travelled by means of an ox-cart up the narrow lumber road from Ormsby on that occasion there were only two families living in Bancroft. One was the George family who lived in the northern part of the village on the east side of the York river and kept the first postoffice in Bancroft and the other the Clarke family who lived in a small log building on the present site of Kelusky's store.

The First Service.

It is interesting to learn that in the little log cabin built by the Vance brothers after their arrival in Bancroft was held the first religious service of any kind that ever took place in the community. In a short time after their arrival a sawmill containing old-fashioned upright saw was built by a Mr. Cleek who also erected a small house that was later destroyed by fire. Mr. Flint who had financed the building of Cleek's mill came to Bancroft afterward to erect a large mill where Davy's mill now stands on the east bank of the river. This mill contained a circular saw. Flint also built a boarding-house across the river from the mill and to him also goes the credit of erecting Bancroft's first hotel, a small building in the same location as that of the present Bancroft Hotel, owned by Mrs. E. Kennedy.

The First School

The first school, Mr. Vance recalls, was a small log house where Kelusky's store now stands. To this little building came six scholars. The second school was built between the present Orange Hall and the main street, and by the time it was erected there were twelve pupils.

For many years there was no bridge across the river in the village. However the stream was shallow and the residents were able to ford across in ox-carts. Mr. Vance recalls a man named Siddons who moved his family and possessions across the river by means of a small row-boat. The first bridge was made of rough pine logs but it was carried away by a flood. For two years afterward there was no bridge until the government built a new structure. At that time little land had been cleared and Mr. Vance states that the woods were all green since there had been no lumbering or forest fires to change the appearance of the landscape. Every night the residents of the village could hear the howling of the wolves in the surrounding woods and both Mr. and Mrs. Vance include the memory of that nightly sound among their clearest recollections of the early days of Bancroft.

Mr. Vance was married in 1881 to a young girl whose name was Walker but within a few years she died leaving one son, Robert. Mr. Vance married again in 1895, taking as his second wife Christina McGillivray of Paudash Lake, eleven miles from Bancroft. Mr. and Mrs. Vance still live happily in a large white frame house only a few yards away from the first log house in the western extremity of Bancroft that was Mr. Vance's first home.

He Liked Oxen

This pioneer of the community is now 81 years of age. He keeps cattle, horses and pigs and particularly likes to raise the latter. At the present time he is proud of a very clever porker that is able to open a door that has been hooked and thus gain his freedom. Mr. Vance would rather have oxen than horses for, as he says, it was possible to turn the latter out into the fields and woods to find their own food while the horse must have his hay.

The old-timer has never regretted his residence in Bancroft where he has seen many buildings erected and watched the place grow from two families to its present size.

When Mrs. Edith Scarlett, who lived alone in Wimbledon, England, died suddenly, her dog barked frantically until he attracted the neighbors.

WOOLER

At the United church parsonage on Thursday at 2.30 p.m. Lorne Whitney, son of the late Norton Whitney and Mrs. J. McCauley and Helen Tackaberry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Al. Tackaberry, of Carmen, were united in marriage by Rev. A. Poulter.

CRAWLED UPSTAIRS ON ALL FOURS

Owing to Rheumatism in Her Knees

It was not a very dignified way of going upstairs, but she had rheumatism in her knees, and it was the best she could do, at the time. Since then she has been taking Kruschen Salts, and now feels much better. Read her letter:—

"I had very painful gout in my big toe and could only get upstairs on all fours owing to rheumatism in my knees. It is over three years ago since I commenced taking Kruschen Salts. I must say on damp days I still have a little gout, but my knees are quite better. I am over 60 years of age, have a complexion like a girl's and feel very fit. I am fully repaid for taking a half teaspoonful of Salts each morning in a cup of hot water."—(Mrs.) A. W.

The pains and stiffness of rheumatism are frequently caused by deposits of uric acid in the muscles and joints. The numerous salts in Kruschen assist in stimulating your liver and kidneys to healthy, regular action, and help them to get rid of the excess uric acid which is the cause of so much suffering.

Far the most expensive was Banff National Park, on which the government had spent $12,191,231 up to March 31, 1936. Next was Jasper, on which it spent $5,290,073.

Bennett Backs King as Premier Explains Cabinet Abdication Action

ESTIMATES TABLED

Jump $16,491,989—Increases Mainly For Military, Naval, Air Services

OTTAWA, Jan. 19.—(CP).—After a record breaking splurge of business the House of Commons assembles to-day for its second routine sitting with the sessional business more advanced than after two weeks of a normal session.

Yesterday the House adopted the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne after a single day's debate and received the main estimates, providing for increased expenditures during the coming year, particularly on military, naval and air services.

The Throne speech debate brought from Prime Minister Mackenzie King his promised statement on the events leading up to the abdication of King Edward VIII and from Conservative Leader Bennett an expression of approval of the course taken by the government in the recent crisis.

Mr. Mackenzie King disclosed he had informed Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin of the United Kingdom the Canadian people would not approve of the King's proposed marriage to Mrs. Ernest Simpson whether or not Mrs. Simpson was to become queen. On this question his own views coincided with those of Mr. Baldwin.

Later, he said, the Canadian Cabinet had exercised its right to tender advice to His Majesty direct. Through the Governor-General a message had been sent to the King stating his duty to the peoples of the Empire should outweigh any personal inclination, however great the sacrifice might be.

He denied reports Canada had pressed for a decision on the part of the King.

Bennett Supports King

The debate found Mr. Mackenzie King and Mr. Bennett both arguing the Government had acted properly in dealing with the abdication by order-in-council without summoning Parliament, despite earlier criticism of this course from J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. Leader. Mr. Mackenzie King said the cabinet had been guided by considerations of time and space as well as commonsense and had acted in accordance with the Statute of Westminster.

The main estimates for the fiscal year 1937-38, tabled at the end of the sitting, provide for total expenditure of $410,465,397, an increase of $16,491,989 over the amount voted last year.

Goering Sees "Great Test" Looming in Europe

Fascism vs. Communism With Germany and Italy Against 'Same Enemies'

Italian Official Hints Onus Rests With Nations Now Taking Middle Course

Both Rebel and Socialist Chiefs Reject Outside Plan Of Munition Control

ROME, Jan. 19 (A.P.). — Air Minister Hermann Goering was reported to-day to have predicted "a great test" to determine whether Fascism or Communism shall prevail in Europe, with Italy and Germany aligned against "the same enemies."

Goering, Chancellor Hitler's first minister who has been conferring with Premier Mussolini on Italo-German co-operation, made the remarks, it was disclosed, before the German Club of Rome.

An informant who attended the private dinner on Sunday night quoted portions of the Nazi chieftain's remarks from a stenographic report.

The German Embassy was understood to have warned German newspaper men who were present not to mention the parts of the address referring to "the great test." It was not published in Italian newspapers.

"Division of Europe into two camps," Goering was reported to have said, "is ever more clear — a camp of reconstruction, order, enlightenment, and good faith, and a camp of decadence, destruction and the sanguinary instinct of Bolshevism. A great test will demonstrate which of the two camps will prevail in Europe."

Placing the Onus?

ROME, Jan. 19 (A.P.).—Decision on whether war comes in the struggle between Fascism and Communism for supremacy in Europe, a Fascist Government official asserted to-day, is up to nations now pursuing a middle course.

Those nations, he said, are principally Great Britain and France.

The Italian Government, the official declared, was in full accord with statements made by German Air Minister Hermann Goering that the nations of Europe must take one side or the other in the inevitable showdown.

Italy does not believe, however, he added, a general war is necessary to settle the question, and will do everything possible to prevent such a war.

Want No Arms Control.

LONDON, Jan. 19 (AP).—Spanish Socialist and Insurgent Governments rejected today the non-intervention committee's proposal to control munitions shipments to both sides in the Spanish civil war.

The action by the Burgos and Valencia governments met a gloomy response in British circles where it was stated: "Everything is now up to Italy and Germany depending on whether they will shut off the flow of volunteers."

General Francisco Franco's rejection was definite, accompanied by complaints that "thousands" of volunteers were crossing the French frontier to fight for the Socialist Government.

The Valencia reply, imposing numerous conditions to the suggested plan, also complained of enlistment of foreigners in the insurgent army.

EUROPE SHIVERS IN GRIP OF STORMS SEVERE COLD WAVE

Trains Reach Berlin Hour Late —Ship Sinking Off Norway

CHANNEL LASHED

LONDON, Jan. 19 (C.P.-Havas). —Storms and freezing weather swept over all Europe to-day, impeding navigation and causing vast damage.

Over Germany and Poland the storm reached nearly hurricane proportions, driving ships in the North and Baltic Seas to seek refuge at Kiel and other ports. Intense cold caused a complete stoppage of traffic on the River Oder.

At Sassnitz, East Prussia, trees were torn up by the wind's violence. Everywhere railway traffic was slowed down by heavy snow. Trains from Hamburg and West Germany reached Berlin more than an hour behind schedule.

Sub-zero weather was reported from all sections of Poland. The Vistula River was full of huge ice blocks, and ice-breakers chugged ceaselessly back and forth in Danzig Bay.

Reports from Oslo said the Norwegian ship Tryn was in grave danger off the coast of Norway, with 19 members of the crew desperately manning the pumps and the Norwegian ship Venus standing by.

London Seen In Need Of Piper For Its 7,000,000 Horde Of Cats

Definite Menace To National Health Says Dumb Friends League Official

BARRED IN TENEMENTS

By I. Norman Smith
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Jan. 19.—(CP).—London needs a Pied Piper, for cats.

Of the 7,000,000 cats in the Metropolis nearly 200,000 have to be caught and humanely killed every year, but this blotting out is not enough, Keith Robinson, secretary of the "Our Dumb Friends' League," wants to see the problem dealt with on a national scale.

He is appalled by the growing number of cats in England of the stray class, for "quite apart from the suffering and perpetual state of fear, the animals are a definite menace to our national health. They become disease-ridden and spread germs."

The "cat problem" has been aggravated by the London county council's order against pets in the new tenement homes. Slum dwellers moving in have been obliged to leave their pets behind them; dogs, cats, mice, ferrets and rabbits.

The old homes have been boarded up and the remaining cats have either been killed or gone half wild with hunger. The League has a scheme whereby if the moving families will notify headquarters League officers will visit the premises and collect all pets. These are later humanely killed. The L.C.C.'s order has necessitated 30 extra collectors and four more vans.

ANGLO-FREE STATE TREATY RENEWED

Coal, Cattle Pact Continuance Follows MacDonald's Talk With Valera

LONDON, Jan. 19.—(CP Cable.) —Dominion Secretary Malcolm MacDonald announced in the House of Commons to-day that the Anglo-Irish coal, cattle trading agreement had been renewed and that the British Government was ready to negotiate "a satisfactory settlement" with the Irish Free State.

In reference to his conversations last Thursday with President Eamon De Valera, the Dominion Secretary said: "I would emphasize that these talks were informal and that no formal negotiations are now progressing."

"I cannot say whether further discussion is imminent," he added, "but the United Kingdom government is ready to take any opportunity for a satisfactory settlement of outstanding questions."

Concerning trade between the two countries, MacDonald said: "It has been agreed to continue for another year the Anglo-Free State trading arrangements concluded at the beginning of last year, subject to modifications of detail."

Oswald Lewis, Conservative, asked whether MacDonald would impress on the Free State that membership in the British Commonwealth implies obligations as well as benefits. The minister replied that the government had the matter very much in mind.

Treasures of the Heart Key of Life's Success

Honors, Comforts Only Dust Compared To Respect, Love Of True Friends Says Mulock

ON HIS 93RD BIRTHDAY

TORONTO, Jan. 19 (CP).—On his 93rd birthday, Sir William Mulock, distinguished jurist, educationist and lawmaker, was invited today to make a statement to the people of Ontario.

Sir William, former Chief Justice of Ontario and Vice-Chancellor of the University of Toronto, said in part:

"In availing myself of this kindness, I desire first, with simplicity and complete sincerity, to voice my gratitude and happiness in the continued solicitude, the repeated good wishes, of so many of my friends and acquaintances.

"The atmosphere which surrounds me seems, indeed, to be one of constant and unvarying kindness; and this affords me a keynote for the message so kindly requested. And it leads me on to say this: That in my long and happy, and I hope not altogether fruitless, life, I have learned this fundamental fact—that these spoils of the heart, these trophies of the soul, constitute both life's true success and the heart's real and enduring satisfaction.

The Key Of It All

"I am sure that it will not be misunderstood if I say that probably I have known, in my long three and ninety years of life, not less of what the world calls distinction, or honors, or success in various undertakings, life's work has brought—nor less, too of what are called the comforts and the pleasures of life—than has the average man.

"And, assuming this to be conceded, I wish to observe that all of these are only as the fine dust in the balance (to any really discriminating heart), compared with the unfading joy and the inward gladness that has its source in the confidence of the public mind, the respect of the community that knows you best, the fellowship of the friends you value, the abiding affection of that inner circle of the friends you love.

"To have reason to believe that this precious wealth is mine, how unworthy however of it I may feel myself to be, is the source of my deepest joy and profoundest gratitude on this my 93rd birthday morn."

TARDY MOTORISTS KEEP POLICE BUSY

Officers In Majority Of Centres Tagging All Caught With Old Licenses

TORONTO, Jan. 19 (CP).—Prosecution of motorists who have not yet obtained their 1937 motor car licenses was ordered generally today by municipal authorities working in co-operation with Provincial officials.

Several cars with old licenses were reported on streets at Kingston, where there was an "unprecedented" rush yesterday and today for new plates. Chief of Police R. J. Robinson said he had issued orders to the members of the police force to take the numbers of all cars bearing 1936 motor licenses and that all offenders will be immediately summoned.

Sarnia motorists were prepared. There was no last minute rush there for plates, police having given warning there would be no "local grace" for tardy motorists.

There was a steady stream yesterday and today of motorists seeking 1937 licenses from S. E. Vermilyea, issuer at Belleville. Police were ordered to summon motorists using 1936 plates.

Most of Sudbury's winter drivers had already been equipped with their new licenses and there were few applications filed yesterday or today.

A few old license plates were displayed in Brantford today, the numbers indicating they were from out-of-town. There was no rush there for new plates.

Pilot-Movie Producer Leaves Los Angeles 2.14 a.m., Reaches Newark At Noon

AVERAGES 332 M.P.H.

Time For 2,490-Mile Dash Shatters All Transcontinental Records

NEWARK, N.J., Jan. 19.—(AP). —Burning the wind at an estimated average speed of 332 miles an hour, Howard Hughes, the flying movie producer, to-day drove his high speed monoplane across the continent in 7 hours, 30 minutes for a new transcontinental speed mark.

Hughes took off from Union Air Terminal, Los Angeles, at 2:14 a.m. (5:14 a.m. E.S.T.) to-day and roared across Newark Municipal Airport, 2,490 miles away, at 12:43:27 p.m., making his official time 7 hours, 29 minutes, 27 seconds.

The new record breaks his old mark of 9 hours, 26 minutes, 10 seconds, he set last January 14.

He roared away into the mists east of the field after being sure he was identified, but came back in a few minutes and circled the field at terrific speed, apparently in an outburst of exhuberance at setting the new mark. He set his fast ship down to earth at 1:11 p.m.

OTTAWA POWER IS READY TO DEAL

Company Counsel Denies Roebuck's Statement It Refused To Negotiate

TORONTO, Jan. 19 (CP)—Ottawa Valley Power Company Limited is prepared to negotiate a temporary contract with the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission to replace the one cancelled in 1935, a statement issued by company counsel declares. The statement denies Attorney General Arthur W. Roebuck's claim it refused to discuss sale of $500,000 worth of power for the commission's winter requirements.

Company counsel in denying the Attorney General's statement, declared the government official's letter of Jan. 5, was the first intimation the power firm received "of a desire on the part of the commission to purchase power for their winter requirements."

The Attorney General Jan. 5 stated the commission had offered to discuss purchase of additional power with the Ottawa valley firm but the offer was turned down the commission obtaining the power from the Gatineau Power Company.

Power contracts the commission held with Quebec firms were cancelled by the legislation passed by the legislature in 1935. As a result of the contract cancellation the Ottawa Valley Company brought action against the commission and the case is now before the privy council.

Legislature Gets Away Showing Determination Will Not To Be Thwarted

Throne Speech Shows Highways East, Centre, West To Be Modernized

PAVEMENT IN NORTH

Changes To Be Made In Succession Duties Act Allowing Certain Exemptions

TORONTO, Jan. 19 (C.P.). — The Ontario Government, "determined the will of the Legislature shall not be thwarted," will introduce legislation to make effective a 1935 Bill under which power contracts with four Quebec companies were cancelled, it was stated in the Speech from the Throne to-day at the opening of the 19th Legislature's third session.

"The Government is convinced of the justice of this measure and is determined the will of the Legislature shall not be thwarted and the benefits lost to the power users of the Province,' said the speech. "Accordingly, legislation will be introduced with a view to making effective the purpose of the legislation already expressed."

Under the Power Commission Act, 1935, the Government cancelled contracts between the Quebec Companies and the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission. Suits filed by two of the companies against the Commission have progressed successfully through the courts. Premier Hepburn, absent from to-day's opening, announced several weeks ago the legislation would be altered to make it "unchallengeable."

Succession Duties Changes.

Other major legislation forecast in the Speech included changes in the Succession Duties Act to exempt from duties contributions to charitable, religious and educational institutions when rates of duty are fixed.

A comprehensive program of highway construction and reconstruction is being prepared for 1937, it said. Highways in Eastern, Central and Western Ontario will be "modernized" and in the North the Government plans to meet the growing need for settlers' roads and paved highways.

Ontario will co-operate with the Dominion Government in construction of roads leading to mining regions which have been virtually inaccessible, the Speech added.

Premier Hepburn will represent the Province at the Coronation of King George VI. in May.

Dancing Scottish Reel Marks 90th Birthday

Lindsay, Jan. 19

WHEN Mrs. Christina McNabb of Mariposa Township, near Woodville, celebrated her ninetieth birthday Friday, a party was given in her honor at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. Alex. Cameron. Mrs. McNabb participated in the activities of the evening with the vigor of those many years her junior, one of the highlights being her dancing of a Scotch reel.

On her birthday she served, unassisted, a dinner to her guests. She has a sunny disposition, never worrying, which she believes has been the secret of her long life.

OTTAWA TO SPEND OVER 405 MILLION TO RUN CANADA '37

17 Million Increase Does Not Include Relief, Railways, Other Extraordinary Demands

CORONATION $232,000

OTTAWA, Jan. 19—(C.P.).—Canadian taxpayers had before them to-day the proposals of the government for ordinary expenditures for the fiscal year beginning next April 1, calling for appropriation of $405,046,628, an increase of $17,102,709 largely accounted for by enlargement of the national defence and aviation program.

Last night, after the debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne had been adopted with almost unprecedented despatch, Finance Minister Dunning brought down the main estimates and announced it was the intention to take them up in committee of supply to-day.

These estimates are for ordinary expenditure only and do not take into consideration the cost of relief, railway estimates or other extraordinary demands upon the public purse which Mr. Dunning estimated in his budget speech last year would bring the total expenditures for the current fiscal year to at least $509,000,000.

While the estimate is for an increased expenditure of some $17,000,000 there were many items reduced. In addition to the increase for defence and aviation, provision is being made for $10,000,000 to defray the cost of old-age pensions to be introduced in Quebec.

Supplementary estimates will be brought down later in the session to provide for capital and special expenditures as the need develops, including relief, drought rehabilitation, and railway deficits.

Coronation Expenses $232,000

Expenditures proposed for this year which have not appeared in previous estimates will provide for expenses arising from the coronation running to about $232,000, a vote of $40,000 for the forthcoming Imperial Conference, and other sums in the miscellaneous group.

For national defence the vote is $22,339,223 as compared with $14,677,411 this year, while for the Royal Canadian Air Force the vote is $11,391,650 as compared with $5,200,015. This does not include civil aviation which is now merged with the Department of Transport.

QUEEN WILHELMINA STARES AT DEATH

Only Quick Work By Officer Saves Car Going Over Alpine Cliff

INNSBRUCK, Austria, Jan. 19 (A P)—A motorcycle policeman's quick action was credited with saving Queen Wilhelmina of The Netherlands today from a plunge down a 650-foot Alpine precipice.

The heavy automobile in which the Queen was riding with a lady of her court skidded on the old Roman Road at Ma Rei, south of Innsbruck.

One wheel of the machine slid off the driveway at a point where there was an almost sheer drop of 650 feet to the frozen river below.

The automobile was travelling as slowly as possible because of the ice-covered road and Policeman Heinrich Neuberger, who had been following closely on his motorcycle, threw his weight against the slipping car until help arrived.

GUILTY OF FORGERY

Brighton Youth Sentenced to Term In Reformatory.

COBOURG, Ont., Jan. 19.—(CP) — Kenneth Cummings, Brighton youth, pleaded guilty in county court today when he appeared on two charges of forgery. Judge L. V. O'Connor imposed a term of one year in the reformatory on each charge, sentence to run concurrently. The charges were that Cummings passed a forged cheque for $43.50 on a Cobourg bank and another one for $21.30 on a Brighton bank, both on December 24. Defence counsel pointed out that apparently part of the money had gone to buy a Christmas box for the defendant's girl.

Hound Requires Steel Barn If Algoma Wants Its Wolves

Eats Way Through Two Walls To Continue Chase After Ending Up 20 Miles Off Day Before

HUDSON BAY ON CIRCUIT?

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Jan. 19—(C.P.).—Black Hawk, the Kentucky wolf hound owned by Bar River and Sault Ste. Marie hunters, is back at his quarters on Dunc Fremlin's farm at Bar River today after setting out on a couple of wolf hunts organized by himself.

On his first trip, Black Hawk chased a wolf out on St. Mary's River ice, followed it across Lake George to Sugar Island, in United States territory, kept up the chase on Neebish Island, also in the United States and wound up the same day at Kentvale on St. Joe Island in Canadian territory about 15 or 20 miles from home.

When he was brought back and tied in a stall in the Fremlin barn, Black Hawk went to work again. He ate his way through a two-inch partition in the stall after pulling off his collar, tore open a door to get into an outer building, chewed his way through the wall and was off an another hunt, coming back after a day and a half, leaving Dunc to believe he went as far as Hudson Bay.

"If he is as hard on wolves as he is one barns there won't be any more left in Algoma," said Dunc as he considered calling a meeting of the shareholders in the dog to have [illegible] a new barn.

Fighter Swaps Sides Has To Swim For It

Gibraltar, Jan. 19. (CP-Havas)

A man slated to fight in the Spanish insurgent ranks swam to Gibraltar today to join the Government forces.

As the Italian ship Franca Fasslo steamed, outward bound, through the Bay of Algeciras, west of Gibraltar, a man plunged suddenly from its bridge.

Near the shore he was picked up by a boat and then went to the Spanish Consul-General's offices. He informed officials he was a corporal who had embarked on the ship to fight in the insurgent ranks but had decided to join the leftists instead.

All But Four Convicts Back At Reformatory Damage Only $25,000

Prisoners Still In Ugly Temper Are Kept In Close Confinement

REPAIRS WELL AWAY

Governor Places Blame On Ten Or Twelve Agitators—Majority Kept Clear

By Ted Farah
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

GUELPH, Ont., Jan. 19 (CP). — Restoration of riot-ravaged Guelph Reformatory was well under way today as tension among officials eased under the knowledge only four prisoners of those who escaped Sunday night were still at liberty.

A dozen uniformed guards however carry rifles today as they patrol the grounds of the Reformatory. This is the first time in the history of the 22-year-old institution that the guards have been armed. It is understood the prisoners, still kept in close confinement in cells, have not emerged from their ugly temper.

The sight of guards is enough to start them snarling and shouting in anger, demanding to be turned free. Some of the prisoners, however, indulge in less violent expressions of their feelings by singing.

Damage Cut to $25,000

Further brightening of the riot picture followed a detailed examination of the damage done by the hundreds of riotous, incendiary prisoners on their eight-hour rampage Sunday. Deputy Provincial Secretary C. F. Neelands stated with assurance that the loss would be covered by $25,000.

Large shipments of glass, window frames and plumbing equipment had arrived at the Reformatory to-day. Thirty-seven toilets and 22 wash basins formed one of the major items which suffered destruction, and these were being replaced rapidly while the other damage is cleaned up.

Officials were surprised at the comparatively small extent of the loss and the few prisoners who made a break for freedom. A factor which led guards and police to believe a larger number took flight was the hiding of work gangs during the rioting. Fearing the consequences of becoming involved, several groups of prisoners remained hidden in barns and other buildings on the grounds for several hours after the disorders ended.

It was this circumstance which led officials to believe at one time 150 had fled. It was only after preliminary check-ups were made that these groups returned. Even after returning, they did their best to remain inconspicuous, so the confusion was not lessened.

Names of the four believed still missing are Roy Donat, 24, with a term of 18 months determinate and six months indeterminate to serve; Alex Thompson, 26, six months determinate and six months indeterminate; William Simcoe, 19, 12 months determinate and six months indeterminate, and Sidney Tyler, 18, only recently arrived at the Reformatory from Port Arthur.

Through the agencies of Chief Constable Harold Nash's Guelph city police force, 22 escaped prisoners were rounded up last night. Of this total about half surrendered either through hunger and discouragement, or on learning of the amnesty offered for those who returned voluntarily.

List of Those Who Gave Up.

They were: Fred Cooper, Sarnia, theft of an auto; Ernest Evans, Ottawa, theft of an auto; John Charron, Ottawa, breach of parole, breaking and entering and theft; James Peace, Toronto, theft and receiving; Arnold J. Finds End of a Road Poor Spot For House

Brantford, Jan. 19. (CP)

EARL Neff today probably wished he did not live in a house at the end of a road, where it is open to the attack of autos that fail to go by. Last night, a car driven by Edward Assaf, Toronto, was proceeding west on the Ava Road when it did not make the turn on to No. 2 Highway at the toll-gate and crashed head-on into the house. A half dozen heavy, foot-square cement blocks were knocked into the cellar and the front of the car was badly damaged.

Assaf and a young woman riding with him escaped injury.

An increase of $7,652,092 in the vote for miscellaneous services is more than accounted for in the $10,000,000 for old-age pensions. There are many reductions under that heading but the great majority of grants are left undisturbed. Important increases under that heading are for publicity abroad.

Pensions and national health will cost $56,968,150, an increase of $675,000, while the outside service in the department of the postmaster-general will cost an estimated $32,237,938, an increase of $1,310,311.

For the operation of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police the vote is $6,017,000, an increase of $400,623, and the labor department will require $139,250 more than the vote of a year ago. Other increases include $142,224 for civil government, $55,682 for fisheries and $185,000 for national revenue.

Reductions as compared with last year's estimates were noted in the vote for public works chargeable to income, down $3,754,450, and the cost of carrying the national debt, down $2,169,925 owing to refundings at lower interest rates.

Less For Agriculture.

Other important reductions included $852,587 in the Department of Agriculture estimate, $541,668 in the Department of Trade and Commerce and $110,604 in the soldier and general land settlement vote.

During the fiscal year 1937-38 the government will be called upon to redeem maturing debt amounting to $419,593,270, of which $236,299,800 is the Victory Loan of 1937, the last of the tax-free bonds which mature December 1, 1937.

For civil aviation the vote is $1,222,917, an increase of $481,610, but the vote for construction of airways, airports and radio stations is only $761,355, a reduction of $136,295. Mail subsidies and steamship subventions remain practically unchanged, but there is an increase of $300,000 in the subventions to assist in the movement of coal.

In addition to the ordinary expenditures the vote for such government-owned enterprises as the National Harbors Board and the Canadian National (West Indies) Steamship Service amounting to $1,885,913, is a reduction of $250,247.

Loans and investments which are not provided for in the ordinary estimate will require for National Harbors Board and soldier land settlement advances $3,159,560, an increase of $2,780,760.

Among the items in the miscellaneous group for which increases were to be voted are the following headings with last year's figures in brackets: Hospitality to visitors from abroad, $15,000 ($5,000); advertising and publicity in United Kingdom and Europe, $350,000 ($250,000); Trail Smelter Tribunal, $50,000 ($25,000); government contribution to the superannuation fund, $2,080,000 ($2,030,000); salary increases and reclassification of the Civil Service, $100,000 ($46,309); and for a statue to the late Sir Arthur Doughty, Canada's first Dominion archivist who died recently, $15,000.

Defence Figures Up.

National Defence estimates have soared this year. The military, Naval, and air forces will need altogether $33,730,873. For these services there is an increase over last year's main estimates of $14,368,434.

In the last fiscal year, however, the Defence Department continued to operate relief camps and controlled civil aviation. These two items cost $4,409,644 a year ago. Relief camps have been dropped, and civil aviation is now a branch of the Department of Transport, so that they do not now appear in the defence estimates.

The Royal Canadian Air Force will consume $11,391,650, which is considerably more than twice the sum expended last year when the total was $4,685,028.

The Militia services appropriation is $17,850,428, an increase of $5,831,502, while the estimate for the naval service is $4,486,810, or $1,832,310 more than last year.

For civil Government air operations, the Defence Department ask for $361,000, a drop of $153,987 from last year.

In a memorandum accompanying the tabling of the estimates it is shown that increase in personnel of the R.C.A.F. is to be increased by 48 officers and 565 airmen, to a strength of 195 officers and 1,498 airmen, while an increase in the non-permanent air force is contemplated, from 97 officers and 666 airmen to 118 officers and 946 airmen.

12 Fighting Planes.

Provision is made for the acquisition of 102 airplanes. These will be distributed as follows:

Fighter, 12; army co-operation, 3; flying boats, 7; bomber, 24; torpedo bombing, 11; coastal reconnaissance, 18; training, 27.

This will bring the number of aircraft up to 284, of which many, however, are obsolete.

The building program of the defence department includes the following:

Petawawa Camp, Ont. — Some small auxiliary buildings and facilities will be erected, and some work done on the roads in this camp area.

Barriefield, Ont.— Further accommodation for married personnel; a garage and work-shop for technical vehicles will be built, as will be a central heating plant.

Mail subsidies and steamship subventions for the fiscal year 1937-38 except for three items, will continue unchanged from 1936-37, the estimates showed.

For the service between Vancouver and British West Indies, the subsidy has been reduced from $33,000 to 30,000; Pelee Island, Ont., and mainland service has been reduced from $5,250 to $7,000 and the vote for inspection of subsidized steamship services has been increased from $4,900 to $5,020.

In public works estimates, chargeable to income $320,000 is provided for dredging in Ontario.

Roads and Bridges: Burlington channel bridge—Maintenace and repairs $15,000; Kingston wharves and bridges—Maintenance and repairs $10,100; North Temiskaming bridge—Improvements $3,500.

LAKEFIELD

GEORGE DOUGLAS PADDLES 4 MILES AT RECORD SPEED

Has New Experience Travelling On Katchewanooka By Canoe In January

WATER VERY HIGH

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 19. — George Douglas, who has lived on the shores of Lake Katchewanooka for almost fifty years, and has watched its many changing moods, stated that on Monday, January 18, he paddled from his home, four miles north of the village, to Lakefield, in less time than ever before, owing to the flood of water which is filling Lake Katchewanooka and the Otonabee river, Stoney Lake and Clear Lake empty into Lake Katchewanooka.

J. McFadden, who for eighteen years has held the position of lockmaster at Lakefield, stated when questioned, that he has never before seen the water so high as it is now, at this season of the year. "The water acts like a spring freshet," he said. "There is no danger of a flood in this district, however, because of the efficient manner in which the water is controlled from the Trent Canal office in Peterborough. The dams are new and in good condition so that if one of the reservoirs happened to give way, there would be no danger of floods because the water could be kept under control by the other dams."

"The people of Lakefield and district are singularly fortunate in this regard," Mr. McFadden says. Even if the water continues to rise, they can dispose of it gradually, without danger to surrounding territory. When all the stop logs are in the dam at Lakefield, the number of gallons of water going into Peterborough can be accurately estimated. Although there is more water than there is some springs, there is not as much now as there was in the spring of 1928.

Mr. F. J. Norish recalls the last time Lakefield experienced a flood. It was about 60 years ago. The main street was flooded from the corner where Strickland street meets Queen, to the site of the present Lakefield Inn, and Mr. George Bell, a familiar figure in the village at that time, ferried villagers across the flooded area in a punt. Schoolchildren, who attended school in the old schoolhouse beside where the hotel now stands, and who came from as far as three miles away, got a great amount of enjoyment out of covering the last lap of their journey by boat, Mr. Norish stated. The flood was in June.

By WALTER S. MASTERMAN

REID tiptoed along the length of the room, and followed Sylvia silently through the panel, which closed with a spring behind them. They went along a short passage and up a flight of steps, at the top of which was a flimsy door. Within was a small comfortable room. On one side was the back of the organ, and on the opposite a tiny pointed window, covered closely with a curtain. Cases of music were neatly arranged in a cabinet, and there was a table and two chairs. In one corner was the old seat and wooden lever where the man who worked the bellows had sat before electric power had been installed. A curtain divided the room from the organ loft in the chapel itself.

Two camp beds had been installed by James, and in one the twins were lying asleep, their hair mixed on the pillow. Somehow, a picture Reid had once seen of the Princes in the Tower floated to his mind, and he shuddered. Sylvia was fully dressed, and announced that she was going to sit up and watch.

"I won't have it," she whispered back. "You are a sick man and need rest."

They compromised by Reid taking the first "watch" while Sylvia lay down. He switched off the light, but a night light was burning for the children which gave a faint glow, sufficient for Reid to see the face of the sleeping girl.

He was content to watch her, happy in the moment, but with a dull dread of what the future might hold. As long as his help was needed, and he could be of service, he could stay on, but if the problem was cleared up and the murderer found there would be no excuse.

He may have dozed off into a fitful half-sleep. His nerves suddenly warned him before his senses became active. A slight, very slight noise like the scraping of wood came out of the dark. Instantly he was wide awake and straining to hear the direction of the sound.

It came again, and like a flash he knew that the sound came from the other side of the organ. Very quietly he crept to the curtain, his former training standing him in good stead. He was unarmed, but that did not cause him a moment's pause.

He stood in the organ loft, and below him was the chapel, in pitch darkness. For a moment he imagined that his ears had tricked him, or that some mouse had made the noise. Then it came again close to him, and he put out his hands to the embrasure, and nearly cried out. Two projections met his fingers, knobs of leather that moved, and in a moment he understood their dread meaning—they were the ends of a ladder placed against the organ loft, and someone was climbing the ladder. He seized the end and, exerting all his strength, hurled them back into the chapel. There was a crash, and a yell from below, and then the darkness split with a red flash, and a bullet sang past him and smashed into the organ. He heard a cry from Sylvia, and then a sound he had heard before, and which was stamped deeply into his mind—the metallic clang of brass plate that covered the crypt falling into its place.

Sylvia stood beside him, her trembling hands holding him tightly.

"Are you hurt?" she cried in an agony of terror.

"No he missed me. But the children. . . ."

They hurried back into the room where the twins had got out of their bed and were gazing wideeyed and half awake as Reid turned on the light. They ran to Sylvia, who held them both close to her, while Reid pulled the curtain back, all listening in tense silence. And then, from somewhere below, there came a half human yell, drawn out, as of a man in agony, and the sound of hurrying feet.

"We had better wait here," Reid said calmly. " I think the danger is past."

"What is it?" Sylvia whispered her eyes staring into the darkness of the chapel.

"I think there must have been some burglar in the chapel trying to steal the cross," he said lightly, with a meaning glance at the girl.

"Did you shoot him, Uncle Jack?" Marian asked, her excitement getting the better of her fears.

He laughed, and took the child on his knee. "No, I am afraid I missed him."

The children refused to go to bed, and Sylvia covered them with blankets. They sat dows to play cards.

Selden heard the noise from his post in the corridor where he was waiting in the dark, and his face set grimly. He ran towards the chapel, and a man almost fainting with fright fell on him, clawing insanely at his coat.

"Oh, Mr. Selden! For heaven's sake!"

Selden pushed the huge form of Hucks from him roughly.

"Pull yourself together man—what's the matter?"

"I don't fear men," Hucks whimpered, "it's down there, sir, in the crypt—Sir Henry that was—and it ran after me—straight, sir. I'm not imagining it."

"Be a man—where were you?"

"Going round the house, sir, as I was told. I knew the chapel door was locked, because James told me. I had got as far as that when I heard a shot fired from inside and then I saw it coming up from the crypt as plain as I see you. It had a sort of bluish flame round it—it was Sir Henry. I turned and ran."

He spoke in little jerks and clung to Selden as though for protection. James came hurrying along the corridor from his quarters, and stood by them while Hucks repeated his statement.

"Come with me," Seldon said firmly, and drew an automatic from his pocket.

"Not me, sir—I'll wait here, I'm not going to face it again."

"Come, James," Selden snapped, "leave that cur where he is."

They went slowly to the bend of the corridor and turned the corner. James swallowed hard with a clicking sound, and the hand he placed on Selden's shoulder quivered, but he went on stoutly.

"What is the meaning of this?" he whispered feebly.

"That I'm going to find out," Selden said between his teeth.

The ante-chamber was empty and chill, and the forbidding siege showed no sign of the grisly thing that had frightened Hucks. Selden descended without pausing and turned on the light, raising his automatic at the same time. There was no one there. They crept towards the iron grievers, and James clutched Selden's arm convulsively: "Oh, Lord—look!" he cried with a shaking finger.

The coffin of the late Sir Henry Severinge had been dragged from its shelf, and lay on the floor, and the lid lay beside it.

James' teeth shook in his head like castanets, and he turned his head away from the grisly object, while Selden calmly examined the floor and roof.

"Come," he said sternly, "we must attend to that later on." He jerked his finger towards the iron screen and what lay beyond. "There is something more urgent. Why, James man, I thought you had more nerves! This is a man's doing—a fiend if you like, but flesh and blood—no spookery."

"The key, man—the key of the chapel!"

"I have it here, sir. I locked it this evening—everything was all right then."

Selden flung the door open and entered, switching on the light. They saw the altar with its treasures untouched, and then Selden laughed, and the sound was strange in such a place.

He walked up the central aisle and took hold of a ladder that had fallen across the pews.

"You would have done better to have told me," he said sternly to the butler.

"Told you, sir? I don't understand."

"That," Selden pointed, as Reid parted the curtain and came through into the organ loft.

"You had better join me in the study, Reid," Selden said. "Miss Lawrence, you and the children can go to bed now. There is no danger. It is over now." he spoke soothingly.

"Did you see him?" he asked, as Selden stopped in front of him.

"If you hadn't run like a scared baby, you might have caught the murderer of Sir Henry Severinge," Selden said angrily.

"I'd have tackled any living man" Hucks said, getting truculent now that these two had dared the danger and had come back safely.

"You're a lot of use as a night watchman," James said scornfully.

"I'm through with this job," Hucks said surely. "I'm going home; you can get someone else."

"James, take him to the front door and let him out," Selden said with disgust, "and then come to the study."

Across the courtyard, in the upper story, lights were showing where the frightened servants were awake and in deadly fear.

Selden ascended the stairs to the study with a grim set face.

Finds Garden Flowers Are Full Of Vitamins

Melbourne, Victoria, Jan. 19 (CP)

ORDINARY garden flowers make a good diet for people who aren't trying to reduce, according to Harold Williams, managing director of a large coal distributing company here.

"They're full of vitamins A and B," he said, munching a gladiolus. "A pansy makes a good entree, but I like them all—that is, all except thistles." And he displayed a well-rounded figure as evidence of their nutritive value.

Roses, violets and nasturtiums are his favorites, but he bars chrysanthemums and dahlias.

"I can't spell chrysanthemums and dahlias are too big," he said.

RUSSIA REFUSES BAN VOLUNTEERS GOING INTO SPAIN

Points to Open Aid Being Given Rebels By Italy And Germany

CZECHS TO HAVE TROUBLE

MOSCOW, Jan. 19—(C.P.-Havas) —The Soviet Union refuses to ban volunteer enlistments for Spain until Germany and Italy do so, on the ground such "unilateral action" would be equivalent to intervention in favor of the Spanish insurgents.

In a note transmitted to the British Ambassador here over the week-end, Russia stressed it was not at present sending any volunteers to Spain, but at the same time did not consider it expedient to take steps which would not be observed by Powers aiding the Spanish insurgents.

The note, signed by Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff, also renewed Moscow's original proposal to the London Non-intervention Committee that foreign fleets establish strict control in Spanish waters.

"I consider it necessary to point out," Litvinoff remarked, "that in the opinion of the Soviet Government, unilateral prohibitive measures on the part of one of the participants in the London Committee, at a time when other participants not only remain free of obligations, but continue to despatch military contingents to Spain, will not only fail to attain the desired aim, but will be equivalent to intervention in favor of the rebels."

OVER 100 PERISH IN FLAMING CARS CHINESE EXPRESS

Victims Strew 15 Miles Of Track As Engineer, Ignorant Of Tragedy, Speeds On

EXPLOSION STARTS FIRE

CANTON, China, Jan. 19 (A.P.)—Rescue workers searched along 15 miles of track today for the burned bodies of panic-stricken Chinese, who hurled themselves from the blazing coaches of a speeding express train.

At least 100 persons, it was estimated, perished in the third class cars of the Canton-Hong Kong Express yesterday, as the engineer, unaware of the fire, kept the train speeding through the night. Some 85 bodies, burned beyond recognition, were recovered. About 50 persons were injured.

Railway officials said the fire followed the explosion of a jar of sulphuric acid in a third class car jammed with passengers.

The three coaches were burned down to their steel bases before the express was halted by the engineers who saw the flaming cars as the train rounded a curve. Charred bodies were sprawled over the frames while the right-of-way for 15 miles near Shekiung was scattered with the bodies of other victims.

WEDNESDAY

VESTRY MEETING IS HELD ALL SAINTS'

Plans Are Laid To Redecorate Church During The Present Year

The annual vestry meeting of All Saints' Church was held on Monday evening with the rector in the chair. Splendid reports were presented and showed a healthy and optimistic spirit in every department.

A special effort made last year by the churchwardens to repair the roof of the church met with such a ready response that they had been able to entirely pay for the work on completion. A ten-year guarantee on this work relieves the parish of one of its chief worries of the past.

The churchwardens for 1937 are the same as last year: Alex. Webber acting as rector's warden for his fifth year in office, and James Price, people's warden for the second year.

Lay delegates to the Synod are T. H. Boddy, W. Buller, G. H. Cutmore, John Edgar, J. H. Price, S. T. Harris was re-elected vestry clerk and appointments to the various boards of the city are as follows: Nicholls Hospital for three years, Mr. Charles Lacheur; Bible Society Mrs. H. E. Connolly and Mr. T. H. Boddy; Anson House, Mrs. J. Runnett.

The sidesmen's committee of forty men of the congregation will work under the direction of W. E. Wiggins and E. Jones as joint secretaries.

Two special objectives were brought forward for 1937. The annual appeal for reduction of the debt will be made in Lent. This has been increasingly successful even in years of depression, and it is hoped that this year will see one definite item of liability entirely wiped out. After Easter plans are to be made for decorating the church and at the same time making repairs to the building generally. There is no doubt that the congregation will heartily get behind this project and many handsome gifts are already promised. The objective was unanimously endorsed by the Vestry and there is no doubt of its being completed by the time of the Archbishop's visit next All Saints' Day.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta

WHEN sorrows come, they come not single spies,
But in battalions! One woe doth tread upon another's heels
So fast they follow.—Shakespeare.

Dear Friends:

Did you ever try to work a typewriter with two fingers? You pound away, and every so often you have to use the eraser, or you hit the keys so hard you break your nails. I have been having a great time with mine recently.

Apparently I hit so hard that I am forever chewing up the ribbons, so that they get frayed and will not print the words correctly. So this week the darned thing refused to work. I coaxed it, I wiggled this and I cleaned that, but there it sat calm and unafraid at the things I was thinking about it, and utterly refused to work.

So, not liking to be beaten by a small machine, I decided to unscrew a few screw-nails where it would do the most good, and had an ungodly time getting it together again.

The nails seemed to have been in so long that they would not come out, but after a lot of puffing, while the screw-driver made all the marks it could, I had it apart in one section. So I oiled it, and I oiled it good, and after a hectic time I got it together again, slipped a sheet of paper in, and lo and behold I was all spattered with black oil till I looked like I would have to go to the cleaners to get the spots removed.

I kept working it to try to get rid of the oil I had been so lavish with, but it kept smearing the paper, and spotting everything. At last I thought that all was clear, then started to write to you, my friends of the page, when the darned thing went on strike again.

So, I determined to ask my friends who use the things. None of them used the kind I used, one said it was this, and the other said it was that, each thing costing quite a lot to fix, and no money to fix it. So I turned it upside down to see if everything was tight as it should be, got a long thin brush, some gasoline and cleaned the letters, and knocked some of them out of alignment in doing so.

But it still remained on strike, and I recognized the stubbornness of inanimate things. There it sat and refused to work, and me behind so much. So I took it apart again in another place, and I oiled and wiped, and pushed and pulled, then put it together again, taking a good part of the skin off my fingers in the operation.

This time the oil didn't strike me, but oh, did it hit the paper, so once more I thought surely it would work this time. But no, it still continued to stick, and write one letter on top of the other.

I got busy with my brush and screw-driver again, and wiggled this, and waggled that, and lo and behold the blessed thing is working better than ever now. Don't ask me what was wrong. I know about the place that was causing all the trouble, but what I did to make it go again is beyond me.

What I do notice is, that my ribbons are staying in better condition now. But after I got the thing to working again I found to my dismay that I had not a single idea in my head to write you about, so thought you might be interested in my experiences. At least you might get a laugh out of it.

I remember once that my washing machine refused to work, so I got some men to fix it. I asked them if they had timed it and did they laugh long and heartily at me. But when I had filled it with clothes I found it would not budge, so I got a wrench and went at it and was black grease up to the shoulders, but at last I got it working. So I guess I must have timed the typewriter too, and as my time is up I will leave you, and tell you some of my other adventures later.

ROBERTA.

AT THE REGENT
A MYSTERY FILM AND A HOLLYWOOD PICTURE

If you go to see "Here Comes Carter" one of the pictures on the double bill at the Regent for the first half of this week, you will have an opportunity to see a little of how actors put it over when their own private lives are threatened with despair. Here you have Ross Alexander doing a good bit as the smart, wise-cracking, good-natured lad who acts as News Commentator for the stars of Hollywood and incidentally gets mixed up with a gang of professional killers, in consequence of the enmity aroused by his frank broadcasts of the foibles and sins of the people of the cinema world. This same smiling Ross Alexander recently committed suicide, following on a similar act of self-destruction by his wife. A prominent astrologer of Hollywood, Mahlon Norvell, claims to have predicted both suicides in advance.

In the second part of the excellent bill you get plenty of action in "The President's Mystery," which really isn't much of a mystery after all, as the audience knows all about it in advance, but makes good entertainment just the same.

Henry Wilcoxon and Betty Furness have the leading roles in a story concerned with the disappearance of a man who becomes fed up with his money, his work, his wife and the people all around him. He is a prominent lawyer who does everything possible to further the interests of big business, and then, through a turn of Fate, starts helping the underdogs of the land, in an attempt to break up a canning combine. He is accused of murdering his own wife, but a dignified English butler, in a bit of farcical filming, takes care of his troubles after sterner measures have failed. The outstanding thing in this picture is the very realistic acting of Wilcoxon, who will be remembered for his strong characterizations of early Romans in pictures of an ancient historical type. Although it goes to music, there is a curious drag in the tempo of this film that just prevents it from being a really fine production.—C.L.M.

ANNUAL SUNDAY SCHOOL MEETING

T. C. Ivory And H. Lamb Joint Superintendents At Omemee

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, Jan. 19.—The annual Sunday School meeting of the officers and teachers of Trinity United Sunday School was held at the home of Mrs. S. Moyer on Friday evening. A report on the year's finances was given by the treasurer showing total receipts to be $181.94 and expenses amounting to $181.81. The offerings for 1936 were not quite as large as those of 1935, while the attendance was correspondingly lower. The report was approved.

Mrs. Moyer and the other teachers of the Sunday School voiced their sincere appreciation to the superintendents, Mr. Lamb, and Mr. Ivory for their very thorough and energetic work in the Sunday School.

The election of officers then took place as follows: Associate Superintendents, Mr. Lamb and Mr. Ivory; secretary treasurer, Doris E. Vaughan; supply carrier, Harold MacTavish; pianist, Frances MacPherson; assistant pianist, Doris Vaughan; cradle roll supt., Mrs. A. Stinson; missionary supt., Mrs. Moyer; temperance supt., Miss A. Veals; librarian, Russell Williamson.

The teachers for the new year are as follows: Beginners, Mrs. Art Stinson; Primary boys, Albina Peel; Primary girls, Miss Irene Faulkner; Junior Girls, Verna Gardiner; Junior Boys, Fred Weir; Intermediate Girls, Mrs. H. Lamb; Intermediate Boys, Mr. Elliott; Senior Girls, Mrs. Vaughan; Senior Boys, Mr. Lamb; Young People's Class, Mrs. Moyer; Adult Bible Class, Miss A. Veals.

It was moved that a hearty vote of thanks be given Arthur Burrett for his faithful work as supply-carrier for the last two years.

It was suggested that some of the lady teachers call and see some of the mothers whose children are not attending Sunday School at all, or irregularly.

After a very dainty lunch served by the hostess, assisted by Miss H. Moyer, the meeting adjourned.

TROUBLE WITH THE LAW

Judge Raps Delay — Time Spent Proving Well-Known Fact

LONDON, Jan. 19—(C.P.).—The law's delay is older than Shakespeare, according to Judge Crawford. In a talk to the Hammersmith Rotary Club the judge declared that if the administration of Justice was to function it must keep abreast of the needs of the community. Cost and delay were the bane of litigation and might be lessened without interfering with the due dignity of administration.

Giving an instance of delay, Judge Crawford said that a large amount of time was wasted in proving something which was just as well known as the fact that Queen Anne was dead.

13TH CAT UNLUCKY

Officer Nabs Youth As He Trails Pussy—Has 12 Others in Sack.

MEDFORD, Mass., Jan. 19 (C.P.)—The trail of the 13th cat led Ralph D'Ovidio, 20, directly into a police cell.

Patrolman George Bradley reported he saw D'Ovidio following a cat. Then he looked in the man's parked automobile, nearby, and found 12 other cats tied in a burlap bag.

D'Ovidio, the officer said, claimed he was collecting cats to sell to a medical school for 70 cents each. He was arrested for cruelty to animals.

Continue the Treatment

Two brothers in Stratford, aged 12 and 14, broke into a home and stole money—$2.50 to be exact. The next move was to go to an establishment and play a slot machine until they had put through the entire amount.

Next came their appearance in juvenile court, and it is recorded the boys received sound spankings by their father on suggestion from court officials.

Chief of Police Beatty of Stratford had the machine seized at which the boys had been playing. Whether a sound spanking will be ordered for a man who would permit boys of 12 and 14 years to spend $2.50 in his contraption is not stated. If such punishment was considered good for the boys, then it ought to be splendid for the adult whose machine ate up their $2.50.

The Better Way

Rev. H. G. Proctor, a 28-year-old curate of Long Eaton, Derbyshire, has publicly announced his intention of resigning from the ministry. He intends to take up sheep raising in Durham.

The reason for his departure from the ministry he states plainly; He is unable to "believe the doctrine that Jesus of Nazareth is in any especial sense a divine Person. One who does not hold that doctrine cannot honestly call himself a Christian."

Mr. Proctor has taken the right course, and he can be credited with honesty. He prefers to leave the ministry than to remain in it and use his pulpit as a place where he could either carry on in a half-hearted way or become one of those critics whose business it would be to use his own doubts to undermine the faith of those to whom he ministered.

When Tongues Wiggle

Ernest Simpson, former husband of Mrs. Wallis Simpson, of whom the world has heard much indeed, is bringing suit against a London society matron for slander. It is alleged that the statement was made that Mr. Simpson was quite agreeable to it, and that he had found himself in an impossible and embarrassing position.

If slander actions were to follow all that has been said regarding Mrs. Simpson, Mr. Simpson and the former king the courts would be busy and solicitors would have no cause to complain of unemployment. There has been a tremendous amount of loose talk the world over, and much of it by people who have no information on which to base what they say. Such a situation always brings some people toward the front because they wish it to be understood they are in possession of certain information which others have not been able to secure. An action for slander always has a cooling effect on wiggling tongues.

The Price of Potatoes

There has been quite a good deal written about a potato strike, and most of the stories have come from Toronto and points in Western Ontario. In London it is reported one effect was an increase of 30 cents per bag over the week previous. There was no "strike" reported at Sarnia, nor at Guelph, and in both places it was stated there were not many potatoes left in the hand of the growers. Brantford could not find evidence of a strike, and nothing which looked like such a movement had developed at Galt. There was no "strike" in Peterborough. Prices seem to vary between $1.50 and $1.75 per bag.

If a farmer had reason to believe he could get more money for his potatoes within a reasonable time, and if he knew his stock would keep, then it would be a plain matter of business judgment which would tell him to save his stock for a higher market. A good many people are doing the same thing every day in the week in other lines.

It is easy enough to recall prices which farmers were securing for potatoes in many of the Western Ontario centres and all over the province for that matter only a few years ago. There were many of them who did not consider it worth while to put their potatoes in bags and try to sell them because they could not get 25 cents per sack for them. They were taking it right on the chin at that time and no person was spending much time or effort sympathizing with them. Now it is different, and prices are better. If a potato grower is struck one year by the law of supply and demand he is entitled to the advantage in the year when that same law operates in his favor.

Can They Find Out?

Whatever the reason, there can be no doubt that inmates of the Provincial Reformatory at Guelph made a complete job of it when they started rioting. If the building had not been fireproof there would have been nothing left of it today.

Judge James Madden of Napanee has been asked to proceed at once to conduct an investigation, and it is also stated the prison commission named by the Federal Government will visit Guelph. Of investigation there will be much after the damage has been done.

One report says the food was bad, and that the men had a grievance because they had not been allowed to receive Christmas gifts, but that explanation is hardly sufficient to account for the size and extent of the outbreak where men went about like maniacs smashing everything in sight and setting fire to all that was inflammable.

There always has been considerable freedom allowed at the Guelph institution. It is also the finest example of landscape gardening in Ontario, but the whole thing went haywire when the inmates got out of control. It will take a deal of questioning to find out what did happen. Men are not given to telling much at inquiries.

Indian Council In Session

This indeed is a great district in which to publish a newspaper. The editor of the Examiner, for instance, was asked to sit in with a meeting of the Council of the Indians from Curve Lake reserve. We prefer to call it that rather than Mud Lake. Members of the Council had a grievance because they felt the impression had been created that Indians were law breakers to a greater extent than any of their white brothers, and they did not like that feeling to get abroad. They reasoned that newspapers always took care to say the law breaker was an Indian. There were white people who broke laws and there were Indians who did the same thing, but they did not believe that the proportion of Indian law breakers was any greater than among the whites.

There is a school on the Reserve, and it was not difficult to find out the Indians were pleased and a trifle proud about their school, attended by some 60 of their children. They were making progress, and the hope was expressed that in future it would be easier for a young Indian to go and make his way in the world because he could get sufficient education to make such a thing possible.

Right now the chief trouble seems to be in the spearing of muskrats, and the Council did not seem to think it was necessary to resort to that in order to get something to eat. Most of the members of the band have been working and earning money in cutting wood and other ways, and there is also provision for relief. It was explained there was considerable difficulty in knowing where rat pelts were being disposed of this time of year and a conviction on that point was difficult to secure. Certain it is the buyer has the advantage just now as he can name any price he desires and the man with the pelts taken out of season has to take it. That point alone should be sufficient to cause trappers to see the short-sighted idea of taking rats out of season. It will be only a few weeks before the season opens legally when the full market price can be secured for muskrat pelts.

It was interesting to hear Council members discuss the prospects for more rats, because the rat is the big end of the trapping business. They will increase on account of the number of frogs which have been caught and sold, and one who knows little of such matters might well ask what frogs had to do with the supply of muskrats. The explanation is that the frogs eat the little muskrats. A litter of muskrats will number from ten to twelve as a rule, and at birth they are not much larger than a field mouse. Frogs have been brought to the office of the Indian agent in Peterborough to show how they had actually swallowed a young muskrat.

If there were a question before the band's Council regarding muskrat as a choice article of diet there would be no amendment moved nor would it have to be referred to a committee or deferred for more consideration or information. It would be carried unanimously. We have been told by Indians before that if some scheme for pickling or packing the animals were made known to them it would be possible to preserve a good supply of the meat during the trapping season. Some of the Indians do preserve the meat in brine, but if the best method of doing that were made known and suitable containers made available it might be of considerable assistance.

This Strike Will Grow Worse

In Detroit 5,000 workers of the Chevrolet plant held a demonstration in front of the premises, but they were not hostile. They are on strike, having previously been employed in the gear and axle plant. Those on parade carried signs and shouted into loud speakers: "We don't want to strike; we want to work. . . . Get Lewis out of this . . . We want our jobs back. . . We like 'em." At Saginaw much the same thing took place and at several places where General Motors have plants employees now out on strike have offered to sign statements of loyalty to the firm.

The Lewis referred to by the strikers is John L. Lewis, chief of the committee for Industrial Organization. He broke with President Green of the American Federation of Labor several months ago. The Lewis plan of labor organization is that all those working in one industry shall belong to one union, that idea being in direct conflict with the craft organizations comprising the American Federation of Labor.

John L. Lewis, following his expulsion from the A. F. of L., selected the automobile field as the ground for his first industrial union activity on a large scale. It is almost a month since the attack began on General Motors, and John L. Lewis shows no signs of turning back. He cannot do so as he knows his industrial form of unionism is being placed on test. There will be worse days in that industry before they come to better ones. The fact that there are thousands of workers now on strike who want to go to work means very little. Plain truth is they cannot return to work.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The folk with red faces today were those whose automobile markers were black and white.

A woman reader informs us there is nothing new about these sit-down strikes. She says her husband has been on one for the last twenty years.

A Toronto minister preached a sermon on the subject "A Girl and a Cigarette". Twenty years ago that would have been a sensational topic.

There will be little surprise, not even in United States that Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh have decided to become British citizens.

An English authority says that Canadian speech is fast becoming worse. And to that indictment should we say "Sez you?" or "Oh Yeah?"

The Western provinces are uniting in the formation of a Western Board of Music. We are not sure whether this means a swing to or away from swing music.

J. F. Pouliot is training his guns on Canada's honorary lieut.-colonels and it is to be hoped his battery does not find the range of Mr. Pouliot's fellow member, our own J. J. Duffus, M.P.

A Hungarian whose upper lip adornment has a wing-spread of 28 inches claims the world's moustache championship. Here is one man who has clearly never heard of stream-lining.

There is an agitation in Toronto to improve the refereeing in the National Hockey League. The theory seems to be that the officiating should be such that the home team should always win.

Mr. Bennett was welcomed back to Ottawa with a brass band. The Conservative leader however would probably have preferred a few more seats in the House to the parade he was accorded.

Ann Harding, screen star, has taken as her new husband a New York musician. She is evidently looking for harmony in her latest matrimonial adventure.

Toronto expects the highest tax rate in its history this year but so far no messages of condolence have been sent to the Queen city by outside municipalities.

And now the Hepburn government might introduce a measure prohibiting the electors of East Hastings from electing Dr. Walsh. They could make that retroactive.

It will be somewhat of a surprise to find that Canada last year imported 11,572 tons of anthracite coal from French Indo-China. That is a long way to go for stuff to prevent Canadians from freezing to death.

Hon. H. C. Nixon denies that Premier Hepburn left orders with him to crack down upon any members of the party who show signs of insubordination. Still the treatment given some of the members who voted against the government's Separate school tax legislation gives color to the original story.

IN TROUBLE

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My Cousin Ezra's deep in grief, from his big feet clean to his teeth, of grief he can't stand more; his wife works on him with her jaws, and Ezra told me of the cause, the widow in next door.

¶ Now she's a bright and dainty thing, and Ezra stands inside her ring, though he is fat and stout; I've seen my cousin fairly run, when she has chores which should be done, he puts her ashes out.

¶ He says that it would be a shame, for her to bend her little frame, and lift such heavy stuff; the big he-man just lifts it up, and romps around like playful pup, he's gallant sure enough.

¶ It's different though around his home, his wife lugs ashes out alone, and lifts the garbage can; for Ezra groans about his back, it feels as though his spine might crack, he is a crippled man.

¶ The dust from ashes gets his goat, it makes him feel as though he'd choke, his heart is none too strong; if he lifts ashes up the stairs, my Cousin Ezra much despairs, and says he won't last long.

¶ But when he chores about next door, why Ezra he don't groan no more, he's big and strong and bluff; he tells the little widow there, to him they're just as light as air—he handles them like fluff.

He Had No Desire To 'Make a Scene

(From Hansard, Jan. 15)

Mr MACKENZIE KING: Might I interrupt my hon. friend? I do not think he intends to misrepresent Mr. Baldwin's position, but I have no understanding that Mr. Baldwin placed the former king in any such position. All that I have heard, and all that I have read of dispatches, would indicate that His former Majesty had himself asked certain questions of Mr. Baldwin which Mr. Baldwin answered. I do not think that in any way did Mr. Baldwin seek to embarrass His former Majesty.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Hear, hear.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: Mr. Speaker, I refer to Mr. Baldwin's speech in the House of Commons at Westminister.

I saw the king on Monday, November 16, and I began by giving him my view of a possible marriage. I told him that I did not think that a particular marriage was one that would receive the approbation of the country. That marriage would have involved the lady becoming queen. I did tell His Majesty once that I might be a remnant of the old Victorians, but that my worst enemy would not say of me that I did not know what the reaction of the English people would be to any particular course of action, and I told him that so far as they went I was certain that that would be impracticable. . . .

Then His Majesty said to me—I have his permission to state this—that he wanted to tell me something that he had long wanted to tell me. He said: "I am going to marry Mrs. Simpson, and I am prepared to go."

It is to that statement I refer.

Mr. DUPUIS: What is the hon. member quoting from?

Mr. WOODSWORTH: That statement you will find in Mr. Baldwin's speech in the House of Commons.

Mr. DUPUIS: But in what publication?

Mr. WOODSWORTH: I just happen to be quoting from a number of documents that are included in the January issue of the Nineteenth Century magazine.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Oh.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: Mr. Speaker, I think I am quite in order.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: May I say to my hon. friend that I imagine the document he is quoting from is not the full text or he would probably have given it. I think the Hansard of the House of Commons at Westminster will show that prior to the part my hon. friend has just read Mr. Baldwin had said that His Majesty had raised this question with Mr. Baldwin first, asking Mr. Baldwin what in his opinion would be the result of an endeavour to have parliament enact a morganatic marriage act.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: My point, Mr. Speaker, is this, that when the king was placed in that position, or found himself in that position, the succession was at that time altered. That is all I want to emphasize at this time.

It seems to me that we as members should not have been required to take the oath of allegiance before taking our seats in this house and voting on this question. The other day we received a note from the clerk of the house—I have no doubt he had been instructed by the government—

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: May I say to my hon. friend that the government has not sought to instruct the clerk, but I believe the clerk has tried to perform his duty as he believed it should be performed.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: The note said that an hon. member cannot sit in the house until he has taken and subscribed to the oath as required by the British North America Act. We had already taken the oath a year ago and already have seats in parliament. If on the demise of the throne parliament can carry on, I submit that so also can a member retain his seat. But I have no desire to make a scene, and further than that I do not think the matter is of sufficient importance—

THE SAFEST AGE.

(Kitchener Record)

LIFE MAY begin at forty, but according to an insurance statistician eleven is the safest age and the happiest of the entire life span. His findings tend to show that at the age of eleven the average child, from the standpoint of health, is safer than he ever will be again.

At that age fatal accidents, rather than any disease, rank first in the causes of death. At 11 years the mortality is only one per 1,000 a year. Among boys of this group, accidents account for 28 per cent of all deaths. In ages from one to four, influenza and pneumonia take first rank, communicable diseases second and accidents third. From five to 19, accidents cause the greatest number of deaths. From 20 to 34, tuberculosis enters most prominently into the picture. From 35 to 44, while tuberculosis still leads, there enter heart disease, cancer, influenza, pneumonia, nephritis, and cerebral hemorrhage in the order named. From 55 to 64, diabetes causes most deaths.

The above figures are rather interesting, but more so to the 11-year-olds.

SWEET POTATOES.

(Amherstburg Echo)

A NEW type of specialty crop graduated from the experimental to the commercial stage when Frank Walton and Forrest Monk, specialty farmers of Colchester South, shipped from Harrow the first carload of sweet potatoes ever grown in a Canadian farming district. The shipment not only repaid the two pioneer growers for their efforts in cold cash, but the important thing is that they have been convinced it is possible to produce this crop successfully on the white sandy soil in Colchester South, the "Banana Belt" of southwestern Ontario. The carload contained 800 bushels, or 25,000 pounds.

LOVE FEASTS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Your correspondent, "Conservative" writing in Saturday's issue considers Alderman Gordon has shown himself to be a big man, having discarded his political ideas for the time being and suggested that the city council tender Senator Faills a civic banquet. He, "Conservative," fails to understand why the mayor and aldermen of former years overlooked this matter. No doubt but what Senator Faills is aware of the fact that she has the good wishes and congratulations of all citizens and their representatives in this city in attaining such a high and honorable rank. Love-feasts seem to be a pet hobby of Alderman Gordon and evidently it is the circumstances rather than the idea that has caught the mayor and council joining Alderman Gordon in the old time frolic.

ALEX MURRAY

BIRD, CHIPMUNK, SQUIRREL AND COON HUNTING

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Why are people allowed to hunt coons on other people's property while the owner of the property is in his bed sleeping? If these coons were allowed to remain in the farmers' woods he would come on them sooner or later himself and have the profit himself, the man that ought to have the profit as they feed on his corn and grain. But the night prowlers come out of the city and some of them with a nice salary and are allowed to impose on the poor farmer when he is resting up for the next day's task.

Boys of the law order these cute fellows to stay in their own quarters or pay the full penalty of the law. Note that some of these prowlers have broken the law in the past and no doubt think they can play with those in authority. Wake up boys in authority, and let them know the law still lives in our country.

Besides this, men roaming around with guns and shooting them off in the dead of night perhaps not far from some nervous women and children. The woman says, "What's that?" and she wonders and wonders and ends in no more sleep, but has to arise and face another hard task on the farm.

Why is it that people in the city can issue permits to young men and boys to carry fire arms and to walk through the country and shoot at this nice bird and little chipmunk and pretty squirrel and caring not what way their gun is pointing? Farmers have been known to have bullets pass them very close. One of these days there is going to be a dead farmer from such actions by a stray bullet, and then there will be a widow and some children left to mourn the loss and pay their own expenses. Are the boys of the law going to stand good for the mistake they make by giving license to roam and shoot on our property We farmers know how to take action. Don't worry about that. Send your city boys to the shooting schools and let the farmer have his own and be in safety and the men ought to know better.

VOICE OF THE FARMERS

HAVELOCK WOOD CONTRACT

Editor Examiner:

Sir: There still seems to be some doubt in the minds of some of the Havelock citizens as to who is right about the much talked of wood question. Reeve Seeney stated in his election pamphlet on New Years eve, that he was with me when I was offered $2.75 per cord for the Havelock relief wood, and that the offer was never brought before the council for consideration. He also stated that he was handed a letter on December 31, 1935, and that he immediately went to Peterborough as a councillor, but was unable to get in touch with the proper parties. He also states that the delay in communicating with Havelock meant a minimum loss of $890.00. Now does Mr. Seeney mean to say that through my neglect Havelock lost $890.00. If so how does he arrive at those figures?

Now I wish to state that I never received an offer for the wood and Mr. Seeney never heard anyone make me an offer for the wood. Why did Mr. Seeney not consult me about the letter he received on December 31,1935, before he went to Peterborough as a councillor as I was still reeve, and I did not vacate office until January 6, 1936.

And why did Mr. Seeney, as a councillor, authorize an expenditure of $50.00 on this village without consulting the reeve?

Hoping that this will clear up any doubt that people may have regarding the so-called offer for the wood and the loss of $890.

Yours Sincerely

E. J. LEESON

SUGGESTS SAVING

Editor Examiner:

Sir: I was very much interested in your recent editorial "Our Maturing Debentures., and I feel there is much food for thought in your well-gathered information.

In round figures, Peterborough's debt (when the last auditors report was issued) was $4,600,000, and to pay this, we have on hand over $2,000,000 (or about 44%) and it is planned during the next few years to obtain from our tax paying citizens the remaining $2,600,000 in the form of taxes, so that every Peterborough bond will be met in full as it matures.

During the next few years we have to meet the following amounts:

1937	$201,000
1938	$191,000
1939	$337,000
1940	$491,000
1941	$303,000
1942	$145,500
1943	430,000

And, as mentioned above, we have on hand over $2,000,000. In other words, we need not set aside any money for sinking fund purposes for the next seven years and we would be able to pay all Peterborough bonds falling due during that time.

Now, when were these bonds issued which are now falling due, or will be falling due during the next few years? Without doubt, these were issued 20, 30 years or more ago, to pay for local improvements, or other municipal services, which the citizens of that time felt were necessary, but which they also felt they could not afford to pay for at that time, so they passed the cost on to the next generation of taxpayers (ourselves) by issuing bonds for the cost, feeling no doubt, that as the coming generation would participate in the rights and privileges, conveniences and comforts of these improvements, they should pay for them.

And now these bonds are falling due, and we are paying them, and our taxes are being kept as high as they were during the days of prosperity by reason of these payments.

In addition to paying the debts of the previous generation, however, we are also paying our own debts as they are incurred. We are not passing them on to the next generation (as the last generation did to us) but are "paying as we go" as the saying goes.

Now, it does not require much thought to show how unfair this method is to the present body of taxpayers, and how impossible it is to expect any reduction in taxation, when we are trying to pay off so many debts, and I respectfully submit that this has gone far enough.

Each year over $200,000.00 is collected from the taxpayers of this city to pay interest and sinking funds the greater part of which goes to pay debts not incurred by the present body of taxpayers, and in view of the dreadful struggle many of our citizens are having to save their homes, would it not be wise to refrain from setting aside any such amount as $200,000.00 a year, for the next few years, and give the weary taxpayer a chance "to get his breath" by reducing the taxes for 1937.

A reduction of five mills (which could easily be made, if this sinking fund were suspended) would be of much more value to the tax payer than the assurance (which is given so freely) that if he can only hang on to his property until 1945, if he can only continue his present dreadful struggles for another eight years, he will (if he is alive) receive a large reduction in his taxes. What the taxpayer needs, and needs badly, is an immediate reduction, and the method I have tried to outline here will involve no reduction of services, no cutting of wages, or cutting down of staffs, the benefit will be felt immediately and the council of 1937 will go down in history as the council which had the interest of the small taxpayer so much at heart, that they made the first real reduction in taxes since the crash of 1929.

Yours truly

Pass the Cheese, Please

(From the St. Thomas Times-Journal.)

CHEESE IS a commodity that Canadian farmers and dairymen make a lot of. And what's more they make the best quality in the world. At anyrate it always brings at least one cent a pound more in the British market than cheese made in New Zealand which is our principal rival.

But Canadians are not great cheese eaters themselves. Their per capita consumption is three and one-half pounds per annum, compared with nine and one-half in England and ten and one-half in Germany. That is what a convention of Western Ontario dairymen was told at London, Ont., this week by a government official who urged an educational campaign to make Canadians "cheese conscious."

Cheese is one of the most excellent foods there is. A small portion contains much nourishment, valuable vitamins, and it is not expensive. What is needed is an advertising campaign to tell Canadians about its food value. It was an advertising campaign that made the California fruit industry what it is. The cheese industry, from milk producers to wholesalers, should combine to form a large advertising fund to tell the people of this country how good it is for them to eat cheese.

Another point mentioned in the convention was that cheese was sometimes sent over to the British market too 'green,' and when unpacked was not in edible conditions. This should be prohibited at once. Even a few bad cheeses will give the Canadian product a bad reputation among British wholesalers and spoil the market for everybody. Defective grading and packing is an all too frequent complaint regarding Canadian produce in the British market. Canadians do not seem to take the same pains and care to see that their goods arrive on the other side in good condition. That is no doubt one reason why we are losing trade to New Zealand and Australia.

MIDWINTER COLDS.

(G. Edward Pendray, in Today)

IN THE temperate zones, cold epidemics run in cycles, reaching three main peaks each year: In October, in January and in the late spring, around March or April. The midwinter one is usually most severe, and is followed by the worst outbreaks of pneumonia, influenza and other complications.

Men are somewhat more susceptible to colds than women, but one race is no more susceptible than another. Colds are caught somewhat easier by children under 5 and adults between the ages of 25 and 35 than by others. But the most striking variations have nothing to do with age, race or sex; they are the individual, possibly inherited, susceptibles.

In the United States, 17 per cent. of the population have one cold or less a year. Sixty per cent. have three colds a year. The other 23 per cent., come what may, regularly have from four to ten annually.

These are the folk loved by the patent-medicine trade. They are likewise, the living test tubes that keep the virus alive between times for the rest of us.

THE RICHEST MAN.

(Windsor Star)

ASK ANY ten-year-old boy "Who is the richest man in the world?" and the chances are he will say "John D. Rockefeller." The boy's father would probably say the same thing.

To correct this widespread error, Scribner's Magazine comes out with the statement: "The Nizam of Hyderabad is by far the wealthiest man on earth. By universal reckoning the Nizam is worth at least one billion dollars. He has 800 tons of gold stored up in the strong room of his palace—more gold than the Bank of England holds today. The stoop-shouldered coffee-colored master of 13,000,000 lives has so many diamonds, rubies, emeralds and pearls that he could use shovels to take them from the bins where they are stored."

Brother, can you spare a dime.

ABSENT-MINDED.

(Melbourne Argus)

A GREAT historian once said that the British Empire was won in a moment of absent-mindedness. It is true that there was little calculating foresight or diplomatic skill displayed in acquiring it. The Empire emerged as the result of characteristics inherent in the nature of the people who brought it into being. It was an expression of their life. Its foundations were laid in the character of its people. It has endured and expanded because their spirit has remained strong and virile. In face of tremendous opposition and severe losses it has become the most astonishing achievement of modern times.

SOIL CONSERVATION TO BE URGED HERE

Recommendations Are Forwarded To The Provincial Government

At a recent meeting at Bowmanville sponsored by the publishers of The Farmers' Advocate, the matter of forestry and soil conservation was under discussion, and recommendations were forwarded to the provincial government.

Peterborough county was represented at the conference by A. D. Runions, provincial agricultural representative and by Warden James Gifford of Ennismore Township. Other counties represented at the meeting included: Victoria-Haliburton, Ontario, York, Durham, Northumberland, Hastings, Prince Edward, and Lennox-Addington.

Among some of the recommendations to go forward to the provincial government, is one urging establishment of a conservation committee within the civil service, made up from representatives of the departments of forests, agriculture, game and fisheries, educational, municipal affairs and highways.

Further proposals are that a conservation primer be prepared at once for use in the schools of the province in order that conservation lessons may be taught in the schools during the winter and spring of this year.

That the government endeavour to clarify legislation regarding municipal ownership of land, so municipalities may buy and own land for reforestation and conservation purposes, and that careful consideration be given the matter of assessment, especially as it relates to taxation of tree growth.

It is also recommended that the province be zoned, and a capable forester installed in each zone to survey the territory with a view to conservation requirements, and that a special study be given by the district committee to municipal enterprises which involve lake frontage problems or those related to large rivers or streams.

Mr. Runions declared to a reporter that Port Hope would not be troubled with perennial floods if the matter of forest and land conservation was applied in that district. He cited this as an example of the objects of the forestry conservation scheme, and declared while there is lots of moisture at the present time, it is all being lost because there are not the trees or the swamps to conserve needed moisture for the farmers.

The meeting held at Bowmanville was the third of a series of recent forestry conservation meetings held in the province to line-up proposals to be presented at the forthcoming sessions of the various county councils concerned. It is expected the matter may develop into quite a live issue.

P. D. Mitchell of the Farmers' Advocate presided at the noon luncheon meeting, while E. J. Zavitz, chief of the Ontario Forestry Department at Toronto was the main speaker at the business session which followed with William Newman, M.L.A., in the chair.

Warden Gifford of Peterborough County was chairman of the special committee which went into the matter of the county program.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 19. — Bearishness predominant in trade news, wheat prices were weak on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday. Late-session rallies spurred by similar reactions at Chicago failed to make much headway. Operations were dull. The close was ⅛-⅜ cent lower.

Contributing to the market's depression was a lull in foreign demand for wheat, with only 200,000 bushels being sold for export during the week-end.

Reaction at Chicago from early losses, with the close fractionally higher, failed to offset, in its effect on local prices, ¼d declines at Liverpool, where last week's heavy shipments of wheat from all sources proved depressing.

Of the week's 12,351,000-bushel movement, 7,400,000 bushels were cleared from Argentina and Australia. Canada exported only 2,837,000 bushels.

Cash-grains spreads were unchanged. Coarse grains prices rallied toward the last with wheat after October rye had slumped five cents a bushel.

when children cling to many little pets they have sheltered for years. He also tells of hard-hearted owners who have left their pets locked in back rooms.

He does not favor the council's rule. "It is causing a section of the race to grow up who have little first-hand knowledge of animals and as animals have a softening influence on human nature these people are bound to grow hard," he says.

"Children fond of animals are being deprived. They will see them in story books and wonder what kind of animal is a cat."

Moreover, adds Robinson, "I keep my cat in a flat and I see no harm in it. Cats are very clean creatures and they have got the roof for exercise.

The council, on the other hand, insists the new tenement dwellings are unsuitable as homes for cats and dogs, both from the human standpoint and that of the animals themselves. The council insists no exceptions must be allowed, save in the case of certain older tenants of the new flats who have already been in residence with their pets.

PRESENT JEWELS TO 6 ODDFELLOWS

Past Grand Master C. S. Parks Of Toronto Was Principal Speaker

Past Grand Master C. S. Parks of Toronto, a former member of the local lodge, was principal speaker on Monday night at the fifty-fourth anniversary of the Resuscitation of Otonabee Lodge No. 13, I.O.O.F. He also assisted D.D.G. M. E. J. Leeson of Havelock in making the presentation of five twenty-five-year Jewels, the recipients of which were: James Baird, George Noyes, Bert Jackson, and George Lacheur of Peterborough, and Oram Weston of Hamilton. Gilbert Lavery of Orillia, who was also to have received a twenty-five-year Jewel, was unable to be present for the occasion. Dancing, cards and refreshments rounded out a very enjoyable program and door prizes were won by M. J. Starr, Mrs. Allan Lewis, and W. H. Gordon of Havelock.

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 19 (CP).—A good old-fashioned spanking was the sentence Magistrate Menzies gave 17-year-old Walter Dygdale of London in city court today. The youth pleaded guilty to theft of tobacco and candy.

"Did you ever give this boy a thrashing?" the Magistrate asked Dygdale's father.

"Yes, sir, I have," replied the father.

"Can you give him one if I let him go?"

BRITAIN BELIEVED READY TO SETTLE HER U.S. WAR DEBT

Visit Of Runciman And Niemeyer To Washington Taken As Clue

TRADE PACT TO FOLLOW?

By R. H. Hippelheuser
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—(A.P.). — With war debts entwined in the broader question of trade and international monetary stabilization, it is believed in well-informed circles the British government is prepared to make a settlement on its debt to the United States. This belief, prevalent for some weeks, has gained strength with the visit of two British officials, Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, and Sir Otto Niemeyer, director and financial expert of the Bank of England. Runciman will arrive tomorrow. Sir Otto is en route.

It was further believed likely that, if a settlement is made by Britain, France would quickly follow.

As payment dates have passed with default after default — the British debt is now $786,000,000 in arrears, with accrued interest—the question has become not only one of debt settlement, but also is related to monetary stabilization, together with the possibility of a reciprocal trade agreement between the United States government and Britain.

Runciman Has the Authority

Informed persons believed Runciman is empowered to discuss these questions with Washington officials, if not to open formally negotiations on stabilization and a trade pact. He will spend next week-end as a White House guest, but President Roosevelt said his visit was personal.

The conclusion of a reciprocal trade pact with Britain would be regarded generally as a major accomplishment of the tariff program of Secretary of State Cordell Hull. It was felt certain by some New Yorkers close to the administration, however, the United States government would first insist upon a settlement of war debts.

According to these persons, negotiations between the United States and Great Britain might be three-fold including, after the settlement of debts, an agreement on stabilization and the conclusion of a reciprocal trade pact.

TRYING TO UNSEAT BANCROFT COUNCIL

Reeve Lumb and Two Members Of Council Threatened With Proceedings

Acting on behalf of a Bancroft taxpayer, whose name he declined to disclose, the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., has launched proceedings to unseat Dr. S. S. Lumb and Councillors D. E. Hawley and T. W. Tryon, on the grounds that they allegedly failed to properly qualify under provisions of the Municipal Election Act.

Reeve Lumb recently returned for a second term of office, and Councillors Hawley and Tryon, who are serving their first terms as members of Bancroft Village Council, have been requested in letters sent from the office of Mr Gordon, to file their disclaimers forthwith.

"Unless I hear from you by Thursday, January 21 I will start proceedings against you," each of the letters states. The proceedings referred to, Mr. Gordon told a reporter, are that if disclaimers are not filed he will make a motion for their disqualification and an application for costs against them before the Hastings County Judge at Belleville.

The letter to Dr. Lumb is quoted in part as follows:

"I am informed you have disposed of your property which consisted of the mill and freehold property, and had not properly qualified as required by the Municipal Act to be sworn as reeve."

It is alleged that Mr. Hawley failed to resign as member of the School Board before becoming a member of the Village Council, and the allegation against Mr. Tryon is that he took the oath of office as councillor without owning property in the municipality.

In each letter Mr. Gordon states: "I am instructed to move for your disqualification and apply for costs against you, unless you file your resignation in a manner prescribed by the Municipal Act. Unless I hear from you by Thursday, January 21, I will start proceedings against you."

CAMPBELLFORD

ROTARIANS HEAR HASTINGS COUNTY MINING HISTORY

District Is Geologist's Paradise Jack Haig Tells Service Club

VARIED MINERALS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 19. — "Mining Development in Hastings County" was the subject of an interesting and informative address delivered before the Rotarians at their weekly luncheon at the St. Lawrence hotel Monday. Jack Haig, former Campbellford resident, now living in Belleville "as the speaker and although he needed no introduction to the club the formality was performed by Dr. E. A. Stuart.

"The subject is one that must be covered by the ordinary laymen in generalities, because to attempt any technicalities you would be entering the field of the geologist and I have no desire or qualifications to do that", began Mr. Haig. On first thought one does wonder what can be discussed in such a small territory as the county of Hastings on such a tremendous topic.

"As an introduction, let us for a few moments glance at the mining industry in general terms and the place it occupies today in the development of our country.

"Canada today is the world's fourth largest exporting nation. She leads the world in the production as asbestos, nickle, and platinum. She is third in the production of copper, zinc, and silver and is fourth in gold and lead. Our mineral output jumped from $312,000,000 in 1935 to approximately $340,000,000 in 1936," asserted the speaker.

"The mining industry ranks second only to agriculture in importance and has been a tremendous factor in aiding our governments during the period of the world's longest and most severe depression," he continued.

"This is relatively more important that at first realized, because I believe it is only about 18 per cent of our total area which is suitable for agriculture."

A Geologist's Paradise.

Stating that this area contained almost every geological formation that exists in Canada including most of the non-metallic and many metallic minerals with the exception of tin and diamonds, the speaker said that the county had been called "a geologist's paradise," and professors of geology have been known to study and bring their classes to study the rock formations.

Following this the speaker quoted from "Mine-Finders" by B. F. Townsley which told of the first epic making gold rush in Ontario in the year 1866. "The Richardson mine as it became known, quickly became the subject of the curiosity seekers as well as the prospectors. It is related how four four-horse stage-coaches left Belleville daily, bringing four thousand visitors a month to the village of Eldorado, ill-provided to accommodate the newcomers; also how twenty-six road-houses quenched the thirst of the throng."

"The mine was worked intermittently in after years and the rusty remains of a stamp mill are still to be seen. There is no official record of production, but old residents agree that much gold was mined through the shallow shafts while the miners stole as much as the owners received. Although the find never became a commercial success it gave stimulus to prospecting in Eastern Ontario that resulted in gold mining operations in after years, among them the famous Deloro, Pearce, Ledyard, Crescent, Marmora, Craig, Belmont and Golden Fleece—all unprofitable efforts but forerunners of an industry of great economic importance to the province."

The Young Mine.

"An interesting sidelight to this quotation is that on the day that Canada was celebrating her first Dominion Day a story came out of Madoc of a new gold mine called the Young Mine", the speaker resumed.

In answer to the question of why the mining

HASTINGS

TRINITY CHURCH SHOWS BEST YEAR IN ITS HISTORY

Annual Meeting And Banquet Featured By Encouraging Reports

OFFICERS ELECTED

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Jan. 19.—The annual meeting of Trinity United church held on Friday night, was the best in the history of this historical old church in Hastings, both from a financial standpoint and a social one.

The meeting took the form of a banquet. At first it was intended to serve a pot-luck supper, but living up to their enviable reputation they have gained for themselves down through the last number of years of serving sumptuous suppers, the ladies of the church fairly filled the long tables with good things to eat, so that in place of a supper it turned out to be a sumptuous banquet to the hundred that sat down at the prettily decorated tables.

The meeting was opend by the pastor, Rev. F. W. Newell, B.A.B.D., who conducted the devotional period. Mr. R. C. Doxee acted as secretary. Highlight of the meeting was the announcement that the church is practically clear of debt, the small balance will be cleared off in the course of the next month. Going back through the records it will be seen that in July 1934 when Rev. F. W. Newell took charge of Trinity there was a substantial debt. Only throught the remarkable ability of Rev. Newell to lead his congregation and the co-operation he received from them was Trinity able to boast of the best year in its history. In 1938 the congregation will celebrate the seventy-fifth anniversary of the church, and this year they will make a number of improvements both inside and outside the church. Certainly with the good financial standing their pastor has been able to bring them to, they can go ahead with these improvements with the highest of hopes.

W.A. Raises

Miss Carrie Doxee, treasurer of the Women's Association, reports that they raised the magnificent sum of $325.00. Miss M. Huycke is the president.

The Women's Missionary Society, Mission Circle and the Mission Band between them raised $170.00 for mission work. The congregation raised $270.00, making a grand total of $440.00. Westwood congregation which is also in charge of Rev. Newell, raised a like sum, making a grand total of almost $900.00, from these two charges to be sent away for mission work of the church in one year. Certainly there are few places in rural sections that can pass this mark.

J. M. Baker, treasurer of the church School, reported $212.00 raised in 1936.

Church treasurer, A. M. Brooks, gave the church report showing all accounts paid to date. Mr. Brooks who has been untiring in his work of treasurer for the past number of years resigned. A very hearty vote of thanks was tendered him for his work as treasurer.

The following officers were elected: Treasurer, Carl Oliver; secretary, R. C. Doxee; Board of Elders, R. C. Doxee, R. Collins, J. Bonds, sr., W. I. Tate, A. Metcalfe; Board of Stewards, J. M. Baker, A. M. Brooks, G. Fox, G. R. Brown, F. Warner, W. Buck, A. Fleming, W. Russaw, J. E. Oliver, A. V. German, and Dr. J. H. Hess; Trustee Board, J. M. Baker, R. Collins, R. Bibby, H. E. Oliver, R. C. Doxsee, W. Preston, J E. Oliver, A. Fleming, F. A. Dodd, A. B. Smith, L. E. Kelley.

CANADA ASKED EDWARD PLACE EMPIRE FIRST

$22,339,223, an increase of $7,661,812 over last year; and aviation, including the Royal Canadian Air Force, for $11,752,650, an increase of $6,552,625.

Other increased appropriations are for administration of justice, fisheries, labor, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, pensions and national health, national revenue, and post office.

Decreased votes are sought for debt charges, penitentiaries, transport, external affairs and trade and commerce.

Mr. Bennett charged the government with violating the Wheat Board Act by refusing to purchase wheat at the fixed minimum price unless the market price should fall below 90 cents. He claimed this had deprived farmers of a chance to profit by the rising market. A similar view was taken by M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F. Rosetown-Biggar).

The government's wheat policy had been sound, said Mr. King. It had been a selling policy as contrasted with the holding policy of the former government. The government had acted on the advice of its law officers in the course it had taken.

State Action In Industry

A plea for state intervention in industry was made by Lionel Chevrier (Lib. Stormont) who said the present indications of economic recovery would prove of little consequence unless there was a better distribution of wealth and a greater realization on the part of industry of its responsibilities to labor.

He favored legislation for minimum wages, maximum hours of work and protection of the industrial worker against conditions detrimental to his health. If this was beyond the authority of the Federal parliament the weapon of the tariff should be used against offending industries.

Western wheat made an early debut in the debates as Mr. Bennett charged the government with violating the Wheat Board Act by exempting the board from the duty of buying wheat at a fixed minimum price.

He referred to the course taken in the present crop year when the fixed price was continued at 87½ cents a bushel but the board declined to buy unless the market price fell below 90 cents. This action, said Mr. Bennett, cut the farmers off from the possibility of sharing in the advantages of a rising market.

Mr. Bennett said he rejoiced in the prosperity of the country but thought the government would have some explaining to do in connection with the increasing number of people needing unemployment relief.

The current prosperity was not due to any action of any government. Canada was just moving in step with the other nations of the world and not moving any faster.

Offers Co-operation

Mr. Bennett gave the cue for full speed ahead with business when he said the Conservatives would co-operate with the government in bringing the session to a close in time to permit the government to represent Canada at the coronation of King George in May.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King followed the opposition leader and thanked him for his assurances of support and co-operation. He said he hoped Mr. Bennett would accept the government's invitation to join the official delegation to the coronation.

Discussing economic recovery Mr. Bennett said the present government had not started from "zero." It had pursued the same policies on great issues as the former Conservative government and the recovery now in evidence had begun in 1934.

Revenue increase during the current fiscal year had been largely due to the increased sales tax and to the tax on incomes eared in 1935.

Unemployment relief was increasing. It was reported the number receiving relief outside of the drought area was six per cent greater than last year. He hoped Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Labor, would explain this in view of the charges against the former Conservative government that it alone was responsible for unemployment.

"We are not equipped even to maintain neutrality," said Mr. Bennett referring to the absence of reference to national defence from the speech from the throne. He said the House would await with interest a statement from Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of National Defence.

The Gold Clause

The proposal to remove the gold clause from contracts to pay was one of the most dangerous pieces of legislation forecast in the speech, Mr. Bennett said. He could imagine the reaction abroad if investors were forced to be content with "pieces of paper" that were legal tender in the country of issue.

Increasing in number and vehemence were the attacks being made on democratic government, said Mr. Bennett. Anything the government could do to strengthen democratic institutions would receive the support of the opposition.

Compulsory voting, he said, might be considered but, more particularly, the governments would have to think of the well-being of the people, regardless of the immediate political fortunes of any group or party.

Enactment of the trade agreement with the United States, ending trade war with Japan and resumption of trade relations with Russia had contributed greatly to increased trade and improved international relations, Mr. Mackenzie King said.

"For years my right honorable friend has been talking about reciprocal trade and saying it was a good thing," the prime minister said, "but it never came under his administration and would not have done if he had been returned."

Replying to Mr. Bennett's references to the wheat board, the prime minister said the government had full authority to fix a condition on the application of a fixed price. The government had conferred with members of the board and with the law officers of the Crown and had been assured it could proceed with full statutory authority.

In closing the Prime Minister discussed unemployment which was not decreasing in proportion to the increase in the numbers being employed. He commended to the House legislation and measures which he said would come down later in the session.

The Jobless Question.

John H. Blackmore, Leader of the Social Credit Party, plunged into a discussion of the unemployment relief problem which, he said, would not be solved by any methods so far applied. The alarming aspect of this problem was the upward trend in the numbers on relief while all reports indicated greater numbers of people employed.

The administration was entitled to some credit, but, Mr. Blackmore warned the House that increased sales and higher prices for wheat were not the result of new policies, but arose because of conditions in other countries. Great problems remained in spite of temporary relief and "we should not go too far in comforting ourselves. There are many things we should watch very carefully, rather than blinding ourselves to conditions."

Many people were suffering untold hardships in order to keep off relief, Mr. Blackmore said, and were only now going on the relief lists. Another aspect was that many workers who would now be retiring on their savings have exhausted these resources and must remain in employment long after they would normally retire.

Mr. Blackmore said he had only the greatest sympathy for any administration in office now because of the difficulty in finding money under the present economic system.

Suggests New Money.

"I am going to suggest that the Dominion has under the B.N.A. the authority to create new money," he said. He knew he would be scorned in many quarters by those who believed such a course would mean inflation. He was convinced, however, that he could bring sufficient economic opinion to prove the value of his suggestion. Handling of state money could be placed in the hands of a body of officials independent of politics who could administer it with such wisdom and foresight that no inflation would result.

In dealing with the abdication as it had, Mr. Mackenzie King said, the Government had been guided by the circumstances of space and time and by common sense. It had acted also in strict accord with the constitution and the Statute of Westminster.

It was not until the morning of December 9 the Government learned definitely that King Edward intended to abdicate. To have called Parliament before that would have been to assume the King would abdicate, and everyone hoped he would not. It would have taken from six to eight days to get Parliament together and even then it would have meant much inconvenience to members. Consequently there was no possibility of simultaneous parliamentary action in Canada and at Westminster.

The Government would have been severely criticized had it not associated Canada with the Imperial statute, but delayed acceptance of the abdication until Parliament could have been assembled. It would have thereby exposed to the world a division in the Empire when the great need was unity.

Accordingly, the Government had passed an Order-in-Council requesting and consenting to enactment of an approopriate statute at Westminster applicable to Canada. That was done on the morning of December 10 after the Government had received the instrument of abdication and the Bill was introduced at Westminster the same day.

MAIL MAN FALLS IN PIGEON CREEK

Janetville Carrier Breaks Car Axle In Ice In Swamp—Gets Ducked Escaping

JANETVILLE, Jan. 19.—Lawrence Wright, carrier of His Majesty's mail, and his assistant, Ford Parsons, had a most unfortunate experience on Saturday afternoon when attempting to cover their route, part of which has been isolated for several days owing to the flooded condition of Pigeon Creek, which was augmented by the breaking away of Lotus dam a few miles to the south.

Mr. Wright, when on the home stretch, proceeded to cross the flooded area in Pigeon Creek swamp, but the car was unable to make its way through the ice, and in endeavoring to back out of the ice entanglement, suffered a broken axle.

Ford Parsons was dispatched with haste to their home for the other car and later Mr. Wright, carrying his box of mail, proceeded to cross the ice on foot to meet the rescue car on the opposite side. Suddenly and without warning the mail man found himself immersed, above his waist, in the icy depths of Pigeon Creek, but still clutching his box of mail he scrambled to safety, and encased in his fast freezing armour of ice, wended his way with as much speed as possible, through the long swamp up a steep hill to the nearest house a mile away, where Mr. Roland McGill rushed the victim by car to his home in the village.

FLOODS DAMAGE ROADS IN MANVERS

Number Of Bridges Swept Out —Close Patrol Kept On C.P.R.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

PONTYPOOL, Jan. 19. — The floods of last week have caused much damage to the roads in Manvers township. Many washouts are reported as well as a number of bridges that have been swept away. Some roads are closed to traffic. Men and teams have been busy drawing stone, filling in holes, to make it passable, but all roads are still dangerous for traffic.

On the Manvers section of the C.P.R. line sand is washing down from the hills and filling the ditches and sweeping over the tracks. A close watch is kept on the track day and night. This employs about 30 men, some coming from Peterborough. So far, there has been no way discovered to stop this sand. Fences have been built with posts and ties, but these were swept away and the sand flooded over the tracks again.

theft, assault with intent to rob; Teddy Gabriel, Kirkland Lake, theft of railway hand car; George St. Amant, Hull, Que., breaking and entering and theft; Ralph Cheney, Ottawa, breaking and entering and theft; George Ufnal, Toronto, receiving and burglary; Cecil Smith, Toronto, taking auto without owner's consent; Gordon Walker, Taroop Ottawa, breaking and entering and theft; Leopold Desjardins, Hawkesbury, assault and breaking jail by force; John Pauze, Ottawa, breaking and entering and theft; Eugene Leblanc, Ottawa, breaking and entering and theft.

Wreckage Deceiving.

Mr. Neelands said the wreckage looked far worse than it actually was. In the chapel, for instance, he said it appeared as if most of the woodwork was charred. The old wooden stage at one end of the room was the only thing burned, and the management was planning to rip the old platform out anyway.

In the auditorium books were heaped on the floor and fired. Mr. Neelands said the books were mostly discards from the public libraries and the loss there was not great.

The wooden floor of the auditorium was badly damaged, however, and this is one of the larger items.

In the kitchen the first impression was the place had been gutted by fire and wrecked. Actually, the thing that made it look so sad was the scattered food. The plates were of metal and they were filled with food when the rioting began. Plates and food both were strewn about.

Two skylights in the kitchen were broken. A $1,500 dishwashing machine, steam tables and other valuable articles were undamaged.

The hospital, too, was supposed to have been wrecked. But a few hours' work on it yesterday restored it so the dozen or more influenza patients removed on Sunday night were able to return.

Dr. J. B. Heaslip, governor of the reformatory, had no hesitation yesterday in attributing the riot to a "nest of 10 or 12 agitators." The governor insisted there was no basis for complaint regarding the quality or quantity of the food.

Prisoners had said the riot was motivated by dissatisfaction with the meals and also anger because parcels were not allowed into the reformatory at Christmas.

CO-ORDINATION OF SOCIAL SERVICES IS URGED IN CITY

Special Committee Is Named To Study Suggestions Submitted

TRAINED SOCIOLOGIST

Lloyd C. Ecker, field supervisor of the Children's Aid Branch of the Ontario Department of Public Welfare on Monday evening urged the desirability of co-ordinated effort and offered several valuable suggestions which were well received, at a meeting of social service workers held in the city council chamber under chairmanship of Mayor George A. Macdonald.

Fully representative of the various branches of social service in the city, the meeting by a unanimous standing vote gave its approval to the suggestion that a study group be organized. On motion of Alderman James Dutton, seconded by Dr. G. Murray Fraser, medical officer of health, a committee was named to proceed with work of organization and selection of a chairman.

Special Committee

The special committee was named as follows: Dr. G. Murray Fraser, convenor; Mrs. W. R. Morris, prominent in the Local Council of Women and the Home and School Association; Miss Helen M. Anderson, public health nurse; Miss N. Smyth, Mothers' Allowance Commission; D. A. Loomis, school attendance officer; and Adjutant Neil Warrander, in charge of the local Salvation Army Corps.

Objects of the study group, it was intimated, will be to further discuss proposals made by Mr. Ecker and to consider whether or not closer co-ordination of social services here are desirable or necessary.

In addition to those already mentioned others present at the meeting included: Frank Fairen, Separate Schools attendance officer; Al Sharpe, president Peterborough Kiwanis Club; Dr. C. B. Waite, director of the Provincial Health Laboratories and chairman of the Kiwanis underprivileged child committee; R. J. Bolton, principal of King Edward School; W. R. Morris, representing Rotary Club; H. H. P. Johnston, representing the Kinsmen Club; the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, president and John Edgar, superintendent, both of the Children's Aid Society; Mrs. Charles Ray, Red Cross Society; Mrs. L. L. Maguire, police matron; Miss Elizabeth Walker, deaconess of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church; Miss Muriel Morrison, secretary, Children's Aid Society; Miss Leta Brownscombe, secretary Y.W.C.A.; Miss May V. Jory and Miss Jessie Deyell, public school nurses; Mr. and Mrs. K. J. Hodgert, of Northumberland and Durham Children's Aid Society, Port Hope; Warden James Gifford of Ennismore; Reeve Charles S. Tanner of Lakefield.

Chairman's Remarks

In calling the meeting to order Mayor Macdonald introduced Mr. Ecker and briefly explaining the object for which the meeting had been called, indicated that the speaker intended to outline a program of social service for the city that might be worthy of serious consideration. He thanked all present for their attendance and declared that the city was fortunate in having so many social service workers who were willing to give their time and ability in the service of less fortunate members of the community.

At the outset Mr. Ecker explained that while he is a representative of the Department of Public Welfare he had not received any specific instructions from his Department to come to Peterborough in connection with either the Children's Aid Society or social service organization in general.

"This meeting was brought about largely by representations made by myself as I believe the city might derive some benefit from a discussion of the social service question. But I wish it understood that I am more or less of a free-lance and should I overstep the mark I might very well find myself on the carpet at Queen's Park," he exclaimed.

The speaker briefly reviewed changing conditions from the social and economic standpoints, and declared that industrialization had caused lots of people to desert the rural communities and flock into the cities. He pointed to the distress caused by the dislocation of industry and cited as a classic example the present automobile industry strike in Michigan.

A Surging Tide

"Unless we are prepared to honestly face these changing conditions and deal with them," he warned, "it is conceivable that the tide of social problems may overwhelm us."

He spoke of the enormous expenditure for maintaining custodial and correctional institutions and referred to mounting relief costs. Pointing to the advances made in the field of public health services where today it is considered a disgrace to a community to have any epidemic of disease, he held it up as an example of what might be accomplished in regard to social service, if the problems are approached in the proper manner.

While he did not have any criticism to offer of what he termed "the valuable work being accomplished by Peterborough's social service workers," Mr. Ecker urged that social problems are becoming so acute the time has possibly arrived when co-ordination of the various services to prevent overlapping with its resultant waste of expenditure and effort, should be given serious consideration.

He declared it was quite conceivable that through a lack of co-ordinated effort one family could be under the care and supervision of the school nurses, truant officer, police matron or probation officer, medical officer of health and relief officer. "There are at present as many different plans as there are needs," he stated.

Such a picture was common of the general picture of social service across the Dominion a few years ago, and he urged that where such a condition exists today, is indication that a unified plan of social service is needed.

Need of Sociologist

He did not say it was needed in Peterboorough, because he admitted he did not know in what measure unified effort exists in this city, but he offered the suggestion: "There is need in this community for a trained social worker."

By a trained social worker, the speaker said he meant someone with a two-year university course in sociology. There was a need of that specialized knowledge, just as there was need of a medical officer of health, he urged.

Mr. Ecker declared that every social worker had a different method of approaching a problem. The doctor, nurses, relief officer, police matron, and attendance officer all had their different approaches, he contended. "But will we ever solve these social problems if we stop there?" he asked. "Should it not go farther and deeper?"

The mere fact that a social worker had good intentions did not equip them fully for the work, Mr. Ecker declared. "It needs a person with wide experience and sympathy. Someone who can go into a home and gain the confidence of the family and readjust them into the proper social relationship."

He briefly discussed some of the social causes of discord and trouble within the home and stressed the thought that a social worker requires a deep insight into human nature and abundant spiritual resources within themselves.

Have Lacked Sympathy

The reason there are so many persons in their late 'teens and early twenties in our reformatories and other correctional institutions, he believed, was because they had lacked sympathy and understanding.

Referring to the manner in which the social services of the city might be co-ordinated, Mr. Ecker explained the principle of the social service index — a card filing system containing the best possible information relating to any particular individual or family. He spoke of the system which is used in many cities, including Boston where it originated sixty years ago, and Toronto and described it as having to do with the regulation of the giving of material assistance and a source through which information of value could be obtained by agencies who wished to be of service to those in need of assistance.

Stating that he did not wish in throwing out any suggestions that any additional expense should be incurred by the city, Mr. Ecker nevertheless felt an attempt should be made by the various social service agencies in the community to get together to better acquaint themselves with the particular problems they were called on to face; to frankly criticize co-workers where such criticism could be helpful and constructive; and to formulate some co-ordinated plan that might be advantageously followed.

He further suggested that such a group could bring in from time to time speakers to address them on subjects such as "juvenile delinquency," the "family court" and mental health and mental hygiene problems. "The main thing is to know whether you want it or need it," he said with reference to the plan he had outlined.

Mr. Ecker concluded by stating that if the meeting had accomplished anything worthwhile he would be delighted. "I want to stress that this is not the Department's program that I have outlined. I am just attempting to sow the seed which in the course of a few years may germinate into something vital in your community."

Convicts Riot, Wreck Interior Of Reformatory

Burning and smashing until the interior of the institution was a mass of smouldering debris, 500 inmates of the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph, Ont., staged an eight-hour riot which ended only when guards, reinforced by provincial and city police, tossed tear gas bombs into the corridors and herded the smoke and gas-tortured convicts to the cells with the aid of fire hose and extinguishers. Fires raged at 10 points inside the institution, set by prisoners who burned bedding and destroyed quantities of food and furniture. Two of the prison inmates who took no part in the clashes are shown (TOP) quelling one fire in a corridor with buckets of water. At LOWER RIGHT is pictured the charred wreckage of the prison chapel after fighting rioters had literally smashed it to bits in their fury. At LEFT Constables Bates and Ferguson exhibit a baseball bat freely used by convicts in the fighting.

NOT VERY PLENTIFUL.

Black and white license markers were not very plentiful to-day. During a tour of the business section this morning an Examiner representative only saw six sets and three of them were on machines at the corner of Simcoe and George streets, with the owners evidently waiting in the Chamber of Commerce to secure their 1937 licenses.

700 SEEK EMPLOYMENT.

A few additional registrations by relief recipients have been made at the Employment Services Bureau during the past few days, but a definite improvement over last winter is reflected in the employment registration total. NO FOOLING FOR WARDEN.

Rumors reaching The Examiner assert that the Conservatives are going to crack down on the Liberals in the first division for the election of a Warden of Northumberland and Durham for 1937 at Cobourg to-night. Reeve R. O. A COUNTY EVENT.

If the county ratepayers could be informed of the afternoon this week when the valuators' report will be up for discussion, it is likely that many of them would be present. The councillors have declined to comment for publications since Judge Smoke's report was forwarded to the county clerk. Intimations have been that they are reserving their opinions until this week, and it seems unlikely that the new assessment will be adopted without something like a full dress debate.

LORD TWEEDSMUIR IS NOT INVITED TO OPEN SKI JUMP

Council Feels Now Is Not Opportune Time For Visit To City

EXPECT VISIT IN SUMMER

After consulting with the various members of the city council, Mayor George A. Macdonald today intimated to The Examiner, it had been decided not to extend the proposed invitation to Lord Tweedsmuir Governor General of Canada to come to Peterborough to open the ski jump at the forthcoming Winter Sports Carnival on January 30.

"Notwithstanding that we are all in perfect sympathy with the effort which the Ski Club and the Winter Sports Carnival Committee are endeavouring to promote", His Worship stated, "we do not feel that this is the logical time to invite the Governor-General to the city".

The Mayor stated he believed the Governor-General was proposing to make a tour of several Ontario centres during the coming summer, and he said the city would make efforts at that time to have His Excellency pay an official visit to Peterborough.

It was recently suggested to Mayor Macdonald by officials of the Ski Club, Winter Sports Carnival Committee and Chamber of Commerce that an invitation be extended to the Governor-General on behalf of the city, suggesting that Lord Tweedsmuir open the new ski jump at Nassau during the Winter Sports Carnival planned for the last week of the present month.

DR. J. M. McCULLOCH RE-ELECTED HEAD OF HOSPITAL TRUST

1,497 Patients Admitted To Nicholls Hospital In Past Year

ANNUAL MEETING

Dr. J. Malcolm McCulloch was re-elected as chairman at the annual meeting of Nicholls Hospital Trust on Monday afternoon, and E. F. Mason was chosen as honorary-secretary.

In her annual report Superintendent Mrs. E. M. Leeson expressed appreciation on behalf of herself and the hospital staff for the installation of new equipment at the institution which included bed pan sterilisers, a projection machine for the nurse's training school, new furnishings and an iron fireman and barbro system, among other things.

She expressed the hope that more efficient work would result from the increased facilities provided by the Trust. Her report stressed the overcrowding at the hospital. Practically every available bed is occupied and the hospital has been full to capacity for some weeks.

Mrs. Leeson acknowledged donations that had been received during the past year from: Stocks Bread Limited, Anthony's Fruit Store, Hamilton's grocery, Silverwood's Dairy, Campbell's Dairy, the Kingsway Helpers, and the gift of an oxygen tent from the Peter Robinson Chapter of the I.O.D.E. The report also acknowledged the periodic visits to the hospital made by the Rev. G. K. Tyler, the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe and members of the 57th Regiment Chapter of the I.O.D.E.

In her report of the Nurse's Training School, Mrs. Leeson outlined the comprehensive course of lectures and other training carried out with the help of the medical staff and stated: "We are endeavouring to raise the educational standard of entrants to the nursing school and are making junior matriculation the aim."

She expressed the hope that the Board of Trustees might see fit to establish a loan fund to assist students who wish to take advantage of the opportunities offered by a university course.

Prior to submitting the annual financial statement, Secretary E. B. Fowler gave some statistics bearing on the work done by the hospital during the past year: There were 1497 patients; 303 births; 1876 patients treated; 93 deaths; 25,400 collective days stay; 13.59 days average stay; 2.96 average daily cost per patient.

The average daily cost for the past year showed a slight decrease over the previous two years, the figures for 1935 being 3.10 and for 1934, 3.11.

DORSAL CURTAINS ARE GIVEN CHURCH

Gift Made To St. John's In Loving Memory Of Late George Gladman

The complete sequence of liturgical colors in dorsal curtains, four pairs, has been given to St. John's Church by Miss Florence Gladman of 458 Rubidge street, and other members of the family, in loving memory of their father, the late George Gladman. This beautiful memorial is to be recorded on a small brass plate. Commenting on the gift in the current issue of "The Parish Messenger," the rector, the Rev. W. P. Robertson states: "The purpose of the church colors is to strike for the eye the note of each change of church season, as the music and appointed Scriptures strike it for the ear. Where frontals are not used on the altar, this color change is secured by the use of curtains and superfrontals. Super-frontals will be most acceptable when any feel disposed to give them."

STILL IS SEIZED SMITH TOWNSHIP OWNER IS JAILED

Farmer Pleads Guilty To Operating Still And Keeping For Sale

HARD HIT BY DEPRESSION

After pleading guilty under the Excise Act to a charge of illegally operating a still for the manufacture of illicit spirits, Elmer C. Worr, 29-year-old farmer of Smith Township was this (Tuesday) morning fined $100 and costs with the option of 3-months imprisonment.

On a further charge under the Liquor Control Act of unlawfully keeping liquor for sale, Worr was sentenced to 2-months imprisonment. Both sentences are to run consecutively.

Asked if he had anything to say before sentence was passed, the accused pleaded that owing to the depression he had been unable to get employment. "I have a farm," he explained, "but I have not enough equipment to run the place efficiently. The whiskey was the only way out."

Worr was arrested by Corporal T. J. Woods of the R.C.M.P. Lindsay detachment and Provincial Constable David Silvester, when the two officers visited his farm Monday afternoon and found a still in operation. Fashioned out of a milk can and having a capacity of 40-50 gallons, the still was seized by police together with 50-gallons of mash and about 5-quarts of manufactured spirits, it was learned.

Location of the farm is described as being about four miles north of the County House of Refuge.

CITY POLICE START CHECKING UP ON TARDY MOTORISTS

New Plates Must Be Obtained Or Car Have To Be Left At Home

3,500 LICENSES ISSUED

The last-minute rush for auto license markers and driving permits kept License Issuer James J. Dorris and his staff working at top speed at the Chamber of Commerce offices today. Meanwhile city police, together with provincial motorcycle patrol officers and constables are checking-up on all car owners still operating with last year's markers, in accordance with specific instructions from the Ontario Department of Highways (Motor Vehicles Branch).

In their drive against tardy motorists who are still operating cars with 1936 markers, members of the city police force met with the repeated excuse today: "I have just come in to get my new plates but the line-up at the license issuer's office is so big that I can't get near it."

The excuse has been working today but police warn motorists new license plates must be obtained or cars with old markers must be left at home in the garage. Prosecutions will be launched against motorists who choose to ignore the warnings.

Mr. Dorris, pausing to make a rapid calculation as he dealt with the heavy line-up of applicants, declared around 3,500 passenger and commercial plates had been issued up to noon today. The number, he said, was not quite fifty per cent of the usual quantity of plates issued in a twelve-months periods.

PLAN CONFERENCE WITH J. J. DUFFUS

Council To Meet Federal Member And Discuss New Building

A conference with J. J. Duffus, M.P., next Saturday night regarding the long proposed new Federal building for Peterborough, and a meeting of the Board of Works on Thursday night for a preliminary drafting of the year's work are on the Council schedule for this week, Mayor Macdonald reported to-day.

Alderman Sloan as chairman of the Board of Works intends to get started on his budget earlier than usual in order that provision may be made in the estimates for all the projects and other expenditure that may be approved.

"It has usually happened that after we agree on the budget other proposals are brought forward from time to time involving an expenditure for which no appropriation has been made," Ald. Sloan said. "That is how we run into deficits at the end of the year, and the way to avoid them is map out the work and stick to that program."

The meeting with Mr. Duffus follows his proposal in a recent letter to the Council. The plan of combining the postal and customs services locally in one building has been considered on various occasions since the property at the north-east corner of George and Sherbrooke Streets was bought for that purpose when J. H. Burnham represented Peterborough West at Ottawa.

BARRY AND AURIE SHARE TOP SPOT IN N.H.L. SCORING

Jonny Gagnon Of Canadiens Is Only One Point Behind Leaders

ANOTHER DETROIT WEEK

MONTREAL, Jan. 19 (C.P.) — It was another Detroit week in the National Hockey League. Official scoring statistics issued last night showed the Red Wings hanging on to most of the League's individual honors, while the team stayed out in front of the United States section.

Up on top of the point-getters were Larry Aurie and Marty Barry, front-line mates of the Wings, with twenty-five points apiece. Barry, picking up a goal and a brace of assists, drew even with Aurie during the week.

Aurie's fifteen goals also give him the League leadership in marksmanship, while Marty's eighteen assists place him at the top in this division.

Birthday Greetings

To Frankie Parker, 17-year-old Port Arthur hockey star who gained national fame three years ago when he scored more than 100 goals in scheduled midget league games in the Lakehead town. Born in Port Arthur Jan. 20, 1920, Frankie, Canada's No. 1 prospect, now is playing in junior company.

Gets Title Chance

In a boxing morsel that Britain is looking forward to with relish, Benny Lynch, flyweight champion of England will toss gloves against Small Montana, the Filipino boy who has been cleaning up American rings, with the world title the probable prize. Experts—on this side of the Atlantic at least—give the dusky Montana an edge. Lynch is shown here.

Spectacular Team Work Staves Off American Drives On Maroon Nets

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(C.J.P.)

KNOTTY LEE dropped in to see us yesterday. Expected to leave today after visiting a number of his Peterborough friends. The Petes' former ball coach is looking fine and all set for a big season in pro baseball. Is heading down through the east to see about lining up a few more teams for the Can.-Am. league. He will coach Ogdensburg again and take Eddie Murphy (former local shortstop) along. U.S. teams expected in the loop this year are Ogdensburg, Oswego, Gloversville (replacing Watertown) and maybe Rome, N.Y.awk. Canuck squads will be Ottawa, Perth, Smith's Falls, Brockville and, possibly, Cornwall. Perth has connections with Buffalo, and Brockville has a tie-up with Boston; but Knotty insists on keeping his own team independent. Says he makes good dough developing and trading players, and has a lanky smokeball hurler now who has been dickered for by the Yanks, Athletics and Tigers.

* * * * * *

THE VETERAN skipper said: "I've got a great town and a good team. We draw fine crowds, especially on Sundays, and I've had as many as 200 fans go all the way from Ogdensburg to Perth to see our team play." He admits he picks up quite a few shillings one way and another. Selling players, handling score-cards, selling the Worth baseball, equipment, and coaching. He arranged a daily five-minute broadcast at noon on his league's doings on a Prescott station. Teams play two or three home games a week, travel cheaply by bus and require not more than $350 a week for the club's salaries. There are all kinds of young players breaking in and hoping to work up to faster company. Even Perth, which averages only about 300 fans a game, does not lose money, according to Knotty. They get a good cut of Sunday games across the line.

* * * * * *

THOUGH PETERBOROUGH is "out on the limb somewhat" as far as a good group layout goes, Knotty thought this should be a good town for that class of pro ball. "If half a dozen smaller cities can enjoy professional baseball without going in the red, Peterborough —always a good ball town— should do okay," he said. He doesn't expect Kingston to try it yet. The ex-coach of the Petes asked a lot of questions about the locals of last year. He said a N'Yawk scout — and they frequently attend his games—asked last summer what Foley was doing Knotty thinks he might yet develop Tommy into a real prospect, though he adds the older a player grows the less chance he has of advancing in the moneyed ranks.

* * * * * *

BILL ENGEL, local track star—who has been a noted Canadian and international sprinter in recent years—is pulling up stakes here. Told us yesterday he had severed business connections in Peterborough, though he may return in the Spring. Wasn't sure yet on that point. Meantime, he is going to Florida for a month or more and hopes to get into running condition again, and possibly enter some of the big races this coming year. Good luck to him.

* * * * * *

WE CAN dimly recall moonlight excursions down the river when a gang would adjourn to the upper deck and bellow lustily: "Abdul the Bulbul Ameer." And one verse ran: "They fought all that night 'neath the pale mellow moon, the din it was heard from afar; and multitudes came so great was the fame of Abdul and Ivan Skavar." That verse kept running through our mind last night as we saw the Belleville and Colts battling it out 'neath the yellow gas jets with the din being heard from afar. Well, our Colts took a 3-2 win to cop first place and give the Quinte crew their first reverse of the season. But that's about all you can say for the fray.

* * * * * *

IT WAS not hockey and both teams appeared at their worst. On account of sticky ice. Trying to stickhandle on it was like a guy eating shredded wheat and cream in a hurry—just slopping through. So it turned out to be a swell shinny game. With a lot of golf-on-ice thrown in. Webb made par with three on the last hole to give our side the win. Some of the boys went around in 120 strokes, getting into the rough too often. About all they could do, on either side, was slap the disc down the ice and gallop after it. Our team should have had several more goals in the second and third heats but had no luck around the rival net. It was a fairly even, hard-checking tilt with little good hockey seen. Quite a bit of underhand hooking and butt-ending by the Bellevilles, too. Ask any of the locals.

* * * * * *

BELLEVILLE PRESENTED a husky squad and the group race is not settled yet by any means. The young Petes had a little edge in the hard going last night, with our starting lineup looking better than the alternates both up front and on defence. Don Crowe's rugged playing was missed in this sort of tussle. Gee Clark is improving every time out. Both goalies went fair but had trouble with long bouncing shots. The two Quinte centres and their first-string defence looked good. On fast ice, we think the Colts would have won by a bigger count and would have shown the fans some real hockey. This team plays in Tweed tomorrow night.

JUNIOR CITY League games tomorrow at the Brock: St. Peter's vs. All Saints at eight, and Canucks vs. Monarchs at nine. Rest of schedule is in tonight and will be followed as far as possible. Two points for a win and one for a tie. First and second teams playoff in two out of three games. No player may play whose name has not been first given to Secretary Mike O'Brien, and no one may be signed after January 28th of this year. Each team is allowed to use one Senior City League player but no signed O.H.A. players. Two games have been completed already and a double-header will be run off each week in this circuit. Loop officials thank Pete King for contributing puck equipment.

* * * * * *

HITHER AND yawn: The Petes play Trenton Fliers in Belleville tonight . . . . All is very quiet on senior ball in Belleville this week but officials down that way are somewhat worried about '37 prospects . . . . Knotty Lee said yesterday: "We have a big Irish following in Ogdensburg, so I sometimes change a new Polack player's name to an Irish one, like Josef Mallinski to Joe Mailin" . . . . Frank Buckland gets a lot of assistance in handling the Petes and Colts from Jim Gillespie, Shorty Burgess and Bill Calladine—the latter two with the juniors . . . . Intermediate House Cage Loop starts at the "Y" next week; those interested should hand in their names to Jim McClenaghan . . . . "Where's St. Denis?" fans kept yelling last night at the Belleville softball coach, who was here with the puck team.

VARSITY JUNIORS BEAT OSHAWA 10-4

Bailey's Young Squad Pulled Big O.H.A. Upset By Downing Strong Motor Boys

TORONTO, Jan. 19.—"Ace" Bailey's University of Toronto Juniors pulled the prize upset of the Big Seven group season at Varsity Arena last night, when they handed Oshawa's strong Generals a 10 to 4 lacing.

Bill Hancock's Oshawans turned in a lamentable performance, but, at the same time, the Blues gave their best performance of the season. To prove their victory was no fluke, the students outscored the visitors 3 to 1 in the first period, 3 to 1 in the second session, and 5 to 2 in the last frame.

Patton, Oshawa defenceman, was injured in the first period when bodychecked by Simpson. On returning to the ice in the middle period, his nose started to bleed, and he left the ice for the remainder of the game. An attending doctor said the injury was fracture or concussion of the skull or cheek bone, and advised the injured player to have an X-ray taken to-day.

Simpson, incidentally, played a magnificent game for the local team, and was easily the outstanding performer on the ice. The lanky defence star scored a couple of goals, and scintillated defensively. McLachlan, his defence mate, was also effective, while Boddington, Maynard and Cassels were also to the fore.

McCullough was outstanding for Oshawa, scoring their first three goals. His inital scoring play was about the best of the night.

Oshawa Juniors.—Goal, Forster; defence, McCullough and Patton; centre, Krantz; wings, Hastie and Sanders. Subs—Calhoun, Shortt, Brunell, Yourth and Daniels.

U. of Toronto—Goal, Blackhall; defense, Simpson and McLachlan; centre, Maynard; wings, Boddington and Cassels. Subs—Craig, Ross, Callon, Sedgewick and Stevens.

Referee—Tracy Shaw.

One Senior City League player, but no O.H.A. pucksters, are allowed on each team. Names must be in to the secretary before playing and none may be signed after January 28. WORLD CHAMPIONS AMATEUR HOCKEY

Big International Series Planned After Season Closes

OTTAWA, Jan. 19 — (CP) — Ground work for the proposed North American and International Amateur Hockey series this Spring is practically completed and further details in connection with the scheme will be gradually worked out, Cecil Duncan, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association announced last night.

According to present plans, the Canadian championship playdowns will be followed by a North American playoff and later by an international title series. Canada's Allan Cup winners will meet the United States amateur champions for the North American crown, and the winners will face the champions of the British National League in an international title series.

A Canadian consolation series with defeated provincial Allan Cup finalists playing, will see the ultimate winners going to England for the Coronation series, scheduled for late April or early May this year.

Curling Association Gets 3 New Bodies

TORONTO, Jan. 19—Applications for affiliation of the British Columbia Association ,the Prince Edward Island Association and the Vancouver Branch were approved at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Dominion Curling Association which was held at the Granite Club on Saturday afternoon, at which Hon. J. T. Haig, president, presided.

Twelve different associations, which constitute four-fifths of the registered curlers in Canada, are now enrolled with the Dominion Curling Association. The latter body and the curlers throughout Canada are looking forward with great anticipation to the visit of the Scottish curlers, who have accepted the invitation of the Dominion Curling Association to send a team to Canada for the season of 1937-1938.

E. P. Atkinson, honorary secretary of the association, has already been besieged with inquiries pertaining to the visit of the Scottish curlers, and there is no doubt that the members of the mother club will be given a rousing welcome from coast to coast.

It was announced on Saturday that the annual meeting of the Dominion Curling Association would be held in Toronto early in March.

HIKE 2,000 MILES ON SKIIS FOR FUN

Edmonton To Toronto on Novel Jaunt Is Ambitious Program Of Youths

EDMONTON, Jan. 19 (C.P.). — Modern adventurers, Toronto-bound on a 2,000-mile ski jaunt, two eager Edmonton youths to-day were launched on a hike they planned "just for fun."

Peter Kapfer, 28, and John Schroeter, 31, left Edmonton on January 5. By travelling an average of 40 miles a day they hope to reach their destination some time in March.

"We want to have some fun before we are married," Kapfer explained. "We won't have another opportunity such as this. We want to go to Toronto and, as both of us like skiing, we decided to go that way as far as possible. We'll have lots of fun."

They carried clothes and first-aid equipment in small knapsacks. Of their plans, however, nothing was definite. Circumstances and conditions will govern how they travel and what route they will take.

Railway lines will guide them on the first lap of their journey through Saskatoon to Winnipeg. They do not propose to stick to the railway right-of-ways, however. Wherever possible they will ski across country and use the highways.

No provisions were carried. The young adventurers planned to eat and sleep at farms and in towns along their route.

They looked for favorable winds to speed them on their journey. Through rings fastened on the backs of their knapsacks they will hoist ski poles and attach blankets to be used as sails.

"With a good wind at our backs and a fast snow we should be able to make 10 miles an hour without much effort," Kapfer predicted.

From Winnipeg the pair plan to take the more settled route through the United States. In the event permission to cross the border is denied they will travel by train through Northern Ontario until they are able to use the highways again.

SKATES OF BONE RECALL OLD DAYS OF "REAL SPORT"

"He That Falls Breaks Shin Or Arm" Was Comment In England

USED IN MIDDLE AGES

SAINT JOHN, N. B., Jan. 19—(CP)—Comparison of keen, steel skates used today and old ones on display in the New Brunswick Museum emphasizes the extent of modern improvements in the sport.

Only a generation or so ago the awkward iron skate with wooden sides, known as "the long reacher," made New Brunswick skaters famous for speed. Much more awkward skates in the museum include two made of bone. With them is a bone point once fixed to the end of a pole and used to propel persons across ice.

These bone "sport accessories" were used in the middle-ages. Skating in England at that time is described as follows in an old article:

"When the great marsh that washes the northern walls of the city is frozen, dense throngs of youths go forth to disport themselves on the ice. Some gathering speed as they run, glide sidelong, with feet set well apart, over a vast space of ice. Others make themselves seats of ice like millstones and are dragged along by a number who run before them holding hands. Sometimes they slip, owing to the greatness of their speed, and fall, every one of them upon their faces.

"Others are more skilled to sport upon the ice who fit to their feet the shin-bones of beasts, lashing them beneath their ankles and with iron-shod poles in their hands they strike ere and anon against the ice and are borne along swift as a bird in flight or a bolt shot from a mangonel.

"But sometimes two by agreement run against another from a great distance and, raising their poles, strike one another. One or both fall, not without bodily hurt, since on falling they are borne a long way in opposite directions by the force of their own motion; and wherever the ice touches the head it scrapes and skins it entirely. Often he that falls breaks shin or arm, if he fall upon it. But youth is an age greedy of renown, yearning for victory, and exercises itself in mimic battles that it may bear itself more boldly in true combat."

KING OF WINTER SPORTS

Ski-ing

By Charles Schaer

Sponsored By Peterborough Ski Club

How your knees should look in running position.

20. Watch Your Knees

To sum up all I have said in my recent articles anent position of the body in skiing, ot will be seen that correct position of the body depends first ond foremost upon the position of the knees, which must form a hinge reacting automatically and elastically to give and take under the shock of sudden unbalancing strains.

Soles and heels should be flat upon the skis, except in the telemark position, when the heel of the rear foot is lifted. The trunk must be held as upright as possible, the arms slightly forward and hanging loosely in the shoulder joints to provide in effect a counter weight.

Knees and ankles are bent as best suits the peculiar circumstances under which you are skiing, to provide the maximum comfort and elasticity, the knees thrust well forward with the whole body relaxed and not a muscle unduly strained.

This is the position that gives the greatest scope for reaction, combined with adequate flexibility. This is therefore the position that makes for best skiing.

Australian Netters To Challenge U.S.

MELBOURNE, Jan. 19—(A.P.)—The Australian Lawn Tennis Association announced to-day it would make its first challenge in pursuit of the Davis Cup this year in the North American zone.

The Aussies, Jack Crawford and Adrian Quist, met and defeated the United States at Germantown, Pa., last June, three matches to two. They finally were beaten in the challenge round by the cup-defending English team.

This year the association had given serious thought to challenging in the European zone, as had been the case prior to last year.

Colts in First Place In O.H.A. Junior Race By Beating Belleville

Local "B" Squad Yanks Out 3 -2 Victory on Webb's Late Goal To Cop Lead In Glorified Game Of Shinny Before Fair Crowd

FIRST LOSS FO R BELLEVILLE

In a glorified shinny game at the Brock St. rink last night, the local Colts defeated Belleville, 3 to 2, to take the lead in their O.H.A. junior "B" group race. A good-sized crowd saw a close but ragged game on heavy ice, with Webb scoring the winning goal four minutes before it went into overtime. It was Belleville's first loss this season.

With a rolling, bouncing puck, good hockey was out of the question from start to finish. The players found puck-carrying and passing almost impossible and finally let the game develop into straight shinny. They would bang the puck into enemy territory, then tear in and try to knock it into the net with golf strokes. The checking was heavy all through but only one penalty was drawn, Connelly getting that for tripping.

Belleville started strong to notch two in the first frame before the young Petes got going. Before the period ended it was 2-1 for the visitors. The Colts dominated play in the middle chapter but could only score one to tie up the count. Webb's late tally in the third settled the issue, though Belleville battled hard in an attempt to sew it up.

ALL WORKED HARD.

There were no outstanding stars for either team in the heavy going. They all worked hard. The Colts' starting lineup proved most effective, the Starr-Wright-Heal line bothering Belleville more than the alternates, and the A. Clark - Webb defence stopping them oftener. Harding went good in goal. The hard-hitting Quinte defence stopped a bunch of local rushes, Crary and Derry going good at checking. Of the others, Cain, Tompkins and Robinson were most dangerous on the attack. The goalie went good for his first O.H.A. game.

They started off at a fairly fast clip but soon slowed up as the ice became sticky. Passes were going short and shots awry before long for both teams. Both goalies had a few hard ones to stop but most of the checking was being done in the middle zone. The locals' first line pressed for a time, but Belleville scored twice late in the inning. Storms' shot from outside defence beat Harding and, a minute later, Cain tallied on Tompkins' assist in a close-in scramble before the home cage. Wright was butt-ended in the stomach and had to leave for a time. Seconds before the frame finished, Kingdon scored at close range on Brady's rebound.

Just Plain Shinny.

Both teams began batting the puck up and down the rink in the second period and shinny reigned supreme. The goalies had few close-in thrusts but a bunch of long, bouncing shots that worried them. Crary went off hurt for Belleville as the hard checking continued and the fans roared at some fast excitement as the boys began bumping each other to the ice. The Colts carried the play in this frame and deserved several counters on their work but they had no luck around the rival net. Connelly went off for tripping but Belleville failed to gang up. Al Clark burned a hot one from outside defence that went by Sharpe to tie up the score near the end of the chukker, and play was slow the rest of the way.

The Colts again pressed in the third and got in close half a dozen times but were outlucked repeatedly. The Belleville goalie was hit in the face and stopped play for a few minutes, a local score after the bell not being counted. They battled doggedly in the heavy slush but the only score came late in the period, Webb dashing down the right side, playing the boards, and rifling in a hot angle shot to break the deadlock. Belleville tried hard to get it back but play was on even terms till the final gong.

Sport Spice

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The all-American inefficiency of Brooklyn Dodgers, threatened by Cleveland's famous blunder in the Feller case, has made a noble comeback in the case of one John Vander Meer.

He is the young man who was voted "the outstanding minor league player of 1936," and while this means little or nothing, men who know something about baseball think he's a great prospect. . . . Last year he struck out 295 as a member of the Durham Club of the Piedmont League . . . This year he will play for the Reds.

Vander Meer was in the Dodgers' training camp three years ago under strange circumstances . . . John Heydler, then president of the National League, wanted to make an educational baseball film . . . He need what he vaguely described as "the typical American boy" to play the leading role and asked Dave Driscoll, then Brooklyn manager, to find one.

Driscoll found Vander Meer pitching in a Sunday School league in Midland Park, N.J. . . . Johnny was a nice upstanding kid; he looked good to Driscoll so Dave took him to the Dodgers' training camp where the picture was made . . . In the film, the youngster was getting his chance in the big leagues . . . It was a typical All-American story, but the Dodgers did believe in stories and failed to keep tab on the kid through the minors, so he got away from them.

Transition: It is the dinner in memory of the late Joe Humphreys and in the crowd are these strange scenes: Jim Farley, just a boxing commissioner a few years ago, being hailed as the political genius of his generation . . . Jimmy Walker, the gay promising mayor of New York when Farley was boxing boss, now neither very gay nor very promising . . . A Negro named Joe Louis, hailed as the best heavyweight of the day, standing near another great heavyweight, Jack Dempsey, with the inevitable comparison favoring Dempsey.

JOE HUMPHREYS TOPIC OF TOASTS MEMORY BANQUET

Over 2,000 Friends Attend Including James Farley, Jimmy Walker

$10,000 FOR SHAFT

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—(A.P.). — Somewhere along the Broadway of the Great Beyond, Joe Humphreys must be unwilling with condescending pride to-day.

The friends he left behind him, great and insignificant as human values go, have paid the late fight announcer with the silvery voice a tribute seldom equalled for sincerity and unqualified, deep admiration.

At Madison Square Garden, scene of Joe's greatest personal triumphs as he announced the shuffling parade of fight champions, 2,000 people assembled last night as their spokesman, led by Postmaster General James A. Farley and former Mayor Jimmy Walker, paid simple but impressive tribute to his memory.

Former Mayor Walker, making his second public address since his retirement from politics, served as toastmaster.

"I'm one of those, perhaps, who has a great future behind him," said Walker, "but one human unit in that future I never shall forget —Joe Humphreys. I never heard him become the detractor of any man. Joe Humphreys left knocking to others and insisted on boosting, even if he had to boost to empty seats. . . .

"I propose a toast: 'To the winner —and still champion, Joe Humphreys'."

Postmaster Farley, long a close friend of the late Humphreys, also paid glowing tribute to his memory as a friend.

Receipts of the dinner, estimated at close to $10,000, will be used to erect a bonze plaque in Humphrey's memory at Madison Square Garden and a shaft over his grave.

St. Louis Browns Sign Pitcher Jack Knott

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 19 (A.P.).—Manager Rogers Hornsby of St. Louis Browns last night announced Pitcher Jack Knott has been signed for 1937 and simultaneously the Cardinals revealed the receipt of the signed contract from Pitcher Silas Johnson.

Johnson is the 28-year-old right-hander the Cards imported from Toronto last year. A veteran with Cincinnati for six full seasons and parts of two others before being shipped to Toronto, Johnson's big league record is 51 victories and 69 defeats.

VINES SQUARES TOUR WITH PERRY WITH THIRD WIN

Terrific Delivery Under Perfect Control Provides Californian With 13 Aces

IN BOSTON GARDEN

BOSTON, Jan. 19.—(CP).—Ellsworth Vines squared his professional exhibition tennis accounts with Fred Perry last night by defeating the British star, 6-4, 2-6, 6-3, 5-7, 7-5, before 9,753 persons at the Boston Garden. It was the American's third straight victory in his six pro starts against the Briton.

Perry was much the steadier throughout the five sets, making 97 errors against Vines' total of 110, but the lanky Californian, who appeared in perfect health, piled up the impressive total of 59 earned points, against 39, most of them with booming backhanders that went for placements.

His terrific delivery, which he had under control in all but four of his service games, provided him with 13 aces during the five-set match, which he gained by the scant margin of 153 points to 149.

Perry, who had match point against him in the tenth game of the fourth set, put on a brilliant rally to break through Vines for five-all. He then won the next two to square the match and was able to hold his own until the eleventh game of the final set, when a sporting gesture snapped his concentration and forced his downfall for the third time in a row.

The Britisher had a 30-0 lead on his own service in that game before he blasted over a hairline shot that was ruled an ace. Perry, however, thought it landed outside and deliberately double-faulted to go 15-40. The incident so upset Perry that Vines was able to put together five consecutive points to gain the service break, which put him into a 6-5 lead, and then he ran out the match on his own service in the twelfth game.

As he changed courts after the fatal eleventh game, Perry whispered as he passed the press row, "That's what happens when you throw a point. It breaks your concentration."

Vines and Bruce Barnes captured the doubles match, which ended after the eleventh game, when one of the posts snapped and collapsed the net. Vines and Barnes won the first set, 6-4, but were trailing Perry and George ... love to one game, when the mishap ended the match.

MADOC

MARMORA TAKES MADOC DOWN 2 TO 1

First Game Of Interscholastic Series Opens On Mushy Ice

MADOC, Jan. 19.—The first home game of the local interscholastic schedule was played in Madoc January 18, Marmora defeating the homesters 2-1.

Owing to the warm weather the ice was in poor condition, making combination plays virtually impossible, and as a consequence play was slow and ragged, settling down into an individual contest.

Madoc scored the first counter on a solo effort by Hawthorne, who golfed a shot past Hart in the Marmora net.

Play opened up considerably with Marmora pressing for the tying tally.

Near the close of the period, Kouri for Marmora stole the rubber from a Madoc player in front of the Madoc net and drove it behind Martin for the tying count. Score at the end of period, Madoc 1, Marmora 1.

Second period opened with both teams striving for a count before the ice became cut up. Play see-sawed back and forth, both goalies making miraculous saves. Nayler and O'Neal tangled in what promised to be a nice free-for-all, but before any damage was done both players were chased to the penalty box. The period ended with no further score.

The third period promised to be a repetition of the second, but just before the final bell, N. O'Neil scored the counter that put Marmora on top. Final score, Marmora 2, Madoc 1.

For Madoc the outstanding players were K. Martin, who turned in a stellar performance in goal, and Pete Parks, the alternate right wing.

For Marmora N. O'Neil and Kouri went best.

T. Cousins of Deloro and E. Alexander of Madoc handled the game.

Marmora—Goal, Hart; defence, N. O'Neill, C. O'Neill; centre, Leonard; wings, Kouri, McKeown; alternates, F. Loveless, Reynolds, J. Loveless, Grey.

PRO BALL POSSIBLE HERE SAYS KNOTTY

Former Local Coach, Now With Ogdensburg, Talks Baseball On Visit

Peterborough would do all right in professional baseball, according to Knotty Lee, who visited The Examiner yesterday. The Petes' former coach, who now manages the Ogdensburg team in the Can.-Am. Class "D" pro ball league, stopped here for a two-day visit en route to Eastern Ontario, where he plans to line up a number of teams within the next few weeks. He will attend a league meeting in Ogdensburg next Sunday.

"Several towns smaller than Peterborough," he stated, "belong in our league, and none of them are losing money. The way amateur ball is run now, it is just as cheap to run a Class 'D' pro league—especially with the pro tie-ups you have." He went on to point out that the highest club salary in the circuit was around $1,300, whereas two or three good prospects sold to one of the bigger leagues would pay all the players' salaries for the summer. Besides, he showed, there is money in scorecards, concessions and through the merchants who benefit by added crowds.

Making Money.

Coach Lee has several good prospects now on his Ogdensburg team. He says he can obtain $3,000 right away from the Yanks, Athletics or Tigers, for a fast-ball pitcher he has who is six feet five inches tall. But he is keeping him at present and expects the price to go up this year. A third-sacker is also being watched by big league scouts.

Besides coaching Ogdensburg, Knotty Lee is paid for lining up clubs in the spring, the National Association of Professional Leagues employing him in this capacity. He also handles the Worth ball, his own Lee equipment, and score-card programs. He claims to have the best town in the league and expects a much stronger team. He will take Eddie Murphy, former shortstop here, with him again for a spring trial, and mentioned Tommy Foley of Peterborough as another promising prospect.

Game With 9-Man Teams, Peach Baskets For Goals Set For Madison Square

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—(A.P.). — The first basketball game, played in rough-and-tumble style with nine men on a team, peach baskets for goals and a soccer ball, will be reproduced at Madison Square Garden January 27.

A committee headed by George Bernert, graduate of Springfield College where Dr. James Naismith, now of Kansas, invented the game 45 years ago, has contacted more than 700 men, including the six living members of the first team, in an effort to gain first-hand information of the sport's start.

"The game will be played under the 13 rules originally drawn by Naismith. They never were officially printed, but were published in the school paper dated January 15, 1892.

From the early records the committee learned that Dr. Naismith, who originated the game in an effort to help the athletes occupy their time between football and baseball seasons, intended it to be played with three to 40 men on each team. Nine was considered the best number, however, with a goal tender, two guards, three centres, two wings and a "home" man. The latter was the best shot and was stationed nearest the opponents' goal.

The first tournament was held in the winter of 1892 at Springfield College, then a Y.M.C.A. training school, among three teams from the institution. The Secretarial boys defeated the Faculty and Physical Education teams.

Of the nine players on the winning team, the six still living are: Eugene Libby, Redlands, Calif.; Dr. Edwin P. Ruggles, Dorchester, Mass.; William R. Chase, New Bedford, Mass.; T. Duncan Patton, Toronto; Finlay MacDonald, Merigomish, N.S., and Lyman W. Archibald, Warren, Pa. Dr. Naismith coached the team.

SPLIT GATE IDEA OF TOMMY GORMAN LITTLE SUPPORTED

Maroon Chief Warns League May Collapse Because Some Teams Get It All

OUT FOR SMYTHE

TORONTO, an. 19 (C.P.). — At least two managers of National Hockey League teams don't see eye to eye with Tommy Gorman on his suggestion home teams around the circuit cut visiting teams in on gate receipts. The veteran pilot of Montreal Maroons warned the league might collapse in time because some cities got all the big "gates" while others had a struggle to survive.

"Does Gorman think it's still Christmas?" snapped Clem Loughlin of Chicago Black Hawks.

"What we have we'll hold," said Conny Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Lester Patrick of New York Rangers and Red Dutton of New York Americans refused to be quoted, but left little doubt they disapproved of the idea. Bill Tobin, business manager of Hawks, and Lou Giffels, an official of Detroit Red Wings, suggested Gorman bring it up at a league meeting.

Sole support came from Cecil Hart of Canadiens, Montreal's other National Hockey League club. Cecil declared the "split gate" would come sooner or later.

"Of course, other clubs are not responsible for what we get at home, but there's no doubt Canadiens and Maroons are pulling them in on the road. All round it's a very good idea," Hart said.

Few Worries for Canadiens.

Bowling along with the fair wind of success, Canadiens have few worries about gate receipts right now. Their 5-0 victory over Maroons on Saturday night attracted more than 12,000, largest professional hockey crowd Montreal has seen in five years.

Canadiens, six points ahead of Maroons and on top of the Canadian division, play Rangers in New York to-night. Patrick's club trails Detroit Red Wings by six points in the United States section after keeping pace with the Stanley Cup champions up to the turn of the year.

Rangers will hustle to-night to cut down that widening margin, but the high-flying Wings have a softer assignment, meeting Hawks at Detroit. Chicago is still in the United States division cellar after a two-game spurt of winning hockey last week.

The third game scheduled to-night brings Toronto Maple Leafs against the sturdy Bruins at Boston, both holding third place in their respective sections.

'PARENTS' NIGHT' IS GRAND SUCCESS MARMORA SCHOOL

Various Officials And Village Citizens Spend Instructive Evening

DIPLOMAS PRESENTED

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Jan. 19.—The second annual "Parents' Night" in which the Marmora High School staff and pupils entertained not only the parents of the pupils but also the Public and Separate school staffs, the Village Council, the Public Library and Public School Boards as well as the local clergy in Marmora Public School on Saturday evening, again fully justified its inauguration a year ago.

At the same time the High School was opened with caretaker, Frank Gray in charge, for ratepayers desired to inspect the new water and sanitary system recently installed.

The program at the public school was under the supervision of principle E. I. Gale. Three rooms were utilized for the various demonstrations, repeat performances being given to permit all to witness the full program.

In the mathematical room three boy pupils, Robert Elliott, Arnold Caldwell and William Hart, with the aid of a mechanical fish engaged in a discussion on perpetual motion.

Also in this room throughout the program and in charge of various boy pupils under A. G. Gordier, B.A. were other exhibits of a scientific nature. Mr. Gordier also showed some biological slides. Upon the walls were seen some excellent art exhibits, the work of the pupils. In the English room, Miss P. Wilson, B.A., directed "Mrs. Jarley's Waxworks," Grace Prentice as "Mrs. Jarley" described the models which represented Grecian gods and goddesses. Donald Prentice as "John" wound them up.

Playette Presented

Later in this room, under the same direction, a group of senior boys and girls acted a playette, "Maria Chapdelaine" as taken from the book of that title now being read in course of study at the school.

In the French room Miss J. Farley, B.A., demonstrated the teaching of a French lesson. Throughout the program and during the intermissions, over a hundred of the guests sat for their silhouettes for which the nominal fee of a nickel was asked in support of the school's hockey fund. Miss Mary Paquet was in charge of this venture. On receiving their silhouette and showing it to their spouse for approbation, different men and women poses were either advised of the splendid resemblance it bore to their profile or its resemblance to some distinguished political or military character. In spite of the brisk business done and the confinement of a large staff to small quarters, there was only one case which came to light of a person receiving the wrong print. As it was the case of an elderly man being wrongly handed the sketch of a little girl, detection of the error was speedy.

Diplomas Presented

Delicious refreshments were served by the pupils and last on the program was the presentation of graduation diplomas which bore the following names: Arnold Caldwell, Keith Cronkright, Robert Elliott, Madeline Neal, William Hart, Kathleen Neal, Simeon Smith, Grace Warren, William Bonter, Tom Shannon, Charles Shannon, Mary Paquet, Edward Kettleborough, Beatrice Caldwell, James Burridge, and Josephine Shannon.

Mr. Gale, having thanked the Public School Board for the use of the rooms, called upon R. A. Elliott, chairman of the High School Board to make the presentations. Mr. Elliott touched upon the value of the diplomas to the recipients and testified to the splendid co-operation given by the members of the Board. T. E. Laycock, vice.-chairman, spoke briefly remarking that if the students applied themselves to the instruction given, it would count for their success. The National Anthem was sung before the gathering dispersed.

Mr. Gale and his staff are to be highly commended upon the success of what seems destined to be a lasting annual event in the history of the school. The final school function of the year will be the annual dance to be held on February 5th.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND JACK RABBIT.

Bang! Bang! Bang!"

Some one was knocking on the door of Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow one morning.

"I wonder who that is?" said Mrs. Longears.

"One of the Bad Chaps, I'm sure," said Nurse Jane.

"Nonsense,' laughed Uncle Wiggily, knowing he must be brave in front of his wife and the muskrat lady housekeeper. "The Bad Chaps aren't yet bold enough to come to my bungalow in daylight and knock. They like to sneak around in the dark woods to try to get me."

"Then you think it isn't a Bad Chap?" asked Mrs. Longears.

"No, my dear," said Uncle Wiggily to his wife. "And to show you I am not afraid I'll open the door myself. It is only my friend Jack Rabbit who knocked."

How Clever of Him.

"Oh, isn't Uncle Wiggily wonderful" exclaimed Nurse Jane to Mrs. Longears. "He can tell who's at the door before he opens it. How clever of him!"

"Nonsense!" laughed Mrs. Longears. "Wiggily looked out of the side window and saw Jack Rabbit coming up the steps. That's how he knew. But I wonder what Jack Rabbit wants?"

Uncle Wiggily was wondering the same thing, but he soon found out. For when he opened the door Jack

He kicked the Bad Chap.

Rabbit hopped in, almost filling the bungalow, he was so big. The visitor in a loud, jolly voice asked:

"How about your good deed, Uncle Wiggily."

"Oh, I did it yesterday," said Mr. Longears. "I can still be a Rabbit Scout."

"What good deed did you do?" asked Jack Rabbit, taking out a book in which he kept a record of such things done by members of his Rabbit Scout Troop. "Tell me the good deed."

Uncle Wiggily told Jack Rabbit, as you were told, last night, about meeting the ant lady who, forgetting her glasses, thought an old horse chestnut was a meat ball.

"Well, that was a good deed if you can prove it," said Jack Rabbit. "But what would an ant lady be doing out of her hill house in Winter? Ants sleep all Winter, you know, and live on the food they store in their hill houses in Summer."

Found Horse Chestnut

"Yes, I know," said Uncle Wiggily. "But this ant lady suddenly awakened. It was a warm, sunny day for Winter, and she crawled out in a place where there was no snow and found the horse chestnut she thought was a meat ball. I had to laugh at first, but I put her in my pocket and took her home. I got Nurse Jane to give her a real meat ball."

"That sounds like a very good deed, and I have no doubt it is true," said Jack Rabbit. "But I must double check with the ant lady."

"Hop along with me," said Uncle Wiggily. "I'll take you to her hill and she will tell you how I did a good deed for her."

On the way through the woods Jack Rabbit stopped for a moment behind a tree to help a Snow Bird get some seeds caught in the bark. That was a good deed for Jack Rabbit. Uncle Wiggily hopped ahead.

All of a sudden, out of the bushes popped the Bob Cat to catch Mr. Longears. And the Bob Cat mewed: "I have you now!"

"Oh, dear!" said poor Uncle Wiggily, as the Bob Cat reached out a claw to grab him. But just then Jack Rabbit, who was almost as large as the Bob Cat, came hopping along, and, being brave and strong, just kicked the Bad Chap out of the way before he knew what was happening.

So Jack Rabbit saved Mr. Longears. The ant lady said the good deed was true.

TRENT RIVER

WANT SIZE LIMIT PUT ON MUSKIES

Trent River Fish And Game Association Make Many Recommendations

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Jan. 19.—The Trent River Fish and Game Protective Association held a special meeting in the new dressing room at the rink on Tuesday evening. The following recommendations for the improvement of local fishing and trapping conditions were adopted and will be forwarded to the Department of Game and Fisheries to be reviewed during the next session of parliament: (1) muskrat trapping be opened annually on March 20th; (2) abolition of decoy sets; (3) 24-inch limit on lunge; (4) that fingerlings instead of fry be issued for restocking purposes; (5) that the water levels be controlled during spawning season.

Since the Association is sponsoring the rink project, it was decided to close out the $50 reserve which was set up last year to take care of any adverse contingencies in connection with operating the regatta and utilize the money to defray current expenses. To date the Association has paid off more than one hundred dollars which has accrued against the rink for lumber, lights and miscellaneous expenses. There is still a balance of forty dollars which they hope, with favorable weather conditions, to wipe out this season by holding dances, suppers and selling season tickets. A committee of three, M. Wight, C. Chaplin, D. Dart was appointed to manage such activities. The hockey club appointed Harry Mann, manager; M. Wight, coach; D. Dart, M. Lean, captains.

After a worship service led by the 1936 president, Earnest Holland, the financial report for the past year was given by the treasurer, Bert Geary, and this indicated that out of the 023.23 raised, $4.76 still remained as balance. A humorous reading was given by Mrs. R. G. Coulter following which the topic of the evening was rendered by the president.

The officers for the year 1937 as elected, are as follows: President, Earnest Holland; christian fellowship convenor, Miss Edna Francis; christian citizenship convenor, Miss Helen Wood; christian missions convenor, Bert Geary; christian culture convenor, Lorne Anderson; secretary, Miss Helen Downey; treasurer, Bert Downey; correspondence secretary, Miss Edca Holland; recreational leaders, Burton Holland and Bertrum Wickens; pianist, Miss Jean Downey; assistant, Miss Sadie Wickens.

Dr. Wood's NORWAY PINE SYRUP

The Danger of Cough Among the Children

In young children a cold or cough is not a thing to be disregarded, as it is often a grave matter, and unless attended to immediately it may eventually cause serious trouble.

On the first sign of a cold or cough the mother will find in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup just the remedy required.

Its promptness and effectiveness is loosening the phlegm is such that the trouble may be checked before anything of a serious nature sets in.

Children like it; take it without any fuss.

IF YOU WANT TO BE EXTRA CAREFUL WITH COLDS

Use Vicks VapoRub . . . This New Improved Way

During this treacherous winter weather, no cold should be neglected. Don't delay. Don't experiment with half-way measures. The moment you come down with a cold, go straight to bed and use your old dependable Vicks VapoRub—and use it this new improved way. Then you not only enjoy all the benefits that have made VapoRub the standby of two generations; you actually increase its effectiveness.

To Lengthen and Strengthen VapoRub's Action—Massage Vicks VapoRub briskly on the back (between and below the shoulder-blades) as well as on the throat and chest, for 3 full minutes. Then spread a thick layer of VapoRub over the chest and cover with a warmed cloth. Follow these tested directions carefully. Each step of this "3-Minute VapoRub Massage" helps to lengthen and strengthen VapoRub's famous two-way action.

Relieves a Cold Two Ways at Once—Almost before the VapoRub is well rubbed on, it starts to bring relief two ways at once—2 direct ways:

1. Through the Skin. VapoRub acts direct through the skin like a poultice or plaster.

2. Medicated Vapors. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by body heat, are breathed in for hours—about 18 times a minute—direct to the irritated air-passages of the nose, throat, and chest.

This combined poultice-and-vapor action loosens phlegm and makes breathing easier—relieves irritation—eases the cough—helps break congestion. Long after you relax into comfortable sleep, VapoRub keeps right on working—hour after hour. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

Avoids Risk of Stomach Upsets—This safe external treatment cannot possibly upset the stomach, as constant internal "dosing" is so apt to do. It can be used freely, as often as needed, even on the youngest child.

Canada keeps them busier

Canadians use their telephones more than any other people. They call the friend in the next block, in a neighboring province, across the continent. Yet there is little difference in speed or clarity whatever the distance, hence the almost instinctive use of the telephone. This service is moderate in cost. It could not have reached its present development had its users not found that its value to them greatly exceeds its cost.

The main factors in achieving leadership have been continuous improvement in telephone equipment, and—more important still—the efficiency and loyalty to an ideal of telephone workers.

The aim of management and employees alike has been "the best possible service at the lowest cost consistent with financial safety."

There has never been a development of apparatus or method of operation of which telephone men have said, "Now that is perfect—we can't improve on that." Every improvement has been looked upon as a challenge to further advance.

What can we do to make the service better? That is always the problem as we see it!

JONES ELECTED ON FIRST POLL AS TORIES WIN

Reeve Of Bowmanville New Warden Of Northumberland And Durham

EXTOLLS CROLL AID

Reeve C. G. Mercer, Hope, Defeated By 25-17 At Cobourg Opening

(By A Staff Reporter)

COBOURG Jan. 20.—On the first division of the council Reeve Reginald O. Jones of Bowmanville was elected Warden of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham by a majority of eight votes over Reeve Cecil G. Mercer of Hope township at the opening of the January sessions Tuesday night. The only poll of the council gave Jones 27 to Mercer's 15.

As predicted by The Examiner the Conservatives wasted no time or grace on complimentary nominations. They concentrated their forces behind Reeve Jones, anticipating that Reeve Mercer would probably be the choice of the Liberals, with Reeve A. L. Pascoe of Darlington as a secondary candidate. The Liberals on their part decided during the afternoon to make it a decision contest on the first ballot by leaving their field to Mercer, with Reeve Pascoe's retirement. This avoided a three or four-cornered preliminary line-up, often but not always the procedure when some of the stalwarts are singled out for passing honors and then are eliminated as they get their gesture, and the opposing parties settle down to the real business. In this instance the Liberals had everything to lose by dividing their strength, for the reason that a recent canvass left no doubt of an incoming Conservative majority.

Two Votes By Reeve

As an additional aid to its native son Bowmanville claimed two votes to be cast by its Reeve, advising the counties clerk for the first time that the town was entitled to this extra strength by having more than 2,000 voters on the municipal list. The exact number is 2,124. Only Cobourg with 2,360 ratepayers has taken advantage of this prerogative, but so far Port Hope has passed it by.

With two votes for the reeve and one for the deputy-reeve, Cobourg and Bowmanville contributed six to Warden Jones' total. In the corri-

THOUSANDS FORCED TO FLEE FLOODS

9 Levees Give On St. Francis River In Missouri—Further Rain Threatens

CHICAGO, Jan. 20 — (A.P.). — Rain-swollen streams battered levees with unabated fury in the United States Middlewest to-day, sweeping over lowlands and forcing hundreds of families from flood-engulfed homes.

Anxiety for the safety of thousands of other persons was heightened by forecasts of additional rains in portions of Ohio, Indiana, Missouri, Illinois and Arkansas.

Red Cross officials said at least 500 families evacuated homes in the vicinity of Kennett and Senath, Mo., where the raging St. Francis River pounded through at least nine levee breaks. Weary emergency workers demobilized after a losing fight to restrain the stream.

Thousands of acres of farm lands were inundated along the Missouri-Arkansas line. Monette and Black Oak, Ark., and the rich farming area of Northeastern Arkansas faced flood waters.

Southern Indiana flood waters evicted several hundred persons from their homes. The White River went past flood stage, threatening the Hazleton levee which protects thousands of farmland acres.

Take Refuge in Church

Rivers in Southern Illinois rose steadily. Many persons in the danger zones packed their belongings and fled to higher ground. The city council of Mount Carmel, Ill., appealed for shelter for refugees.

Thirty-five persons found shelter in a suburban Cincinnati church. Scores of homes on Riverside streets were without gas and heat, endangering the lives of many persons afflicted with influenza.

The turbulent Ohio River reached a 58.6-foot mark at Cincinnati last midnight, 4.6 feet over flood stage. Meteorologist W. C. Devereux predicted a 60-foot crest despite the prospect of light rains. At flood stage along its entire 960-mile length, the Ohio was expected to reach a 60-foot crest at Ashland, Ky., and Portsmouth, O., late to-day or early Thursday.

Hydro Protection Move Passes First Vote

Roebuck Determined For Immediate Action In Spite Of Opposition

House Swings Behind Government To Tune Of 64 To 14

TORIES WANT TIME

Macaulay, Henry Attack Measure As Against Best Principles Of Law

TORONTO, Jan. 20 — (C.P.). — When the Ontario Legislature convenes this afternoon, two bills aimed at protecting the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission from court judgments will be introduced by Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways. Mr. McQuesten with Attorney General Arthur W. Roebuck represents the Government on the Hydro Commission.

With a bill given first reading at the opening session yesterday, the two to appear to-day are designed to protect the Hydro Commission from any judgments already obtained or which may be obtained against it as a result of cancellation of Quebec power company contracts. At the 1935 session legislation cancelling the contracts the commission held with Quebec power companies was passed and court actions followed, resulting in two judgments against the Commission, one of which the Government has appealed to the Privy Council.

Following a somewhat heated debate, the Government yesterday won first reading of its initial Hydro bill by 64 to 14, and after the Conservative Opposition opposed introduction of the two other pieces of legislation it was decided to bring down the additional "emergency legislation" this afternoon.

Lieutenant-Governor Herbert A. Bruce read the Throne Speech, which contained the administration's session program. It announced legislation would be introduced for a highways program which would "modernize" roads in heavily-populated areas. Roads will be built and others improved in the northern mining country.

Change In Duties.

Co-ordination of the work of the Provincial and Dominion agricultural departments will be sought. The speech also announced changes in the Succession Duties Act to exempt contributions to charitable, religious

Brantford Citizen Gets Bitten Early

Brantford, Jan. 20 (CP)

PROUDLY displaying five active mosquitoes in a bottle here to-day, a Brantford resident claims to have been bitten by one before he was roused by their buzzing about a room at his home.

"Mosquitoes in January. That's something," he said. "You can have your pansies and pussywillows."

He had previously reported mosquitoes about his home and took an awful razzing from fellow employees.

"They wouldn't believe me. They thought I was crazy. So, I caught five and there they are."

MUNICIPAL PAY CUT RESTORATION IS FINDING FAVOR

Peterboro', Sarnia, Sudbury, North Bay On List Considering Move

GALT ALREADY ACTED

TORONTO, Jan. 30 — (C.P.). — Some municipalities in Ontario have already anticipated Hon. David Croll in his request that they restore salaries of municipal employees. Other municipalities are expected to act on the suggestion.

Provision is to be made in Galt civic budget this year for restoration of municipal salaries. The matter came up in city council last year and it was agreed to lay it over until the budget was being prepared for 1937.

Salaries for Belleville's employees are near the 1929 figure after substantial increases given three years ago by council, and it is unlikely further action will be taken this year.

Peterborough Board of Education has already restored five per cent of the teachers' 15 per cent. cut made four years ago, and council has referred to the finance committee a motion that civil salaries be restored to former levels.

Mayor Urges Move

At the inaugural of St. Thomas City Council, January 4, Mayor Ernest Duckworth suggested civic salaries be increased and the matter will be considered at the February meetings of civic committees.

Sarnia council will consider salary increases at budget conferences in a few weeks following Mayor Fred Pelling's suggestion at its inaugural that "at least partial restoration of wage reductions" be made this year. Kitchener partially restored wage cuts Monday.

Mayor Robert Rowe said North Bay Council was anxious to restore the wage cut, and as a supervised municipality had intended taking the matter up with Mr. Croll.

"Every member of Sudbury Council wants to see the restoration of pay cuts," said Mayor J. Rudd. "Committees have already approved almost every department's requests for pay increases. Whether we can keep them in the budget later is another question."

Four Escaped Prisoners Are Thought To Taken Car Here

DESCRIPTIONS LACKING

City police here are investigating the possibility that an 8-cylinder sedan automobile owned by The McColl Frontenac Oil Company of Toronto and stolen from the Curtis garage at Charlotte and Stewart streets around midnight, was used by four escaped prisoners from Ontario Reformatory at Guelph.

Shortly after learning that a car had been stolen here, city police got word from Toronto Police Department that a car had been stolen earlier in that city. Bearing license number 62-A-63 the car stolen from Toronto was found abandoned on Highway 28 at the westerly limits of this city.

Simultaneously reports reached the city police office from various sections of the district of the theft of gasoline from a service station pump at Millbrook, and an attempted break-in at Thorndyke's service station, Oakwood.

A car tallying with the description of the sedan stolen here was seen in Millbrook, Little Britain, Oakwood, Lindsay and subsequently in Toronto, but the four occupants believed to be escaped prisoners from the recent riot at Ontario Reformatory at Guelph were apparently still at large at the time of going to press.

Constable Gordon Puffer told a reporter that city police here have not had descriptions of prisoners escaped from the reformatory who are still at large, but he said the description of the four men seen in the stolen car, tallied with the descriptions of escaped prisoners as given in the newspapers and in radio broadcasts.

"BUYS" IN CAMERAS

Thousands Of Expensive German Outfits Sacrificed In New York By Refugees.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (CP)—Thousands of expensive German cameras, valued at from $250 to $500, have been dumped on the New York market at bargain values during the last eight months by German Jewish refugees, camera dealers made known today. Unable to leave Germany with more than 10 marks, or some $4 in currency, whole families of emigrants have purchased cameras and carried them out of Germany as personal possessions to be sold here.

Roosevelt Pledges End Of Economic Injustices

Crowd Braves Drenching Rain As President Renews His Oath

HISTORIC EVENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(AP).—Franklin D. Roosevelt renewed his Presidential oath to-day and pledged his second administration to blot out "cancers" of economic injustice.

From a white-columned stand below the towering capitol dome, the United States' President told a rain-drenched throng:

"I assume the solemn obligation of leading the American people forward along the road which they have chosen to advance. The test of our prosperity is not whether we add more to the abundance of those who have much; it is whether we provide enough for those who have too little."

Mr. Roosevelt turned to speak after placing his hand on an old family Dutch Bible and repeating the Presidential oath to black-robed Chief Justice Hughes. Only minutes before, Vice-President Garner was sworn in by Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader.

Fronting the white-columned stand arranged for the simple but impressive inauguration ceremonies, spectators braved a driving rain to witness the historic event.

Renewed Hope for Every Family

The president pictured uncounted poor families living "under the pall of disaster" and said:

"We are determined to make every American citizen the subject of his country's interest and concern."

Progress in recovery is obvious, the President said, but the "new order of things" brought about since 1933 means more than that.

Restating his philosophy in broad terms and leaving his specific program to the future, he spoke of using new materials of social justice "to erect on the old foundations a more enduring structure for the use of future generations."

This year, Mr. Roosevelt recalled, marks the 150th anniversary of that fundamental charter. The forefathers found it a way out of the chaos that followed the revolutionary war, he said, adding:

"They created a strong government with powers of United action sufficient then and now to solve problems utterly beyond individual or local solution. A century and a half ago they established the federal government in order to promote the general welfare and secure the blessings of liberty to the American people. Today we invoke those same powers of government to achieve the same objectives."

Mr. Roosevelt said the greatest change in recent eventful years was "the change in the moral climate of America."

"With this change in our moral climate and our re-discovered ability to improve our economic order," he observed, "we have set our feet upon the road of enduring progress."

HEPBURN STUDIES NEW INCOME TAX

After Millionaires With Holding Companies Established Abroad

TORONTO, Jan. 20—(C.P.). — Premier Mitchell Hepburn is giving personal attention to the proposal for new income taxes on Ontario millionaires who incorporate holding companies in the West Indies and other places, allegedly to escape Ontario taxes, Acting Premier Harry Nixon said to-day.

Mr. Nixon said no legislation on the question will be brought down until Mr. Hepburn returns from his health trip to Arizona.

"For one thing such persons might be denied exemption which all income taxpayers now enjoy on the amount they pay the Dominion government," said Mr. Nixon. "When you get up in the large brackets they are still in receipt of large incomes in Ontario and if they have formed holding companies outside the province to avoid taxation, we might take away from them the exemption on the Federal tax."

Mr. Nixon said co-operation was expected from the Federal Government.

"I understand one individual who always strongly protested the taxes," said Mr. Nixon, "recently formed a holding company in the West Indies and transferred to the company the small amount of $24,000,000."

AFTER MAMMALS

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (C.P.). — The American Museum of Natural History plans a flying expedition from New York to the New Guinea jungles to collect mammals, birds and plants and study the life history of birds and animals in those regions, it became known to-day.

The expedition, which will probably leave next November, will be in charge of Richard Archbold of the Museum's Mammal Department.

SUDDEN SLUMP IN MERCURY BE BLOW TO FLU

Eight Lives Already Sacrificed To Disease Across Ontario

IN PAST MONTH

Nine New Cases In Toronto Bring Queen City's Total To 38

TORONTO, Jan. 20 — (C.P.). — The sudden drop in temperature, general throughout Southern Ontario, is expected to check effectively the outbreaks of influenza, medical men said to-day.

Eight lives have been claimed by the epidemic, Toronto reporting five deaths since January 1, and three others, one in Otonabee near Peterborough, and one in the city itself, with the third at a home near Wallaceburg.

Nine new cases were reported in Toronto yesterday, bringing the city's total for the month to 38. The outbreak in Toronto is very mild, said Dr. Gordon Jackson, Medical Officer of Health, urging keeping up resistance by not getting over-tired.

Dr. G. S. Cronk, Belleville Medical Officer of Health, said the sudden drop in temperature would check the outbreak which had been small.

Health conditions in Windsor schools are not so bad as at first believed, said Dr. L. H. Hyttenrauch, Chief School Medical Officer. Exceptionally poor attendance was attributed to inclement weather. A large number has been absent due to colds. Any influenza cases have been mild.

Stratford, Galt and Kitchener citizens turned up their coat collars for protection against a raw, biting east wind. Physicians there reported few influenza cases.

Dr. J. A. Bell, Sarnia Medical Officer, said, "It is the responsibility of individual citizens to prevent the spread of influenza." He said there were some cases, of a mild nature.

NORWEGIAN CREW RESCUED AT SEA

Lifeboat From Another Vessel Takes All Off Foundering Ship

OSLO, Jan. 20 (CP-Havas).—The crew of the Norwegian steamer Trym, who for more than 48 hours had been manning the pumps in mountainous seas to keep their foundering vessel afloat off the southwest coast of Norway, have all been saved, according to word reaching here today.

A lifeboat put out by the Norwegian steamer Venus rescued the sailors, taken safely aboard the Venus which had been standing by since early yesterday.

The wireless station at Utsire, Stavenger, Norway, which reported the rescue, announced at the same time that the rudderless 2,288-ton Soviet ship Ilmen was in no immediate danger. An unidentified British ship had gone to its rescue, but details were lacking, all coastal communications being cut off by the gale, the station announced.

Fliers' Radio Beam Troubles Solved With New Short Wave

Young Engineer's Tests In Australia Works Perfectly On Plane 65 Miles Off

IN THUNDERSTORM

MELBOURNE, Jan. 20.—(CP)—A new short-wave system which is claimed to be the most modern type of aviation radio beam transmitter, and is said to be free from the faults of other systems, has been given secret tests at Essendon, Victoria. A young German engineer was in charge.

If these tests are successful, the system may be installed at Darwin. The Homing beam at present in operation there was criticised after the recent crash of a monospar airplane from Croydon on a reef at Seringapatam. The machine's crew alleged that the crash was due to faulty signals from the Darwin station.

The new transmitter works on a nine-metre wave length, which is shorter even than that used in television. To maintain secrecy, it was "allowed to leak out" that the 90-foot aerial tower erected at the Essendon airdrome was intended for blind flying tests. Actually, the German engineer in charge of the tests was assembling apparatus designed to send a beam 125 miles.

Using aerials only three feet long, and gold-plated coils, the transmitter sent signals which were received perfectly in an airplane travelling through a thunder storm 65 miles away. Tests over still longer distances are to follow.

SUMMONING DRIVERS

Provincial Police In Belleville District Ordered To Summon All Drivers.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Jan. 20 (CP).—Traffic officers of this district, provincial and local police, started out today to summon all those driving cars equipped with 1936 license plates, the date of extension having passed, police officials announced today. An unusually large number were accommodated yesterday by the issuer of licenses, S. E. Vermilyea, and that officer said he believed the district to be pretty well covered. Many owners have laid up their cars for the winter in this district, and will not purchase plates until reconditioning the family car in the spring.

A mild little Outremont tailor, Abite Solomon, 48, yesterday pleaded guilty to ringing in four false fire alarms. He is blamed by police with a weeklong barrage of alarms in busy sections of the city. Solomon said he was lonely after the deaths of his parents. He will be sentenced January 22.

APPEAL FROM EDEN LEAVES NEXT MOVE IN HITLER'S HANDS

Calls On Germany For Full And Equal Co-operation With Europe

PRESS TAKES UP CRY

LONDON, Jan. 20.—(CP).—Foreign Secretary Eden's appeal to Germany for "full and equal cooperation with Europe" leaves the next move squarely up to Chancellor Hitler, leading newspapers said today in commenting on Eden's speech in the House of Commons last night.

"The policy thus defined by the Foreign Secretary," said the Times, "is the policy not only of the British government but of the whole British people. It is the only policy consonant with our traditions.

"The only British interests are, first, that the war should not spread and second, that the political independence and territorial integrity of Spain should be preserved.

"Hitler spoke many times of the contribution he wished to make for peace," said the Daily Telegraph. "Last night he was given an unmistakable invitation to lay his proposals on the table."

The Anglo-Italian Pact.

Great interest attached to the Foreign Secretary's denial of widespread interpretations of the Anglo-Italian gentlemen's agreement under which the "maintenance of the status quo" was taken to mean opposition to the establishment of a Soviet regime in Spain.

"There is no word, no line, no comma in the Anglo-Italian declaration," said Eden, "which could give any foreign power the right to intervene in Spain, whatever the complexion of the government in any part of that country."

Europe's troubles, he warned, "can't be cured by pacts and treatises; there must be a will to co-operate."

Fate in Her Hands.

Turning directly to Germany, he said:

"There's a great nation of 65,000,000 at the very centre of our continent, which has exalted race and nationalism to a creed which is practised with the same fervor with which it preached.

"The world is asking whither these doctrines are to lead Germany and all of us. Germany has it in her power to influence the choice which will decide not only her fate, but Europe's."

Does Germany intend to use the "manifold gifts of her people to restore confidence to a world heartily sick of feuds and antagonisms," Eden asked, or are those gifts "to

Druce Given Three Years In Kingston Penitentiary And Two Strappings

CHIEF NEWHALL CALLED

McClennan Will Serve Maximum Term In The Ontario Reformatory

Entering pleas of guilty to joint charges of attempted armed robbery and assault of Edgar D. Carson, north-end grocer on a Saturday night in late November, two tense, pale-faced lads were this (Wednesday) morning sentenced to terms of imprisonment and strapping by Judge Sheldon L. Smoke at a special sitting of county judge's criminal court.

Gordon Druce, 19, of 8 Victoria avenue, who opened fire with a .45 automatic and sent a bullet crashing into the storekeeper's left upper arm and into the chest wall and abdomen was sentenced to 3 years in Kingston Penitentiary, and two strappings of five strokes each.

John McClennan, 18, of 220½ Edinburgh street, who participated in the attempted hold-up though without firing from the .32 revolver with which he was armed, received a sentence of 2 years less a day definite in Ontario Reformatory at Guelph, with an indeterminate period of one year, and two strappings of five strokes each.

There were a fair number of spectators, being mainly composed of young men, as Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., presented the two charges to the Judge immediately following the opening of the court.

Guilty Pleas Entered.

Representing the two accused, the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., entered pleas of guilty in each instance, and the Crown Attorney then moved for sentence and asked permission of the court to call the evidence of Chief Constable Samuel Newhall on circumstances relative to the offense and the records of the accused pair.

The chief constable, who said he had obtained a signed confession from the accused McClennan, declared the pair had arranged to meet near Smith street railway bridge on the night of November 26. McClennan was late in keeping the appointment, but the pair subsequently met and Druce supplied the guns, a .32 revolver, which he gave to McClennan, and a .45 automatic he used himself.

Witness produced the .32 revolver fully loaded, which he said had been recovered underneath McClennan's pillow when police arrested him at his home shortly after the shooting and attempted hold-up. He said the .45 automatic had not been recovered though police had found the spent shells.

"Stick 'Em Up."

The chief went on to relate in evidence that McClennan entered

FAMILY GATHERS HONOR LATE KING

All Except Duke Of Windsor With Queen Mary On First Anniversary Of Death

By I. Norman Smith
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Jan. 20.—The Royal family gathered quietly at Sandringham, in Norfolk, to-day to observe the first anniversary of the death of King George V. All Queen Mary's children, save the Duke of Windsor, were there.

No memorial service was held, either at Sandringham, where King George died, or at St. George's Chapel, Windsor, where his funeral was held, but it was believed special prayers would be said.

Wreaths from the Royal Family were placed on the coffin beneath the Albert Memorial Chapel at Windsor, and other wreaths were left in the chapel itself. It is understood Queen Mary desired no formalities.

Newspapers observed the anniversary with special pictures of the late King, and editorials, the tone of which was best summarized by The Morning Post under the heading: "A Cherished Memory."

"With his passing it seem to his subjects that the sun had set while there was yet day," The Morning Post said. "Since then we have endured sunshine and rain, but neither good hap nor ill has dimmed the sense of what the nation and the Empire owe to his benignant reign. They have rather served to make the sense more vivid, the gratitude more profound."

STATE TROOPER IS KIDNAPPED AND MURDERED

Overpowered By Convict — Second Officer Gives Chase For Ten Miles, Wrecks Car

200 POLICE ON TRAIL

Fugitive Vanishes In Woods After Leaving Victim's Body Handcuffed To Mail Box

MONROE, Mich., Jan. 20 (AP)—The Michigan State Police reported early today that the bullet-pierced body of Trooper Richard Hammond, 25, abducted by a gunman here last night, had been found handcuffed to a rural mail box on a road south of Monroe.

The trooper had been missing since shortly before midnight when a prisoner overpowered him. After a two-hour chase and two gunbattles with pursuing officers, the gunman abandoned the trooper's patrol car and escaped into the woods near Lulu, Mich., 20 miles west of this city. Hammond's blood soaked uniform coat was found in the car.

More than 200 police from Ohio, Indiana and Michigan combed the woods for the gunman, who, state police sergeant Lawrence Dann said, was Joe La Rue, 26, of Detroit, a former convict.

Body 7 Miles From Car

The body was found five miles southwest of Erie, near the Michigan-Ohio line, only seven miles from the spot where the trooper's blood-stained car was abandoned.

Trooper Hammond, a big six-footer, was overpowered at Monroe as he took La Rue to the Erie barracks for questioning in connection with the abduction of Fred Williams, Detroit used car salesman who was left tied to a tree in Toledo last night.

Another state trooper, Sam Sineni, following in a second car with another supect, chased the abductor for 10 miles and exchanged many shots before Sineni's car was wrecked.

GUELPH INQUIRY OPENS NEXT WEEK

Judge Madden Inspects The Damage Done At Reformatory —All Prisoners Back

GUELPH, Ont., Jan. 20 (C.P.)—Inquiry to be held at the Ontario Reformatory as a result of Sunday's rioting will start next week, probably Tuesday, with Judge James Madden of Napanee presiding. Prisoners may be permitted to appear before the Judge along with officials, police officers and those who witnessed Sunday night's outbreak when the Reformatory was turned into a wreck by an angry mob of prisoners.

Judge Madden visited the Reformatory yesterday and walked through the dormitories, corridors, and other places where convicts had smashed furniture and other equipment. He was accompanied by C. F. Neelands, Deputy Provincial Secretary, and Dr. J. D. Heaslip, Reformatory superintendent. Mr. Neelands returned to Toronto last night, but will be here for the start of Judge Madden's investigation.

Unruly prisoners who still shouted defiance at guards were locked in cells where they will be kept under guard until the inquiry. Armed guards patrolled the grounds. It was the first time in the institution's history that the guards have carried weapons.

Gangs of prisoners were put to work cleaning up the wreckage while carpenters and other workmen restored windows and doors smashed to bits when the screaming prisoners ran amok with clubs they fashioned from broken beds, tables and chairs.

A final check of prisoners yesterday revealed all those who took advantage of Sunday's bedlam to escape were back within the grey walls again. It was revealed only 23 had made the break for freedom.

Judge Madden is expected to inquire into prisoners' complaints against the quality and quantity of food. The prisoners also were reported to have been angered by an official ban on parcels at Christmas time.

MEIGHEN DEMANDS ACTION ON DEFENCE

Proposes Stronger Policy Co-operation With Empire Rather Than Depending On U.S.

OTTAWA, Jan. 20 (C.P.). — The Senate to-day will continue debate on the Address in reply to the Throne Speech, possibly continuing yesterday's vigorous controversy in which the Conservative Leader demanded a stiffer Canadian defence policy and co-operation with the Empire rather than dependence on the United States.

Hardly had the Senators ended praise of two dead colleagues and passed a message of loyalty to King George before the Red Chamber's big guns boomed in argument over armies, navies, international alignments, and the threat of general conflict arising in Europe.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative Leader, demanded practical treatment of the situation facing Canada, declaring this nation could expect no help from the United States under the Monroe Doctrine and adding that even if such help were available only 200,000,000 people lived in North America, while 1,500,000,000 dwelt in contiguous European countries. If the power of Britain were emaciated, he said, Canada would not be in a better defence position than now by joining hands with the United States.

In part Senator Raoul Dandurand, Government Leader, agreed with the Opposition Chief. Canada, he said, should "do what is necessary to protect herself by land and sea."

Recalls Laurier's Policy

He drew attention to indications that the Government was taking steps to modernize the country's defence forces, recalled Sir Wilfrid

COMMONS PASSES SUCCESSION BILL WITH MUCH DEBATE

Powers Announces New Health-Hygiene Service — Sees Veterans' Pensions Less

SPORTS BRANCH UP TODAY

OTTAWA, Jan. 20.—(CP).—Private members of the House of Commons will have precedence in today's proceedings, the first of the series of "private members' days" which customarily occupy the greater part of the first month of every session. The first resolution on the order paper is that of Hugh Plaxton (Lib. Toronto-Trinity), advocating establishment of a Ministry of Sports.

Continuing the swift pace set Monday with passage of the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne after the shortest debate on record, the House yesterday put through all stages the bill respecting alteration in the law touching the succession to the Throne. Estimates of the pensions and national health were opened and subjected to considerable debate and two items in the agricultural estimates were passed without question.

Hon. C. G. Power, Minister of Pensions and National Health, said war service pensions have reached the peak, but he warned the House this did not mean the peak of expenditures on behalf of war veterans.

Speaking before the committee on supply, considering a vote of $41,500,000 for European war pensions, the minister said aging and unemployable, needy war veterans would have to be cared for by the government in increasing numbers.

Fifteen years ago a pensions minister had declared this pension cost had reached its peak, Major Power said. At that time the annual vote was $20,000,000. But now he felt confident that European war pensions as such had reached the peak and would grow less each year hereafter.

Other Outlays To Go Up.

Other expenditures on behalf of veterans would increase, however, the Minister said. The war veterans' allowance, for which he was asking $4,200,000, an increase of $800,000 compared with the present fiscal year, would increase to $13,000,000 by 1957, according to the best computations.

The Health Minister also announced the government proposed spending $50,000 more in salaries this year to open bureaus of child and maternal hygiene, a branch of epidemiology and a hygiene bureau with the necessary publication branch for

SPRINGVILLE

ENJOYABLE TIME FOR CHURCH CHOIR

Springville-Fairmount Choristers Guests Of Mr. And Mrs. Preston

(Examiner Correspondence.)

SPRINGVILLE, Jan. 20.—Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Preston entertained the Springville-Fairmount United choirs and a few friends at their home on the Port Hope Highway on Friday evening. A delightful time was enjoyed by all in an evening of contests and crokinole. Before the last round of crokinole, caps and all-day suckers were given as novelties.

Dainty lunch was served by the hostess, following which Rev. H. P. L. Seymour expressed the pleasure of the party and took this opportunity to verify the appreciation on behalf of the united choirs and congregation at Springville for Mr. Preston's faithful and efficient service as choir leader. After making public the fact that Mr. Preston was celebrating a birthday on that date, Rev. Mr. Seymour called upon Mr. Fred McIndoo, who presented the host with a slight gift of gloves as a birthday token from his choir associates. Mr. Preston, although taken completely by surprise by this unexpected turn of events, replied most suitably. Speeches followed by Mr. T. McIndoo, Mr. R. C Hanbidge and Mr. M. Johnston. Mr. Henry Batton's kindly assistance in the choirs was also remembered in the expressions of thanks and the party was brought to a close by singing "Blest be the Tie that Binds."

MAKE SUSPECT GROW BEARD

TACOMA, Wash., Jan 20 (A.P.)—Eye witnesses of the Charles Mattson kidnapping will confront Ex-convict Leigh Haskell Fowler, 36, now that he has been compelled to grow a beard, it was learned today from an unimpeachable source.

This was disclosed as U. S. federal bureau of investigation agents finished questioning Fowler for the third time at Bellingham, Wash.

ITALIAN GENERALS SENT INTO SPAIN

Six Outstanding Officers To Command Mussolini's Troops Aiding Franco

MADRID, Jan. 20 (CP).—Socialist troops routed the insurgents from fortified positions at El Cerro De Los Angeles, historic landmark and geographical centre of Spain 8½ miles south of Madrid, the emergency defence Junta announced today.

At the same time, Havas News Agency reported it was rumored Premier Mussolini had dispatched six Italian generals to Spain to assume command of Italian contingents fighting in the insurgent ranks. The six officers, the reports said, included General Montagna Brandimarti, who suppressed the uprising of Turin workers in 1922.

The action at Cerra De Los Angeles was described by General Jose Miaja, defence Junta head, as "one of the most important operations thus far carried out by the government forces."

Strong contingents of militia, fighting their way south from boundary barricades, stormed the fortified rock in a surprise night attack, the Associated Press reported.

The government soldiers forced 200 insurgents in a church and monument atop the rock to surrender after a brief period of intensive fighting.

A brother of Fascist General Varela was reported killed in the encounter.

Overwhelmed by the suddenness of the attack and their inability to counter-attack in the narrow fighting zone, insurgent soldiers disregarded orders from their officers and surrendered, it was claimed.

HAVELOCK A.Y.P.A. HOST TO 2 GROUPS

St. Luke's Of Peterboro' And St. Paul's Of Marmora Spend Jolly Evening

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Jan. 20.—St. John's A.Y.P.A. entertained members from St. Luke's A.Y.P.A. of Peterborough, and St. Paul's A.Y.P.A. of Marmora in an evening of games and entertainment, on Monday, in the basement of the Orange Hall.

In the absence of their president, Miss Marguerite Roche, Mr. Noel Lade very capably filled the position of master of ceremonies, presenting a very interesting program.

"Advertisement" contest proved to be quite popular, with contestants trying to determine the name of the product from certain magazine cut-outs pinned to the wall. Winners were: Girls' 1st: Miss Joyce Smith, Marmora; 2nd, Miss Mary Anderson, Havelock; Boys' 1st, Percy Gray, Marmora; 2nd, Arnold Cauldwell, Marmora. Following this was a game conducted by Miss Marjory Leng.

A "Newspapet" contest, in which everyone was divided into groups according to month of birth and then given a certain column to write was very interesting. The July-August group were the winners with their comment on the weather.

While lunch was being prepared there was community singing and choosing of partners. After the refreshments, consisting of sandwiches, cake and coffee, the remaining hour was spent in dancing with music supplied by Mr. Douglas Hutchinson at the piano.

65 Turn Out to League

The efforts of the United Church League executive towards encouraging better attendance was more than rewarded by a turnout of over 65 members at their regular meeting Monday night.

Two invitations were received, one from St. John's A.Y.P.A. for next Monday evening, and another from Cordova League for Wednesday, January 27, both being accepted.

Following the devotional period, a very interesting program was conducted by Maurice Williams, leader Christian Citizenship group. The program included: Topic, "Home," Miss V. Robinson; talk on "Winter Reading," Miss M. Seeney; violin solo, Miss Helen Buchanan; vocal solo, "Twilight on The Trail," Stewart Miller. Group games were much enjoyed for the remainder of the evening.

NO ONE DIET RULE FOR ALL FLU CASES

Doctor Advises Keeping Feet Dry, Rest, Eat Enough, Fresh Air At Night

TORONTO, Jan. 20—(C.P.).—Discussing fasting and particular diets prescribed for persons suffering influenza, Dr. Bernard T. McGhie, Deputy-Minister of Hospitals, told The Canadian Press that no general rule for diet can be laid down.

"Each individual case must be decided by the attending physician," he said. "Elimination is affected by the type of diet, but no general rule can be made for all cases. There is no work in this country to justify the statement that all influenza victims should fast except for a few fruit juices.

"The important thing is to avoid influenza infection," he said. "That can best be done by avoiding crowds.

Any person who is sneezing should stay out of crowds. He should be isolated as far as possible so as not to pass on infection," Dr. McGhie said.

Dr. Gordon Jackson, Toronto Medical Officer of Health, said the influenza epidemic has so far missed Toronto. "It seems to have missed the city by going all around it," he said. Six new cases were reported yesterday, bringing the total for Toronto to 31 since January 1.

Precautionary methods urged by Dr. Jackson are: "Keep up strength. Raise resistance by not getting overtired. Keep the feet dry. Get lots of rest. Avoid crowds. Eat enough. "Fresh air is necessary," he added. "People are too fond of keeping their windows shut. They don't realize that fresh air is much more easily heated than stale air, besides being much healthier. Warm dry air does much to weaken the mucous membrane of the nose and throat, leaving people susceptible to colds."

dor gossip it was reported that Reeve Leslie Wilson might split his pair, giving one to Mercer, but when the poll was taken by E. L. MacNachtan, counties clerk, Reeve Wilson cast his two votes for Jones.

Opened With Prayer

After an opening invocation of divine guidance by Rev. H. E. Morphy, Baptist minister of Cobourg, Major MacNachtan called for nominations.

Reeve Jones was proposed by Deputy-Reeve G. A. Edmonstone of Bowmanville, seconded by Reeve J. F. George of Brighton township; and Reeve Mercer was nominated by Deputy-Reeve W. R. Prouse of Hope, seconded by Reeve R. R. Mallory of Percy township.

Fifteen minutes are allotted for nominations, but after four or five minutes of ensuing silence and inaction by the council, the clerk called for the division.

How Members Voted

To Appoint Committees

Reeve Percy Stinson, Millbrook, was appointed chairman of the committee to select the standing committees for the year, and their respective chairmen will be appointed today.

It was reported that the Conservatives avoided a caucus in their decision to get behind Warden Jones, thereby leaving them unpledged for committee chairmanships as a consideration for doubtful support in clinching the wardenship. Hence, nobody has to be "paid off" in the second stage of the council's organization for 1937.

The public seats were crowded with ratepayers from both counties, and other groups packed the approaches to the council chamber. Bowmanville sent a large contingent. The tense interest of some other years was lacking, largely on the strength of the reports that the election was "in the bag." Reeve Mercer was the first to congratulate Warden Jones, and promised wholehearted support in the administration of the counties' business.

$10,000 Road Damage

A. E. Miller county road superintendent, informed the Examiner that although the winter had created no snow drifts for the new $8,000 combination grader and plow which had been authorized by the council in December, the recent heavy rains had washed out sections of the county road system causing damage estimated at $10,000. Two sections of the Shelter Valley road in Haldimand had been badly damaged at less of from $1500 to $2500, and repairs to the paved road between Weedler and Trenton would cost another $2500.

Flowers To Expand

Several deputations are already scheduled for Thursday afternoon. One of them will represent the Cavan-South Monaghan Plowmen's Association. They were booked for a hearing on Reeve Stinson's motion, seconded by Reeve Arthur Wood of Cavan. Mr. Stinson said he understood that the Plowmen of Cavan and South Monaghan were proposing to expand their association to include all of Durham, as they at present are the only association of plowmen in the county.

Major MacNachtan informed the council that he had received a letter from the secretary-treasurer of the Peterborough Board of Education regarding the council's action in December in withholding payment of the board's account until the requisition conformed to the Department's regulations. It was stated that the authority of Reeve McKeel, Campbellford, chairman of the Schools Committee last year, was questioned, and Major MacNachtan replied that Reeve McKeel was qualified and authorized by the council to carry on the school affairs of the united counties. The correspondence was referred to the Schools Committee.

Warden's Address

Warden Jones is the second reeve of Bowmanville to attain to the highest municipal honors in the united counties in ten years. Milton J. Elliott was the successful candidate from that town in 1927.

Warden Jones is an executive of the Holingshead Products Company in Bowmanville, manufacturers of the Whizz products including lubricants, anti-freeze and kindred lines. He has been with the company ten years, and was formerly Canadian Express agent at Bowmanville for ten years, and engaged in farming five years in quest of health.

In his opening address to the council he expressed his appreciation of the honor he had received and appealed to the members for their unstinted co-operation throughout the year. He defended the county council as a municipal institution, affirming that it was in closest touch with the ratepayers and in the best position to understand their wishes and needs. Warden Jones doubted that the deputation which petitioned the council in December for increased snow plowing facilities in the counties at the December sessions was really representative of the ratepayers as a whole.

Should Cut Tax Rate

Referring to the action of the Ontario government in assuming the entire cost of old age pensions and mothers' allowances, which is expected to save the united counties $50,000 a year, Warden Jones said he believed it was the intention of the Hon. David Croll that this relief should be passed on to the ratepayers by a reduction in municipal taxes.

"I think it is our duty to make a substantial reduction in our counties rate this year," the Warden said. "It will mean a saving to us of from $46,000 to $50,000 a year, and I believe we should pass the benefit on to the ratepayers instead of spending this money on other projects.

Hospitalization of indigent patients costs $36,000 in these counties. Half of that amount is paid by the counties themselves, and the other $18,000 is charged against the municipalities. I feel that many of these patients are quite able to pay for their own treatment, and I would advise all reeves and deputy-reeves to investigate all bills for indigent patients. I believe a very considerable saving could be made. The government is preparing new forms for these cases which will bring out the fullest information before the government pays its 60 cents a day for these patients.

We don't hear anything these days about prosperity being just around the corner, because the corner has been turned, and the general business of Ontario and Canada is steadily improving. I feel a sense of responsibility as I enter upon the duties of Warden, and I feel that with your support this should be a successful year for the united counties. That is my hope and I know you all wish the same result."

Among the visitors at the opening session were the following former Wardens—M. J. Elliott, Bowmanville; George H. Hooton, Cavan; Wilbert Davey, Hamilton township; N. R. Hart, Murray township; W. H Nelson, Percy township; Walter M. Powlds, Hastings; Jas. McCamus, Cavan; Fred Bowen, Clarke; Fred J. Slade, Fenelon.

HENLEY MAKES PROFIT

LONDON—(C.P.).—The stewards of Henley Regatta reported at the annual meeting recently a profit of more than $6,000 was made on the year's operations and that the regatta was stronger financially than ever before.

THE BLOODHOUNDS BAY

By WALTER S. MASTERMAN

CHAPTER 43

SELDEN appeared the only one unconcerned following the attempt to kidnap and slay the children. He called for a calm discussion of events. Reid, at Selden's side, was not so calm at the moment. The attacker had taken a shot at him.

"Take a seat, James, we must talk," Selden said as the butler entered. "Mr. Reid was telling me about his rash flight from the cottage, but you know the old saying —where duty calls—or is it beauty? Anyway, it was just as well that he was there, though he ruined all my plans." He grinned broadly at the astonished men.

"But I don't understand what is happening," Reid cried excitedly. "A murderous attack has been made on the children, and the murderer is still somewhere about, and you tell everybody to go to sleep as all danger is over. It seems madness."

Selden laid a hand on his shoulder. "You haven't yet recovered from your illness. The assassin has got right way by this time. But the main point is that the secret hiding place of the children is known, and they will have to move. By the way, James, that ladder came from the library, I suppose?"

"Yes, sir, it was used for getting books from the higher shelves; it was there this evening—I saw it."

"Look here," Reid suddenly broke in. "I'm risking something in telling you this—I was in the Abbey on the night——"

He got no further—Selden interrupted hastily.

"My dear fellow, I know. Don't you remember that you told me about it, and I chaffed you about your romantic escapade?" Reid stared at the level eyes of the detective and read a warning.

James laughed. "That was the time you knocked me down."

"I wonder, James, whether you would mind getting us something to drink. I'm sure Reid wants one badly."

"Why, certainly, sir." He rose and went out.

"Why did you stop me?" Reid said, facing the other with intense determination. He had intended to tell the whole truth, and take the consequences.

"My dear Jack," Selden said in a singularly gentle voice, "while you were lying delirious, there was no one to look after you, and I did not want a stranger there. Shall I go on:"

Reid breathed hard; he rested his head on his hands, and his gaze was fixed on the table. "Please do."

"I heard you raving in your delirium, and I felt it wasn't safe to have anyone else with you, so I constituted myself nurse at nights. You were all right in the day."

Reid looked up and met the other's eyes. He saw the dark rings and the strained look, and realized what an awful time Selden must have passed through with this heavy weight of responsibility. Tears came to his own eyes—he was still weak.

"You were a brick, Selden; you must have heard something."

"If I did, I have forgotten. There is no need to refer again to it unless someday you care to tell me. As far as I am concerned it is sealed up." His mouth twisted into a smile. "But if a certain young lady I know had heard your opinion of her she would have been flattered."

To hide his confusion, Reid remarked, "That was why you sent James out of the room."

"There was no need for him to hear, but keep your ears open when he comes back."

James came in, apologizing for the delay. He had been compelled to go to the servants' quarters and pacify the maids, who had been scared by the noise. He poured out drinks and Selden insisted on his joining them.

"Mrs. Thornton, the housekeeper, has gone to Lady Severinge. She insisted on my unlocking the communication door for her. She swears she knows who the murderer is and that she is going to tell her ladyship."

"Good," Selden said. "She will probably nominate you, James."

The butler did not answer, staring at the floor with a wooden face.

"She went to London a few days ago, James, didn't she?"

"Mrs. Thornton?" James gave a start. "Yes, she did, and has been making hints and insinuations ever since. I shall ask Lady Severinge to dismiss her. She is a busybody and mischief-maker."

"I heartily agree. I have had some experience with her."

Reid interrupted them. "But do you think, Selden, that the murderer came in tonight by the way I mentioned?"

"I am sure he didn't. I was on guard there myself."

"There must be another way in, then. Do you think it possible that there is some secret passage, such as one reads of in books, from the crypt, and under the lake?"

Selden smiled. "When we found that the coffin there had been tampered with, after the murder of Sir Henry, I took the obvious course of examining the crypt, with just such an idea as you had, but there is nothing of the sort. I hardly expected to find one, because if there had been one in old days the water from the lake oozing through would have caused a collapse long ago."

James gave a gesture of despair. "Then I give it up, sir; but it seems that the children are not safe anywhere in the Abbey."

"They are not, James, but we are not going to remove them to a safer place. My difficulty is that I have not been playing the game with Hutchins, for he has been searching for them, and I have been hiding them, and I couldn't tell him — that's the trouble."

"Why not?" Reid asked.

Selden's face was grim. "Because," he said, emphasizing each word, "if I had done so he would have had them protected by the police, and then there would have been no further attempts to abduct them."

Reid sprang up. "Do you mean that you were using them as a bait to catch the murderer of Sir Henry? If so, I am not going to be a party to that."

"Steady Reid! Sit down and don't get excited. If these assassins—for I am convinced there are more than one—are determined to get hold of the children, and we have them effectually hidden, or protected, they will bide their time and sooner or later they will get the chance. Isn't it better when we are all on our guard, you and James here, and I, to see if we can't get them? I may even be called off this case. You must really be guided by me."

"But I don't see what the object is if it's the same people. Are they going to put their heads into a noose for blackmail or ransom—it sounds absurd?"

Selden gave a quick glance at James, and saw that a struggle was going on in his mind. He spoke quietly, but every word seemed to be like the stab of a knife into flesh.

"There is no question of ransom —this is murder. Nothing short of that will satisfy these fiends. Remember, this has not been the work of a day or a month—it has been planned for years."

"But why murder? What have these children done?"

"The sins of the fathers shall be visited upon the children." Selden said solemnly. He faced round rapidly. "Am I not right, James?"

The question took the butler like a shot from a gun. He stammered and hung his head. "Sir Henry made many enemies when he was young. Excuse me, sir, I'm not easy about the children, and if you will forgive me, I'll go and see if they are all right."

"Do, James, and tell Miss Lawrence that they will be quite safe."

James disappeared so quickly that it was evident he feared further questions.

Action is what you need in taking hold of that cold before it takes hold of you. But first of all don't afford to be laid up with a cold and have our health undermined throughout the winter.

When you feel a cold coming on recognize it for what it really is—an internal infection requiring internal treatment.

GROVE'S BROMO QUININE attacks the cold at its source by doing the four necessary things in the prompt and effective treatment of a cold.

1. It opens the bowels gently but effectively.
2. It combats the cold germs and fever in the system.
3. It relieves the headache and "grippy" feeling.
4. It tones up the system and helps fortify against further attacks.

When you feel a cold coming on go right to your druggist and buy a box of GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. Make sure you get Grove's. Start taking the tablets two at a time. Taken in time, GROVE'S BROMO QUININE usually stops the cold within 24 hours.

This is the kind of action you want and get with GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. Grove's has been the standby of thousands in the treatment of colds for over forty years. 433

For Bad Winter Coughs, Mix This Remedy at Home

Quick Relief. Big Saving. So Easy. No Cooking.

This well known recipe is used by many thousands of housewives, because they have found that it gives them a much more dependable remedy for distressing winter coughs. It's so easy to mix—a child could do it.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a compound containing Norway Pine, in concentrated form, well known for its effect on throat membranes.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all, and takes but a moment. No cooking needed.

Put the Pinex into a 16 oz. bottle and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of cough remedy, unusually quick-acting and dependable, and you get four times as much cough medicine for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be surprised by the way it takes hold of severe coughs, giving quick, satisfying relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please in every way.

Age Is Regarded As An Asset With Management Of De Laval Business Increase Expected

Man's Efficiency Rather Than His Age Is The Ruling Principle

YEARS NOT PENALTY

A man's efficiency rather than his age is the ruling factor of employment with the De Laval Company. Years are not regarded as a disability or a penalty but as an asset in the experience which accompanies them, and the policy of the management is definitely toward the retention of older employees even if, in some instances, their jobs have to be tapered down to their physical abilities.

This official attitude throughout the De Laval factory was something of a discovery by an Examiner reporter this morning while waiting to interview Mayor Macdonald who was temporarily absent in another department.

Life may being at forty, according to the Pitkin challenge, for some employees of the De Laval. Who knows? But of a certainty it does not end at forty-five. Opportunity still beckons to men of those years, and security is cirtually a guarantee, especially with a normal business background.

A De Laval mechanic doesn't have to worry about the first appearance of gray hairs, and scurry around for pomades that may or may not halt the change of color which usually comes with the middle years of manhood. Youth is served by the new blood that comes into the firm from time to time, but in that process the older men are not discarded and left to shift for themselves simply because their youth is behind them. Even a casual survey of the shops indicates that the De Laval Company in Peterborough values the experience which long employment has gained for so many of its men.

Meet "Teddy" Hanson.

For example there is E. A. (Teddy) Hanson, 60 years old, and foreman of the yard crew. He knows every foot of pipe and wire about the place, shows a surprising economy of motion and effort in the loading of cars, especially with heavy products of the plant, possesses one of the keenest minds among the entire list of employees, and is a pretty good engineer into the bargain. That paragraph should be bound with quotation marks, and if Teddy Hanson knew who paid him that tribute probably some of those 60 years would take wing, not that they make any difference in the one office which counts in all such matters at the De Laval.

Mr. Hanson is by trade a bricklayer, and he has been with the company since the construction of the first building was begun in August 1912. While he was at work on a wall one day that summer somebody let half brick fall on his head. Blood trickled down his face from the wound, but he wiped it away, bound his handkerchief around his head and refused to leave the job, although an executive of the company told the contractor that the wiry Hanson should go home and take care of himself. That was the beginning of a partnership, as it really has been and still is, that is typical of the De Laval ideal.

Worked Until 77.

There was another man to whom it was suggested when he became years old that he had worked long enough, that he had earned a rest and should call it a last day at the plant. Tears came to his eyes and dropped down his cheeks at the thought of quitting, and so he stayed on for two years longer until he was 77, busy and happy in the job of a sweeper.

These are not the men of longest service with the company. Sor# of them came from Quebec prior to 1912, but many others have been eighteen and twenty years and longer. What is technically called labor turnover can hardly be said to enter into the De Laval Company's consideration. Even during the lush years which extended from the war until the depression, when the movement of mechanics was freest, the De Laval men preferred to remain with the company. That loyalty has been continuous now for a quarter of a century, and is based primarily on the realization that the management is affected by sentiment that is practical, and that arbitrary age limits find no place in the De Laval reckoning of an employee's worth as a producer.

A flavor of the old English industrial method of retaining a staff that has grown up and become expert in the business is easily discernible at this factory. If a man is seen to be falling slightly behind the pace in one of the more important jobs, the official attitude is step him down to work that he can do rather than dismiss him at a time of life when opportunity for re-engagement has reached almost a hopeless level.

Expect 40 P.C. Increase.

All of which leads up to an official statement that the company is expecting from the present promising outlook and flow of orders that the factory's business will show an increase of at least 40 per cent over the volume of 1936. Probably this last fact should have been given first place, but a little observation of the human interest which seems to pervade the De Laval shops, with an obvious source at the well spring, seemed for once at least more important than the business aspect.

LINDSAY

OLD HOME WEEK MAY BE STAGED

Lindsay Council Appoints Committee To Consider Matter—Moncrief Warden

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Jan. 20.—The town council has appointed a committee to take into consideration the possibility of holding an Old Home Week in Lindsay. The matter was introduced at last night's council meeting by Mayor Frost. It is 13 years since an event of this nature was staged in Lindsay, and it proved a big success.

Fatally Injured

Lou Wetherup, a former Lindsay boy, is dead at Welland following an accident, when a car he was driving jumped a deep ditch and struck a tree near that town. The deceased was a son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Wetherup. Two other passengers in the car were also injured.

$500 Asked For

Kawartha Tourist Association has asked the town council for the sum of $500, to be used in the printing of pamphlets, etc., to be used in the campaign for more tourists for the Kawartha district. The town council will take the request into consideration, and in all probability a grant will be made. The County of Victoria will be asked to grant a similar amount.

Moncrief, Warden

Wilbert L. Moncrief, Reeve of Omemee, received the almost unanimous vote of the county council to-day in his selection as Warden. Only one vote was cast for a member whose name was placed in opposition. The warden-elect will fill the office with credit.

Anti-Aircraft Unit

Lindsay's new battery will be an anti-aircraft unit, it has been officially announced. Major Jones, of the old Victoria-Haliburton Regiment will be officer commanding.

LIFEBOATS BUSY IN 1936

LONDON—(CP)—The lifeboat service has completed its busiest year since the institution was founded 113 years ago. Lifeboats were launched 466 times to aid vessels—an average of nine a week, compared to a total of 88 in 1935.

Under a Cloud

Following a court hearing in Cobourg, a youth found guilty of forgery, was sentenced to one year in the Reformatory. It was stated that much of the proceeds of two forged notes had gone to finance the purchasing of a Christmas gift for the girl in which the unfortunate youth was most interested.

When it is stated he will be sent to the Reformatory, we take it that means the one in Guelph, and one is moved to wonder whether a sojourn there will be of much benefit.

Those who are at present in the place give little evidence that the process of reformation is working in the way in which it had been anticipated it might.

One might hesitate to say the institution at the moment stands discredited, but in view of events of recent days it is difficult to come to the conclusion that the youth from Cobourg is going to be greatly benefited by his stay there.

Trying to Escape Debt

The city treasurer of Sarnia has been named a deputation of one to represent the City Council on a deputation from the Board of Education headed toward Toronto.

It is considered necessary to build two ten-room schools in Sarnia in order to relieve congestion and provide for future expansion, but the City Council is opposed to doing anything which would increase the tax rate, and it is also opposed to the issuing of debentures. So the trip to Toronto is to find out to what extent the province will assist if the project is undertaken.

Building school houses was always regarded as pretty much a municipal undertaking, and we can think of no good reason why that responsibility has been or should be changed. Trying to get money from the province means taking it from all the people of the province for the benefit of the people of Sarnia, and the benefit of the schools will be for the people of Sarnia and not for the province in general.

One can appreciate the feeling of the City Council which dislikes going into debt, but escaping it by asking the province to go into debt is not at all commendable.

Should Never Be Attempted

The Examiner opens its columns to correspondents who wish to discuss any legitimate question in a reasonable way. That does not mean that the paper always agrees with the views of those who forward contributions, but that is not considered a barrier to publication. It is probably equally true that correspondents and readers in general do not always find it possible to agree with views expressed in the editorial columns of the paper.

There was one letter which suggested the proper way to lower the tax rate in Peterborough would be to cease making payments to the debenture sinking fund for a term of years, and allow taxpayers of the future to again pick up the burden. The total debenture debt of the city is $4,674,836, and against that there is sinking fund provision of $2,025,553.

A sinking fund is started when any debenture issue is sold. The city pays the annual interest on the amount and at the same time puts aside a certain amount each year so that at maturity it will be sufficient to retire the debenture. The city in turn invests the amount placed in the sinking fund and earnings secured in that way become revenue. The sinking fund method is not now in favor in a good many municipalities because it has been found to be an involved system. In its place the serial debenture is now much more in use, and by this method both interest and a share of the principal are paid back each year. The provincial government has also started using this method.

If a municipality were looking for financial trouble all it would have to do would be to cease making provision for its sinking fund. It would be much the same as an instalment buyer deciding to cease paying according to agreement. In the case of the city maturity dates of debentures would arrive and the money to retire the obligation would be there in part only, and apart from that such cessation of provision for sinking fund would bring the municipality into conflict with provisions of the Municipal Act. The Examiner cannot agree with the suggestion that one way to relieve taxation for the purpose of what our correspondent refers to as a "breathing spell" would be by holding back payments to the sinking fund. It would be a clear case of going out looking for trouble.

Speed of Birds in Flight

We noticed an item in a Western Ontario paper recently which told about a car driver going along the road at what he described as a "good clip," but not being able to keep up with a bird which he said was a pigeon. It was flying at a fair height and gaining on him. If the pigeon were going wide open the driver would have found it necessary to disregard any speed limits in order to keep up.

There are, of course, no positive records of the speeds at which various birds will travel, but close observations of a number give the following estimated speed in miles per hour:

Crow	31	Wood Duck	55
Plover	55	Doves	58
Sparrow	89	Pigeons	61
Hawks	135	Blue bill	95
Quail	51	Wild geese	85
Black Duck	51	Canvasback	99

The estimated speeds given are the maximum at which these birds are said to be capable of travelling. Most of the birds can travel faster than the average rate of a car with the exception of the crow, which is rather a slow and easy mover.

When Pants Were Made Over

There was a neat little booklet in the day's mail and it dealt with men's clothing; told what sort of a suit to wear for various functions and even suggested the proper sort of tie and collar. Quite complete.

One section was devoted to the small boys, and from this we quote:

"The time has passed when anything at all will do for the boy. He takes a pride in good, neat-sitting clothing, and feels he is as well dressed as any other boy. That pride in appearance will later influence his general make-up. Start him right and he will acquire that desire to be well dressed, but never let him believe that anything is good enough for a small boy."

Well that may be right enough, but we dare say there are a good many men today who never had any such a start as that. It was not so on the Tenth Concession and it was not so in the village not many miles away. Then it was that the folk used to look at Uncle John and Uncle Sylvester and wonder how long it would be before they would be through wearing their pants, and on occasion things were said to them to try and cause them to believe the garments were beginning to look a little shabby. When the change did come then the small boy had his opportunity, for the garments would be laid upon the kitchen table, and a family conference would decide upon the plan of attack which would yield the greatest return in pants of small dimension for little lads of similar dimension.

Just how this was all worked out we do not know, but the seat of the major trousers generally had to be discarded especially if the senior wearer had been one much given to sitting down. There were brown paper patterns and the small boy for whom the pants were to be fashioned was often called upon to stand still while the preliminaries were being arranged. When male relatives discarded an overcoat the same process was repeated. There was no book of rules as we remember it, but the making of the clothing of one generation subscribe to the lesser girth and general dimension of the younger was as much an art on the Tenth Concession as the bringing into existence of soft soap from the leach.

The beauty of the plan was that no little lad ever had reason to feel depressed because nearly every other lad had raiment of similar origin. The uncle, the older cousin, the father and the grandfather all walked again in the person of the small boys. There were plenty of homes along the Tenth Concession where before a youth ever had a pair of new pants secured for his own benefit he would have to wait until his legs were long and until a pig had been killed.

Securing Scholarships

The Board of Education in London, Ont., discussed at a recent meeting the habit of students who took the last year in collegiate the second time in order to secure sufficiently high marks to qualify for scholarships. Apparently the custom has become so common in a number of schools that the officials can see through it. The claim is that two years are spent in the senior form of the collegiate deliberately in order that the student may be so conversant with the subjects that extremely high marks can be secured, high enough to place the student in line for existing scholarships which will simplify the question of financing higher education.

Dr. K. P. R. Neville, dean of the University of Western Ontario, is convinced there are scholars who are not of the "scholarship type." The making of a great scholar is not in them even if they did by two years of effort secure high marks at senior matriculation. It was not considered likely that the brilliance of their last collegiate year would be reflected in future effort. The matter is not exactly an easy one for the universities to settle. Western had 200 scholarship candidates this year, Queen's another 200 and Toronto University at least 400.

Educationists now believe the habit is not a good one and they seek to discourage it for this reason: The scholar who takes two years to cover the work which is prescribed for one year in order to make a high mark cannot keep on doing that when he enters university. The claim is he is actually entering university on a mistaken idea, and his high mark is not an actual indication of what he can do in any one given year, and therefore not a correct index of his ability. The movement against the two-year scholarship route has not yet reached the point where a ban will be placed against it, but it is moving in that direction.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The main estimates introduced at Ottawa have a very familiar appearance. There is still no sign of Peterborough's new public building.

Proponents of Sunday baseball for Toronto are still pressing the point but they will probably find themselves called out for batting out of order.

The 25,000,000th Ford car was completed the other day. It would be interesting to learn the total mileage of its 24,999,999 predecessors.

The debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the throne at Ottawa wound up in six hours, and the verdict of the country will be that that was quite long enough.

It is said that a large shipment of tobacco was sent to the Guelph reformatory as a peace offering. Surely this cannot be looked upon as a reward for good conduct.

Canada's estimates are up $17,000,000 with defence and aviation expenditures accounting for the bulk of the increase. Greater spending means no chance of tax relief but the Dominion's estimates for defence are very modest compared with those of other countries.

Twenty-six prisoners escaped from Guelph, instead of 100 as at first reported, and the damage amounts to $25,000 instead of $100,000, the figure first sent out. If our debts and obligations would only shrink as first reports generally do we would all be solvent in a short time.

From Brantford comes the report: "The Cockshutt Plow Co. whistle blew at 7 a.m. for the first time in many years. It meant a resumption of activity of full-time production—the first since the depression broke in 1929." The purpose of this column is to express opinions and make comments on events, but in this case that whistle in Brantford told its own story so well that there is nothing more to be said.

TOO FAST

(By A. R. K.)

Howard Hughes drove his plane across the continent in seven hours and thirty minutes—News Item.

¶ That's travelling fast quite well I know, but I would rather go more slow, for there's so much to see; I'd rather use my pink sedan, and jog along in that old can, take two months, even three.

¶ Not any day would I go far, I'd deal quite gentle with my car, for it is getting old; I'd like to stop upon a hill, at evening when the day was still, and sky was touched with gold.

¶ I'd stop too in the afternoon, if I found out some little room, where they served pots of tea; I'd halt at hamlets here and there, see how the village folk might fare, I'd rest beneath a tree.

¶ I might stop in some city too, though hours I'd spend would be quite few, I'd watch the busy men; my pink sedan would take me soon, to where there's lots of space and room, I'd find some pleasant glen.

¶ When I got home then I could talk, and illustrate with bits of chalk, I'd chatter fast and keen; I'd tell the folk some useful stuff, of kindly men and some more rough, and all the things I'd seen.

¶ If I flew through the air like that, I'd have to hang tight to my hat, I'd fear that we might fall; and then perhaps I might be sick, the trip would be so fast and quick—I couldn't see at all.

London Times, December 10

FIRST and foremost, then, let there be no misunderstanding about the character of the objection to such a marriage as the King has been understood to contemplate. It has been diligently put about in other countries, and repeated here, that the root of it lies in some old-fashion conventional dislike of the marriage of the King with a "commoner," or with an American. Nothing could possibly be further from the truth. If His Majesty had been fortunate, like two of his brothers, in winning the affections of one of his subjects, then the whole nation would have shared in his happiness. There are also many daughters of America whom he might have married with similar approval and rejoicing. It would have been an innovation, but by no means an unwelcome innovation, in the history of the Royal House, which is under no obligation in these days to look for a bride in what is described across the Atlantic as some "hand-picked princess." The one objection, and it is an overwhelming objection, to the marriage which His Majesty is believed to have projected is that the lady in question has already two former husbands living, from whom in succession she has obtained a divorce, on the last occasion at a recent date and in circumstances which are matters of fairly common knowledge. That is a formidable objection, as many will think—but for reasons which no doubt are not universally regarded as convincing—in the case of any man. It is an overwhelming objection in the case of the Sovereign, if only because it would scandalize a very large proportion of the nation and Empire and therefore do infinite harm to the whole institution of the British Monarchy.

This view is not weakened by the suggestion, which has been the subject of some confused comment in the foreign Press and has even been misleadingly echoed here, that the King may take a wife who will not be a Queen. What is true is that a reigning Queen may take a husband who will not be King. The Prince Consort was no more than prince and consort because his wife was the Sovereign. But a British King is bound by no such rule as has made the morganatic marriage a Continental institution. Abroad is has been necessary because the monarch's choice has been constitutionally limited to certain princely or Royal families. It is precisely because the King of England has been as free as the law of the realm can make him to choose his wife irrespective of rank or nationality that no such device is or has been necessary or possible in this country. It would require legislation to invent it. Those who have propounded this facile plan as a means of escape from certain difficulities, which have not yet been admitted and may never be encountered, will find that it collapses at once under serious scrutiny. The law as it stands forbids no woman of the Protestant faith to share the Sovereign's life as his Queen. If Parliament were asked to intervene, the strict legislative aim could only be, not to confer some special status upon the lady whom the Sovereign desired to marry, but to prevent her from becoming the Queen and to bar her children from succession. On what grounds is this to be advanced and upheld in the British Parliament, and, as the Statute of Westminster presumably requires, in all the Parliaments of the Empire? In the present case certainly not on the grounds that the wife-to-be is a commoner or that she is an American. In short, the objections to the marriage which rumour has so freely projected are not legal at all and cannot be met by amendment of the law. Nor indeed can they be met in any way. Considerations of what is due to the dignity of the Crown, to its detachment from all controversy, above all of a personal kind, and to the power of its example throughout the Empire, are allowed and must be allowed to decide the King's choice of a Queen. None disputes it, and the argument for a wife who would not be Queen admits it. But neither could these considerations be other than decisive with His Majesty and with his subjects in determining the effects of his marriage what ever form it might take. Either the innovation of a morganatic marriage under the British Constitution must be unnecessary, or it must be condemned for the very reasons which make it expedient.

THE OLD MILLS.

(Bowmanville Statesman)

THE STORY now running in three instalments in The Statesman, telling of the romantic history of the Hampton Mills, brings to mind the important part that such institutions played in the life of a community, and especially a Canadian community. Most Ontario towns and villages had their origin in a grist mill. In earlier days, before even Bowmanville existed the centre of civilization was Port Hope, or Smith's Creek as it was then known. Its central attraction was its grist mill, to which farmers walked sometimes 30 and 35 miles to have their grain ground into flour. Bowmanville really started when the original mill on the Vanstone site was erected, and later came the stores, the churches, the schools and the streets. The same thing may be said of Hampton, Tyrone and Orono and many other towns and villages.

It is well therefore that histories of these institutions be preserved, because these are verily authentic records of the early life of the community. The fascinating tale being unfolded by Dr. J. H. Elliott, Toronto, for Statesman readers is really the founding of the village of Hampton, the centre of Darlington Township activities. Possibly Dr. Elliott, who is an inveterate historian, realizes the service he is rendering the community of Hampton by this history, and the whole community owes him a debt of gratitude for his services. It is to be hoped, before the last links with the past leave this world for another, some effort will be made to secure histories of the great institutions which have played so important a part in the upbuilding of other communities in this district.

Weeds, Wind and Fishing.

Why Change the Pickerel Season?

EDITOR Examiner:

Sir: As I am interested in any news appertainning to fishing, after reading resolutions to be placed before Parliament by the Peterborough Game and Fish Protection Association was surprised to see one regarding close season for pickerel. It was mentioned that there was an open season for pickerel for 10 months. Evidently the sponsor of the resolution did not live in the Kawartha or Trent district, as we have laws already passed by government that it is illegal to fish through ice in that district, therefore cutting off at least four months ice season and a further two months close season. I understand the feeling of most fishermen with regard to last season, but did they ever reason why the season was so poor or stop to think that the fishing was not up to the mark all over the district?

Now I would like to place my views before them. Take the conditions of the weather in the first place. Very little rain fell, causing low levels of water in the lakes, making the water stagnant, allowing the weed flower to permeate the waters. Weeds flourished amazingly allowing a good hiding place for the fish, making it easy for the pickerel, lunge and bass to catch all the feed (small fish) that they needed, making the fish sluggish and lazy. All the fish that I caught were fat and in most cases were loaded with small fish.

Secondly—most unfortunately the week-ends were windy, causing the weeds to drift, making trolling almost impossible. Sometimes we would get two or three days calm weather and then there would be plenty of fish caught. Unfortunately these spells happened in the middle of the week.

I would suggest instead of making further curtailment of the open season for pickerel, more pickerel be put in the lakes and keep what season we have.

I might state that the residents (farmers) especially living around the fishing waters cannot get any fish because most of the season they have to work, but in October time can be spared and it seems to me that these residents are entitled to some consideration. Very few fish are caught after October 15 and only by casting from shore, such a few indeed that I cannot see why we of the Protective Association should be so selfish as to stop these men whose heritage of catching a few fish on their shores is undoubtedly their right.

We must remember also that we have natural poachers, the Merganser duck who clean out more fish in one day than can be caught in one week (if those fish were allowed to grow).

The Flood Problem Again.

(From the Brant ford Expositor.)

ONCE AGAIN the people of Ontario have had a very impressive lesson of the danger of allowing conditions to prevail that promote floods whenever there is a break-up of certain streams and rivers. This time Port Hope is the sufferer, after a very unpleasant and disastrous experience last spring of the same kind. The Ganaraska river, swollen by the recent heavy rains, broke bounds and, according to the news report, "inundated the town, paralyzed business, drowned out factory operations, and gave school children a holiday. For fifteen hours the raging river held the town in its grip and then called a halt in its drive of damage and destruction." That is a discouraging experience for the citizens of Port Hope to undergo for the second time within a year. It is impossible to imagine the inconvenience, distress and even suffering caused by such a rush of water through the town. It surged through the streets, roared against houses, filled basements, swept over bridges and deposited filth everywhere.

This disastrous flood does not merely concern the residents of Fort Hope and the immediate vicinity, but it is a salutary lesson to the people of the Province that, unless they make provision for regulating the flow of water in the various streams and rivers, catastrophes of this sort are sure to happen. They are caused in the first place by the total destruction of forests. This was followed by the clearing of swamps and the digging of ditches everywhere to facilitate the speedy drainage of water from the land. The consequence is that there are few of these areas left for the retention of moisture, which is sorely needed during the summer months. In the olden days when the swamps and valleys retained abundant supplies of water, and there was slow drainage the rains soaked deeply into the soil and nourished growth even in dry seasons.

At the present time in the very finest agricultural sections of the Province complaint is made that wells of great depth that have hitherto never been known to go dry are beginning to fail when drouth appears. There is only one remedy, and that is adequate reforestation on scientific plans. How many more lessons are needed before the Provincial legislators will take the necessary measures to provide for the planting of trees wherever possible throughout the Province, and the construction of works necessary to retain moisture? Every pressure should be brought to bear upon the Legislature to undertake a scheme of reforestation under the direction of competent engineers. Further neglect will simply mean greater destruction of property, failure of crops, and the impoverishment of a rich agricultural soil.

What The Tourists Expect.

(By F. T. Pattison, Collector of Customs at Fort Erie, Ont.)

THE successful handling of a large volume of tourist traffic is, of course, a matter that requires close attention and serious consideration. At the same time, unusual incidents occur during the daily routine to relieve any monotony.

Many tourists entering at Fort Erie have a sketchy and meagre knowledge of the geography of Canada, and their inquiries very often appear to be the result of an active imagination. For instance: An officer is busily engaged with the flow of automobiles before him, making the necessary inquiries of each person to determine what procedure he shall outline to be followed, when someone from the rear seat of the automobile says, in response to inquiry as to the length of time it is intended to remain in Canada, "Oh, we are only coming to see the quints. We will be back in plenty of time for dinner." The time is approximately two p.m.

At 11 a.m., on one occasion, three boys of the "teen" age, equipped with fishing rods and a light lunch, informed the officers they were just going up to North Bay for some Canadian trout. In response to further inquiry, they stated they would not be in Canada more than a short time, as they had to be back to play football that afternoon in a nearby United States city.

There was a lady tourist from the state of Alabama applying for a permit, who, in response to the officer's question if the car was equipped with radio or heater, replied that if a heater was needed in this country at this time of the year—September—she would go no further, but would hurry back to Alabama.

A native of the state of Kansas naively stated he had been spending a few days in Buffalo, N. Y., and, "learning that Canada was just across the way," thought he would run over to Montreal for the afternoon.

During the month of August a young man from a not far-distant United States city requested a permit to enter. Not little attention was attracted to his equipment, which consisted of heavy woolen socks, shoepacks, mackinaw jackets and sundry other articles of sturdy clothing usually to be found in lumber camps.

Taking no exception to any of these articles, the officer advised the young man that the regulations did not permit him to bring into Canada the large western type, 45-calibre revolver contained in his duffle bag. However, the young man would not contemplate a trip into Canada without the protection of this gun, and it was only after repeated assurance of his safety that he hesitantly decided to brave the dangers from wild bear and moose, pictured to him by his friends, to be encountered in Canada.

To The Editor

THINKING OF YOUTH

Editor Examiner:

Sir: I wish to compliment Chas. Shaw the newly elected member of the Board of Education on his attitude toward the welfare and future of the youth of this city in his reference recently toward closing places of temptation which are undermining those higher ideals of life. Peterborough has a splendid youth, and we cannot vision the future of all youth, but we do know by closing the doors of temptation we would assist them very much in realizing their possibilities and talents to the things that worthwhile attaining. The future of this city will pass into the hands of the youth of today. Let us fully appreciate the value of our splendid youth.

APPROVES

Editor Examiner:

Sir: I wish to congratulate our city council who on the motion of Alderman Gordon decided to tender Senator Failis, the farmer's wife, a civic reception.

I would suggest that this be made a big affair and that Mrs. Morris and Mrs. Mills be instructed to send invitations to Senator Wilson, Agnes McPhail, M.P., and Mrs. Black, M. P. This would unite a sisterhood of the female members at Ottawa and make history for our city.

TO YOU

You will come seeking, darling,
But I shall have gone before;
E'en my footsteps on the path
With grass will be covered o'er.

You will look in the garden, darling,
For among the roses fair,
I once loved to linger;
You'll hope to find me there.

You will call my name so softly,
But the answer you will hear
Will be the old oak sighing,
"You seek. She is not here."

You will stand to look once more
With your hand upon the gate,
You'll sigh, your tears will fall,
To know I could not wait.

You will pass out and onward
On the road you've trod before,
You must take up the burden
And seek for me no more.

One day you'll weary of longing,
Your step will be less brave,
My outstretched hand you'll grasp,
And step across the grave.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 20. — A last-minute pick-up in foreign demand for wheat failed to halt early and late slumps in futures prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday. The close was 2¼-1⅝ cents lower. May was under heavy pressure as burdensome selling from outside interests entered the market.

A pre-closing rush to buy wheat for export brought the day's sales for movement abroad to 500,000 bushels. The belated support served only to lift values fractionally from the day's lows.

Pronounced weakness at Liverpool where the close was off 1¼d. prompted much of the selling. Accelerating the recession were sharp setbacks at Chicago and other markets.

Reports quantities of Argentine wheat afloat to Europe was being resold before it reached its destination had much to do with the general downward trend in all markets.

Spreads showed little change in the cash-grains sections. Coarse grains prices eased with wheat.

BOTH PLEADED GUILTY, ARE SENT TO PRISON

the Carson store on the pretext of buying cigarette papers which the storekeeper did not have on hand. As McClennan turned to leave the store, his companion Druce, wearing a dirty handkerchief to mask his face, entered. He was carrying a .45 automatic and pointing it at Carson he ordered the storekeeper to "stick 'em up."

When Carson failed to comply with the command and reached for a can of goods from the shelf to hurl at the pair of gunmen, Druce opened fire, and Carson was floored in a crumped heap. He spent almost five weeks in hospital as a result of the wounds he received.

Guns used by the pair, the chief said, were obtained by Druce from his grandfather.

Referring to Druce's record, the Police Chief said he had no previous convictions, though as a lad he had been cautioned by the Chief in connection with petty thefts in which he was suspected of being involved. Charged with an offence of a serious nature against a girl of fourteen years in more recent years, he was acquitted.

At the time of his recent arrest the Chief told a reporter Druce was employed at the C.G.E. plant contrary to the statement made in court that he had been unemployed.

Was Paroled.

With respect to McClennan's record it is learned that he served a term in the Industrial School for petty theft, and was subsequently sent to Ontario Reformatory on conviction of several housebreaking charges and for being found in possession of loaded firearms. He was paroled before the expiry of his two-year term in reformatory, and the period of parole had expired a few days before he was arrested in connection with the hold-up at the Carson store He was unemployed.

Remarking on the difficulty of assisting the court in regard to sentences in such a case, Mr. Gordon on behalf of the accused commented: "Druce is charged with a crime so close to murder that he just missed it by a shade," while he declared, "McClennan seems to have been at war with society since he was a boy."

Nevertheless, Mr. Gordon urged the youthfulness of the accused should be taken into consideration, and also the fact they were unemployed. He dwelt briefly on the effects of idleness on persons of weak moral fibre, and said: "The only thing I can do is to leave the matter in Your Honor's hands so that society may be protected and the punishment may be a deterrent to others." Counsel suggested that as the pair were chums they should be committed to different institutions.

Subject to Life Term.

Addressing Druce whom he sentenced first, Judge Smoke stated: "I do not know whether I need explain to you the seriousness of your offence, but I wish to impress on you that the maximum penalty for such an offence is life imprisonment with a whipping. I understand the bullet you fired entered Mr. Carson's left upper arm, and had it taken a slightly different direction you would probably have found yourself in an even more serious position. I feel that you should be adequately punished, but you are young and have yet time to make something out of yourself. Taking your youth into consideration, I sentence you to three years' imprisonment in Kingston Penitentiary, and that you be strapped."

His Honor directed the strapping be administered under supervision of the medical officer of the prison, the first five strokes within a period of one year from the date of admittance, and the other five strokes within ten days of the expiry of his term of imprisonment.

Speaking to McClennan the Judge remarked: "The offence to which you have pleaded guilty is one of the more serious offences of the Criminal Code. Having participated in the crime you are equally guilty with Druce and subject to the same penalty. Crimes of this nature must be stopped. The sentence I shall pass will be severe enough to show that such crimes will not be tolerated."

One Favorable Point.

His Honor went on to state: "If there is any decency at all in your make-up you will already have had time to regret your participation in the crime of which you are convicted. The fact that you have had a number of previous convictions in previous years, however, is not at all in your favor. But there is one point in your favor in that you did not fire the revolver you carried."

Declaring he believed it a wise course to separate the pair and stating that he was also taking McClennan's youth into consideration, His Honor passed sentence of 2 years less one day in Ontario Reformatory definite, and a year indeterminate, and ordered that McClennan receive ten strokes of the strap.

The Judge directed that the strokes be administered under the supervision of the medical officer at the Reformatory, and that the first five strokes be given at discretion of the Reformatory officials, and the second five strokes not less than 10 days within the expiry of the accused's term of incarceration.

APPEAL FROM EDEN LEAVES NEXT MOVE IN HITLER'S HANDS

lead her to the sharpening of international antagonism and a policy of even greater isolation?"

If Germany chooses the path of "full and equal co-operation with Europe," he promised, she would have the wholehearted support of Great Britain.

"Economic collaboration and political appeasement must go hand in hand," he added. The world's standard of life must be raised not only by the reduction of expenditure on armaments, but als by learning the ways of economic co-operation.

Apart from these words of warning, Eden painted a brighter picture of the European scene than the House has heard for months as he summed up recent diplomatic events.

The Manchester Guardian said that Premier Mussolini was therefore apparently mistaken when he said a Soviet state in Spain would threaten the Mediterranean status quo.

"The question is not whether Spain or any part of Spain will adopt this or that political system," said The Guardian, "but whether they will be under exclusive Spanish sovereignty or not. Any change in that sovereignty in any part of Spain is excluded absolutely as far as Britain and Italy are concerned."

Sees Germany Choosing to Sulk.

On the question of Germany, The Labor Daily Herald said:

"There is too plainly still the chance that she will elect to sulk in her self-imposed isolation, starving herself of butter for the sake of guns, sinking into deeper poverty and ridden by pathological hates and fears and by dreams of impossible victories.

"If that be her choice it imposes the reluctant choice on the rest to leave her to learn from adversity and to make sure that she shall not carry her madness beyond her borders, and to build both economically and politically without her."

The Foreign Secretary, who left to-day for Geneva to attend a League of Nations council meeting, told the House yesterday, "the world must reduce expenditure on armaments because it is already lowering the standard of life.'

OMEMEE

FOUR PERSONS HURT AS CAR IS DITCHED

Machine Skids Off Icy Roadway Near Omemee And Turns On Side

OMEMEE, Jan. 20.—What might have been a serious accident occurred Sunday evening on Crawford's Hill just east of the village. Irvine Connell was returning from Fairmount with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Connell, Mrs. Robt. Bannen and Richard Poast when their car skidded on the ice swerving into the ditch where it turned over and came to rest almost on its side.

The driver crawled out through the top of the car and rushed to the home of J. Shields to call Dr. Earle and the wrecking truck. In the meantime Mr. Poast who had been sitting in the front seat with the driver managed to crawl out of the top of the car and help the three other occupants out.

Mr. Connell, the most seriously hurt of the party suffered a broken collar bone and Mrs. Bannan received a bad cut on her head and a severe shaking up. Mrs. Connell and Mr. Poast received minor cuts and bruises. The driver escaped with a small cut on his head.

Another minor accident occurred west of the village. David Weir was driving some friends home when his car skidded to the ditch, while and when Lorne Middleton stopped to offer help, another car damaged the rear end of his car. All escaped serious injury.

PICKETS CLOSE PLANT.

DETROIT, Jan. 20—(A.P.). — A United Automobile Workers of America picket line estimated by a union official to number 1,000 men withstood a police tear gas attack to-day and closed the Briggs Manufacturing Company's Meldrum avenue plant.

A company official said that "the plant is not operating." The picket line then dwindled down to about 100 men.

CHURCH INCREASED ITS 1936 GIVINGS

Successful Year Reported By Full Gospel Pentecostal Congregation

The Full Gospel Pentecostal Church recently held its sixth annual business meeting in the main auditorium of the church with a large number of the members present. The Rev. George H. Chambers presided.

A devotional period preceded the business session and several hymns were sung.

All members of the Board of Management were present with the exception of one, and brief oral reports were tendered bearing on the work of the past year, and reflecting a very satisfactory and healthy condition within the church.

The financial report was received by the congregation with gratitude and an expression of unlimited praise was offered by the entire gathering. The report showed that $7,934.57 was given. By comparison with the previous year it was an increase of $1,856.68. No other means of financing was employed other than by free will offerings and tithes of the people.

Besides an average of $100 per month to the work of foreign missions, over $800 was spent in home mission work. Every account of the year was met, including the fuel account and a new iron fireman furnace installed at a cost of $400; a new roof on the church; exterior painting, a new sign installed at the front of the church, and part of the principle was paid with the credit balance on hand. The sum of $100 was voted to the Lakeshore Pentecostal Camp by cancelling a note for that amount, and it was voted that a new supply of hymn books be purchased.

The pastor spoke of the year as being one of most harmonious co-operation in the entire church. He declared the Board had operated with a spirit of peace and harmony, and there had been no note of discord. He expressed delight at leading such a people.

A vote of appreciation was extended to pastor and Board, including Miss M. L. Hutton, secretary for the splendid manner in which they had conducted the affairs of the church.

The spiritual side was given due prominence, and a number of new members were received into church fellowship. The congregation has started the New Year with the slogan, "Two hundred souls for Christ in 1937."

ried Fruits Rate High In Rations for Winter

bserved Figs Make a Perfect Fruit Course For Breakfast

FRUIT AND NUT BREAD

By MARY MOORE

SCORED a hit. I'm ashamed of my lack of ingenuity too, for I ld have done it years ago—tead of moaning in my mind for unlimited food budget.

You have seen those glass jars of served figs on the shelves of cy grocery stores. I have yearned years to have those on hand in ice box at all times, they make perfect fruit course for break-t—especially on Sundays when have some real thick cream to ss for those who like the com-ation.

Chilled Figs in Syrup

breakfast dish using cooking figs) This week we bought cooking figs 3 lbs. for 25 cents—it was our ention to make some layer fig okies and some of those little roll-fruit candies (see method below) but the figs were in such nice ndition I picked them over and ose the nicest and washed and etched them into a semblance of ir "pulled" or original "locoum" ape and then steamed them to ften the skin. This way they were od "as is." But I wanted better. I made a thin syrup of one-third p sugar, 1 cup water, juice of 1 non and let the figs gently sim-er in it until they were shiny. illed, served about 5 to a dish, ey were the hit.

Fruit prices as they are it is cer-inly a comfort to find one more at will break the monotony of uit courses, and accessible to every od buyer.

We still had two whole pounds of s left—these we removed the hard em end from and divided in two—lf for a filling for Emem's Layer g Cookies—the other half for nem's Fruity Chews.

Emem's Layer Fig Cookies

One cup flour, 2 cups coarse roll-oats, 1 cup white or brown sugar, lb. butter. Rub the flour, oats d sugar well into the butter, rking them until they are crumby th the hands. Spread two-thirds this mixture on buttered pan out 8 by 14 inches to a depth of out ¼ inch. Over this spread the lling: About ¾ lb. cooking figs ard stem end removed), one-third p sugar, two-thirds to 1 cup water. ir these over low heat until figs e completely broken up and filling of good consistency to spread. It ust be stirred almost constantly or will stick. Spread this either hot cold over the mixture in pan—d over it sprinkle the remaining umbs—packing them down some-hat with the back of the fingers or gently with the potato masher. Bake in oven 300 (very slow as they tend to scorch) deg. Fahr. turning frequently until golden on top. While still hot cut into two-inch squares.

Emem's Fruity Chews

One-half pound figs, ½ pound dates, ½ lb. raisins, ½ lb. nut meats (peanuts, broken walnuts or brazils are equally good), corn syrup or molasses to sweeten and moisten. Put fruits and nuts through medium fine knife of food chopper together twice. Moisten with syrup or molasses and chill. Form into one-inch balls, and roll either in finely shredded cocoanut, finely rolled nut meats, granulated sugar, or fine graham cracker crumbs. Serve in place of candy to children.

The average household has children in it—and the average child likes and often craves more candy than is good for him. To satisfy this demand we keep supplies of raisins, dates, figs, and nuts on hand to give them instead of the traditional "piece" when they get hungry prematurely. The above method of making a little confection serves two purposes—for it appears to be candy and satisfies their "sweet tooth"—and instead of doing harm actually does much good.

Prune Pie

We think prune pie is best if it is open face—but many prefer two crusts because of the rich flavor of the prunes. You will require about 3 cups pitted stewed prunes, and ½ to two-thirds cup juice. To both of these add 2 tablespoons minute tapioca and ½ cup sugar and let stand for at least 15 minutes. Make rich paste and put it on a pie plate and chill as long as you can—fill with prunes, and over fruit sprinkle the grated rind of 1 lemon. Bake at 500 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. to finish pie. Top crust or latticed stripes of pastry may be put on top as desired.

Fruit and Nut Bread

One and one-half cups white flour, 5 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-3 teaspoon soda, 1½ cups Graham flour, 1 cup chopped fruit such as raisins, dates or figs—(I think the dates are to be preferred), ¾ cup chopped nuts, 1½ cups milk, ½ cup brown sugar, ¼ cup molasses. Sift together, the flour, baking powder, salt and soda. Mix with the Graham flour, add the fruits and nuts, and combine with the milk, molasses and brown sugar which have been mixed previously. Stir well and put in small greased loaf pans, filling pans ¾ full. Let stand 20 minutes, then bake 1 hour at 375 deg. Fahr.

Ginger Ice Box Cookies

Three-quarters cup butter, 2 eggs, 1½ teaspoons baking powder, 2 cups brown sugar, 3½ cups flour, ½ teaspoon each soda, and salt, ¾ cup evaporated milk (or less if you use bottled milk), ½ cup finely chopped preserved ginger, grated rind of 1 lemon. Cream the butter and sugar together well, and add the well beaten eggs and mix. Sift together the flour, baking powder, soda and salt twice, and add alternately with the milk to the first mixture. Stir in the ginger and grated rind, and form into a roll 2 inches in diameter—if it does not keep its shape sprinkle in a little more flour. Wrap in waxed paper and towel and keep in ice box overnight. Slice with sharp knife into thin slices and bake on buttered cookie sheet at 325 deg. Fahr. for 12 minutes.

Jelled Apricot Salad

Moisten 2 tablespoons gelatin in half cup cold water and dissolve, stirring in 1 cup boiling water. Add 2 tablespoons lemon juice and 1 tablespoon sugar. Stir until well blended then add ¾ cup orange juice and pulp, ¾ cup finely diced celery. Add 1½ cups drained, sweetened apricots (sliced if desired). Add a little more sugar if desired. (however this is not a dessert salad and should be tart). Pour into small moulds and chill. Serve on well cupped lettuce leaves with stiff mayonaise.

NOTES

1. Dates may be used in place of figs in the Fig Layer Cookies.
2. To vary the Fruity Chews leave out some of the fruit and add marshmallows in its place—or change to apricots or prunes in place of dates and raisins.
3. The same method as Prune Pie may be used for raisin or Apricot Pie.

Enquiry Column

Conducted by
Mrs. MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I am coming to you with something out of the ordinary for your column. Maybe you can help me out.

I would like to know how to make wave set lotion at home. I have made some with linseed but it turned sour and got thinner. Do you know of any recipe for making some that will keep and stay thick? I intend going away to the country where it will cost too much to get it by express. So I am relying on you if you will be so kind as to help me out.—Miss R. D.

ANSWER: Thank you for your letter.

Although it is rather commonly known that the base of many wave set lotions is brewed linseed—it is a well-guarded secret what agents are used to "hold" the solution stationary. I know through a beauty parlor proprietor that some of them contain bay rum. This dilutes and perfumes the linseed.

I have some authority for suggesting that you use ¼ cup linseeds to 2 cups boiling water. Let stand 6 hours, then strain through double cheese cloth. Add 2 teaspoons of bay rum and stir or beat well. Keep at about 40 deg. Fahr.—cool but not frozen—covered. Do not make larger amounts than this at one time.

QUESTION: There are some fussy things that I have had a hankering to bake for years—I keep putting off writing but now that Christmas work is over I have a little more time for letters. I want recipe for Charlotte Russe and Orange Charlotte, and Chocolate Eclairs.

That is all the real fancy stuff I want but I would like to know how to scallop potatoes so that they have a real baked taste and the milk is cooked right into the potatoes.

Not long ago you suggested Liver patties for one of the Weekly dinners. Would you mind giving me detailed instructions for making these?

You are no end of help to me in my cooking. I have come to depend on your cookery page to the exclusion of most of my big cook books. Is there a cook book that you have written we could buy? Thank you for all past help and that to come in the future.—M. B. E.

ANSWER: A grand letter.

Charlotte Russe

One tablespoon gelatine, ¼ cup cold water, one-third cup scalded milk, one-third cup powdered sugar, ½ pint cream, 1½ teaspoons vanilla, 6 lady fingers. Soak gelatine in cold water, dissolve in scalded milk, stirring, then add sugar and vanilla. Set bowl in pan of ice water and stir mixture very frequently until it begins to thicken, then fold in the cream which has been whipped. If by accident gelatine mixture becomes too thick, melt it again by standing in pan of warm water, before adding cream. Trim ends of lady fingers or cut in halves and split, and place around sides of mould. Turn in mixture, knocking it on table to make it settle around lady fingers and chill. This may be moulded in individual moulds. Sides of mould may be garnished with sliced candied cherries.

Orange Charlotte

Make same as Charlotte Russe—adding the fruit juices and rind to hot mixture—then chilling to thickness of honey before adding whipped cream.

Chocolate Eclairs

Cream Puffs and Chocolate Eclairs are made from the same type of batter or paste. By chefs it is called Choux Paste.

One-half cup butter, 1 cup boiling water, 4 eggs, 1 cup flour. Put butter and water in saucepan and as soon as boiling point is reached add the flour all at once and stir fast. Remove from heat and add the eggs one at a time, stirring until well incorporated between each addition.

Force through pastry bag and tube onto buttered sheet into shapes 4½ inches long by 1 inch wide. Bake in oven of 500 deg. Fahr. for first 10 minutes—then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. to finish. The intense heat is necessary to force the paste to rise fast—because the egg is the only leavening agent it contains—and if the egg is baked slowly it will be soft instead of comparatively tough—which is desirable in this paste to make it keep its shape.

When shapes for eclairs are baked and cool, slit at sides with sharp knife and fill centre with sweetened whipped cream or Cream Filling. Frost top with boiled Chocolate Frosting.

Boiled Chocolate Frosting

(enough for 12 large eclairs)

Two squares unsweetened chocolate, 2 cups sugar, two-thirds cup milk, 2 tablespoons light corn syrup, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Cut chocolate fine and combine with sugar, milk and corn syrup, and heat slowly stirring often to 238 deg. Fahr (or soft boil stage). Remove from heat, cool to lukewarm or 110 deg. Fahr. Add butter and vanilla and beat until creamy and thick enough to just spread, working quickly. Halve recipe for small amount. This amount will frost layer cake.

Our method for baking scalloped potatoes is to put them in an oven of 350 deg. Fahr. until they begin to boil—then reduce heat to 300 leaving them in 2 hours altogether. We think a common fault in making scalloped potatoes is lack of flavor. We use pepper and salt and about 1 tablespoon of grated onion for flavoring. While I do not approve of the use of pepper it will do very little harm if rarely used—and does improve the flavor of scalloped potatoes. You must use plenty of milk so that potatoes are always submerged.

Liver Patties

Pour boiling salted water over beef or calves' liver and let simmer just long enough to set the juices. Peel off the skin and trim off the tough membrane. Put the liver through the medium knife of the food chopper. Season with salt and a little onion juice or a tablespoon of grated onion. Moisten with some of the water in which liver was simmered and shape into flat patties. Wrap slices of half cooked breakfast bacon around patties and fasten in place with a toothpick. Broil under medium heat until bacon is crisp.

We hope you find the above recipes and suggestions helpful and shall be glad to hear from you often.

QUESTION: I am wondering if you will be able to help me in a search for a recipe. I am anxious to start what we used to call on the farm "neighbor's yeast." Of course we used to get the start of yeast from one of the neighbors. I was wondering if you might have a recipe to make it and how to use it. I enjoy your page in the paper very much and have gotten some favorite recipes from it. Thanking you.—(Mrs.) J. H. C.

ANSWER: Such a pleasant letter.

Neighbour's Yeast or Potato Yeast

Eight large potatoes, 4 tablespoons bread flour, 4 tablespoons salt, 4 tablespoons granulated sugar, 4 cups boiling water, 4 quarts cold water, 2 cakes dry yeast.

Peel and boil the potatoes in water to cover, and when quite tender, mash them in the water in which they were boiled. While still extremely hot pour the mashed potatoes over the flour, salt and sugar which have been previously mixed together. To this add the boiling water, stir in well, then add the cold water. Dissolve the dry yeast in ½ cup lukewarm water. Mix the yeast with the potato mixture. Let this all remain in a warm place—by the stove but not on it—at about the temperature you need for rising bread—for 18 hours. Then it is ready for use. Keep in cold place and use as required.

NOTE: It requires 1 quart of neighbour's yeast to rise bread made with 8 cups flour—which will yield 2 large loaves—see recipe below.

Bread Made With Neighbour's Yeast

Eight cups bread flour sifted, 1 tablespoon each salt, brown sugar and butter, 4 cups potato yeast (neighbour's yeast). Set the yeast on the stove and stir until it is blood heat (98 deg. Fahr.). Put a drope on your wrist and if temperature is right you will not feel it. Add salt, sugar and butter and mix. Mix in 4 cups flour which has been warmed in oven. Cover and set to rise. When light and frothy, add remainder of flour or a little more until dough does not stick to hands as you mix. Knead for 15 minutes. Let rise again until double in bulk, covered. Mould into loaves, let rise again in buttered pans, covered, bake at 360 deg. Fahr. for about 50 minutes. Loaf is done when it sounds hollow when bottom is tapped.

Food Notes

By MARY MOORE

ONE-HALF PINT of mayonnaise lasts our family one week. Consequently we have 3 left over egg whites every week to use up—for although there is very little food value in egg whites my frugal soul won't allow me to throw them away. Macaroons and prune whip and other fruit whips are common ways of using them up, but we discovered Queen Cake last week, and found it to be a very delicious one.

Queen Cake

Two-thirds cup butter, 1⅞ cups sifted flour, ¼ teaspoon soda, whites 6 eggs, 1¼ cups powdered sugar, 1½ teaspoons lemon juice. Cream the butter very well, adding the flour gradually which has been sifted with the soda, then add lemon juice. Beat whites of eggs until stiff, then add the sugar gradually beating all the time. Combine mixtures when whites are stiff. Spread in shallow buttered pan and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 50 minutes. Frost with:

Opera Caramel Frosting

One and one-half cups brown sugar, ⅔ cup thin cream, ½ tablespoon butter. Boil ingredients together in smooth granite saucepan until a ball can be formed when mixture is tried in cold water. It takes about 40 minutes slow boiling. Beat until of right consistency to spread.

Rhubarb Stretched

With very skimpy bundles of rhubarb selling at 10 cents each anyone with a large family is hard pressed to make even two bundles stretch to make dessert in sufficient quantity.

We suggest that you make your stewed rhubarb by making a sugar syrup of 1¼ cups granulated sugar and ¾ cup water and boiling 3 minutes. Then add 2 bundles of rhubarb (about 11 long stalks). Cut into 1 inch pieces and 2 apples which have been cut into very thin long slices. Simmer very gently (or keep very hot without boiling at back of range, or bake covered) in enamel or glass dish covered—if done slowly enough none of the fruit will break, until fruit is tender. Cool without stirring in dish in which it was baked. Do not use aluminum.

Tested Favorite Recipe

By MARY MOORE.

IN COMMON with many housewives I silently commiserate over the deadly regularity of three-meals-a-day. But if you have the will to put your mind to it there are several ways of varying their appearance—such as vegetable plates or platter meals, or main course soups—or table grill meals and so on.

We are especially fond of fish chowders—such as clam and oyster. On the nights that we have them there is a grand opportunity to serve a huge bowl of salad greens and one of the more substantial desserts, that are all to often too much for a regular dinner.

The same is true of Philadelphia Pepper Pot. Although chicken broth is the traditional stock for it I have tasted and made it with veal stock (having used veal the previous day for dinner), that is equally good.

Philadelphia Pepper Pot

(a main course soup for luncheon or supper)

One-quarter cup each onion chopped, celery diced, finely chopped green pepper, 4 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour, 5 cups hot chicken or veal broth (obtained from boiling chicken or veal, which has been used previously), ½ lb. honeycomb tripe cut in ½-inch cubes, 1½ cups ¼-inch potato cubes, ½ teaspoon freshly ground pepper, ¾ tablespoon salt, ½ cup cream. Saute the vegetables in the butter for 10 minutes, stirring constantly, then add flour, stirring until well mixed, then remaining ingredients except cream. Simmer all slowly for 1 hour (if over gas use asbestos mat) using back of range if fuel is coal, lowest heat if electricity. Just before serving add cream and remaining butter—about 1 tablespoon.

Elaine Jacobs Barrymore is shown backstage at a Los Angeles theatre as she rehearses for a legitimate production, shortly after she filed suit for divorce from her middle-aged actor husband John (Caliban) Barrymore, accusing him, among other things, of "extreme mental cruelty and inhuman conduct." They were wed but two short months ago in a flying elopement to Yuma, Ariz.

Bible Class At Home.

Mrs. L. Johnson of 631 Lock street was hostess to the members of the King's Own Bible Class of St. James' United Church, at their January meeting, attended by thirty-five ladies. Devotional services were taken by Mesdames Elliott and Clarke and the executive members were installed by the Rev. F. W. Craik with a timely message as to responsibilities and duties. Mrs. L. H. Bearne presided over this portion of the program, which included a suggestion to each member from the teacher, to resolve to read the New Testament through during 1937. Mrs. Rowe gave an interesting reading.

The president, Mrs. A. Roseborough, took the brief business session in which many plans were discussed and it was decided to hold Class meetings on the third Monday in each month.

An entertainment interval that was much enjoyed comprised of games and contests supervised by Mrs. L. V. Wood, with Mrs. A. Manders as prize-winner. The service of refreshments made a pleasing finale, with an appreciation of hospitality voiced by Mrs. W. K. Sloane and Miss M. Rootinson.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Jan. 20.—(CP)— Marksmen have been going north of the city lately to practise knocking bottle caps off a board with a rifle. Best record was by Jock Burns, who knocked down 10 out of 10 at 50 feet. A variation was provided by Joe Williams, who set a match stick on top of a fence post and then took aim with a shotgun.

"Watch me knock that kicking," he said as he fired.

After the explosion he found the top of the post blown away.

Swiss Bell Ringers Delight Audience With Fine Program

Concert Presented Under Auspices Of Peterborough U.F.O. Club

MUSICAL ODDITIES

Everyone had a good time at the concert in the Canadian Legion hall on Tuesday evening. It was the sort of entertainment that would give you a good time even if you didn't feel like it. The Swiss Bell Ringers are just about the most generous and versatile musicians heard here in a long, long time. They were good at everything they did and they did plenty. Their program included mostly everything in the musical line with the exception of a harmonica and jew's harp, and there is no doubt, after hearing them, that they could have played them too at the drop of the hat.

The concert was presented under auspices of the Peterborough U.F.O. Club by the Swiss Bell Ringers who hail from Toronto and whose specialty is the playing of dozens of those large and small silver-throated bells whose chiming melody is so sweet in selections like the "Bells of St. Mary's", "That Wonderful Mother of Mine," "The Isle of Capri," "Shine on, Harvest Moon" and their ilk. "The Old Rugged Cross" was one of the loveliest of the bell numbers.

The bells were gilded and so was the large, beautiful harp that alternated with a guitar as accompaniment to their chiming music. And the studio blouses of the men were of gold satin, while an effective background was contrived by the use of a simulated stained-glass window.

Singing with the bells was the clever lad who played the harp and the guitar and who joined with another one of the group in Hawaiian guitar duetts and songs. "Good Little, Bad Little You," "Home on the Range," in songs of those far-away South Sea islands and in the beloved cowboy songs with their yodelling choruses, including the "Last Round-Up."

Musical Oddities

There was a performer on the musical hand-saw, that wierd instrument that wailed so piercingly through "My Wild Irish Rose"; there was a female impersonator in black and rose satin shorts and blouse, doing a tap dance to the favorite "Darktown Strutters' Ball", theme and coming out later to wow the crowd with an imitation of Marjorie's stunt in the 'Dumbells', in endearments showered publicly on embarrassed but flattered escorts of laughing ladies. A butterfly and a fan dance formed contributions of this energetic lady also.

There was "a little bit of Scotch," with a kilted laddie singing about his 'Daisy' and the joys of 'Roamin' in the Gloamin'; there were selections on the musical glasses, with two of the seniors playing delicately the strains of "Annie Laurie" and "Old Black Joe", over frail crystal goblets; there was an interlude of fun from two pleasant gentlemen who entertained the crowd vastly with some sleight of hand stuff, in a manner all their own.

They 'doubled in brass' also, these versatile musicians who had a little bit of everything up their sleeves. A brass quartet played a gay march and its encore; there was a clarinet soloist who doubled later with a slide trombone, in "Carry me Back to Ole Virginny" and its jazzed-up, razzle-dazzle encore. And the lad who did the fan dance and female impersonation was a clever tumbler into the bargain, with a series of hand-stands and somersaults to his credit.

There was a dignified touch to the playing of the tall Cathedral chimes, "Let me Call You Sweetheart" and "When You and I were Young, Maggie", and a contrasting bit of roughhouse in the accentric buck and wing stepping of a supposed 'lady'.

The act that really brought down the house and aroused a series of encores that broadened into whistles and stamps was the performance of a goofy guy who looked like a scarecrow and was just as fat as a ruler. He was funny enough to make the well-known cat laugh. He had a conversational line all his own, he handled a broomstick and cigar box in such a way as to evoke from them the strains of the well-known "Mocking Bird" and "Pop Goes the Weasel", he performed on a group of musical bottles and he played the violin in eccentric fashion, upside down, crosswise, and when placed on his head, while "Yankee Doodle" and other tunes emerged from the astonished instrument. He was the bit of a show that had a lot of really good things in a skilfully-presented and diversified program that manifestly pleased immensely the crowd, totally close to four hundred, that packed the hall and stayed on afterwards for the dance which followed. —C.L.M.

Fashion Service

Very young and very fetching is this dress with shirtwaist tendency and slim buttoned down the front closing.

The yoke and shoulder sleeve interest, the little turned-up flared cuffs and the cunning half moon shaped breast and hip pockets are other important details you'll like about it.

It will be just as becoming to you in a plain or a print crepe silk that hints of spring. Think of the dash and gaiety it will give your drab winter wardrobe.

It will stretch your budget allowance, too, for you'll wear it right through the spring.

Thin woollens and rayon challis prints are other attractive suggestions.

For resort or cruise, linens or peasant cotton prints are smart mediums for this simple to sew dress.

Style No. 2510 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years; 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46-inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch material with ¼ yard of 39-inch contrasting.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta

LET the duties that lie nearest you be always the most imperative: the members of your own home circle will always have the most claim on your affections and usefulness. I lay this down as an unalterable rule.

—A. Sleveking.

Dear Friends:

We have all heard or read that charity begins at home, but how often it is forgotten that charitable ways of looking at the faults of those nearest and dearest to us, constitutes real character, in the truest sense of the word.

We show our best face to the stranger. We would never dare say the things to them, which we think we are privileged to say to those we profess to love. A man will disparage his wife, her taste in clothes, her choice of friends, when all the time he knows little or nothing about these things.

A woman will call her husband's friends roughnecks, when she knows in her heart they are really true. And why do they do this? Because they have not learned to use charity at home, and think that the close relationship gives them license to let their tongues run loose, for the pleasure of inflicting pain, or to feel that they are dominating.

We think of duties as things like work, but it is as much our duty to see that our nearest and dearest are happy, in fact, I think it is our highest duty of all, and curiously enough, just as you feel uplifted when you do the things you ought to do, so you feel cheered and happy when you have made your own lovely.

Many's the man thinks he can mend hurt feelings with some money, or a little gift, but when a person is hurt too often, these things do not give pleasure at all. Many's the woman who nags and scolds, then goes ahead and does something extra for the one she has wounded, thinks she has squared things up, when all the time the thing that is hungered for is spoken kindness.

Many's the child who has neglected their parents, and been actively unkind, find that their children have inherited the same tendency, and bitterly do they have to pay for their neglect.

All of us have a duty to one another, to see how happy we can make each other, and when we let the idle word bite into someone else, when we hold back the word of praise, when we scoff at the efforts of anyone, especially of those in our family life, we are neglecting the duties that lie nearest us, and they have a horrible habit of coming back and jeering at us, when it is too late to do anything about it.

Let us see what the dictionary says about it. "Duty: Service owed; conduct owing to parents, or superiors; action required in a certain position; that which one is morally bound to do; and the tax levied by the government on certain articles."

Clear and concise, isn't it? And we have a duty towards ourselves to see that we do these things, so that we build up integrity and sound character within ourselves.

So, the next time you feel that you will neglect to do the things you ought to do, don't forget that you may be starting a habit which will trip you up one of these days, which will make you stumble through life, and which may come and park on your doorstep for the rest of your life.

Most of the suffering comes through neglected duties, for it starts us on the selfish way, which is the beginning of all evil. Show me a bad person, or a careless one, or one who is cruel, and I will show you that it all happened because of selfishness, and selfishness was born when the duties that should have been done, were neglected.

So, help yourself to happiness, by doing the duties that lie near to you, for in giving you will receive.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

ROOSEVELT'S WIFE, MOTHER TO ATTEND HIS INAUGURATION

Latter Is First Woman To See Her Son Take Oath Twice In U. S.

BOTH PLAY ACTIVE PARTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP). — When President Roosevelt raises his right hand and takes the oath of office today, there will stand, just to his right, two women who have not only seen history but have made a little of their own.

His wife—tall, slender, 52-year-old Eleanor Roosevelt—who didn't permit White House glories to dim her personal interest in social welfare, is the first President's wife to cast ballots for her husband in two presidential elections. Furthermore, she is the first since Julia Dent Grant to see her husband's second inauguration.

His mother—the stately and still vital, 82-year-old Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt — who had to shed her sheltered, New York dowager's life when her son became President, is the first woman to see her son take the inaugural oath twice.

Behind and around them will stand children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. They will see, under the President's left hand, the huge, old Dutch Bible which the dowager has treasured in her Hyde Park home.

In the past four years the wife of the President has travelled thousands of miles acting as "eyes and ears" for her husband at Federal projects started under his direction. She has received almost as much mail as he.

The mother finally gave up the peaceful retirement to which she was accustomed. She donned satin and furs and sailed like a queen-mother into New York's annual birthday balls for her son. She attended political rallies, and grumbled about an injury to her leg this summer for fear she might miss her son's acceptance of his renomination. But she was there.

On the last election night she stayed awake into the small hours, playing hostess to jubilant Democratic party leaders.

"Franklin, you know, has always been a very good boy. I think very well of him," she said.

ARTESIAN WATER NEAR BELLEVILLE BETTER THAN GOLD

Believed To Contain Properties Which Would Cure Many Chronic Cases

DRILLING FOR OIL

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 20. — Water possessing a greater value than gold has been discovered on a farm four miles north of here and immediately south of the tiny village of Foxboro.

While drilling for gold on the old Vermilyea homestead last spring, Dr. E. M. Carefoot of Belleville brought in an artesian well from a depth of 500 feet, the water of which is believed on authority to contain colloidal properties. Dr. Carefoot has already proved the water to have unusual therapeutic qualities.

The water, which bubbles to the surface from pre-Cambrian rock formations from a depth of 500 feet, is thought to contain iodine and gold in colloidal form, and is heavily charged with calcium. Traces of silver, barium, magnesium, potassium, lithium, manganese, strontium and many chlorides have been found through extensive analysis.

Has Curative Values

The unusual health-giving properties of the water have been proved, Dr. Carefoot claimed, by the curing of many chronic cases of ulcerated and acid stomachs, skin conditions, and bladder troubles. He also claims the water to have a beneficial effect on goitre, arthritis, neuritis, and chronic headaches, and an aid in the curing of cancer. It also acts as a mild laxative.

"We have not advertized the water at all," Dr. Carefoot said to the reporter, "yet hundreds of people have come to my house asking for it." Dr. Carefoot estimated that he has shipped from 400 to 600 gallons of the water a week since last summer to such widely separated places as Saskatchewan, New Brunswick, Arkansas and Boston, Mass. Hundreds of gallons have been consumed in the vicinity of Belleville and Toronto, he claimed.

If the extensive and thorough analysis of the water being carried out at present by Dr. F. S. Macy of the Colloidal Laboratories of America, a branch of the Rockefeller Foundation, prove that the water is colloidal in form, it will be the first discovery in the world of colloidal water to be found in its natural state, Dr. Carefoot pointed out, and will have a far-reaching effect on medical science.

Drilling Continues

Since bringing in the original well last spring, Dr. Carefoot and his partner, R. G. McCullough, have drilled nine others over a distance of half a mile. All the wells go down to the pre-Cambrian formation and are from 400 to 500 feet deep. At the present time, drilling operations are in progress for oil which Dr. Carefoot believes is to be found about 210 feet below the surface, between the limestone and pre-Cambrian formations.

"We struck gas in one of our wells," Dr. Carefoot stated, "and I think there is oil there some place. If we do not strike oil in this well, we will continue the well down another 300 feet and get water."

Dr. Carefoot stated that when drilling for gold last spring, traces were found, but not in sufficient quantity to make mining worth while. "We found traces of platinum, too," he said.

All of the ten wells on the property are kept capped, but when the cap is screwed off, the water bubbles over, clear and cold. The water has a pleasant taste, is clear as crystal, and smells faintly of iodine. When the reporter tasted the water on a cold January day, the water tasted warm, coming from so far down in the earth. In the summer, the water is cold to the palate. It seldom ever freezes, unless the weather is particularly cold.

BEWDLEY LODGE IS 103 YEARS OLD

Orange Brethren Joyously Celebrate Anniversary With Most Successful Dance

BEWDLEY, Jan. 20—To mark the 103rd anniversary of the Loyal Orange Lodge No. 149, Bewdley, a dance was held at Holdaway's Rice Lake hotel Monday night, attended by Orangemen from all over the district as well as many young people from Peterborough, Millbrook, Port Hope and other towns and villages of the district.

The lodge came into being on Jan. 18, 1834, under the direction of Ogilvie Gowan, who was sent from England to found 150 Orange lodges in Canada. The Bewdley lodge is the result of his 149th effort. The first worshipful master of this lodge was James Fitzgerald, under whom it thrived and laid a foundation which has lasted for over a century.

William Dixon, 67-year-old treasurer, is the senior member of the present lodge, having been in its service for 47 years, five of which were spent in the capacity of worshipful master.

Monday's dance was sponsored in an attempt to raise funds to be used in the construction of a new lodge hall to supplant the one that was destroyed by fire several years ago. The new hall is planned tentatively to be erected on the site of the old one. Construction probably will begin in the spring.

Worshipful Master Frederick Hie of L. O. L. No. 853, Bailleboro, declared Monday night that his lodge also is planning the construction of a new hall. If funds are available construction will take place this year. The building will be 36 by 70 feet and capable of accommodating dances, fowl suppers and plays. It will be the largest community hall in the Bailleboro district.

Music for the entertainment Monday evening was provided by the Millbrook Serenaders. Following the dance, luncheon was served. The party continued until the early hours of the morning and featured round and square dancing.

Shrewd Buyers make this choice

Not every buyer is a man.

In many a family, the wife keeps the budget and guards the finances.

And when this is true, in so many cases the fuel chosen is Hamco Coke. A woman is shrewd enough to seek true Value for her money.

Hamco Coke cuts down the fuel bills without sacrificing one iota of quality. With a minimum of trouble, it provides a steady heat which warms every corner of the house on zero days.

Thousands have proved that "Coke will heat your home at a lower cost than other hard fuel."

HAMILTON BY-PRODUCT COKE OVENS, LIMITED HAMILTON, CANADA

if you want quicker heat in the morning—a steadier warmth all day—choose Hamco Coke.

if you want no dust or soot; fewer ashes to carry out and a lighter load on the shovel—choose Hamco Coke.

HAMCO Dustless COKE

Gives more heat Costs less money

MORE THAN 88% OF COKE IS HEAT-PRODUCING CARBON

Coke is not a new product. It was manufactured in China some 2,000 years ago and is now a favored fuel in almost every civilized country in the world.

Coke is a natural, not an artificial fuel. It is made from coal by simply heating the coal to such a degree that the smoke-producing element is driven off in the form of gas and tar oils.

This is known as the "volatile matter" which forms 30% of the content of coal but scarcely exists in coke.

Only 82% of bituminous coal is fixed carbon, while coke has more than 88%.

That is why there is less waste in coke—why it produces such an intense heat so quickly and maintains it so well.

Coke is not a substitute for so-called hard fuel—but is a modern fuel to be judged on its own merits. Thousands prefer it to any other fuel—irrespective of cost!

INQUIRY IS HELD INTO NORWOOD FIRE BY FIRE MARSHAL

First Time Court Of Inquiry Be Held In City In Over Ten Years

TRIAL EVIDENCE RE-TOLD

Possibility of further action by the Crown in connection with fires which broke out in the home of Henry Kavanagh in Norwood on August 31 last year was implied in the holding of a further inquiry into the circumstances of the affair by Fire Marshal W. J. Scott here Tuesday afternoon. The Court of Inquiry was the first of its nature to be held in this city in the past ten years.

Henry Kavanagh was tried here on a charge of arson in connection with the fire at the recent General sessions of the Peace and was acquitted by the jury. The evidence adduced at the inquiry paralleled closely that obtained at the trial. Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., conducted the examinations.

Evidence Retold

The story of the event was pieced together through the testimony of W. L. Clairmont, investigator for the Fire Marshal's Department, and Fred Vass, Fire Underwriters' investigator, who visited the scene.

Inspector Clairmont said he found evidence that two fires had been started at separate points on the ground floor of the house and mentioned the possibility that a third fire had been set upstairs.

Kenneth Kavanagh repudiated a statement to the investigators which he had signed shortly after the fire. In the statement he had maintained his brother, Henry, was last in the house but yesterday he admitted that his brother had not entered the house on the occasion in question immediately before the outbreak of the fire. He admitted he was the only one to have entered.

Changes Story

He said he made the false statement when the inspectors urged him to make up a good story to save himself from blame. Both Inspector Clairmont and Inspector Vass took the box to deny that they had in any way suggested the contents of the statement or offered him any inducement in making the statement.

"Do you still say you were the only one in the house immediately before the fire broke out?" Fire Marshal Scott asked Kenneth Kavanagh.

"Yes."

"Do you realize the position it puts you in?"

"Yes."

"If the fires were incendiary they must have been set by some one and you were the only one in the house."

"I was the only one in the house and they must have been set but there were no fires in the house when I came out."

Addressing Mr. McElderry, Fire Marshal Scott concluded the inquiry. He said from the evidence it was apparent to him the fires in the house were of incendiary origin. It was also indicated that Henry Kavanagh was not responsible for setting them, he said. He asked Mr. McElderry to consider the matter of whether or not further action by the Crown should be taken in the matter.

PREPARING FOR CONCERT.

This column was in error when it said in Tuesday's issue that the Peterborough Orchestral Society's orchestra would take part in the program when the famous Mendelssohn Choir visits Peterborough. As a matter of fact the orchestra is hard at work on the music for its next concert, the third of the series, which is to be given next month. The program to be offered by the Mendelssohn Choir when it sings in St. Paul's in March will be such a complete demonstration of the ability of Dr. Fricker's organization to handle all kinds of choral music that there would be no opportunity to include any other contributions.

The Rambling REPORTERS

RECORDING MACHINES.

Shorthand recording machines of the type used by court recorders at the famed Hauptmann trial made their appearance in the Peterborough Court Room for the first time at the Fire Marshal's inquiry on Tuesday. Displacing the traditional pen and pad and the Pitman and Gregg systems used by most court reporters seen here, two machines, used alternately, did the work silently and speedily. The operator worked with apparent ease, using a touch system which enabled him to watch the procedure as he worked.—C.P.K.

WANT FOOT RESTS

A suggestion that the 70-year-old desks at which numerous generations of County Councillors have sat during their weighty deliberations three times each year in the County Council Chambers be scrapped in favor of more modern furniture was given but brief consideration by the Council today.

"What would be do with all these pretty knobs?" asked one member, referring to the ornate and obsolete trimmings on the tops of the desks.

"The new ones might not be the right height for resting our feet," Reeve Charles Tanner of Lakefield said. "We've got used to these."

And that seemed to settle it.—C.P.K.

ROBERT J. KIDD NAMED PRESIDENT CEMETERY BOARD

Little Lake Cemetery Company Holds Its 87th Annual Meeting

INCOME IS LOWERED

The eighty-sixth annual meeting of the Little Lake Cemetery Company was held in the board room of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company on Monday, when reports for the year 1936 were presented. The directors' report, read by the president, R. J. Kidd, was as follows:

"In June last William James, who had been your superintendent for almost twenty years was compelled on account of ill-health to resign his position. It was with feelings of deep regret that we parted with him as he was a faithful servant, and a friend to the many persons who for years had consulted him in connection with work on their lots in the cemetery.

"C. Frank Kitney was appointed to succeed Mr. James, and from the very favorable manner in which he has taken hold of his duties, we believe he also will prove to be a capable officer.

"There were seventeen lots put under perpetual care last year, for which $2,970 was paid to the company. This makes the total amount left with the company since we first assumed perpetual care of lots $12,435.11.

"Since our last report we have increased our bond holdings by $6,300 with moneys received from sale of lots, trust funds, etc.

"Our income from interest on bonds amounted to $5,358.72, all of which was used along with receipts from other sources to meet the ordinary expenses of maintaining the grounds in good condition.

"On account of the lower interest rates now payable on bonds our income from this source will be less for the future. We should therefore strive each year to increase the amount of bonds held if we are to receive the same amount of interest as at present."

Financial Statement.

The financial statement read by the secretary, Felix Brownscombe showed receipts of $11,674.63, made up as follows: Interest on investments, $5,358.72; care of lots, digging graves, greenhouse sales, etc., $6,315.91. The expenses totalled $12,322.32, of which $1,211 was spent on perpetual care lots, $1,265.30 cutting grass, $1,434.57 greenhouse wages, $3,511.36 upkeep of grounds, $1,367.31 repairing roads, walks and drains, $1,790.80 office expenses, and $1,741.96 incidentals, allowing a loss of $647.69 on the year's operations.

The assets of the company amount to $8274,551.85, of which $118,678.44 is invested in Government and Municipal bonds; $139,080.71, value of unsold lots; $13,956.40 other real estate; and $2,836.30 bank balance, etc.

The liabilities are $42,435.11 trust funds, and $700.02 sundries, leaving a surplus of $231,416.72.

COLLECTION MADE OUTSIDE LIMITS

Property Committee Plans Check-Up On Work Of Garbage Collectors

Reports that city garbage collectors are straying slightly from the limits of their routes to collect garbage from residences just outside the city boundary lines are to be investigated, according to a decision of the Property Committee of the City Council at a meeting last evening. Such outside residents must make arrangements with the committee if they wish their garbage collected, it was said.

The suggestion that collectors may be accepting independent sums in payment for the services was voiced. Many of the residents who have located themselves just outside the city boundaries have done so for the purpose of avoiding city taxes and should not be allowed the benefits of the city taxpayer, it was said.

Complaints that rats were overrunning cellars in the district of the Rogers street city dump have been given attention, Chairman Malcolm McIntyre reported. Refuse placed on the dump had been improperly levelled and encouraged the breeding of rats but the trouble has now been remedied, he said.

The Property Committee agreed to place prices on more than 300 lots which have come into possession of the city, mostly through tax claims, in recent years. Persons interested in purchasing any of these lots will be able to apply at the City Hall and obtain the prices. It is understood that frequent bargains will be made available on condition that the buyer intends to build immediately on the property.

ALD. W. STOCKER IS RE-ELECTED HEAD BOARD OF HEALTH

Need For Expansion Of Peterborough's Health Services Urged By M.O.H.

LICENSE IS RENEWED

Alderman Walter Stocker was re-elected to the chairmanship of the Board of Health as the board convened for its first meeting of the year in the City Hall Tuesday evening. Aldermen James Dutton and Malcolm McIntyre, the two new members to the Board, were mover and seconder for the veteran's return to the post.

The case of a distributor of milk in the city whose vendor's license was suspended after repeated warnings by Medical Officer of Health Dr. G. Murray Fraser concerning the source of the milk, was reported by Dr. Fraser. The producer from whom the vendor purchased his milk, a resident of Smith Township, maintained conditions incompatible with the Board's sanitary regulations and refused to make permanent correction, it was reported. The vendor was given a license renewal when he switched to an approved source for his supply, Dr. Fraser related.

The Queen Mary Isolation Hospital has been re-opened for care of a patient with scarlet fever, Dr. Fraser reported. A nurse has been obtained for care of the patient for the 28 days required.

The need for expansion in Peterborough's health services was again urged by Dr. Fraser as he reported further for December.

$30 a Day.

"Only nine cases of communicable disease were reported, four of which were tuberculosis. Three of these cases were acute, while the fourth was one of long standing, the reporting of which had been previously neglected. There are now twenty-four residents of Peterborough in sanatoria. The municipality is responsible for twenty at a cost of $1.50 per diem. As the length of stay necessary for cure is a matter of months and frequently years, it will be realized that the burden on the city is a heavy one.

"It must also be realized that if the burden is to be lightened, adequate measures of prevention must be instituted as soon as possible. The methods at present practised in the prevention of tuberculosis consist in isolation of the source of the disease, i.e., the active cases and examination of all contacts to determine which are infected. Only by finding these cases before the disease has reached a dangerous stage may we hope to check its progress.

"By careful examination and re-examination of all contacts we gradually eliminate the healthy cases and institute treatment for those unfortunate enough to be infected. In the course of time, spread of the disease is restricted to a minimum and the incidence of cases is reduced. Tuberculosis is a disease in which preventive measures are most effective and in which it can be demonstrated that money spent in preventative is an excellent investment. It is my opinion in the near future to enlarge on this phase of health activity. In the meantime, the question deserves the earnest consideration of your board.

"A physical examination of members of the Fire Department was completed and all members were found to be in good health."

COUNTY'S SURPLUS AROUND $3,000

John Clark, Reeve Of Galway, Resigns From Road Committee

Peterborough County has finished the year with a balance on hand for the first time in some years past, Retiring Warden James Gifford reminded the County Council as he relinquished the chair to his successor, Roy Brown of Burleigh and Anstruther, Tuesday afternoon. The balance approximates $3,000.

Mr. Gifford congratulated the new county leader on his election and commended the fact that the Burleigh and Anstruther municipality is to have its turn at representation in the Warden's chair. T. G. Eastland of Burleigh was the last reeve from either of the combined townships to hold the office, serving as Warden in 1902.

Warden Brown has enjoyed successive terms as Reeve of Burleigh and Anstruther since 1933.

The open session was brief. The new Warden was sworn to his office by County Solicitor E. A. Peck and, donning the Warden's gown, he took charge of the session.

Clark Resigns.

John Clark, Reeve of Galway and Cavendish, tendered his resignation from the County Road Committee in accordance with an understanding which had been agreed upon in order that no objection would stand in the way of Reeve Brown's choice as Warden. If he were to remain at the post, the ex-officio membership of the warden on the committee would leave the impression that the northern portion of the county was over-represented, he said.

Immediately following the reading of communications by Clerk Batten, the Council adjourned.

CHURCH PLANNING SILVER JUBILEE

Vestry Meetings Held By St. George's And St. Mark's Congregations

The Rev. T. S. Gault, presided at the recent annual vestry meeting of St. George's Church. The meeting opened with prayer. Minutes of the last vestry meeting were read by Mrs. J. McWilliams who was re-appointed as vestry clerk.

Rev. Mr. Gault thanked the wardens and members of the congregation for their faithful and loyal support during his incumbency here and hoped it would continue during the present year.

An encouraging financial report was tendered by Mr. Styles, people's warden, while A. Knott, rector's warden gave a report bearing on the requirements for the current year, when the church is to observe its silver jubilee.

Mr. Knott was re-appointed as rector's warden for the fourth year, while Mr. Styles declined the nomination as people's warden and Gordon Ray was elected in his place.

Financial and secretarial reports were read as follows: Sunday school: Mrs. F. Dorrell; A.Y.P.A.—Clarence Hopkins; Ladies' Guild: Mrs. R. King; Men's Club: A. Sims; Senior W.A.—Mrs. R. Arnott; Choir—Mrs. R. Pilling.

In recognition of his valuable services as people's warden and to mark his retirement from that office Mr. Styles was presented with a gift on behalf of the vestry. The presentation was made by A. Cuff, Mrs. Styles was also the recipient of a small token of the esteem and appreciation in which she and her husband are held.

Lay Delegates to Synod were named as follows: A. Cuff, G. Martin; auditors—A. Cuff and J. Branson.

After a hearty vote of thanks had been extended by the rector to Mrs. King for her services as organist, Mrs. Andrews moved a similar vote to the choir and choir-leader for their support and co-operation in the musical part of the services.

Refreshments were served by members of the Ladies' Guild.

St. Mark's, Otonabee

A representative gathering of the congregation of St. Mark's Church, Otonabee attended the annual vestry meeting held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Collins recently. The Rev. T. S. Gault occupied the chair. Mrs. Frank Graystock was elected vestry clerk. The wardens presented their financial report for the past year showing a balanced budget in church expenses. The allotments were not paid in full however. A revival of interest in the Sunday School was urged by several members. The Women's Auxiliary reported a helpful and successful year's activities. The Cemetery Committee was encouraged by the splendid interest taken by all sections of the community in the upkeep of the cemetery grounds, which are now in good shape. The vestry voted to increase the price of cemetery lots. The officers elected for the coming year were as follows: Rector's warden, John Collins; people's warden, G. W. Robinson; president of the W.A., Mrs. G. W. Robinson; organist, Mrs. John Collins; cemetery board, R. Dixon, F. Graystock; lay delegates to synod, R. Dixon, F. Graystock.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Collins entertained the members to supper.

PASTEURIZED MILK WILL BE DEBATED BY CITY COUNCIL

Compulsory Pasteurization Is Recommended by Board Of Health

URGED BY M.O.H.

The question of whether Peterborough is to follow the lead of the 35 other municipalities in Ontario which have adopted compulsory pasteurization of milk during recent years, is to come out for open discussion in the City Council as the result of a recommendation by the Board of Health Tuesday evening. The Board urged that the step be taken in this city as an urgent health measure.

Medical Officer of Health Dr. G. Murray Fraser urged the recommendation, declaring it is the only means by which the purity and safety of Peterborough's milk can be guaranteed and the only means of certain protection against epidemics spread through the agency of milk. Of the milk now distributed in the city, 78 per cent is pasteurized and 22 per cent is raw milk. The pasteurized product comes from five pasteurizing plants and there are 21 distributors of raw milk.

Alderman Malcolm McIntyre voiced opposition, suggesting hardships for the raw milk producers and distributors will result. He suggested that the consumer would suffer from an increase in price.

Dr. Fraser gave the opinion there would be no likelihood of any price disturbance resulting, pointing to the fact that the great majority of communities where pasteurized milk is a necessity have lower milk prices today than Peterborough. The price of milk is controlled by the Milk Control Board in accordance with local agreements reached between the producers and distributors, he said.

Mayor George Macdonald suggested that a suitable time interval be provided in order that present raw milk distributors can make adjustments without hardship. The Board agreed that six months should be allowed. Chairman Walter Stocker stated that milk dealers stand to lose nothing in being forced to handle pasteurized milk inasmuch as the profit spread is slightly greater.

The Board passed the resolution by Alderman James Dutton seconded by Dr. Fraser, Alderman McIntyre dissenting.

Dentist Unable To Pull His Own Tooth Goes To Police Station To Get Help

A policeman's duties are many and varied, but it is rarely that one is asked to pull a tooth at four o'clock in the morning, as happened here.

Dr. W. N. Hayes, a dentist, developed a terrific toothache about one o'clock Monday morning. He tried every means at his disposal to ease the pain, but without success. At three o'clock, after sleepless tossing, he decided to drive down to his office and extract the offending molar himself. He managed to "freeze" the gum but could not get a grip on the tooth with the forceps. He glanced up and down the deserted street in search of someone who might help him. The main street was empty.

In desperation he took the forceps, jumped into his car and drove to the police station just as the clock struck four, when the police shift changes. He explained his trouble, but the officers hesitated to tackle the job.

Just then Constable Menzies, weight 310 pounds, who was previously a blacksmith, walked in and volunteered for the work, as the intense pain was evident in the face of the dentist. One mighty yank and the tooth came free, as neatly as any professional might have done the job. The dentist related afterwards that in less than an hour he was fast asleep.

Seeking Shelter In Barn At Springville One Of Life's Derelicts Is Picked Up

One of life's derelicts picked up by Provincial Police when he sought shelter in a barn at Springville, found his way into the City Police Station on Tuesday night, but questioning failed to reveal the aged man's nationality.

The little old man, clad in tattered garments obviously leads the life of a tramp. He was searched then placed in the cells to be released at daybreak to continue his wanderings.

His ragged pockets disgorged among other things: A shaving brush, razor and soap; a watch; a round tin box full of buttons; a pipe and tobacco, and some small change.

The little bent figure with the bowed grey head submitted meekly to being searched by Provincial Constable David Silvester according to regulations, and only made an exclamation when the officer eventually found a small tin box containing the old man's meagre financial resources.

"Pennies," he ejaculated tremulously giving expression to his meagre knowledge of the English language.

Offered a cigarette he declined. "Me no like. Burn whiskers," he said, indicating his bushy grey moustache.

Police booked the transient wanderer in the name of Constantine Rabbit, but the name he gave sounded more like Angora rabbit and his looks did not belie the nickname.

WRITERS COMPLETE BASEBALL'S HALL OF FAME LINEUP

Lajoie, Second Base, Speaker, Outfielder, and Young, Pitcher, Join Five Other Immortals

EIGHT NOW INCLUDED

By Sid Feder
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, Janu. 20.—An outfield, pitching department and middle of the infield for baseball's all-time Hall of Fame are complete today.

From the honor roll of the diamond's immortals, baseball writers of America have selected eight players whose names easily recall the most stirring performances the game has ever seen.

As they line up mythically under the bronze name placques at the birthplace of the game in Cooperstown, N.Y., they are:—

Second base—Napoleon Lajoie.
Shortstop—Honus Wagner.
Outfielder—Tris Speaker.
Outfielder—Ty Cobb.
Outfielder—Babe Ruth.
Pitcher—Christy Mathewson.
Pitcher —Cy Young.
Pitcher—Walter Johnson.

Three Join List

Lajoie, Speaker and Young join the others as the results of the latest poll of the Baseball Writers' Association, announced last night. The other five are the "Original Immortals," named in the first of the annual polls a year ago.

Lajoie, the speedy second baseman, who compiled a .338 lifetime batting average for 15 years in the Big Time, topped the poll with 169 votes of a possible 201. Speaker, often nominated as baseball's greatest centre fielder, polled 165, and Young, great iron-man right-hander of the '90's, had 153.

All three are still living, Lajoie at Daytona Beach, Fla., Speaker in Cleveland, and Young on a farm near Peoli, Ohio.

Lajoie's major league career carried him from Philadelphia Phillies to the Athletics, to Cleveland and back to the Athletics before it ended in 1917. Brilliant both on defence and offense, the daring Frenchman compiled a lifetime fielding average of .966 to go with his unusually high batting mark for that period in baseball history.

20 Years for Speaker

Star of three world championship teams in Boston and Cleveland, Speaker's diamond span stretched from 1906 to 1926, including seven seasons with the Red Sox and 11 years with the Indians. As manager of Cleveland in 1920, he brought the only world's title the Indians ever held. Noted chiefly for his fielding, along with his left-handed slugging ability, "Spoke" has had few peers in outfield play. His top batting years were 1916, with .386; 1920, with .388, and 1925, with .389.

Young stands alone as the Number One iron-man pitcher of all time. He was up there more years, pitched more games and won more victories than any other hurler in diamond history. In 22 years with the old Cleveland Nationals, St. Louis Nationals, Red Sox, Indians and Boston Nationals, he posted 511 victories in 874 games. His records show three no-hit performances and an all-time high of 23 straight scoreless innings.

Central School Team Defeats Queen Mary

Rallying strongly in the final five minutes of play, Central defeated Queen Mary 4-1 in a School Hockey League game at All Saints' rink last evening. It was a postponed game from last Saturday and a smart, exciting affair. The winners were trailing from the first frame, but went to town for four fast goals in the dying minutes of the fray as they ganged up, and the winners' defence appeared careless. Ackford scored in the first inning. Ascott tied it up in the third, then R. Clarke got two neat ones in a row, with Hogg scoring the last markers. D. Loomis of Central was hurt; he continued play but was not as effective as usual.

SCOTTISH SLUGGER WINS 'FLY' TITLE

Little Benny Lynch Outpoints Montana In 15-Round Match

LONDON, Jan. 19.—(AP).— The busy fists of Scotland's little slugger, Benny Lynch, have just about settled the world's flyweight championship muddle.

Thirteen thousand fans saw Lynch decisively outpoint San Francisco's transplanted Filipino, Small Montana, over the 14-round route last night to win the title that has been claimed by half a dozen fighters off and on since Pancho Vila died 10 years ago.

Lynch, British champion and recognized in England as world's titleholder, scaled 111 pounds, six ounces for the battle. Montana, recognized as titleholder by the National Boxing Association of the United States since his victory over Midget Wolgast of Philadelphia, weighed 107 pounds, 10 ounces.

Putting on a typical exhibition of slugger vs. boxer, with Lynch in the former role, the two had the fans out of their seats throughout the fight.

Lynch had most on the better of the going in all but the last two heats, when Montana shifted to a heavy-hitting body attack. But even then, he was unable to make the rugged Scot give ground, for Lynch tore in, and slowed Montana up with a pair of hard right crosses.

The hardest blow of the fight came in the sixth. Lynch let go a right hand smash but Montana took it flush on the jaw and still kept fighting, although it drove him hard into the ropes.

KING OF WINTER SPORTS
Ski-ing

Coating first with a base wax.

21—SKI WAX

The purpose of ski wax is to so condition the running surface of the ski, that running turning and to a certain extent climbing, may be accomplished more easily. With proper waxing the skis may be used on any condition of snow and the pleasure of the sport greatly increased. It is therefore important that every skier should know something about ski wax.

Generally speaking two types of wax are used. First a coating of "base wax" is applied and then a coating of "running wax." Proper application of base wax fills the pores of the wood and this impregnation resists the absorption of moisture. The base wax also provides a surface which will hold the running wax for a longer time than if it were applied directly to the wood. Any good base wax will serve the average skier for all snow conditions.

Three kinds of running wax can be obtained; for dry snow, for medium snow and for wet snow. The Swiss manufactured liquid waxes are becoming popular in Switzerland and Austria as a base wax for all conditions and have proved themselves very fast. Solid or semi-solid waxes however are still more generally used.

In addition to the type of waxes mentioned above, there is also a type designed for climbing as well as running. This wax however is more difficult to apply and is used principally for cross-country racing.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(C.J.P.)

IT IS only a little better than a week away—the big Winter Sports Carnival here. All that is needed to make it a memorable occasion in Peterborough is a foot or two of snow. Everything else is under control and the show promises to go over with a bang that will be heard all over the Province. Midland, Collingwood and other centres for these carnivals have had tough luck this year, snow being an absent quantity, but we should surely get enough in another week. If so, this will be a mighty big affair, bringing in hundreds of skiers, skaters and enthusiasts from all over. Even as far away as Montreal. This is no exaggeration—just paste this item in your chapeau and see if the local carnival isn't a mighty big thing. IF THERE IS SNOW

TWO JUNIOR City Hockey League games are listed for the Brock St. rink this evening. St. Peter's play All Saints at eight o'clock, while Canucks and Monarchs tangle at nine. The ice should be good and the games full of ginger. Four well-matched teams make up this circuit and some keen contests can be looked for. Half a dozen players in this loop will be with the local O.H.A. junior Colts next winter, not a doubt in the world.

* * * * * *

OUR COLTS play in Tweed tonight. This will be their fourth game of the season, the second straight in Tweed. The latter outfit gave the young Petes quite a tussle there last week but the Colts came home on top by a 6-4 count, and they hope to repeat. A Peterborough win will just about cinch the locals a playoff berth, while a Tweed loss will practically eliminate 'em—giving them but an outside mathematical chance. Shorty Burgess and Bill Calladine will handle the team tonight, and we expect the full lineup to be available.

* * * * * *

THIS IS what Belleville said yesterday: "Those who saw the Fliers-Belleville game last week will tell you the Fliers can surely portion it out and also take it. Well, the Petes were never known to back down from the tough going, so don't look for any pink tea party when these teams tangle Tuesday here. According to reports from both camps, the clubs are quite optimistic and predict victory. We look for a game with plenty of penalties as both the Petes and Fliers like to lay on the gad, all of which will make a tough night's work for the referee. Lalonde and Partridge are the 'knock 'em down and drag 'em out' type, while Williamson and Weir of the Petes also thrive in the rough going."

* * * * * *

AND THIS is what happened: The Fliers bombed the Petes, 7 to 3, and certainly strafed 'em with the locals shy a man. Furthermore, it was decidedly no pink tea party. There were plenty of penalties, too, but not nearly enough. Yeah, you wouldn't find a more bitter, bruising and cutting contest up and down the N.H.L. in five and a half weeks of travelling! The Airmen were main offenders—and drew most penalties—but the locals weren't exactly lily-white, either. The teams decided to feud from the start and they more than roughed it up all through. Fliers got a big start with a 3-0 lead in the first, but play was quite even and keen the rest of the way. A costly local penalty, which handed the Fliers three goals in the middle chukker, cinched them the tilt.

* * * * * *

OUR GANG did okay, considering it was their second game of the season but the fourteenth for the homasters. Those in the Belleville press box agreed that there'll be some lovely scraps yet between these teams this season and that the Petes should about hold their own. The Fliers are smart but, then, they're in midseason form. Husky, fast, rough and used to each other. The Petes weren't outclassed by much, at that, and will likely beat them here. Our first line was most effective last night, but we had no particular stars. Everyone worked hard and gave as good as they got from the hard-hitting Airport aggregation. The fans loved this battle, the big crowd keeping up a continuous roar at the rough, speedy action.

* * * * * *

WE GOT talking to Lowrey after the tilt. He is centre for the R.C.A.F. team and thought we hailed from Belleville. "It was a dirty game," he said, "and the referee let it get out of hand. Wouldn't have taken much to start a free-for-all." Our squad panned Referee Smith plenty. We take a back seat to nobody when it comes to going after crooked or incompetent arbiters, but didn't think Smith could be blamed for anything except letting them play rough from the start—and failing to check 'em. He permitted a "blood and thunder" style, with everything going, and it doggone near got out of control. He missed some, but who doesn't? We will go on record now and predict that no referee in the next five Fliers-Petes' games this season will keep the bitter feeling of the rival players from cropping up regularly—and you'll see more than one fist fight between 'em yet!

* * * * * *

GIRLS' BASKETBALL games this Friday eve in the Y.W.C.A. are: George St. Juniors vs. C.G.E. at 7.45, "Y" Quakers vs. Marconi Radio Seniors at 8.15, Westclox Juniors vs. St. John's at 9.00, and C.G.E. Seniors vs. Westclox at 9.30. Teams are warned to be on the floor on time—facing a default if more than five minutes late, without having a first-rate reason. The lasses were maneuvering last week in opening games, testing the strength of rivals and watching other squads in action. They'll have an idea now of the class of opponents and will go to work to get an early-season lead banked up against a rainy March day. Strikes us that the final senior tussle of the evening Friday should be closerthanthis and showing more action than a mail-carrier at Christmas.

* * * * * *

DESE, DEM and dose: Central rammed in four goals in the last five minutes to get a 4-1 school hockey nod over Queen Mary last p.m. . . . . King Edward School soccer team will be banquetted at six Friday night . . . . Senior City Hockey League contests Thursday night at the Brock: Millbrook vs. Westclox at seven, Lakefield vs. Outboard Marines at eight, Bewdley vs. Mayfairs at nine . . . . One of the Petes said last night: "We had to carry our sticks high this game for protection, or get our heads cut off!" . . . . Our gang had Lalonde (towering and rough defenceman) nearly crazy, sizzling his ears with scalding remarks every time they passed him . . . . When will that Bewdley protest on Whitton of Lakefield be settled? . . . . Trenton town team is here Friday while Belleville and the Fliers tangle the same night . . . . Maybe we'll get caught up on sleep Sunday.

RANGERS BATTLE CANADIENS TO TIE

1 To 1 Score Makes Ninth Time In Ten Starts Both Outfits Have Deadlocked

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (C.P.). — Montreal Canadiens fought New York Rangers to a 1-1 overtime tie in a National Hockey League match last night before 12,000 fans.

The deadlock enabled Rangers to draw two points ahead of the third-place Boston Bruins in the United States division, and sent Habitants seven points up on the idle Montreal Maroons, at the top of the Canadian section.

Little Auriel Joliat, ageing but brilliant left-winger of the Frenchmen, sent his team into an early lead midway through the opening period as he slammed a hot backhander between Davie Kerr's legs on a double relay from another pair of veterans, Howie Morenz and Johnny Gagnon.

Rangers were unable to get the equalizer until early in the third session when pinch-hitting Butch Keeling smacked a double pass from Murray Murdoch and Phil Watson past Wilf Cude in the Canadian nets.

An overtime period, opening at the smoking pace of the regular play and then slowing down, left the deadlock unbroken. It was the ninth overtime game in the last ten starts between the two evenly-matched teams. The Canadiens hold a slight edge in victories.

Rangers — Goal, Kerr; defence, Heller, Coulter; centre, Watson; wings, Keeling, Murdoch; subs, Pratt, Shibicky, N. Colville, Boucher, Dillon, Cooper, M. Colville, Patrick, Krol.

Smith And Convey Climb Into Third Place With 28 Points Each

CHURCH TOP "BADMAN"

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 20 (A.P.). — Art Jackson graduated from the Syracuse Stars last week to the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, but to-day he still held top scoring place in the International - American Hockey League.

The player most likely to succeed Jackson as the loop's foremost scorer, it appeared from the official statistics released to-day, was his teammate, Jack Markle, who had 30 points to Jackson's 33.

Feature of the past week's individual scoring race climb of Philadelphia's Clint Smith and Eddie Convey of Syracuse into a tie for third place with 28 points apiece. They displaced Eddie Keating of Providence, whose 27 points left him fourth on the list.

Bryan Hextall of Philadelphia has more goals than anyone in the league, 16, but he had been favored with only 10 assists. Jackson has 15 goals and 18 assists.

Jack Church of Syracuse, who yields to none in incurring the wrath of the referees, boosted his penalty total during the past week to 28 minutes and appeared to have the league "bad-man" title clinched for the season.

Fliers Defeat Petes In Bruising Battle At Belleville Arena

Trenton Team Cops 7-3 Verdict Over Locals In Exciting Intermediate "A" Game, Scoring Three Goals When Petes Short a Man

ROUGH, TOUGH AND NASTY

In a bitter, bruising battle in Belleville last night, the Trenton Fliers took a 7-3 victory over the Petes before over 1200 roaring fans. Three fast goals, popped in as the Fliers ganged up with the Petes a man short in the second frame, cinched the verdict for the Airmen. It was a fast, rugged game throughout with both sides dishing up a rough brand of play and fighting it out on even terms after the first frame.

The homesters scored three goals in the opening inning while blanking the Buckland outfit. But they only outscored the Petes, 4 to 3, in an even middle chapter—and got three of those with the locals shy a man—and neither team could counter in the hectic third heat. Nine penalties were dished out, six to the Fliers, and still the refereeing was decidedly lenient. Several players on each team feuded all through and there was tripping, boarding, elbowing, hocking and butt-ending—with the Fliers the aggressors.

The victors deserved the win, but by a narrower margin than the final score, on their condition. They were in mid-season form, skating fast, passing accurately and picking the corner with deadly shooting. Their power play with the Petes shorthanded was the turning point, the ganging being deadly, whereas the losers failed to cash in when Trenton had a man penalized. The crowd, 75 per cent for the winners, cheered steadily at the hot going.

ALL WORK HARD.

None of the Petes starred in particular, though Vitarelli and Creighton appeared the hardest workers. Everyone else on the team gave all he had, and, after a shaky start in the opening period, they held their own with a squad that has played 14 games already this season and has imported players from Camp Borden and Ottawa. Clarke had little chance on those that beat him, the defence checked hard and the forwards all skated miles from beginning to end. The first forward line figured in the Petes' scoring, All Trenton looked smart, especially their forward lines. Gibson, Lowrey, the McNeeleys and Cowley were outstanding. The defence were tough.

Play was fast from the start, with the Aviators showing an early edge. Lalonde broke down the side and beat Clarke with an angle drive within five minutes and then Cowley tallied in close on Ernie McNeeley's assist. Right away, the same pair combined again to score, McNeeley bulging the twine. Creighton was robbed by Gibson and, when going went off for tripping, five Petes swarmed up and had the goalie diving to save, and his teammates shooting down the ice to relieve the pressure till the bell.

Hectic Second Frame.

The Petes turned on the heat in the wild and woolly second frame and easily held their own on play. Burton scored early on assists in close from Vitarelli and Calladine. McDougall was robbed at one end of the rink and Cowley at the other. The fans kept yelling as the pace got hotter and then Lowrey took Lalonde's pass at pointblank range to notch another. The Petes had them shooting down the ice again as the second line pressed hard, with Lecompte finally being chased for throwing the puck away from his own goal. Calladine missed the net on a penalty shot, but the same player later scored by circling the net fast. Vitarelli was waved off for charging, and the Fliers ganged up in deadly style to score three last ones. Ernie McNeeley got the first on Lalonde's pass. Then Cowley took a pass from Eric McNeeley to score. Lecompte got the next in close just before Ned got back. Late in the frame, Calladine scored on assists from Vitarelli and Burton.

Play was hot and plenty rough in the third, being fairly even, with no goals scored. Lalonde was chased for boarding with Willimson later going for tripping. The rival goalies were good as each squad ganged up in turn. Partridge and Gardner were chased next for roughing it up on the boards. A Magee-Weir combination came close but the puck hit the goalie. Magee was gated next for tripping and Partridge missed the cage on a penalty shot. Vitarelli was robbed in close as the Petes kept pressing and making it a rip-roaring fight, with both sides using high sticks and stiff checks. Ernie McNeeley climbed the wall for boarding late in the canto but the visitors could not bury the rubber in the pimp again before the gong.

The teams:

Petes—Goal, Clarke; defence, Weir and Magee; centre, Calladine; wings, Vitarelli and Burton; alternates, Gardner, Williamson, Coughlin, McDougall and Creighton.

Fliers—Goal, Gibson; defence, Lalonde and Partridge; centre, Lowrey; wings, Ernie McNeeley and Cowley; alternates, Lecompte, Eric McNeeley, Laing, Beck and Corling-Kelly.

Lake Front Squad Pile Up 4 In First Period—Seven Penalties

MADOC, Jan. 20.—Belleville and Marmora met on Madoc Arena on Tuesday night, Belleville defeating Marmora 8-3.

Belleville scored the first counter on a solo effort by Howie. During the first period the play was largely around the Marmora nets. Semark scored for Belleville from an assist by Howie. Belleville tallied again when McGuire made a lone rush and beat Callery for the third time in succession. Marmora boys came into the limelight for the first time when Porter succeeded in beating Hinton in the Belleville nets from a scramble in front of the net. G. Goyer tallied again for Belleville unassisted, making the score at the end of the period 4-1 for Belleville. Referee Ware of Madoc handed out two penalties to Eithier and Hammett against Belleville, and to Smith from Marmora.

Smith of Marmora received a penalty and also Eithier of Belleville during the first minutes of play. Belleville scored when McGuire made a lone rush. Marmora followed by counting when Kouri tallied after Bourridge had carried the rubber through the defence. Belleville tallied two more counts when H. Day beat Callery from close in on a pass-out from the corner, and again when Neill of Marmora, while clearing the puck, pushed it into his own net, making the final score 8-3. Penalties in this period were handed out, three to Belleville and one to Marmora.

SMYTHE WEARS TAILS

Bruins Wind Up Affair By Starting Free-For-All For The Fans

BOSTON, Jan. 20 (AP).—Hopelessly beaten, Boston Bruins turned a 6-2 defeat into a fiasco by staging an unconvincing gang fight with Toronto Maple Leafs last night before a packed crowd of 15,000 at the Boston Garden.

The disorder broke out in the third period when the Leafs had a 5-1 lead with about five minutes to play. Hooley Smith started the brawling by grappling with Red Horner and, as they pulled and tugged on the ice, like a pair of tired wrestlers, several other pairs of rival players swapped painless punches. The referees worked frantically to restore order and their performances indicated they were the only participants really serious about the affair.

They imposed major penalties on Smith and Horner, as well as on Ray Getliffe and Jimmy Fowler, whose bout would have been ruled a no-contest if staged inside the ropes.

The Leafs started building their one-sided lead during the first two minutes of play when Bill Kendall, who retired with an injured shoulder during the second session, registered without assistance. This tally forced the Bruins to gamble and they left so many openings that Gordon Drillon broke through Goalie Tiny Thompson three times in a row. Two of his goals were made late in the first period and the third in the second frame.

Bill Thoms and Horner provided the other Toronto tallies and Getliffe scored both of the Boston counters.

Con. Smythe, Toronto's publicity-wise manager, made good his threat to appear at the game in formal attire. He was togged out in a cutaway coat, striped trousers, spats and a glistening top hat, and he created something of a furore as he marched to his place on the visiting team bench, to add, he said, a "much-needed touch of refinement" to professional hockey.

Another dignified touch was provided by Adams, the Bruins' president, who appeared in formal evening attire.

Boston—Goal, Thompson; defence, Portland and Shore; centre Welland; wings, Beattie and Clapper; subs., Smith, Cook, Goldsworthy, Jerwa, Hollett, O'Neil, Cowley, Sands and Getliffe.

SEDGEWICK WINS MORROW CUP OSHAWA SECOND

Twenty-Two Rinks Enter Bonspiel For Major Curling Club Trophy

RESULTS WERE CLOSE

Three Peterborough Rinks Are Amongst The Five Winners Of 'Spiel

J. H. Sedgwick's rink of Peterborough won the Morrow Trophy early this morning, with F. Michael of Oshawa second, Herb Martin of Peterborough, third; R. F. Downey, Peterborough, fourth, and H. W. Lucas of Cobourg, fifth.

Twenty-two rinks in all coming from eight clubs in the district entered the bonspiel. Each rink was required to play three games with 15 points being the high for a win and in the case of a tie the extra points counted. Sedgwick had three wins with a total of 42 points and a plus of 12; Michael had three wins with a total of 41 points and a plus of one; Martin had three wins with a total of 38 points and a plus of two; R. F. Downey two wins with a total of 38, and H. W. Lucas two wins with a total of 36 and a plus of two.

The ice stood up well throughout the day, and in the evening was in splendid shape. Only two games resulted in a tie; in the fifth draw Ray Best beat out Walter Oke, 11 to 10, while in the sixth draw Herb Martin, after being four down at the sixth, pulled up to tie R. F. Downey on the twelfth and won on the extra end and also third prize.

Personnel of the winning rinks were:

First—R. Williamson, E. Thomas, J. McWilliams and J. H. Sedgwick (skip).

Second—W. H. Karn, P. Canning, W. A. Coad, and F. Michael (skip).

Third—C. Huffman, Dr. D. W. Clark, R. Bacon, and Herb Martin (skip).

Fourth—Rev. G. S. Easton, L. I. Hamley, J. W. Richmond, and R. F. Downey (skip).

VALUATION COST COUNTY $1,702

Members Of 1937 Council Sat In Silence As Account Is Read

Members of the new 1937 County Council sat in silence as the final shot in the equalized assessment dispute was sounded at the opening Council session Tuesday afternoon. They heard Clerk Jennie Batten read out the items of the Board of Valuators' bill of costs and concluded unanimously that such disputes are definitely costly when the total was reported—$1,702.42.

The bill's items were as follows:

$331.90 to Judge Sheldon L. Smoke, remuneration and expenses.

$381.40 to Judge L. V. O'Connor, remuneration and expenses.

$230 to W. P. Morrow, remuneration and expenses.

$520.20 to Mabel E. Moore, services as recorder.

$25 to Mrs. May McGuire, stenographic services.

$180.35 to Mr. Morrow, services as registrar of deeds.

$24.57 to Mr. Morrow for expenses as secretary of the board.

One member jocularly suggested that the account be "received"—polite expression for "throw it in the wastepaper basket." But the bill was referred to the accounts committee where it will receive attention in due course.

Annual Meeting Of Millbrook Horticultural Society Elects Old Officers

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Jan. 20. — H. A. Kerr was re-elected president of the Millbrook Horticultural Society at its first annual meeting held in the Town Hall, Friday evening. Accompanying Mr. Kerr into another term of office are the following executive: first vice president, Miss Josie Sutton; second vice president, P. I. Bentley; secretary-treasurer, Miss May Attwood; directresses, Mrs. J. McKnight, Mrs. R. McCamus, Mrs. J. Armstrong, Mrs. G. Harrington and Miss May Needham.

The society which has a total membership of ninety-five persons has only been organized for an eight month period but has already done useful services toward civic beauty. Shrubs and plants have been planted in the Town Hall square and other vacant lots. The president expressed his appreciation of the faithful work of the various committees and other members and urged that an even greater interest be taken in the society's activities and the appearance of private properties. Mr. Kerr asked for the hearty support of all the members in an endeavor to continue the splendid work of the past year which is only a beginning and to enlist a larger number of citizens as members for the continuing beautification of the village. A financial statement presented by P. I. Bentley, showed a credit balance of $28.39. Expenditures during the past year amounted to $248.37. Miss D. R. Fowler and P. Stinson were the auditors and have been reinstated for another term.

Will Join O.H.S.

It was decided to pay a 2 cent affiliation fee for each member which will entitle the society to a membership in the Ontario Horticultural Society and also accord them the privilege of sending two delegates to the O.H.S. convention being held at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto on Thursday and Friday, February 18 and 19th. An announcement of the program planned for the convention was read by P. I. Bentley and Misses Josie Sutton and May Attwooll were chosen as delegates to represent the local society.

Following the business session a splendid program of local talent was presented. Introduced by the president it included a violin solo, "Listen to the Mocking Bird," Billy Kerr; vocal solo and and tap dancing number "Little Old Cross Road Store", Orville Wainman; readings, "Squire Hockin's Story", Miss Jean Burnham and "Ojistoh" by Pauline Johnson, Miss V. Ingram; vocal solo, "I Bring a Love Song", Miss Ruth Thorndyke; tap dance, Miss Margaret Russell and a piano solo "Flatipree" by Miss Mary Burnham who was also the accompanist of the evening.

Dainty refreshments were served by the executive during the social hour enjoyed at the close when cards were also a feature of the program.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S HOLIDAY

Uncle Wiggily was singing, whistling and twinkling his pink nose.

Of course, he didn't do all three things at once. If you think you can do it, just try. You may be able to whistle while you are twinkling your nose, even if it isn't pink. But just try to whistle and sing at the same time. It just can't be done.

Anyhow, Uncle Wiggily was taking turns when, all of a sudden, his wife called to him:

"Wiggy, what is that song you were whistling?"

"Oh," answered the rabbit gentleman, "that was a tune about going adventuring."

"Then I must mean the other—the song you were singing," said Mrs. Longears.

"Oh," laughed her husband, "that song goes like this." He sang:

"I am so very happy.
No matter what you say.
This is a very jolly time,
It is my birthday."

Aren't you going to do anything?" asked Nurse Jane, coming to the kitchen door after finishing the dishes.

"Not a thing," said Mr. Longears. "I do nothing on my birthday."

"Then perhaps, as you aren't going adventuring or anything like that," said Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy,

He strung the line.

"you'll do something for me."

"Right gladly I will," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Then please put up the clothesline for me," said the muskrat lady housekeeper. I am going to wash out a few things."

So Uncle Wiggily strung the line on the posts and Nurse Jane pinned some wet clothes on the line so it wouldn't catch cold and then she went to the store. Her long tail was tied in a double bow so she wouldn't step on it.

Uncle Wiggily was enjoying himself on the chesterfield when his wife called to him:

"Wiggy, if you aren't going to do anything, would you mind listening for the doorbell and telephone a while?"

"Not at all," he said. "But where are you going?"

"Oh, I'm going shopping," said Mrs. Longears. "I don't like to leave the bungalow alone, but as you are going to be home you can look after it."

Telephone Rings

"Yes, I suppose so," said Mr. Longears. He was home all alone. Nurse Jane was out, so was his wife, so were all the rabbit children. But just as Uncle Wiggily was having a nice rest the telephone rang. It was Nurse Jane speaking:

"Oh, Mr. Longears," she said. "Would you mind going out to the kitchen and turning off the gas under the applesauce. I forgot it and it may burn."

He had barely begun sitting again before his wife telephoned for him to shut her bedroom windows as she thought it was going to snow. Then Nurse Jane telephoned again, asking him to be sure and pay the milk dog when he came to collect. And then Mrs. Longears telephoned she was sending something home C.O.D. and for him to have the money ready.

After Uncle Wiggily had jumped up and down from his chair a dozen times he finally hopped off to the woods. It was the only place he could have a holiday.

CORONER'S JURY URGES CHANGE IN TRAFFIC ACT

Make It Compulsory For All Pedestrians To Walk Against Traffic

INQUEST IS HELD

At the adjourned inquest held before Chief Coroner Dr. J. C. Smith on Tuesday night, the jury returned a finding of accidental death in connection with the circumstances under which Thomas H. DeRussieu, 36-year-old unemployed married resident of Lakefield sustained mortal injuries when struck down by a motor car.

The verdict as presented to the court by L. L. Maguire, jury foreman, was worded as follows:

"It is the opinion of the jury, from evidence submitted that Thomas H. DeRussieu came to his death as a result of being struck by a car owned and driven by Ralph D. Kilborn of Lakefield, on Highway 28 about a quarter mile north of Nassau turn in the Township of Smith on the night of January 16 at about 11 o'clock p.m. The deceased died as a result of his injuries in Nicholls Hospital at seven o'clock a.m. on the ""h of January".

Ask Legislation.

A rider was added to the verdict in which the recommendation was made that the provincial government enact the necessary legislation making it compulsory for pedestrians to walk on the highway facing oncoming traffic and further that footpaths be provided for pedestrians who must use the provincial highways.

It will be recalled that another coroner's jury made a similar recommendation in recent months, in connection with a double fatality on Chemong road in which two young boys met their deaths.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., conducted examination of the eight witnesses called. The Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., was present representing the widow of the accident victim, and J. Walton Stevenson watched the interests of Mr. Kilborn, driver of the car involved.

Describing in evidence the events immediately prior to the accident Mr. Kilborn, superintendent of The Canadian Nephaline Company at Lakefield said he left Peterborough in the company of his wife some time after ten o'clock Saturday night.

Man In Front of Car.

"As I continued north beyond the Nassau turn", he testified, "I saw another car approaching in a southerly direction. As it neared me I dimmed my lights. The lights of the oncoming car remained the same. I slowed down as I always do under such circumstances and after passing the other car switched on my headlights to a full beam. As I looked ahead in the darkness there were no tail lights visible and feeling I had a clear road I started to resume speed. Just as I had put my lights up, I saw the figure of a man just to the left of the radiator cap almost in front of the car. He was so close I could only see his head and the back of his overcoat. It was necessary for me to take immediate action to try and avoid hitting the man so I swerved to the left and applied my brakes gradually. The pedestrian made no motion of recognition of his approaching danger and made no effort to avoid being hit".

Rendered Assistance.

The witness related that as he angled his car across the highway he felt the impact of DeRussieu's body and brought the car to a stop. His wife, he explained, jumped from the car and ran back down the road to render assistance.

Witness tried to restart his car, which earlier in the evening had refused to go, but found he could not. Forced to leave his car on the west side of the highway where it had come to a stop, he took a rug from the car and placed it over the injured man's body while awaiting for a passing car.

When Mr. Kilborn saw a car approaching, he related, he stood in the glare of his headlights and signalled it to a stop. The driver of the car proved to be Russel Jones of Hastings who willingly assisted in rushing the injured pedestrian to hospital.

Subsequently Mr. Kilborn said he notified police and returned with an officer to the scene of the accident. He estimated the speed of his car at the time of the accident as being "not more than 25 miles-an-hour". He said that DeRussieu was wearing a hat and coat of a light grey color almost indistinguishable from the color of the pavement.

Corroborates Evidence.

Mrs. Irene Kilborn gave evidence corroborating that of her husband in its essential details, and declared that when she was offering assistance to the stricken man she smelt a strong odour of alcohol.

Provincial Motorcycle Patrol Constable Lloyd A. McClure described the exact location of the scene of the accident, and stated that a large pool of blood on the shoulder of the road indicated the point where the injured man had lain. He found an upper set of false teeth and a shoe of the dead man in the vicinity of the fatality and also broken portions of a wine bottle.

A check-up by the officer revealed that DeRussieu had purchased some wine from a certain store in Peterborough earlier that day.

While there were no marks that definitely indicated the point of impact the officer said there were tire marks indicating that the Kilborn car had angled from east to west on the highway for a distance of 100 feet, 4 inches. He deduced from the marks that the car had been brought to a gradual stop. Brakes and lights on the car were in A-1 condition. He judged from indications on the pavement that the Kilborn car was travelling at a speed of 35-40 miles-an-hour at the time of the accident.

Phillip DeRussieu, a brother of the accident victim gave evidence of identification and also identified a blood-stained coat worn by the deceased as being one of his own articles of clothing borrowed by his brother.

Near Centre of Road.

Percy Edwards of Lang testified he was driving from Lakefield to Peterborough around eleven o'clock on the night of the accident. He passed a man walking on the highway just north of Nassau turn. He declared the pedestrian was walking near the centre of the road on the east half of the pavement. "My attention was particularly directed towards him because he appeared to be staggering and I thought maybe he had been drinking." Witness did not know that an accident had occurred, he declared, until noon on Monday last. He remembered having passed another car going in the opposite direction on Nassau turn and judged the speed of the car to be around 30-35 miles-an-hour.

Dr. W. S. Fitzpatrick and Dr. R. F. Nott who performed a post mortem examination declared that DeRussieu had died as the result of a fractured base of the skull. External injuries included bruises on the back of the legs, and abrasions on the right wrist, right cheek and above the right eye. The medical men thought it probable the injuries to the back of the victims legs could have been caused by the bumper of a car striking him from the rear. There was no medical evidence bearing on the deceased man's sobriety or otherwise, no examination of the stomach having been made.

Questioned Driver.

Provincial Constable David Silvester declared he received a telephone call on Saturday night around 11.35 p.m. and as a result went to Nicholls Hospital. He saw the injured man and questioned the driver of the car.

Russell Jones of Hastings who rendered aid at the scene of the accident and conveyed the injured man to hospital in his car was not called as a witness. An officer of the court said he had endeavoured to serve a subpoena on Jones, but he had gone on a trip east and could not be located in time to be called.

the dissemination of health knowledge.

The passage of the Succession Bill drew an attack on the government from the veteran, C. H. Cahan, Conservative member for St. Lawrence-St. George and former Secretary of State. Prime Minister Mackenzie King moved the bill for second reading and spoke briefly. James S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, renewed his charge that the Dominion Government had acted without authority while Justice Minister Lapointe defended the action from the constitutional standpoint.

Mr. Cahan took the ground no legislation in Canada was needed to give effect to the succession of George VI. to the throne.

The occasion for the debate was the second reading of a bill respecting alteration in the law of succession to the throne. In taking the stand he did, Mr. Cahan differed from Conservative Leader Bennett, who yesterday approved of the government's course.

Known Bennett to Swing.

Reminded of this he said: "I have known him (Mr. Bennett), as well as eminent men on the bench to reverse their preliminary opinions after hearing a full discussion."

There could be but one King in the British Empire, said Mr. Cahan. There could be no King in Canada apart from the King of the United Kingdom. When the British Parliament properly passed an act accepting the abdication of the former King, George VI became King of Canada and nothing more was necessary.

The Government, however, had purported by order-in-council, to request and consent to the application of that Act to Canada. The Government had no power to pass such an order-in-council without a statute behind it and in any case the order did not contain any request or consent.

The bill was introduced by Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, replied to Mr. Cahan's arguments. He said the Government had acted within the four corners of the statute of Westminster.

The affair, he said, indicated the marvellous elasticity of the British constitution which in time of crisis enabled the common sense of statesmen to prevail over the precision of eminent lawyers. The statute of Westminster, he said, provided for the request and consent of the Dominions to Imperial legislation applicable to them in order to reconcile equality of status with the British Parliament's enacting a law for the Dominions

It was the clear intention of the statute that it was the Government of Canada and not Parliament which had to express the request and consent of this country.

The bill before the House, he said, was necessary, not to make George VI King or to ratify his becoming King, but to alter the law of succession and provide that the heirs of Edward VIII should have no right to the throne.

Forced the King's Hand?

Mr. Woodsworth complained of the Dominion Government falling in with the British Prime Minister's efforts to place Edward in a position where he had to abdicate. He said the affair of Mrs. Simpson was not sufficient justification for Prime Minister Baldwin's action. Canada could at least have declined to aid Mr. Baldwin.

In Mr. Cahan's view, what was needed was not an act of Parliament but some formula which would prevent the dangerous precedent established by the Government in a crisis from being followed in future.

"This bill," he said, "is futile. It will have no effect. It will serve only to cover up a condition which honorable gentlemen (the Government) are more or less anxious to conceal. It would be quite sufficient to have both Houses of Parliament pass a resolution approving of the Government acting as it did in this particular emergency."

The bill was ridiculous, he went on. It provided that King George VI. ratify the abdication of Edward VIII and the succession of George VI. Surely, said Mr. Cahan, the only sovereign who could assent to such a bill was Edward VIII. By its terms it implied George VI was enacting a bill to make him King and that he was not King until the passing of the act.

He was King in fact and in law already, however, and nothing the Canadian Parliament might now do could alter the position.

Not Sure Of LaPointe's Stand

Justice Minister Lapointe, who followed, said he was not sure what stand Mr. Cahan was taking or whether or not he approved of the government's course of action. He had spoken as though the statute of Westminster had never been enacted.

The British act had changed the succession insofar as it had debarred from rights to the Crown any issue Edward might have or the descendents of such issue. This, Mr. Lapointe said, constituted an alteration to the succession laws and such alteration, under the statute of Westminster, required the assent of the dominion parliaments.

The action of the government satisfied every British citizen in Canada except those who would not be satisfied with anything the government did, such as J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader. Mr. Woodsworth's telegram at the time, in which he protested against the procedure, had not created the disturbance the Winnipeg member hoped. The government's action was not only legal but sensible and commended itself to all Canadians.

"I do say," Mr. Woodsworth declared, "that the affair of Mrs. Simpson was not sufficient to cause Mr. Baldwin to take the action he took.

He accused the Dominion government with having "fallen in line" with Mr. Baldwin's efforts to place the King in a position where he had to abdicate.

"Do you think," asked opposition leader Bennett, "that Canada could have kept the King from abdicating"

Mr. Woodsworth replied that Canada could have declined to act in consort with Mr. Baldwin at least.

Would Have Used Other Steps.

Mr. Bennett reiterated his declaration that had he been Prime Minister in December he would have reached the same conclusions as those which actuated Mr. Mackenzie King in his handling of the constitutional crisis. But Mr. Bennett qualified this by saying he would have taken different steps to achieve the same objective.

Asked by Mr. Mackenzie King to say what other methods he would have adopted the former Prime Minister replied he had "not the slightest intention" of stating at this time how the Government should have proceeded. The fact was that the proper conclusions had been reached and the situation brought to a satisfactory ending and that was sufficient.

Jean-Francois Pouliot (Lib. Temiscouata) and R. E. Finn (Lib. Halifax), supported the Government in brief addresses. There was no division and the measure passed through all subsequent stages without further debate.

If Mr. Plaxton is not prepared to proceed with his sports ministry resolution to-day, the next item is the resolution of J. H. Blackmore, Social Credit Leader, that the Government should consider "the advisability of beginning this year to issue purchasing power and to use that purchasing power for the improvement of the economic condition of the Canadian people."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas blows up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of a calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

DESCRIBES VISIT TO KIRKLAND LAKE

R. C. Ramsden Gives Interesting Address Before Campbellford A.Y.P.A.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 20.—R. C. Ramsden gave the A.Y.P.A. an interesting account of his trip to Kirkland Lake which included down the mine shaft a depth of 5,200 feet at the Lakeshore Mine Telling of how it was necessary to make application one day in advance in order to enter the mine and of how the change in air pressure affected the ear drums as one descended to the bottom of the shaft in an elevator which descended at the rate of approximately 20 m.p.h., the speaker gave an interesting word picture of his trip through miles and miles of open country where the motorist nearly met himself going around corners.

The meeting concluded with games and a bean supper.

MEIGHEN DEMANDS ACTION ON DEFENCE

Laurier's naval policy of 1911, and reaffirmed his belief that "Canada must prepare to protect herself against any contingency which would threaten her shores."

Correctness of Sir Wilfrid's policy which he endorsed had been shown at the outbreak of the Great War, Senator Dandurand declared. In 1914, he said, the Conservative government of the day was searching the world to buy ships with which to defend Vancouver and Victoria.

However, the Government leader hoped fears that filled the minds of Canadians and others throughout the world might prove groundless. He doubted "that Germany will light the match that will set Europe afire," thinking rather that the Reich was seeking to create a situation through which it might persuade Britain and France to buy peace.

Canada, he said, should not be stampeded. "Let us trust to Great Britain, to France, and to Italy, because I cannot believe for one moment, in the light of what he learned in Ethiopia about bombing planes and other paraphernalia of war, that Mussolini, even surrounded as he is by barbarian principles of some 1,500 years ago, would risk a general cataclysm."

ROEBUCK PRESSES FOR QUICK ACTION

and educational institutions when rates of duty are fixed.

Attorney General Roebuck fostered yesterday's Hydro legislation with the statement the bill was designed to give to the Hydro Commission all the rights, privileges and immunities with regard to its properties as are enjoyed by the Province.

"It is not an extraordinary thing," he replied to Arthur Ellis (Cons. Ottawa South). "It is an anomaly that there is a distinction drawn between it and other public property."

He also maintained immediate introduction of the legislation was important when Mr. Ellis and Leopold Macaulay (Cons. York South) maintained there was no urgency. The two Conservatives declared the Government should give the required two days' notice.

When Mr. Macaulay asked if Hydro did not belong to the municipalities, the Attorney General replied:

"My friend raises a legal and moral question. Legally the property is vested in the Hydro Commission. Morally, perhaps we might say equitably, though not in the legal sense of that word, the municipalities certainly have more property right in Hydro, using that term in the language of the street and not with its legal significance, but as legal right the property is vested in the corporate body."

Mr. Macaulay maintained the bill "plainly undoes the justice of the British courts of this province." He said no emergency existed "unless the government is deliberately trying to take away the rights of the highest courts of the land."

Opposition House Leader George S. Henry led off the debate in objecting to the bill's introduction. Speaker Norman Hipel finally ruled it could be introduced for first reading and when a recorded vote, as demanded by the opposition, was held, the government won 64 to 14.

MARMORA ENJOYS DRAMATIC RECITAL

Affair Sponsored By St. Andrew's Tuxis Boys Proves Entertaining Evening

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Jan. 20.—Under auspices of the Tuxis Boys of St. Andrew's United Church a dramatic recital was given in the church on Tuesday evening by Miss Mildred A. Connerty, graduate of the Farmer School of Elocution, Montreal, interspersed with musical numbers by local talent. Ewart W. Haacke, president, announced the full program at the outset.

The program opened with a selection by Marmora Canadian Legion Band. Howard Linton then sang with pleasing voice, "Somewhere a Voice is Calling." Miss Connerty's first group of two numbers came next: "Sowing Seeds in Danny," and, "The Second Chance," from one of Nellie McClung's works. Miss Connorty was well applauded for her excellent delivery of these gems from a favorite author. Miss Flora Sanderson gave two vocal solos, "Just A-Wearying For You" and "The Cuckoo Clock."

The band, having given another selection, Miss Connerty appeared again for a group of four numbers: "Buying the Wedding Ring"; two more of Nellie McClung's compositions, and "Ordeal," by Doug. Welch. Warren Leaitch then sang "I Heard You Go By."

Miss Connerty's final group was "Banking in London, England,' 'and "Flowers for the Living,' 'also from Nellie McClung's works. The concluding number was a selection by the band followed by the National Anthem.

Changed Her Shoes Five Times a Day

Suffered For 20 Years With Rheumatism

Try and picture the life this woman led for twenty years—changing her shoes several times a day in a vain endeavor to attain some relief from the rheumatic pains that were constantly troubling her. Then imagine her joy when she found that Kruschen was driving away the rheumatism. This is what she writes:—

"I have been using Kruschen Salts for four years. For twenty years previously I had suffered with my feet, sometimes changing my shoes five times a day, and frequently sitting without any as the pain was so great. Now I can wear the same pair of shoes all day with comfort. I cannot speak too highly of Kruschen Salts. Only those who had been in constant pain with their feet for years can realize what it is to be free."—(Mrs.) E. A.

It is deposits of excess uric acid, lodging between the joints, which are frequently the cause of rheumatism. Kruschen Salts contain two ingredients—sodium and potassium—which are effective solvents of uric acid.

No Happiness In the Home When the Mother Is Sick

MILBURN'S HEALTH AND NERVE PILLS

The tired, worn out mother cannot make a happy home if she is sick and worried by the never ending household duties. She gets run down and becomes nervous and irritable, downhearted and discouraged, can't rest at night, and gets up in the morning as tired as when she went to bed.

Women suffering in this way will find in Milburn's H. & N. Pills a remedy with which to recuperate their health, build up the run down system, and bring back their bodily vigor.

ROEBUCK PLANS TO MAKE HYDRO INDEPENDENT

Prepares Ten-Year Program To Develop Cheapest Sources

SPEAKS THREE HOURS

Points To Ogoki Diversion, Little Long Lac, Madawaska, Decew Falls, Niagara

TORONTO, Jan. 21 (C.P.) — Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Ontario Minister of Highways and Hydro Commissioner, will introduce in the Legislature to-day two bills to supplement the one brought in by his fellow-commissioner, Attorney - General Arthur W. Roebuck, to relieve the Hydro-Electric Commission of any obligation in connection with court judgments. Introduction of the Bills follows court actions brought against Hydro as a result of 1935 legislation cancelling Quebec power contracts.

A 10-year plan to make Ontario Hydro independent of purchased power was outlined to the Legislature yesterday by Mr. Roebuck in moving second reading of his Bill. He spoke three hours and will continue to-day.

Hydro's problems, said Mr. Roebuck, is not in finding power sources, but in choosing the source which lends itself to the cheapest development.

"The Niagara system is surrounded with undeveloped power, he said. "You will know quite clearly some day why we limited our purchase contracts to a 10-year period."

Possible St. Lawrence development was mentioned by Mr. Roebuck. He said: "Do not forget Ontario's share of the undeveloped horse-power on the St. Lawrence is 1,000,000 horse-power. It is not possible of immediate development, but it has interest in the far future."

Vast Reserve at Niagara.

Many thousands of horse-power can still be developed at Niagara Falls without lessening scenic beauty, Mr. Roebuck said. Other possible power developments he outlined were:

Ogoki River diversion to furnish flow for another 120,000 horse-power at Queenston.

Little Long Lac diversion to supply water for 30,000 horse-power at Decew Falls.

Arrangements with the Federal Government for diversion of addi-

BELGIUM TO GET PLEDGE BY HITLER

Said Ready To Guarantee Independence—Fail Hook-up With France, Britain

PARIS, Jan. 21.—(CP-Havas)—Chancellor Hitler will assure Brussels Germany is "ready to defend the independence and integrity of Belgium," the newspapers Echo De Paris and Oeuvre simultaneously reported here to-day.

"The Reich Government's aim evidently is to do all it can to re-establish all the external conditions in relation to Belgian neutrality which existed up to 1914, and to make it difficult for the Belgian government to undertake defence arrangements with France and Britain," Echo De Paris said.

Chancellor Hitler's projected pledge would be an event of prime importance for the future of Europe, Genevieve Tabouis asserted in the Oeuvre.

"If Belgium received a solemn assurance from Berlin not to violate its territorial integrity, what reason would there be to continue the policy of re-armament, which is so unpopular in Belgium?" she asked.

"The Fuehrer is playing his cards very well, for there is no doubt that in recent months Britain and France have regained some grounds in Belgium, and have even flattered themselves they would see Belgium returned to the policy of maintaining a powerful army."

THE PURPLE GANG

35 Charges of Shop Breaking Laid Against 5 Toronto Lads.

TORONTO, Jan. 21. — (CP) — Thirty-five charges of shop-breaking will be laid against five youths of the self-styled "purple gang," arrested Tuesday charged with breaking and entering the Alexander Muir school and damaging desks and doors, police said to-day. Some of the stolen articles, including typewriters, have been recovered.

The gang has been operating since October, police said, and had not left a single clue until the school robbery last week-end. Location of a red-handled screw driver with a name on it gave the clue wanted.

British Committee Delete Incurable Drunkenness As Cause For Divorce.

LONDON, Jan. 21 (CP Cable) — An amendment to the marriage bill deleting a section which would make incurable drunkenness grounds for divorce was carried in the standing committee of the House of Commons today after the measure as a whole had been attacked from all sides.

Sir Patrick Hannon, Conservative, said he regarded "Every move to open the doors to divorce in this country an attack upon the structure of society and a blow to the unity and sanctity of the home."

RELIEF IN SIGHT AFTER EUROPEAN BLIZZARDS KILL 45

Coastlines Strewn With Wrecks As Shipping Bears Brunt Of Gales

SNOW IN WEST ENGLAND

LONDON, Jan. 21 (AP)—Moderating weather promised Northern Europe relief today from winds and blizzards which caused at least 45 deaths and scattered wrecked shipping along its coasts.

Damage on land and sea was widespread. Craft in Atlantic waters and along the Scandinavian coast bore the brunt of the stormy seas and gale-driven snows.

Rescuers searched for bodies from the wrecked Finnish steamers Savonmaa which foundered near Kristiansand, Norway, with a loss of 20 lives. Four bodies were sighted floating near the wreckage, but it was impossible to recover them because of darkness and the raging seas.

A vain search was made for the bodies of the captain and 24 members of the crew of the German naval experimental ship Welle, which went down with all hands off the coast of the German State of Holstein. The Welle had gone to the aid of two other German ships in distress near the Island of Fermarn, off the Holstein coast.

2 Fishing Boats Overdue.

The 2,288-ton Russian steamer Ilmen, which had asked for assistance near the Shetland Islands, north of Scotland, reported it was able to make slow progress and did not need help.

No news was heard from two French fishing boats, each with a crew of three, which were reported in distress late yesterday near the French port of Saint-Malo, on the English Channel.

Weather in France grew milder but there were forecasts the severe weather of the last four days would strike again with greater intensity. Storms across the Baltic abated slightly but the surging seas continued to be doubly dangerous to ships because of the unceasing snow.

England experienced snow in its western sections, high water in the Midlands and storms from the Channel area to the north of Scotland.

Toronto Member Brands Present Method Of Control As "Chaotic"

OLYMPIC GAMES UP

Social Credit Members Advocate Issue Of State, Debt-Free Money

OTTAWA, Jan. 21 (C.P.). — Social Credit members of the House of Commons have lost no time in laying their views on financial reform before the House of Commons. Yesterday a large part of the short session was devoted to a resolution of the Group Leader, J. H. Blackmore, advocating the issue of state, debt-free money.

The first business scheduled for to-day is a motion by Victor Quelch (S.S. Acadia) urging the adoption of "a definite, scientific, nation-wide scheme for financing consumption."

Yesterday's session was also featured by a debate on the resolution of Hugh J. Plaxton (Lib. Toronto-Trinity) advocating establisment of a sports ministry. Conduct of amateur sport in Canada, with particular reference to management of the recent Olympic Games, was discussed with considerable vigor, and those in control of various teams and branches of sport were sharply criticized.

Resolution Withdrawn.

Mr. Plaxton's resolution was withdrawn after Major C. G. Power, Minister of Pensions and National Health, declared that although sports and physical training should be placed on a sound basis, he was convinced the people would not welcome supervision by a minister. Nor would he want to be the minister attempting to exercise such control, Mr. Power said.

Gordon Graydon (Lib. Peel), T. L. Church (Cons., Broadviews), Daniel McIvor (Lib. Port Arthur), T. C. Douglas (S. C. Weyburn), Rene Pelletier (S.C. Peace River), F. E. Leonard (Cons. Wentworth), Herbert Wilton (Cons. Hamilton), and J. V. Mallette (Lib. Jacques Cartier), all spoke more or less in support of the motion.

Social Credit members, however, believed this should only be a part of the Government's larger efforts in behalf of public health.

The Senate advanced through all stages of procedure, the bill assenting to change in succession to the Throne following abdication of former King Edward and accession of King George.

Propriety of the government introducing the succession act was challenged on second reading by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, who said he did not oppose the bill, but questioned its necessity.

Dealing with Mr. Plaxton's resolution in the House of Commons, Mr. Power agreed the time was coming when the authorities would see that Canadian children received the physical training they needed to enable them to grow into healthy men and women, a credit to their race and country.

Chaotic Control.

The Toronto member, who only recently hung up his skates after a brilliant hockey career which won him a place on the University of Toronto Grads, Olympic championship team and Montreal Maroons' line-up in the National Hockey League, described the present system

THIEVES SLAY CATTLE BUYER STEAL $16,000

Gunman Fires When Victim, Thinking It a Joke, Fails To Raise Hands

WIFE LEFT BOUND

PECK, Mich., Jan. 21 — (AP) — State police and county officers searched Eastern Michigan today for three masked bandits who escaped with $16,000 in cash and securities after killing Charles R. Lord, 54-year-old auctioneer and cattle buyers, and binding his wife with stout twine.

Mrs. Lord said she and her husband were listening to the radio when a gunman, wearing a handkerchief over his face, walked into their living room last night. The man ordered Lord to put up his hands. The veteran auctioneer, apparently thinking it was a friend playing a joke failed to comply. The gunman fired one shot, striking Lord above the right eye.

Two more masked men entered the living room, bound and left Mrs. Lord lying on the floor. The trio took $200 from Lord's billfold and then went to an adjoining bedroom where they found a steel box under a bed. From this the gunmen took $800 in cash and $10,000 in securities and notes and then fled.

NO SATISFACTORY FLU-SERUM AS YET

Toronto's M. O. H. States He Would Not Recommend Any Tried So Far

TORONAO, Jan. 21 (CP)—"There is no satisfactory influenza serum on the market today," Dr. Gordon Jackson, medical officer of health, told the Toronto Board of Health today.

"I would not like to recommend serum treatment of any kind until we get a much better result than we have got from those tried so far."

Dr. Jackson said the flu epidemic has not hit Toronto yet. He defined flu symptoms as chills, pains in the shoulders, hips and knees, and a dryness of the throat.

FULL DEMOCRATIC LIBERTY FOR SPAIN

Will Include Religious Freedom Says Official If Government Wins War

LONDON, Jan. 21.—(CP-Havas).—"Full democratic liberties, including religious freedom," will be re-established in Spain as quickly as possible if the government wins the civil war, Foreign Minister Julio Alvarez Del Vayo declared in an interview published by the Daily Herald to-day.

"The overwhelming majority of the Spanish people proved at the last general elections they wish to live in a regime of democracy which would certainly be very advanced in its economic and intellectual policy," he declared.

"But they are deeply attached to the principles of liberty. The present political situation is the consequence of a state of war, and in wartime democratic liberties are always subject to more or less extensive restrictions. This is what the parties of a Liberal and even Catholic democracy have realized, so they fight on our side against the common enemy."

PAXTON AROUSES MULQUEEN'S IRE

"Can't Stand To Lose" is What Is Wrong With Canadian Hockey Entries

TORONTO, Jan. 21.—(CP)—Veteran Patrick J. Mulqueen, chairman of the Canadian Olympic committee and of the Ontario Athletic Commission, to-day criticized Hugh Plaxton, one-time Olympic hockey star and now Liberal Member of Parliament for Toronto Trinity, for attacking the amateur sports set-up on the floor of the House of Commons yesterday.

"What is the matter with the critics of our Olympic teams, especially the hockey teams?" Mr. Mulqueen wondered. "Can't they stand to lose. And if our hockey is a racket, Hugh Plaxton was long associated with it."

Mr. Mulqueen said he had not heard one definite statement of how the 1936 hockey team, beaten in the Olympic winter games by England, had been mismanaged.

"I wish to state," he said, "that critics of the Canadian Olympic committee know less about a sport than anybody remotely interested in sports and athletics in Canada."

Rumor Hughes to Wed Katharine Hepburn

Chicago, Jan. 21 (AP)

A crowd of several hundred collected in the City Hall today when it was rumored Katharine Hepburn, actress, would apply for a marriage license with Howard Hughes, wealthy sportsman speed flyer.

Six policemen were assigned to keep the corridors clear. Miss Hepburn, performing here in "Jane Eyre," declined to comment on the rumored romance. It was learned Hughes had reserved quarters in a near north side hotel, but he could not be reached.

ONTARIO STORM SWEEPS QUEBEC AND MARITIMES

Broken Power Lines, Ice Delays Montreal Traffic--Most Roads Hazardous

40-50 BELOW IN WEST

TORONTO, Jan. 21—(CP)—The sleet and snow blizzard which caused damage in Ontario yesterday, had lower Quebec and the Maritime provinces in its grip today, while Western provinces reported temperatures of 40 to 50 degrees below zero.

Montreal street car service was delayed when ice-coated wires collapsed, and traffic was disrupted by a half-inch coating of ice on bare pavements. The weather, however, became milder during the day. The temperature rose more than 30 degrees in 24 hours.

At Halifax the weatherman predicted higher temperatures as blizzards swept across the Maritimes today. The thermometer rose seven degrees during the morning and stood at 28, indicating the end of yesterday's cold snap.

Continued cold was predicted at Winnipeg for Manitoba, with "somewhat higher" temperatures in sight for Alberta and Saskatchewan. Battleford, Sask., was the coldest with 50 below zero.

Ontario Driving Bad

Motoring in most sections of southern Ontario was hazardous after a storm of wind, snow, sleet and rain yesterday. Sideroads in rural sections were reported blocked with snow and ice-covered main thoroughfares in many areas needed sanding.

Few serious mishaps occurred, although hospitals and physicians were called to attend many who had suffered minor sprains and cuts in falls.

Flooding was not feared. The Grand River rose two feet above normal at Kitchener during the night. It has flooded the area four times during the present winter.

Two customers escaped injury when the wind smashed down the front wall of a rough cast building occupied as a grocery store at Collingwood.

ROOSEVELT URGES RECIPROCAL TRADE

Sees Program As Means Of Promoting Peace, Balanced Economic Recovery

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (AP) — President Roosevelt urged the United States Congress today to continue the administration reciprocal trade treaty program as a means of promoting "durable peace" and a "balanced economic recovery."

His appeal was made in a letter to Chairman Doughton of the House of Representatives Ways and Means Committee, before which Secretary of State Hull appeared in person to ask passage of a measure extending the trade policy three years.

Canada's Exports Up.

OTTAWA, Jan. 21 (CP).—An increase of 28 per cent. was shown in Canadian domestic exports to United States effected by the Canada-United States agreement during the year ending December 31, compared with the previous 12 months, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today. The agreement went into effect in January last year. Export of commodities effected by the agreement were worth $216,808,892, compared with $169,018,633.

Canada's total exports to the United States during 1936 were valued at $406,864,567, an increase of $48,094,831, or 13 per cent. over the preceding calendar year.

BERLIN PRESS GETS PEEVED.

BERLIN — Foreign Secretary Eden's speech in the House of Commons "was one of those redundant appeals to Germany of which we have already had enough," Chancellor Hitler's newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, commented yesterday. Declaring Moscow already had interfered with the "inviolability of Spain," the newspaper Lokalanzeiger added: "One could wish for greater comprehension on the part of British official policy in matters of principle."

Flyers back in Britain from Spain say that the war is demonstrating the superiority of Russian over German airplanes.

BENOIT FOOLS POLICE, DENIES GUILT IN COURT

Officers Had Previously Announced His Confession To Murder Of Trooper

GIVE FULL DETAILS

Claim Statement He Shot Victim In Fight On Lonely Roadside

MONROE, Mich., Jan. 21—(A.P.)—Alcide (French) Benoit, 24, pleaded innocent in Municipal Court to-day on a charge of shooting to death State Policeman Richards P. Hammond. He was held for trial in Circuit Court.

The court room, jammed with spectators, was hushed for several minutes as Benoit talked with the judge. Benoit's plea surprised some police officers, who announced last night he killed Hammond and shackled his body to a rural mailbox.

MONROE, Mich., Jan. 21—(A.P.)—Alcide (French) Benoit, youthful paroled convict captured after a 30-hour manhunt, told to-day how he killed Michigan State Policeman Richards P. Hammond and then handcuffed the officer's body to a rural mailbox.

County Prosecutor Francis Ready announced the confession of the 24-year-old native of Sudbury, Ont., shortly after Benoit's desperate game of hide-and-seek over sleet-covered country areas with officers of three states and the United States government ended in Monroe—a short distance from the spot where he abducted Trooper Hammond at midnight Tuesday.

Hammond and Trooper Sam Sineni halted a stolen car occupied by Benoit and John H. Smith, 29, alias Delberto, and decided to take the pair to headquarters for questioning in connection with the abduction of Fred Williams, a Detroit used car salesman, who was left tied to a tree at Toledo early Tuesday night. "I got into the patrol car with the officer (Hammond), Benoit orally confessed to Prosecutor Francis Ready, State Police Captain Lawrence A. Lyon and Sheriff Joseph Bairley. Sineni and Smith followed in the seized automobile.

"As the car started I jammed the gun into the officer's ribs and told him to slow down," Benoit said.

Used Gun as Persuader

"Instead, Hammond started to go faster, so I slugged him over the eye with the butt of my pistol and told him to turn onto a side road.

"The other officer (Sineni) behind came up close. I turned around and fired three shots. When I started shooting Hammond said he was going to ditch the car and I told him if he did I'd kill him sure.

"Then the other car went into the ditch and I stopped. I was going to take my partner (Smith) away from the other cop, but a truck blocked the way, so I made Hammond drive down lonely roads until we came to where I left him."

This was five miles southeast of Erie, Mich., about ten miles from the place where Benoit abandoned the blood-stained patrol car and escaped into the woods.

"I made Hammond stop," Benoit was quoted as confessing. "Then I got out and put one of the handcuffs on his wrists. When I tried to get him out of the car he put up a fight and we rolled over on the ground. I could see he was getting the best of me. Then I fired during the scuffle and he got limp. I cuffed his hands around the post (of the mail box)."

Benoit, bleeding profusely from cuts on his head, insisted to officers, however, that he did not realize he had shot Trooper Hammond until the officer's body went limp.

20,000 HOMELESS AS FLOODS IN U. S. NEAR 1913 LEVELS

$1,000,000 Damage In Cincinatti Business Area Alone—Portsmouth Warned

RIVERS STILL RISING

CHICAGO, Jan. 21 — (C.P.). — Heavy rains heightened sharply today the river menace to widespread east and central west areas, driving some streams to crests which threatened to equal record floods of 1913.

Property loss and human misery mounted with the rising waters. In Cincinnati alone police estimated damage in excess of $1,000,000.

Unofficial estimates said 20,000 had abandoned Ohio Valley homes and sought refuge on higher lands. Hundreds banded together to maintain dikes and levees, while others formed emergency crews to transfer merchandise from periled areas.

The floods covered miles of land in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Maryland, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois, Tennessee, Missouri and Arkansas. Yellow waters crept up city streets and flooded basements in scores of communities.

"Be Ready to Flee."

Riding high on an accumulation of heavy rains, the Ohio river descended on Portsmouth, Ohio, and caused City Manager Frank Sheehan to warn all residents, except those in hill-top districts to be prepared to leave homes and business houses. The city has a population of more than 40,000.

The river rose two-tenths of a foot an hour at Cincinnati toward a crest the weather bureau said might equal that of the 1913 inundation, which cost Southwestern Ohio millions of dollars.

The village of New Richmond, 30 miles east of Cincinnati, sent a call for aid and boats and crews were dispatched to evacuate families surrounded by water. Fifteen hundred families already had left their homes in Northern Kentucky cities.

A report said 1,500 of the 2,000 houses in New Richmond were flooded. Water swirled five feet deep in the streets. Almost the entire population of Aurora, Ind., worked to remove stocks from stores. Fire sirens brought them from their beds at midnight.

Bursting through a levee, river waters took over the village of Hazelton, Ind. Its 500 residents stood on hills and surveyed the wreckage.

Broken Rear Window Shows Lads Escaped But Missed Hole In Ice

TAKING SHORT-CUT HOME

Tragedy Not Discovered Until Today—Happened Coming From School Wednesday

MINDEN, Ont., Jan. 21—(C.P.)—Mickey Pogue, 10, and Fred Simmons, 18, were drowned yesterday when the car in which they were riding went through the ice of Near Creek, about 10 miles from here. Discovery of the accident was not made until to-day. The bodies have not yet been recovered.

When located the car was standing on its nose, both doors shut tight and the rear window broken. The pair evidently had escaped through the rear window from the submerged car, but had failed to locate the opening in the ice.

Pogue was the son of Albert Pogue, a farmer of this district north of Lindsay. Simmons' mother is believed to live in Toronto. He had been camping in the neighborhood recently doing odd jobs.

Simmons had called for Mickey and Edward Pogue, the latter a relative and a neighbor of the other boy, to drive them home from school. Edward was let out at his home about half a mile from where the tragedy occurred. The creek crossing was a short cut to Mickey Pogue's home.

CANADIAN BONDS FIND QUICK SALE

Short Term Issue Oversubscribed In Short Time On New York Market

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Heavy demand greeted the offering of $30,000,000 of short term Canadian government bonds today and there was a "reasonably good" call for the Dominion's $50,000,000 of long term bonds, investment circles said.

The popularity of the 7-year 2½ per cent issue was attested by the fact it was oversubscribed shortly after the books opened.

The response to the 30-year 3 per cent loan, while somewhat less spirited, was described by traders as "satisfactory." The major portion of this issue was said to have moved out to dealers by 12 p.m. E.S.T.

MADDENED HEIFER IS SHOT BY POLICE

Wild West Chase Ends With a Well-Aimed Bullet From Rifle

A combined Wild West exhibition and buffalo hunt that culminated in a display of accurate marksmanship by Sergeant William Wigg supplied considerable excitement for residents of the central section of the city this afternoon.

A heifer purchased by a local firm of butchers was being weighed on the market scales, when it suddenly took fright, and escaped. There was a wild chase up Water street and attempts were made to round up the frightened animal in Victoria Park. However, she broke away from the posse there, ran over to George street and again eluded her pursuers in Confederation Square. Then dashing across the street she ran behind the Public Library and east on McDonnel street to Dickson street, when she finally fell into a gully behind a residence. By that time the heifer was so maddened by the chase that it was decided that the best thing to do was to have her shot. Sergeant Wigg did the trick at 20 yards' range with a rifle shot between the eyes of the frenzied cow.

Ex-Angel Of Broadway Stages Real Show In Slander Suit

Storms From Hearing After Verbal Battle, Socks Former Police Chief On Jaw

SUING AIMEE McPHERSON

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 21.—(AP).—Verbal fireworks and fisticuffs, with Rheba Crawford, former "Angel of Broadway," throwing both words and punches, broke up a deposition hearing yesterday in her $1,080,000 slander suit against Evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson.

"She socked me right on the jaw," said Harry F. Cember, former Chief of Police of San Clements. "I spoke to her real nice, she was getting into the elevator, and she socked me. It was a beaut."

That all happened after Rheba stormed furiously out of the hearing room, declining to answer more questions.

Joseph Fainer, Miss Craword's lawyer, explained.

"Rheba didn't recognize him when he spoke to her in the hall. He told her who he was, and she said, 'So you're the fellow that's been talking about me?' and let him have it."

The Evangelist had been answering the questions of Will Andrews, Attorney for Mrs. McPherson, since early morning. They continually eschewed the formalities of the law and engaged in personal passages of arms. Once she said:

"I've been so busy trying to keep you from framing me, Mr. Andrews, that I haven't had time to cheek on that."

To which Andrews replied, "I cannot call a lady a liar to her face."

SAVES HER SON

Mrs. Martin Kenny Is Bruised As She Grabs Lad From In Front Of Car.

TORONTO, Jan. 21 (CP)—Mrs. Martin Kenny, 34, mother of 15 children and entrant in the Millar mill "Stork Derby," today suffered bruises to her left leg and arm, but she had saved her son Martin, 11, from serious injury by a skidding motor car.

Unaware of the danger from the car which was out of control, but which he had not seen, young Martin was pulling a pushcart across the street near the Kenny home.

On her way downtown "to do some shopping," Mrs. Kenny had just reached the sidewalk in front of her home when she saw her son and the skidding car.

More than half the world's population is illiterate, says a British authority.

Hitch-Hiking Girl And Lover Prefer Jail To Going Home

Held In Windsor After Wandering East From Vancouver Last Summer

WOULD GET MARRIED

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 21.—(CP).—Duncan Scott, 34, Toronto, and Isabel MacFarlane, 20, Vancouver, hitch-hikers who thumbed their way across Canada, pleaded not guilty to vagrancy in county police court to-day and were remanded until Saturday. The pair walked into the Amherstburg police station, 18 miles south of here, January 7 and asked for free lodging.

Scott and the girl set out from Vancouver last summer, without funds and with only the clothing they wore, to set up a home of their own.

A letter was received from Scott's father by court officials offering to take his son home. From the girl's relatives also came a message they would take care of her if she returned.

But the pair insist they are in love with each other and want to get married. They would rather go to jail than go home, they said.

UNITED COUNTIES ROADS REQUIRE $100,000 IN 1937

Gift Of $50,000 From Hon. David Croll Begins To Burn Hole In Council's Pocket

PROGRAM OUTLINED

(By A Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Jan. 21.—That $50,000 gift from Hon. David A. Croll is beginning to burn a hole in the Northumberland - Durham Council's pocket.

This substantial sum of money represents approximately the saving to the united counties of the amounts they would have had to pay this year for old age pensions and mothes' allowances. Warden R. O. Jones suggested Tuesday night it should be delivered directly to the ratepayers by a proportionate reduction in the 1937 taxes, and in the enthusiasm of the inaugural meeting before both the old and new members adjusted themselves to the problems of the morrow, the new Warden's counsel seemed to be unanimously approved. He held up the prospect of whittling down the rate this year as a result of the provincial government's timely action, and the reeve doesn't exist who would object to going home from Cobourg with tidings of lower taxes.

Roads Need Repairs.

Then A. E. Miller, county road superintendent, smudged the bright picture with a supper hour announcement late Wednesday afternoon that he was preparing a road program for the coming season that would amount to $132,000, of which the Department of Highways would pay half. His survey to the Roads and Bridges committee estimated that he would need at least $100,000, which is $60,000 more than last year.

"That will cause a headache," Reeve Stinson of Millbrook remarked, and Mr. Miller's account of the needs of the county road system in of controlling sports as chaotic. Groups and associations were able to exercise an autocratic control of certain lines of sport and in the sports which drew cash gate receipts conditions approaching a racket had developed among players and managements.

The time had passed, Mr. Plaxton said, when any athlete or group of athletes should be permitted to represent Canada in international contests without the supervision of some one responsible to the Federal Government.

The fiasco of Canada's performance at the last Olympic games in Germany, particularly the loss of the hockey title, demonstrated this. He was critical of the methods used in selecting athletes for the Olympics, for whose transportation the taxpayers of Canada had to pay.

Content With Supervision.

Mr. Plaxton said he did not desire a separate ministry of sports but would be content if sport supervision were made a branch of one of the present departments, such as Pensions and National Health.

Mr. Power doubted if the youth of Canada, descended from pioneers who prided in their independence, would welcome any government telling them whether they should play hockey. Some European governments were developing sport in this way but it was partly with the idea of preparing the youth to be "cannon fodder" and Canadian sentiment would not stand for such a program.

F. E. Lennard (Cons. Wentworth) said he could not support the immediate establishment of a sports ministry but was glad the matter had been brought up and commended its principle to the sympathetic consideration of the House.

Herbert Wilton (Cons. Hamilton West) did not believe in a ministry of sports but thought the Federal Government should give financial assistance to municipal playgrounds. Owing to distressed municipal finances some of the playgrounds were getting run down.

Says Money Would Be Sound.

Mr. Blackmore's motion urged application of the principle of state money, he declared the government had the power to issue it, that it would be as sound as any money now in circulation and that it would not cause inflation if properly controlled.

R. J. Deachman (Lib. Huron North), declared the Social Credit leader had quoted from numerous economists but had failed to show how the government should proceed to bring about the reforms needed. Purchasing power could only be obtained in ratio to the power to produce, he declared.

Referring to Social Credit theories Mr. Deachman observed, "Houdini drew rabbits from a hat but he never made any money selling those rabbits." Issue of stamp script was the only tangible effort of the Alberta government to bring about monetary reform. Mr. Deachman said, and all it had produced was "a headache."

Mr. Blackmore put forward his ideas in this resolution: "That, in the opinion of this House, the Canadian Government should consider the advisability of beginning this year to issue purchasing power, and to use that purchasing power for the improvement of the economic condition of the Canadian people."

"Cheque-book money" should be issued by the government, said Mr. Blackmore. This money consisted of figures in a book transferrable by cheque by which 90 per cent of the business in the Anglo-Saxon world was transacted. It was created by bankers with a flourish of the fountain pen but so far it had never been created by any government.

All money put in circulation appeared in the form of debt, Mr. Blackmore said, and if all the bank debts were paid no person would have a bank account and there would be no money in circulation.

Bankers, he continued, could not put money in circulation without borrowing and the majority of borrowers could not present the necessary security to obtain loans.

Finances Behind Slump

He held the cause of the depression was financial and that money must be put in circulation to end depression.

With proper production and circulation of credit Canada could finance her defence needs, he declared, adding he was convinced the country was run by financial institutions.

Mr. Blackmore raised the question if "national money" would be "sound money," and asked: "what is sound money?"

"Alberta money," a member on the Speaker's right shouted.

"I see somebody is waking up," the Social Credit leader retorted.

He proceeded to argue that Canada had statutory authority to issue national money, that it would be sound money, and that it need not result in inflation.

Bank money was good and sound only because it had the Dominion's support, he said. Why, then, would not the same guarantee be sufficient to maintain national money?

It had been found, he held, that the gold standard had failed and that the backing of currency now was not gold nor any other metal, but the power of the people to produce and confidence.

"That is right, confidence," Finance Minister Dunning interjected. "You can take away all the rest if you have confidence."

The present system, he declared, brought only despair, and national money should be established as an experiment.

THE BLOODHOUNDS BAY

By WALTER S. MASTERMAN

CHAPTER 44

I TELL YOU, Lady Severinge," Mrs. Thornton said in her nagging acid voice, "that man James is at the bottom of all this trouble. I've had my eye on him, and he is not to be trusted. As far as I am concerned, I'll not stay another day. What, I ask you, was all that noise about? First a shot and then a shriek. I heard it from my room, and it gave me a fright, and then that man James had gone from his room, for I looked in there myself, wanting advice."

Lady Severinge put up her hand to stop the tirade. "Please stop, Mrs. Thornton, you give me a headache. If you suspect James, why don't you tell the detective? He's the proper man to find out."

"Detective!" She tossed her head scornfully. "Precious detective he is, if you mean that boy from London. It's my opinion that he and James are working together—they know more about this business of the children than they will say—they and that brazen huzzy, Sylvia Lawrence. They are somewhere about the place, you mark my words."

The cold fury of the woman quelled Lady Severinge. It was a woman speaking who was no longer a servant, but who meant to make mischief.

"I really can't listen to you," she interrupted. "You had better go to bed now. Mr. Colindale is coming here tomorrow to see about the affairs of the estate, and you can speak to him."

It was ill-advised on Lady Severinge's part. The woman became a virago.

"Mr. Colindale! And what's ' but your admirer? I wouldn't have stayed as long as I have done if I had thought you were going to bring him back here."

"How dare you! Leave the room at once." Lady Severinge went to the door and threw it open.

"I'm going, I'm sure I don't want to stay any longer in such a house, but I'll take care that others know about these goings-on."

She was almost speechless with fury, and for a moment Lady Severinge expected physical violence.

"I shall speak to Mr. Selden in the morning. Meanwhile, you had better retire, and you can pack your thing and go as soon as you like tomorrow."

"Oh, it's that way, is it, my lady? You'll hear more about this, I can tell you. I believe you and that Colindale and James are at the bottom of the murder, if the truth were known."

She walked out haughtily and shut the door with exaggerated politeness.

Hilda threw herself down on the couch, utterly exhausted by the woman, and with a dread of the future that seemed all black and hopeless. Bed was distasteful to her. A tap at the door made her raise her head in alarm, and she stole to the door, asking in a timid voice who was there.

Selden's voice reassured her, and she opened the door.

"I am sorry to disturb you, Lady Severinge, but I thought you might be alarmed at what has been going on in the house."

"That awful woman has been here making horrible accusations."

"I know." Selden smiled ruefully at her, and offered a cigaret. "Some of the conversation took place when the door was open, and I was forced to overhear it."

"But what has happened, Mr. Selden?"

"The children are allright, that's the main point. James was terrified for their safety, and hid them for the time being."

"James! What right had he to interfere, and that Miss Lawrence too, I suppose?"

"Lady Severinge," Selden said sternly, "I don't think you realise that after your husband's murder, and perhaps before, for some reason that I am going to find out, your children have been in extreme peril, and that if they had not been hidden for the last few days some disaster might have occurred."

His grave manner shook her. Here was no crazy fool speaking, but a detective on whose judgment she had come to depend.

"But who could possibly wish to injure the children?"

"That will of Sir Henry's has not yet been filed, or made public," was his astonishing answer. "I should put your pride in your pocket, and let it be known at once."

"I will ask Mr. Colindale's advice," she said stiffly.

Selden rose to go. "If you will be persuaded by me, Lady Severinge, I should go away for a holiday—you need a rest."

She looked at him in amazement, trying to find an explanation, and he went quietly out.

Eric Colindale arrived in the morning, and greeted Hilda effusively, as though he had not seen her since the day of the funeral.

James was present, and Colindale asked for Reid—surprised to hear of his accident, and that he had been confined to his cottage.

Mrs. Thornton had been as good as her word, and left early, informing James that she was going to take legal advice about the goings-on in the Abbey.

Colindale showed no particular anxiety about the children, remarking that probably Miss Lawrence had taken alarm for some reason, and that, as they had now turned up, no harm had been done, for Hilda had merely told him that they had returned without explanation. In fact, Colindale seemed in unusually good spirits, and even affectionate.

The presence of Selden in the house seemed to bother him, but he could not very well find objection as he was there by Lady Severinge's invitation. He insisted on Hilda accompanying him round the estate, which was in need of direction and control, and she could find no valid excuse for not going, though she dreaded being alone with him after their conversation and Selden's warning.

They were standing in the old rose garden, and the ancient pile was half hidden in trees. The day was overcast and there was a touch of autumn in the air. The leaves were beginning to turn yellow and dropped on the lawn and flower beds.

"I hate that place," Colindale said, frowning at the Abbey roofs.

"Not worse than I do, Eric," Hilda said.

He moved restlessly away, under an arch where the last roses were clinging forlornly to the twisted stems.

"I've thought it all out, Hilda. You want a thorough change, there's no doubt about that. I shall put it to James that it is most humiliating for you to have to depend on him for everything, and that he had better come to some arrangement. I'm sure he'll be reasonable."

Hilda dared not trust her voice. She walked with him along the path that led to the large kitchen garden in silence.

"You see, Sylvia is quite capable of looking after the children, that is, if she has a reasonable excuse to give for hiding them. There is James, who is the virtual owner of the place, so you can easily be spared, and we can run abroad for a bit. How would that suit you?"

"I really don't think I could come," she answered faintly, every word of his confirming her fears.

"Nonsense! Oh, I know what's worrying you. Well, if James will brass up——"

"Don't, Eric, don't sink to that. I'd rather starve. That woman, Mrs. Thornton—did you see her the other day?"

"I had quite a long talk with her," he said with an unpleasant laugh. "She's a dreadful person. Don't have anything to do with her. She thinks that James had something to do with the murder, if he was not actually the murderer."

"I'm not certain that she isn't right. Don't you see that he stood to gain, and knew it, and there is a lot more as well, but I can't tell you that."

They walked back slowly to the house, in uneasy silence. The clammy damp atmosphere and the drip-drip from the trees, as well as the leaves that fell like dead things, fluttering down as though tired of life, depressed their spirits. In the minds of both was a sense that this could not go on—something was going to break. It was like the hush of nature held in suspense before the first frantic flash of lightening that opens a storm.

At the doorway Hilda paused, white and looking deadly sick.

"I must go to my room, Eric. I can't stand any more. For heaven's sake make some arrangement for us to go off together—anything to get out of this."

"We must find out first what happened to the children," he said hypocritically.

"They are safe, Eric," she broke out. "Don't ask me, but they have been in good hands."

He scrutinized her face and saw that further conversation might lead to an outburst on her part. He shrugged his broad shoulders.

"You can tell me about that presently." He turned on his heels and the sound of his tread came echoing down the passage. Hilda gazed after him in terror, and stumbled somehow to her room.

ROEBUCK PLANS TO MAKE HYDRO INDEPENDENT

tional water from the Welland Canal to Decew Falls.

Madawaska development to supply 85,000 horse-power.

Ontario has obtained control of all the non-alienated potential water power resources of the Trent Valley.

Surveys completed for development of 10,000 horse-power on the Muskosh River.

Mr. Roebuck claimed a 1936 Hydro surplus of approximately $3,118,117.13 and contrasted it with a 1935 deficit of $2,950,932.54. Though there has been an average reduction of $2.50 a horse-power in the price to municipal systems, he forecast a 1937 Hydro surplus of $3,000,000 should rates be unchanged.

No Danger of Shortage

Mr. Roebuck said there was no danger of a power shortage in Ontario. He accused Hon. Earl Rowe, M.P., Ontario Conservative leader, and other Conservatives of an "insincere and unpatriotic attempt to frighten home-owners and industrialists of the Niagara system with the bogey of a possible power shortage."

"Not only is there no power shortage this year, but we have passed this winter's peak with 120,000 horse-power in reserve and unused," said Mr. Roebuck.

Mr. Rowe stood ready to restore the contracts with Quebec companies, said Mr. Roebuck. He quoted the Conservative leader as saying he would "repudiate the repudiation." George Henry, Conservative House leader, and other party members protested that what Mr. Rowe said was he would "repudiate the repudiators."

Mr. Roebuck estimated 1937 savings to various municipalities because of the nullification of the contracts and subsequent reductions in rates as follows: Toronto, $2,382,000; Hamilton, $852,000; London, $265,000; St. Thomas $56,000; Kitchener, $148,000.

Growth in primary power peak behind demand to 1,005,630 horse-power in 1936, a new record, was offset by a reduction in the secondary power load. Less secondary power was sold for steam generation.

From 1932 to 1935 inclusive, said Mr. Roebuck, Niagara system municipalities received power at an average cost of $27.62 a horse-power, though it cost the provincial commission an average of $32.85. The reduction of $2.50 a horse-power made recently to the municipalities was over and above the recovery of this $5.23 loss in the commission's former way of doing business.

Sees International Politics Yielding 30-Year World War

Dorothy Thompson Points To Japanese-German Anti-Communist Pacts

DEMOCRACIES WAKENING

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Dorothy Thompson, whose book "I Saw Hitler" was banned yesterday by Germany, warned in an address here that the "new technique in international politics" may result in a 30-years world war.

Of Germany's action in suppressing her book, Miss Thompson, wife of Sinclair Lewis, said last night she was impressed only with "the slowness of the German censors."

"The book was published in 1932," she said. "The German censors seem terribly slow in making up their minds. Their secret service is much faster. They banned me in person two years ago."

In an address, Miss Thompson said her fear of a "30-years war" was based on "the new political technique introduced by the Japanese - German anti - Communist agreement."

She foresaw no general war, but sporadic outbursts "here today and there tomorrow" which may last for 30 years and "so delay reforms and deplete countries financially as to sink them to the level of secondary civilization.

The Jap.-German Threat

"We now have," she continued, "what might be called the 'Fascistern,' Fascist International, more to be feared than the Comintern, which is in a very weak state.

"According to their astonishing agreement, Japan and Germany have announced that they will feel called upon to protect any country in the world from Communism. Under the new technique, if Hitler wanted to annex Czechoslovakia, he would not invade the country, but would start a rebellion there and interpret his participation in the rival strife, not as war against Czechoslovakia, but as intervention to assist decent citizens against the threat of Communism."

Miss Thompson said that the strongest impression of her recent trip to Europe was the apparent "rediscovery of democratic countries that they have something worth fighting for."

"The overwhelming impression I got in England and France and some of the northern countries was that the issue is no longer the issue between Communism and Fascism, but between democracy and dictatorship. The realization is growing that civil liberties and rights of the people under a democratic system are to be retained at all costs."

Winter Steps In To Smother Garlic

Weston, Jan. 21.

YESTERDAY'S mild weather prompted Louis Berin of Jane street, North York, to get an early start on his spring planting, so he put fifteen pounds of garlic seed in the open ground, only to find that this morning it was covered with ice and snow. The seed, however, will not be injured by the cold.

RUSSIAN COUNT NOW PROFESSOR LIKES FARMING

Came To Canada Because He Wanted To Farm—Homesteaded In Alberta

DOWNFALL OF CZAR

EDMONTON, Jan. 21—(C.P.)—Because of the Russian revolution, Count Vladimir Ignatieff is a member of the faculty of the University of Alberta, and there might not have been a revolution if the Czar had heeded the advice of Vladimir's father who was second last minister of education in the Czarist regime.

"My father was the first of the czar's ministers to suggest establishment of a responsible government as a sedative for popular unrest in Russia," Count Ignatieff said. "This he did in 1916. The ruler was favorable to the proposal, but the Czarina, influenced by Rasputin, turned him against it.

"Rasputin owed his power to the peculiar healing influence he had over the Czarevitch, suffering from an incurable disease. I think, though, that the monk did not play so important a role in the government as is generally believed."

The 31-year-old scion of Russian nobility was appointed last fall to the soils department instruction staff at the University of Alberta. He retains vivid recollections of the swiftly-moving cavalcade of events that ended with the downfall of the Czar and the rise of Bolshevism.

Farmed in Quebec

Since arriving in Canada in 1928 Vladimir has successively farmed in Quebec, obtained a master of science degree at the University of Alberta, homesteaded for two years in the Peace River country and qualified for a doctorate of philosophy at the University of Toronto.

Vladimir's great grandfather was prime minister of Russia in the reign of Alexander II and acted as regent while the Czar fought in Turkey. His grandfather was ambassador to the latter country, and as such signed the treaty of San Stefano which liberated Bulgaria from control by the Turks.

Count Ignatieff's parents reside in Quebec. His oldest brother, Nicholas, is an author while another brother registered at Oxford a year ago as a Rhodes scholar from the University of Toronto.

After the revolution, Vladimir, his parents and four brothers lived in southern Russia where the "Whites" held sway for a time. In 1919 the family emigrated to England.

When revolutionaries gained control in southern Russia the family was not seriously persecuted, he said, because his father had been popular with school teachers as minister of education and one of the leading Bolsheviks was a former school master.

"My father was arrested once and held for five days, but was released unharmed on the order of the former school master," he said.

Wanted Farm.

"I came to Canada because I wanted to farm," he continued. "Now I wish to teach. This country is rich and free. It is better for young people than the old land."

Vladimir believes he is distantly related to Prince Galitzine, of Edson, Alta., as his grandmother was a Princess Galitzine.

He thinks the Communist regime in Russia is now beyond internal overthrow, but conflicting reports have prevented him from forming definite opinions of present-day conditions in his native land.

Raging Flood Undermined Bridge

Swollen to violent flood by unseasonal rains, the east fork of the White river at Seymour, Indiana, ripped out this bridge as shown in this graphic picture. A U.S. forest supervisor was drowned when his automobile plunged from the road as he sought to avoid these crevices in the bridge. Throughout the United States, citizens, farmers and river-front residents are preparing to flee their homes as flood waters rise in the most dangerous flood threat in 27 years. Successful Event Held Under Auspices Of Lakefield W. A.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 21.—The Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Anglican church, Lakefield, held their annual banquet on Tuesday evening in the Parish Hall. At the conclusion of the banquet, Mrs. Creighton, president of the Auxiliary, acted as toastmistress. Miss Dench opened the toast-list by proposing a toast to the King. In response, the ladies joined in singing the National Anthem. Mrs. Creighton then proposed a toast to the visitors, extending to them on behalf of the society a warm welcome and expressing pleasure at their presence. Mrs. E. C. Moore, a visitor from the Women's Auxiliary at Young's Point, responded.

Mrs. Wm. Graham, proposed the toast to the church. The ladies responded to this by singing a part of the hymn, "The Church's One Foundation."

Mrs Chappell proposed the toast to the Women's Auxiliary, at the same time giving the Dorcas report for the year 1936. She reported that clothing for one boy was sent to the Blackfoot School, an Indian School in Gliechen, Alta.; that a bale was sent to the W.A. House for white settlers and that 2 quilts were sent to the W.A. House for empty stalls. In November when the call for help came from the West, the society sent a large bale containing new and used articles of clothing and quilts, Mrs. Chappell concluded. Miss Attwood responded to the toast to the Women's Auxiliary. Mrs Steener presented the treasurer's report

At the conclusion of this part of the program, each person present read the verse which was found on her place-card The verses were composed by Miss F. Attwood, and being written especially for the occasion, applied in an interesting and humorous way to the person concerned, and lent a note of originality to the program.

The tables looked lovely. They were beautifully arranged and decorated with cut-flowers and cyclamen. The committee in charge was: Mrs. J. Sanderson, convenor; Mrs. D. Crozier, Mrs. E. Waldon, Mrs. W. Armstrong and Mrs. J. Earnshaw.

As the ambulance sped toward a hospital it struck a bump, Arlene sat up.

Is the butter plate used at dinner?

So many people feel that a dinner is not a meal without bread and butter, that butter plates are used for dinners now, even at the most formal dinners. The plates are placed at the left and the butter knife is placed along the edge. White bread or rolls and butter are passed as soon as the guests are seated.

When should a man remove his gloves?

On the street a man always removes his right glove when a woman offers a gloveless hand. If her hand is gloved, it may be less awkward for him to take it than to make her wait while he tugs at his glove. At the opera, or a ball, or at a wedding, when he is an usher, he keeps his glove on.

It's Wrong All Through

According to the bulletin board of the United Colleges in Winnipeg baseball bats will be swung against the bulging hip pockets of those attending student dances, the reason being to discourage the practice of carrying flasks of liquor to these social functions.

We can only hope the bats are in capable hands and that they may be swung with sufficient accuracy to produce the desired result. A young man attending college is getting off to a mighty poor start when he reaches the stage where he considers it right and proper for him to carry liquor on his person. He is going to a place where young ladies will be present, and without doubt these young men would consider it quite smart to pour some of the stuff into their dancing partners.

A good many of the young men who attend university are sent there because their parents are ready to make a sacrifice in order that they might attend, and it is not at all likely the parents have estimated that a certain amount of their sacrifice shall go toward providing the son with liquor. The thing seems wrong no matter how it is regarded.

There's more. When training days are over, we are certain no graduate will find the way easier for him because he knows how to drink.

We Should Do It Here

DeWitt Mackenzie, an Associated Press staff writer in New York, says "Britain is one up on the United States" when it comes to controlling firearms in the hands of criminals. Rarely in Britain is a criminal found with a pistol in his possession, and one reason is that if a weapon, or even a dummy, is found on the criminal when doing a job it automatically adds seven years to his sentence, and in that land seven years means exactly that much.

The British law goes farther than ours. One may not purchase a weapon there without a permit, and good cause must be shown to secure a permit. In this country we follow that rule, but in Britain when one goes to purchase cartridges then it is necessary to have a police permit and the purchase is recorded, and previous cartridges must be first accounted for before another sale is made. We should do the same here. A person in Canada may be carrying a weapon illegally, and records show it is being done in many cases, but that individual with the illegal weapon can enter a store and purchase cartridges. The weapon is quite useless without cartridges, and right there is where our laws should step in and force the purchaser to show he has permission to purchase and the purchaser should be made to sign a register recording the date, the calibre of the stuff and the amount which has been sold to him.

British law also protects the burglar. A householder would face a serious charge if he shot a man climbing out of his window. One can shoot in Britain only when he is certain he is in danger of physical injury, and he knows he will be called upon to prove that point to the satisfaction of the court. Police in Britain have found themselves handicapped at times because they carry no weapons, but over a long term of years the wisdom of that course has been justified. It is known too that when British police close in on a criminal he will not be armed.

Speaks From Experience

Dr. Harold Welsh of Roslin, winner for the Conservatives in the East Hastings by-election, has taken his seat in the Legislature. In adding to the welcome extended by Conservatives, Acting Premier Nixon, on behalf of the Government remarked:

> "I am sure I can look forward to years of friendly associations with him for his is a riding, I must admit, from which it will be extremely hard to dislodge him."

That sounds as though Mr. Nixon was anticipating no difficulty himself in retaining a seat in the Legislature. Truth is he is fairly well on the way now to create something like a record. He entered the Legislature in 1919, was out for a short time, but returned in 1926, 1929 and 1934. So the reputation of being a hard man to dislodge from his riding which he so deftly applied to Dr. Welsh of East Hastings, is something about which Mr. Nixon can talk as one having authority. He has kept the road between St. George in Brant County and Queen's Park open for a long time.

No Severity In This

Two young men from Peterborough received sentence for armed robbery done in this city several weeks ago. One goes to Kingston for three years and receives the strap as well; the other to the Reformatory for two years definite and one year indeterminate, and also is to receive the strap. If there is any comment to be made on the sentence it is that the prisoners have no reason to complain of its severity.

In a case of that kind the carrying and using of guns puts the accused outside the bond of public sympathy. Firing point blank at a defenceless person when attempting to rob him is an offence not far removed from cold-blooded murder.

The police of Peterborough did a clean piece of work on this particular case. Their efforts were concise and to the point. They knew the men they wanted; they knew they had loaded weapons, but they went and got them, and did so quickly. There was no question of the guilt of the accused; it was openly admitted in court and that was undoubtedly the best course to follow in a case where the evidence was so conclusive.

Where $116,000,000 Goes

The session at Ottawa is in its infancy, but it is old enough to have made it clear that the cost of pensions arising out of the late war will cost $41,500,000 for a year. Fifteen years ago it was predicted that when the cost had reached a new peak of $20,000,000 the figure could go no higher. On the same day it was stated the amount spent for relief will be as high as $75,000,000, shared by federal, provincial and municipal governments. So in those two items we have an expenditure of $116,000,000, and that would mean a tax of about $50 per year for an average family of five people.

There has been much investigation going on to find why there are more people working today and more people on relief. That seeming contradiction calls for a good deal of explanation. Part of it offered by the Dominion Unemployed Relief Commission is that those who are securing employment are not from the relief lists in many cases. They are young people who have finished their schooling, and they are from homes where no relief has ever been given. So a man going to work does not mean a man coming off relief.

The next explanation is that people who worked at trades where there has always been seasonable unemployment no longer make provision during working periods for the time when they will not be working. When their seasonal work is completed they go on the relief lists.

Miss Charlotte Whitton, O.B.E., Director of the Canadian Welfare Council, presents yet another reason which Ottawa considers formidable. In brief, just this: There are married men who, when on relief, can secure more that way than when working at full-time employment at the scale of wages offered for their services. And right there is a problem which demands attention if relief is going to be removed from the status of a permanent fixture.

The years through which we have been passing have aroused in the mind of many a low-paid man a feeling that he wants security, and it is true to say he has found it in relief. It may not be a high standard of living; in fact it is not, but it is reliable and dependable. More than that, it is continuous; he is not on this week and off the next. Therefore he is not going to give that up unless he can better himself. If the wages he can secure for working are lower than his relief standard there is no money incentive for him to go off relief and support himself and family by working. We believe relief offices in general are well aware of this situation and it is one which confronts them now in a formidable way. In plain English, there are many people who will work when it becomes profitable to do so and not before.

A Good Lie Takes Six Days

Wolf hunters of Sault Ste. Marie and Bar River joined forces in the purchase of a Kentucky wolf hound, Black Hawk, and the dog is housed in the stable on the farm of Dunc Fremlin at Bar River.

Black Hawk, it seems, understood just why he had been purchased and brought to Algoma. His purpose in life was to hunt wolves, and he was going to do it alone if necessary. This dog was not content to wait until such time as the wolf hunters joined with him. We read Black Hawk found a wolf and chased it out on the ice of St. Mary's River, followed it across Lake George to Sugar Island, which is in United States, kept up the chase on Neebish Island, also in United States and wound up at Kentvale, 20 miles from home, but safe in Canadian territory—but without the wolf.

Back in the stable finally, Black Hawk slipped from the moorings of his collar, chewed a section out of the stall, and then made a hole in the side of the barn so he might be off on the chase again. It is also recorded that Dunc Fremlin asks that a new barn be built if he is going to continue as custodian of this remarkable dog, Black Hawk, which goes scampering over international boundaries in a time when deportation and other complications are apt to happen when one monkeys with the boundary line.

Years ago we worked with a wise old editor who always said "All things can be explained." Applying that rule we turned back to the Sault Ste. Marie Star of January 13. (The story of Black Hawk came from the Sault on January 19.) On that 13th day there was a leading editorial article from the hand of Jim Curran deploring the falling off in the quantity and quality of good liars in his district. Jim believes any community is richer in tradition by producing good liars. His lament was voiced this way:

> "There isn't a full-bodied lie in a carload these days. Outside of politics and mining promotion the crop has gone to seed. Believe it or not, the municipality which possesses a crop of first class liars is a spot where life is worth while."

There is no difficulty at all in hitching these two together, Jim Curran's discovery that lies were running cold and stale in Algoma and then six days later the remarkable story of Black Hawk coming from the Sault. It is even possible to compute with a fair degree of mathematical exactitude how long it takes to gather together the ingredients and then complete the task of compounding a felony—just six days.

A Polish miner in Cochrane has challenged a fellow countryman to a duel following a fight over Polish politics. There is evidently a job there for some agency to teach Canadian ideals and customs.

Mr. Bennett says that he would have taken exactly the same attitude in the recent constitutional crisis as did Mr. King. That statement will have the happy effect of preventing any political bickering over that unhappy issue and will be welcomed by the entire country.

Vancouver police raided a club and found 185 men, 28 tables, 1,000 decks of cards and 6,000 poker chips. Suspicious minded folk would be inclined to believe that there may have been a little gambling going on.

We notice that a lecture is to be given in Toronto on "Dinosaur Days in Canada." We have had national fish weeks and eat-more-cheese weeks and so many other kind of weeks that it should not be surprising to learn that we have got around now to dinosaur days.

Spanish government is offering $6 to every person who deserts the territory held by the insurgents and pledges allegiance to the government. What the insurgents will give anyone who attempts to accept the offer has not yet been announced.

A heavy demand for the works of Shakespeare is reported from the parliamentary library at Ottawa. At that quotations from that source would be much more enjoyable than extracts from last year's Hansard or the other stuff the members are wont to inflict upon the House.

NO GOOD

(By A. R. K.)

¶ I read what many people say, on what should be a working day, and facts are what I seek; I notice what one expert said, and marked his words with lines of red, work but five days a week.

¶ Much more than that was in his view, at five days he was not half through, much more he had to say; he would not rise when came the sun, nor toil until the light was done, he'd work five hours each day.

¶ It takes an hour to milk the cows, an hour to tend the sheep and sows, and every day the same; I feed the horses oats and hay, and drive about that time of day, the stone boat down the lane.

¶ There's chores to do around the home, the rooster's gone and froze his comb, I must attend to him; the sorel's neck looks kind of sore, and he can't pull up hard no more, and he has scraped his shin.

¶ And then I've got to cut some wood, the pile's not lasting like it should, and I've not much ahead; I've got another chore to do, there's spots where rain comes dropping through, put shingles on the shed.

¶ The cows get milked twice every day, no matter what the experts say, it keeps me on the run; if five was all the hours I'd do, I know when I got that time through—I wouldn't be half done.

Pay of Teachers Is Million Short

From Parliamentary Debates, Jan. 13.

M. J. COLDWELL, Rosetown-Biggar, Sask.—We have tremendous distress in the west among our children and our teachers. Perhaps I may be pardoned if I speak for a moment on behalf of these teachers. For twenty-four years I taught in western Canada. I was president of the Canadian Teachers' Federation and I was its secretary for several years. I feel that it is not only a privilege to bring the problems of these people before the house, but more or less an obligation. I am emboldened to do this because of the fact that the teachers of Saskatchewan not very long ago presented a memorial to the government. This memorandum stated quite correctly that the education of its future citizens should be a matter of profound concern to the state. It argued also, again I think correctly, that an enlightened citizenship is the best safeguard of democracy. This memorandum shows how in wide areas of Saskatchewan grasshoppers, drought, soil erosion, frost and depressed conditions generally have made it impossible for local school districts to maintain their educational services as they ought to be maintained.

But for the self-sacrifice of literally hundreds of teachers, schools would have been closed long ago. Their salaries have been reduced again and again. The average reduction in the salaries of rural school teachers in Saskatchewan amounts to sixty per cent. These teachers are receiving only forty per cent of their former schedule. In that province 4,853 teachers signed contracts last year for less than $500 per year. Of that number, 2,419 signed contracts for $400 or less per year. Only a portion of these pitifully small salaries were paid. At the end of 1935, the last record available, the arrears of salaries to the rural teachers of Saskatchewan amounted to over $1,000,000. There are cases of teachers receiving as little as $25 for a term's work. The average net wage in the drought area of Saskatchewan was $10 per month.

Canadian citizens were shocked at the revelations in connection with wages paid by, and working conditions in, certain industries as brought out by the mass buying probe. How much more would Canadian citizens be shocked to realize that persons engaged in a great public service in Saskatchewan are suffering from conditions even worse than those found to exist in certain industries? We heard condemnation this afternoon of those who have allowed these conditions to exist in industry, and yet we have here a great public service where two-thirds of those engaged in it are living below a standard which would not be tolerated even in many of the depressed areas of the world. I have authenticated data showing that teachers have been unable to purchase clothes and that some have been living in cabooses or school basements. The case of a married man with a family was checked up and given to me; I have the name of this man. He has been receiving $20 per month, and his groceries, rent, and milk cost him $19.50 per month. Not many groceries could be purchased out of that amount. He has fifty cents per month with which to buy clothing and fuel and to pay for health services and so on. There are cases of teachers who are receiving less than $100 for a whole term. Is it any wonder that teachers have been forced to apply for relief while still actively engaged in their work?

IT'S HAPPENED BEFORE.

(Harper's Weekly, Jan. 12, 1878.)

"A MOST remarkable Winter!" is the common remark nowadays: for, although we may reasonably expect cold and snow almost any hour, while we write the weather seems almost as mild and balmy as during a November Indian Summer. Holiday shopping is progressing under the most favorable auspices, but Winter wraps seem rather burdensome.

A year ago our citizens were rejoicing in the jingling of the merry sleigh bells. As we write the growing grass is green; flowers are blooming in some places in this vicinity in the open air. Even the birds appear to be puzzled; for it is reported from certain sections of Queen's county that the bluebirds, which had retired to Southern lands weeks ago, have returned.

Yet a severe Winter has been foretold; even the Kentucky goose bone of extensive fame assures its believing examiners that hot fires and abundant wraps will be imperatively necessary before gentle Spring appears.

BRING THEM ON.

(Regina Leader Post)

MR. ABERHART, in a radio speech counselled the people to have patience and to stand solidly together "until they get the dividends." Mr. Aberhart went on to say that each constituency must be prepared to accept its fair share of responsibility but he did not know what would become of constituencies that were represented by Liberals, Conservatives or independents because "as a rule these politicians knew nothing about Social Credit." However, there are not many such constituencies, so it would appear that there is no reason why the province as a whole should not go forward with its experiment. A great number of people in Saskatchewan and elsewhere who are not more than one jump ahead of the sheriff would like to feel that there was some easier way of keeping the wolf from the door. They will wish the experiment every success.

ARBITERS OF FATE.

(Chicago Tribune)

TO A LARGE extent Europe is in the hands of two men. Hitler and Mussolini can mould its immediate future almost at will. Each one is the master of people whose domestic condition is not the most favourable in Europe. Germany's internal affairs seem to be even more laden with problems than Italy's. But neither country is in a strong condition financially, both require sacrifices of the population, and Germany has a real struggle ahead in the procurement of foods and materials.

Havelock Municipal Affairs.

(Statement Made Due to Misunderstanding.)

THE EXAMINER has been requested to publish the following letter in the expectation that it will mark the end of a discussion which started during the recent municipal elections in Havelock:

Ernest J. Leeson, Esq., Havelock, Ont.

Dear Sir:—In connection with the recent contest for the Reeveship of the Village of Havelock I deeply regret that I now find that an inaccuracy was through misunderstanding and mistake on my part set forth in my pamphlet to the electors wherein I stated that you had been offered $2.75 per cord by the Peterborough committee.

Since the publication of my pamphlet I have been furnished with the following statement signed by James Sutherland of Peterborough:

"I, James Sutherland, of 349 Wolfe street, Peterborough, wish to make the following statement regarding wood at Havelock.

I went to Havelock to inquire about wood for the Peterborough relief, as I thought if I could locate wood for them, I might get work for my trucks hauling same, but I had no authority from the committee to buy wood, or make an offer of any price.

I called at Mr. Leeson's store and asked Mr. E. J. Leeson, what the Havelock council wanted for their wood. He said that he wasn't in a position, at that time, to quote a price. Mr. Seeney was present and he asked him if he could give a price. Mr. Seeney said that he could not. All I said about the price was that I didn't think the committee would pay more than $2.75 per cord and that would depend upon the quality of the wood.

Later on I wrote to Mr. E. J. Leeson but did not state any price, and he called upon me at my house a few days later, but I told him that I was not in a position to make a deal for the wood then.

I also had my uncle, who was a friend of Mr. Kinnaird, write to Mr. Kinnaird stating that I thought the committee would be willing to pay $3.25 per cord but I intended that to read, for the right class of wood.

It would be unreasonable for anyone to think that I would make an offer for wood without seeing it.

Dated this 6th. day of January, 1937.

JAMES SUTHERLAND

At the time of the publication of my pamphlet I believed that the James Sutherland in question was a member of the Peterborough Relief Committee, and my recollection was that he had made an offer of $2.75 per cord on behalf of the Peterborough Relief Committee, and while not disputing Mr. Sutherland's statement that he "did not think the committee would pay more than $2.75 per cord" my memory at the time of the publication of my pamphlet was that it was an offer of $2.75.

The statement in my pamphlet to the electors was made in good faith on my part and in the belief that the same was correct. In view of the fact that it now appears that Mr. Sutherland was not a member of the Peterborough Relief Committee, and in view of the fact that Mr. Sutherland's statement is that his was only a suggestion as to what he thought the Peterborough Committee would pay, I withdraw completely the statement contained in my pamphlet that the Peterborough Committee had offered Mr. Leeson $2.75 for the wood in question, and express regret that through misunderstanding and mistake I should have misunderstood Mr. Sutherland's position and the full effect of his conversation with you, and I apologize to you for making through error on my part an inaccurate statement with reference to your dealings with the Peterborough Relief Committee.

I am sending you two copies of this letter, and you are at liberty to publish the same in the press if you so desire, and if you would prefer that I should publish same in the press kindly let me know and I shall be pleased to do so.

Yours truly,
E. W. SEENEY

Who Will Be the Next?

(From the Chatham News.)

CORONER'S JURY finds that a certain man in an Ontario town "did not exercise proper care in the handling of his car." The driver is charged with manslaughter, because his car struck and fatally injured another citizen.

It would pay to consider this case for a minute.

The driver of the car is not accused of "reckless driving" in the usual acceptance of that phrase.

There is no mention of him being intoxicated.

It is not charged that he was an incompetent driver.

There is no suspicion that he had the slightest intention of even injuring anyone.

His only offense, according to the charge, is that he "didn't exercise proper care."

It may have been a momentary lapse of caution.

For the first time in his life he may have quickly decided to "take a chance."

He may never have offender before, in this respect.

He might never be an offender again.

And yet for that one offence which unfortunately had fatal results, this man finds himself charged with manslaughter.

How many motorists are there in this country, who contemplating this case might reasonably say: "It might have been I, were it not that my luck was with me."

It pays to exercise constant and proper care while driving a car.

Upon the occasion of your next "lapse of care" it may be YOUR turn to stand in the prisoner's dock, charged with manslaughter.

The Menace of Parole.

(From the Chicago Daily News.)

ON NOV. 8 a policeman was wantonly shot and killed by two robbers. Both were hardened criminals. Both were parolees. Last Thursday another policeman was brutally shot and killed by a robber. The killer is a hardened criminal. He is also a parolee.

There is something to be said for giving first offenders another chance. There is very little to be said for subjecting society unnecessarily to the ravages of men shown by their own records to be repeaters and hardened criminals.

As each day brings its story of new crimes committed by professional criminals at large on parole, how is it possible for the governor to continue to defend his parole board? How is it possible to pretend that the methods of the board are scientific?

Only 13 per cent of the convicts paroled by the board get into trouble again, the governor says. How does he know that? What he might better say is that only 13 per cent have been caught breaking parole. But the governor himself admits that surveillance has been deplorably lax. If it were more efficient that 13 per cent might turn out to be 20 per cent, or even 30 per cent—nobody knows.

The board acts in secret. The theory seems to be that it decides by psychological tests and studies when a man is fit to be turned loose into society again. Psychology is interesting and instructive, but it is far from being an exact science. In any case, for a method which is supposed to be scientific, 13 per cent is an unjustifiably high margin of error.

Perhaps some of the board's decisions really are scientifically perfect. That is the governor's secret. He alone has the records. He alone knows. There is reason to fear, however, that, in the workings of the Illinois parole board sentimentality and politics play at least as large a part as science. Is it not true, for example, that some convicts, who have political influence, or a good stage presence, or money enough to hire a lawyer, are favored, while others, perhaps equally worthy but less influential or guileful, are passed by?

Parole will never work as it was intended to work until it is properly administered. Parole as it is administered now in Illinois is a public menace. Since the governor seems disinclined to do anything much about it, the legislature should act. And it should act, if possible, before any more Chicago policemen are shot to death by parolees.

To The Editor

THE INDIANS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: As a reader of your paper, I see there is a lot of talk about the poor Indians. I have lived beside them, and dealt with them and would trust an Indian far quicker than a white man. It's the white man that robbed the poor Indians, away back hundreds of years ago. Life is too short, live and let live.

START IT EARLY.

(Sarnia Observer)

WITH Groundhog Day just around the corner and folks wondering what kind of a spring we are going to have, the time has come to think of house-cleaning again.

Indeed, we ought to be giving thought to the subject earlier this year than ever. If you have a room to be painted, plaster to be repaired, an odd job of painting to be done, masonry to be pointed, steps to be put in order, floors to be refinished, plumbing in need of attention, a leaky roof that should be mended, you can get the work done more cheaply now than later and you will add to the opportunities for employment. Besides, a government loan can be obtained now for even small repairs.

Your own particular share of this relief work may be small, but if a thousand other householders join you in having repairs of one kind or another made, the aggregate will be a real factor in the restoration of prosperity in this community.

Start your house-cleaning preparations a month early this spring.

ELECTION DEPOSITS.

(Windsor Star)

THE TOWNSHIP of Sandwich West has before it for consideration a motion which would require all candidates for municipal office to post a deposit as do candidates in Provincial and Federal elections. . . .

The proposal, of course, is not entirely new. There is much to recommend it. The purpose is to prevent persons offering themselves for public office when it is quite clear they have no chance of being elected and thus only put the municipality to needless expense. There are cases on record where elections have been precipitated by persons for the sole motive of attracting public attention.

If the privilege were not abused, there would be no occasion for suggesting a deposit and if any action is taken along this line, it will be because the people believe the abuse has become too great.

GOING TOO FAR.

(Niagara Falls Review)

IT SOUNDS like an extra loud crack of the whip when Joseph E. Crawford, Liberal member for Fort William, is barred from the government caucus at Queen's Park because he had the courage of his convictions and voted against the Separate School tax legislation. Probably the greatest member Welland county ever had, the late W. M. German, on occasion differed from his party when he considered that by so doing he did a greater service to his constituency and stood by his own convictions. The world is becoming a little tired of strict party discipline which stifles independent men and independent thoughts.

ALWAYS THAT WAY

(Buffalo Courier-Express)

A Nazi secret police official says his force depends largely on the "voluntary co-operation" of the loyal German people. Secret police always were that way.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 21. — Bursts of selling that found few buyers around to take up the slack imparted pronounced weakness to wheat prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday.

The close was unchanged to ⅝ cent lower after a session in which values fluctuated widely within a 2½ cent range. Yesterday's export sales of Canadian wheat totalled only 250,000 bushels, insufficient to absorb the offerings as weary holders dumped their wheat into the market.

Price trends in outside markets were followed closely. Chicago closed mixed, while Liverpool, whose unexpected 1¼d advance at the start gave Winnipeg an early bulge, closed off fractionally.

Trade news contained little indicative of a definite price trend. Reports of further Italian purchasing of Argentine wheat, with three cargoes sold yesterday, interested the traders.

Cash-grains ruled generally unchanged. Prices in the coarse grains section followed wheat.

HUME RESERVOIR WILL IRRIGATE HUGE FARM AREA

Australia Attacks Drought Problem With Conservation Scheme

COSTING $27,500,000

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 21 —(CP) — Irrigation of 3,000,000 acres in the states of New South Wales and Victoria has been made possible by the opening of the largest water conservation scheme in the southern hemisphere. When Lord Gowrie, Governor-General of Australia, released the control valves of the great $27,500,000 Hume reservoir recently he also inaugurated a scheme that meant protection for a great body of farmers "down under" from their arch foe —drought.

Ranking among the great engineering achievements of the world, the Hume reservoir, a vast lake with a surface area about three times that of Sydney harbor, took 7 years to build. It is situated near the boundary line between the two states, close to the junction of the Murray and Mitta Mitta rivers at a point where the explorer, Andrew Hamilton Hume and his companion, Captain Hovell, crossed the Murray River, Nov. 20, 1824.

Store Mountain Waters

By the completion of the Hume reservoir a year ago, water from 6,000 square miles of ice-covered mountain peaks and heavily-timbered hills may be stored for release during the summer months to irrigate parched country hundreds of miles downstream.

The Hume storage is the most important of the works constructed under the Murray River Agreement, and it cost $27,500,000 out of a total expenditure of about $52,500,000. Other works completed are the Lake Victoria storage and 12 weirs and locks on the Murray. Now under construction is a weir and lock at Euston, a weir at Yarrawonga, two weirs on the Murrumbidgels, and other works which will bring the total cost to about $6,000,000.

The reservoir is the greatest of the many fine storages, locks and weirs along Australia's principal waterway. Originally the intention was to impound 1,100,000 acre feet of water, but in 1922 the advisability of using the water from the outlets of the reservoir for the generation of electricity was discussed, and eventually, at a conference of Commonwealth and State ministers, vided for the enlargement of the surface to 2,000,000 acre feet.

FASCIST EFFORT LOOMS IN JAPAN

Seen Back Of Move To Form New National Political Party

TOKYO, Jan. 21—A.P.).—A new national political party "denouncing the so-called normal course of constitutional government" was reported launched today on the eve of what observers termed the most momentous session of parliament in Japan's history.

The attempt to form the new party was interpreted by regular members of the old alignments as an effort by Fascist elements to gain control of the government.

Observers called the manoeuvre another indication that this session of the imperial diet will be faced with a choice between parliamentary government and a type of military fascism.

At the same time, it was learned, the Soviet government had summoned Ambassador Constantine Youreneff to Moscow to report on all phases of Japan's present situation, in view of the serious turn in Russo-Japanese relations caused by the German-Japanese anticommunist accord.

The accord is expected to form the basis for an attack on the government's foreign policy by the powerful Minseito party, largest in the lower house where it controls 205 out of 465 seats.

Observers felt the cabinet would weather the storm but might lose so much prestige it would be forced to resign after the Diet ends.

The cabinet has stood, in most things, half way between the political parties aligned on the side of Parliamentary democracy and the army group.

PRAISES MERIT OF CRIME FILM

British Chief Justice Likes Bill Sykes As a Warning

LONDON—(CP) — Crime films were praised by Lord Chief Justice Hewart of the British Kinematograph Society's dinner here.

"Generations of men have read hair-raising stories of detection and adventure," he said. "Their sympathies, if they are healthy and wise, were no doubt found on the side of the criminal in his efforts to escape. There is something to be said—is there not—for Bill Sykes and all his kind. Yet it is seldom suggested that children who read works of this kind are thereby encouraged to entertain evil designs or indulge in criminal practices.

"On what grounds other than prejudice can you base the view that the cinema makes criminals of young persons. Every film of crime or adventure possesses the common feature that the criminal is brought low. Film producers have been resorting less and less to stories of a cheap or ridiculous kind. British films have given a lead in this wholesome direction."

NOT MAKING IT PAY

Milk Producers Point to 60-75 Per Cent. Jump in Feed Cost.

TORONTO, Jan. 21—C.P.).—Crop shortage, combined with feed costs 60 to 75 per cent. higher than last year's level, has made it impossible for Toronto milk producers to make ends meet at the present $2.10 per cwt. rate for whole milk, Prof. J. B. Reynolds, president, and E. H. Clarke, secretary, said to-day in an interview at the association offices.

Both officials, while emphasizing that the world price of dairy products has advanced since the $2.10 rate was struck in October, 1934, and that the cost of consumer products such as implements and clothing, has also increased, said the producers are seeking a new rate to meet the crop emergency only.

but I tell you that statement is false."

Court Reporter Quits.

The final blow-off came when Andrews started to ask her something about having said, "Didn't you say, "The underworld and the gamblers would be ready to pay—"

Miss Crawford's face went livid. She and the Attorney began arguing so furiously the court reporter gave up and made no effort to record the full conversation.

Joseph Palmer then arose and said, "Come on let's get out of here. You don't have to sit here and be insulted."

At the time of this exchange, Miss Crawford was still panting from another explosive answer, made for the record, Andrews had asked her if she said:

"'Once I get my hands on Angelus Temple, I will turn it into the biggest political ring in California and use it to become the first Governor of California.' Didn't you say that to Florence Elliott?" Miss Elliott is an Angelus Temple secretary.

"I never said anything to Florence Elliott," Miss Crawford snapped, "because she was calling Mrs. McPherson a harlot, a drunkard and a drug addict."

Woman Metallurgical Engineer Works In Quebec Gold Fields

Believed To Be Only Member Of Her Sex Engaged In Such Work

WORKED IN RUSSIA

By FLORENCE CHILSON
Central Press Correspondent

A plump, dark-eye little woman from Boston, speaking in a sharp New England accent, is probaby the only woman metallurgist working on the new gold frontier in northwestern Quebec.

She is Paula Meyer, wife of Andrew Meyer, chief mining engineer at Camp Bruell, and her duties range from assaying gold ore to supervising the camp cook and seeing that the miners get tasty food and a balanced diet.

This isn't the first time that Mrs. Meyer has been the "only woman" on a venture. She began being different when she took up the study of metallurgical engineering at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Then she went to Case School of Applied Science in Cleveland, where she became the first woman to be awarded a Master of Science degree. She was then Paula Chartkoff, and Andrew Meyer was a Case mining engineering student.

Their romance was temporarily halted when Meyer was sent to South America on a mining job. Paula went to work as the only woman metallurgist in the laboratory of a large subsidiary of General Electric in Cleveland. Two years later she packed her bags, set sail for South America, and married Meyer in the jungles of Colombia. Their wedding trip was an expedition into the almost impassable Colombian mountains in search of remains of ancient Indian civilizations. On her honeymoon Mrs. Meyer became the first white woman to set foot on that part of the interior of Colombia.

Thrills of married life had just begun for Paula. An American mining equipment concern sent Meyer to Spain, and soon after they reached there the revolution broke out and the monarchy was overthrown.

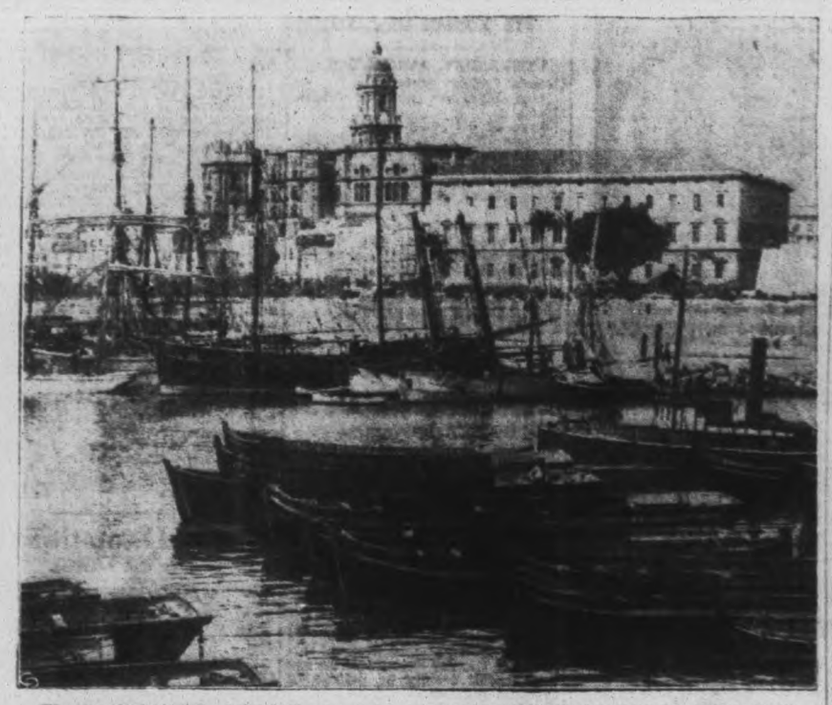
In 1932 an offer to take charge of several Soviet mines in the Altai mountains of Siberia was accepted by the Meyers. There they remained for three and one-half years, not only modernizing the Altai mines and increasing their output many fold, but traveling through adjacent countries on their vacations. Located near the Mongolian border, they had opportunity to indulge in their favorite research the Indian, and found marked resemblance between Mongolian tribes, principally the Kazaks, and the American Indian. They noted not only a physical similiarity but many characteristics including the medicine man custom, with almost identical costume and trick.

Comes Home

Mrs. Meyer reveled in the Soviet recognition of women's importance to industry. She had a job of her own and was quite as important as her husband. In charge of a lead smelter and given the task of constructing a metal-testing laboratory as well as that of teaching modern metallurgical laboratory technique, she was boss of hundreds of workers, mostly men.

At the end of their Soviet contract Paula decided she would like to spend a few years near home. Upon their return to the United States they heard of rich gold country that had been discovered in northeastern Canada. To most of us the unsettled bush country of the north would seem fairly distant, but to the Meyers it looked like a stone's throw, so they accepted an offer to develop one of the mines. The long trek by foot and canoe before reaching a highway was no hardship to them after three Siberian winters.

Seaport Of Malaga Thr eatened By Rebel Army



The spotlight of Spain's civil war, centered around stubborn efforts of Gen. Franco to capture Madrid and equally stubborn efforts by loyalists to retain the capital, has been partially shifted to the important Mediterranean seaport of Malaga held by the government but now threatened by a rebel column under Gen. Queipo de Llano. The beautiful and strategic port is pictured ABOVE.

COMMUNITY HEALTH

A Column Conducted by the Department of Public Health, Peterborough, in the interests of Peterborough Citizens.

"INFLUENZA"

There is ample evidence that we may expect an epidemic of moderately severe influenza in the near future. Reports indicate that children are particularly affected. The exact cause is unknown therefore a definite program of prevention cannot be planned. However, forewarned is forearmed. May we repeat therefore some directions regarding prevention and treatment.

Prevention

Keep yourself in good physical condition by the following:
1. Get plenty of rest.
2. Take moderate exercise.
3. Wear warm, light clothing.
4. Eat plenty of wholesome food.
5. Avoid influenza sufferers.
6. Correct faulty elimination.

Treatment

At the first sign of head or chest cold or chill go to bed. The earlier treatment is begun the less will be the effects and the quicker the cure.
1. Go to bed and keep warm.
2. Call your doctor at once. If he cannot come immediately, ask his advice as to what you can do before he arrives.
3. Stay in bed until you are better.
4. Remember that influenza is "catching." Protect others in the community by isolating yourself.

In addition to physicians it is expected nurses will be in demand. Requests for help may be made to the Department of Health, City Buildings, telephone 35. All local nurses are requested to register for emergency service at the above address.

Finally, keep cool! Don't develop a "flu" complex. Don't imagine you have all manner of symptoms you really haven't but don't neglect the genuine article. If all classes of citizens will face the situation in a calm, sane manner, no disastrous results will occur.

WALTER TAYLOR,

Cleveland, scene of the Schmeling-Stribling heavyweight championship fight a few years ago, may get the proposed Braddock-Schmeling title bout scheduled for next June. That's the report as threats of boycotts, picketing and reprisals on the part of anti-Nazi groups opposed to Schmeling continue in New York. According to the report, Walter Taylor, for years Cleveland's leading fight and wrestling promoter, has offered a straight guarantee of $400,000 to hold the title bout in the municipal stadium in connection with the reopening of the Great Lakes exposition in the city.

IMPERIAL LIFE'S ASSETS INCREASED

Insurance In Force Increased To Over $281,000,000 In Past Year

As shown at the annual meeting in Toronto, the year 1936 was one of real achievement and progress for The Imperial Life. Insurance in force increased to over $281,000,000. The number of policies surrendered during the year was gratifyingly less than for several years past, which indicates improvement in general conditions.

The Imperial Life paid to living policyholders during 1936 $4,700,000, and to beneficiaries under death claims over $2,200,000 was paid, making a total of over $6,900,000. Dividends to policyholders during the year amounted to over $900,000.

The total assets of the company also showed substantial increase and now stand at $79,100,000.00. Accumulated surplus funds have risen to $4,871,000. The Imperial Life believes in a policy of ample reserves to meet all contingencies and a contingency reserve fund of $1,000,000 is maintained.

He was born in a little frame house on the thoroughfare now known as Charlotte Street in the days when there were no roads and Charlotte Street was merely a crooked trail around large stumps. His mother was Margaret Milburn, who came to Peterborough when it was a little settlement known as Scott's Plains, and his father, who was a tailor, rode courier in his younger days.

The Tea-Hour
At the Dress Parade.

Tea was served in Reid Street Hall on Wednesday afternoon and evening, in connection with the very interesting parade of wedding dresses sponsored by the Women's Association of the church.

Little individual tables were used with a Springlike touch in the central vases of yellow daffodils and fern and the little green and white serviettes. The long central table was beautifully arranged with a cloth of gold damask patterned in white lace design. A huge crimson pottery bowl on a black standard was placed in the centre, filled with evergreen branches and clusters of red haw blossoms. Four silver candlesticks held tall crimson tapers.

Yesterday afternoon, tea was poured by Mrs. R. J. Kidd, Mrs. S. H. Smoke, Mrs. D. R. Platt and Miss Margaret Hamilton. The guests were welcomed by the president of the association, Miss Annie Wood, and Miss Lulu Morrow acted as treasurer.

Last evening, Mrs. Smoke and Mrs. W. A. Davern poured coffee. In charge of the tea table were Mrs. N. H. Hamley and Mrs. B. V. Moore. Assistants of the afternoon and evening included Mrs. Cecil McIntyre, Mrs. Osborne Smith, Mrs. C. S. Cummer, Mrs. J. A. Wolstenholm, Mrs. D. J. Hall, Mrs. A. E. Thackeray, Mrs. D. E. Bell, Miss Mina Edwards and Miss Helen Moore.

A sale of delicious home-made cooking at a table decorated with evergreens and red candles, was in charge of Mrs. A. Fife, assisted by Mrs. T. E. Sargent and Mrs. D. E. Bell.

A table of very pretty novelties was well patronized, with pots of pink tulips and red and green candles as decorations among the very decorative things offered for sale. There were many pieces in which oilcloth was used, including long ruler holders, the ever-ready "Handy Andy" for the kitchen, and oilcloth-covered cans for doorstops. Little white-clad Red Cross nurse dolls made dainty First-Aid kits and there were pretty things in colored felt, in gay parrot teapot holders and pixie felt "lady" needlecases. Mrs. W. Derry was in charge, assisted by Mrs. Harold Gray and Mrs. C. L. Usher.

Japanese women are organizing to obtain more civil rights.

LONDON LAWYER FOR RIOT INQUIRY

Hearing Will Be Open But Not Overrun By Publicity Hounds Says Nixon

TORONTO, Jan. 21.—(CP).—Appointment of J. G. Gillanders, K.C., London, as counsel for the commission that will investigate Ontario Reformatory riot last Sunday was announced to-day by Acting Premier Harry Nixon.

Ralph Bone, Guelph City Solicitor, will assist Mr. Gillanders and make preliminary arrangements for the inquiry opening Tuesday, January 26.

Judge James Madden, Napanee, had previously been named commissioner to conduct the investigation.

"The commission will sit in the Reformatory," said Mr. Nixon. "It will be a public hearing but there will have to be some restriction on the number of spectators. We are not going to have the place overrun by publicity hounds."

Mr. Nixon said everyone who wanted to give evidence would be encouraged to do so.

"I will advertise that fact," he said.

Dr. J. D. Heaslip, Reformatory Superintendent, will regulate admissions to the inquiry, having regard to available accommodation.

Dress Parade Is Well Attended

Trinity Church Association Sponsors Showing And Antique Exhibit

Brides of yesteryear stepped out of the pages of the past to take part in the parade of wedding dresses and old-time costumes that had such a successful featuring at the Reid street hall of Trinity United Church on Wednesday afternoon and evening and this afternoon, under auspices of Trinity Women's Association.

Down the staircase that leads from upper classrooms to the large hall itself, where hundreds of faces turned up in eager expectancy to watch them as they descended with that slow dignity that was a heritage of less hurried years and that seemed to descend also on the wearers of those old-time gowns when they slipped them over their shoulders, came wedding dresses that were in their day, doubtless, the cynosure of other hundreds of watching eyes. The women who wore them then stepped into waiting carriages with prancing horses to convey them on the first stages of their honeymoon trips, and they did not hurry. It was not a hurrying age, nor were the gowns made for hurrying. Synthetic silks were unknown. Slow silkworms wove those beautiful fabrics; stiff peau de scie, smoothly rich heavy grosgrains and failles, the silks that we used to hear about that 'stood alone' and wore for years and years. They were from an age that believed in swathing the feminine form. The lady who wore one of them in the 'mauve nineties', a dress that combined a high collar, long tight sleeves and a voluminous trailing skirt of rich and heavy material, was married on a warm day in June and she donned a blue serge outfit for travelling!

Strangely enough too, a costume of the vintage of 1891 could easily have been remodelled for a bride of this year. It had the fitted bodice, the stiffened shoulders and long sleeves, the high neck and long train that fits in so well with what 'they' were wearing in this last matrimonially-minded year.

Rich cream silk was the choice of those brides of generations back. And most of them wore trains that began at the waistline and ended yards away. All except one of the wedding dresses, and that aroused extreme merriment, lovely as it was, because it ended abruptly at the knees, belonging to that queer period when ladies showed as much of their legs as possible. And it had a veil that formed a long train, the ensemble giving the effect of a little girl in a party dress donning her mother's veil and orange blossoms.

They did not skimp their materials either. There were skirts with 'waterfalls' and 'pullbacks' and wide pleats down the back, and side panniers. They had basques and bustles and tucked sleeves and high, boned collars, and plenty of lace that cascaded down the front and clothed around the ankles in deep flounces and even appeared on the inner side of deep hems. One beautiful wedding dress that went away back to 1876 was of orchid taffeta with demure tight bodice and long sleeves. A very long train stretched out behind from a skirt arrangement that formed winged sections across the waist at the back.

They were not all wedding gowns, however. There were other examples of the old-time attire that made women look like ladies; dignified, reserved and charming in a quiet fashion.

There were several rich black gowns, worn with dolmans and shawls and scarves, with little feathered bonnets and mittens and trimmings of bugle beads and jet, to say nothing of quantities of rich old lace. There was a mustard-colored redingote with slim lines, tiny revers opening under a collar closed by an oval hand-painted brooch, the little hat that went with it looking for all the world like one out of Godey's Lady's Book. There was adorable party frock of rich and heavy dark blue brocade, made with a train and leaving the shoulders bare in a 'dropped" effect, like the Jenny Lind pictures. And the wearer had a rose in her hair too.

Court Gown

One of the most beautiful and striking of the gowns was a "presentation" frock of 1887 in which an aunt of Mrs. C. C. Cragg made her bow to Queen Victoria in 1887, just half a century ago. It was one of the dresses that made the assistants warn the wearers: "Don't breathe, darling," so tightly-fitting was the beautifully-moulded bodice that flared out gracefully in rich cream silken folds. This dress had short sleeves met by lace mittens and large plastrons of crystal beads and fringe trimming the front in a formal patterning. The wearer, Mrs. Howard Shimer, wore the regulation trio of ostrich tips in her hair and carried a tiny fan.

Wearing this array of beautiful attire for women were a number of models: Miss Addie Wright, in the late Mrs. Dean's wedding dress of 1882 lent by the latter's daughter, Mrs. H. D. Anderson, who also lent the beautiful dark green brocade gown of her grandmother, wife of Judge Weller; Miss Berta Belleghem, in the late Mrs. Leclair's orchid taffet wedding gown of 1876 vintage; Miss Catherine Hodgens, in Mrs. Robert Neill's wedding dress of 1891, complete with veil, orange blossoms and cream satin slippers; Miss M. Seabrooke, in Mrs. E. E. Harvey's wedding gown; Mrs. H. V. Dobson in Mrs. D. Walker's wedding dress; Miss Florence Trebilcock in her mother's wedding dress; Miss Orma Lacheur in Mrs. G. N. Gordon's wedding dress; Miss Goldie Shaw in Mrs. R. J. Kidd's wedding dress; Miss Mary Pierce in her mother's wedding gown; and Miss Jean Hamley, attired in Mrs. H. V. Dobson's wedding dress.

The other dresses which formed a part of the parade and included daytime and party frocks, were worn by Mrs. P. Sherritt (formerly Miss Ethel Morrison), Mrs. Agnes Smith, Mrs. Robert Jennings of Toronto (formerly Miss Mary Menzies), Miss Helen Smoke, Miss Isabel Skitch, Miss Laura Belleghem, Miss Tena Mathers and Miss Eleanor Shaw. They were gowns belonging to Mrs. T. Barrie, the late Mrs. LeClair, Mrs. D. Walker, Mrs. Fred Weir, and the late Miss Charlotte Dickson and her sister.

Miss Mabel Clarry played the piano for the parade and also assisted in preparation of the gowns. The parade was under direction of Mrs. Robert Hicks and Mrs. G. E. Porter. The effective backing of the stage, in a modernistic design in black and silver, was the work of Wilfred Derry, and the two small pages of the afternoon were Nancy Derry, in a mauve frock, and Douglas Dobson, in a Eton suit.

Exhibit of Antiques

The exhibit of rare old china and glass which was a part of the affair was most interesting and attracted a great deal of admiring attention from the hundreds of people who filled the big hall and anterooms during the afternoon and evening of yesterday.

Miss Annie Wood, who is president of the Women's Association for the first three months of the year, with Mrs. W. Derry and Mrs. B. V. Moore assuming joint control during the next three months, a vacancy of three months left during the summer, and Mrs. D. Walker in charge for the last similar period of the year, had charge of this exhibit, assisted yesterday by Mrs. F. C. Neal. The majority of the things were lent by Mrs. D. Walker and Miss Annie Wood, with a number of interesting old pieces by Mrs. S. D. Carver.

The china was beautiful, including some beautiful things in Rockingham and Minton ware. There was a large Staffordshire platter over a century old; a little plate that counted two hundred years to its credit; a tiny cup and saucer of early Pattern Crown Derby; a green Tiffany glass box; a portion of a Rockingham dessert service painted by Steele in 1815; a Severes cup and saucer with a miniature of the Empress Josephine that had its early home in the Tuileries in the days of the first Bonaparte; a group of Wedgewood plates in dark-green leaf pattern.

A collection of copper lustre jugs was outstanding, and one large pitcher which was inscribed with a poem entitled "A Soldier's Tear," had also a view of the cast-iron bridge opened in 1796 over the River Wear.

The Bohemian and Venetian glass pieces were lovely examples of rose-pink coloring and slender forms, one of the latter showing painted ovals in facial and floral design. An old snuff-bottle, painted on the inside, was in the collection, with some Chinese pieces in glass finger bowls, a pair of haughty Chinese birds, a slender-spouted teapot and wall figures of the Tao Kuang period. There were blown-glass 'runners' that attracted much attention, as did the huge beer mugs used by the valiant firemen of a century back.

In Mrs. Carver's collection were some interesting things. Here was an old pottery ink-well of use a hundred years back; a souvenir pitcher of the visit here of the Prince of Wales (afterwards King Edward Seventh) with his head and that of his Princess on either side; also a very old oil-lamp with solid marble base and real brass standard, as well as one of the first milk-bottles ever used in Peterborough, a solid crockery piece with a darker brown section at the top, indicating the cream content, which evidently extended to near half the capacity of the bottle in those opulent days.

It's a real joy to have. Because of its simple straight lines, it's so easily ironed.

Dainty picot edged ruffling of white organdie edges the tailored shirt collar, sleeve cuffs and pockets.

The side to side belt arrangement, creates a length-giving front panel. It makes your figure look grand and tall.

Cotton broadcloth made the original model. It has a white ground and is printed in yellow and bright red. It's so attractive, you'll wear it for local shopping or the beach next summer.

The young housewife will like it of a gay tyrolean cotton print.

Plain linen in navy, brown or green is effective with white linen bias binds for its trim. You can substitute a white narrow leather belt for the sash, to make this dress look different if you like.

Style No. 3378 is designed for sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50-inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39-inch material with 2 yards of 1-inch ruffling.

HOW ALL-BRAN SAFELY RELIEVES CONSTIPATION

This delicious cereal absorbs twice its weight in water

WITHIN the body, ALL-BRAN really absorbs more than twice its weight in water. Here is how ALL-BRAN works:

In the first place, common constipation is usually due to meals low in "bulk." Intestinal muscles lack the materials needed for their regular exercise. They get flabby.

Some "bulk" is found in fruits and vegetables. But Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has a great deal more. This cereal absorbs water. It passes through the system—with the fiber largely unchanged—gently sponging the intestinal walls as it goes along. It eliminates the listlessness, the "blues," the headaches that often follow constipation.

ALL-BRAN also provides vitamin B to tone up the intestines, and iron for the blood. Isn't this natural food much better than the unnatural and sometimes harmful action of pills and drugs?

Eat two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily. Chronic cases, with each meal. Serve as a cereal, or cook in recipes. Sold by all grocers. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

This simple test shows how ALL-BRAN functions: fill a glass 4/5 full of ALL-BRAN. Pour water up to the brim of the glass. Soak 15 minutes, and drain off excess water. Feel the water-softened mass. It's much like a soft sponge. In fact, laboratory tests show that ALL-BRAN absorbs at least twice its weight in water.

Within the body, this water-softened "bulk" gently "sponges" out the system. ALL-BRAN also provides vitamin B to tone up the intestinal tract, and iron for the blood.

Serve Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly for regularity

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH ANNUAL MEETING

Board Of Management Reported Expenditures Of $12,474.19 —Budget Givings $3,877.92

The inclement weather prevented a large attendance at the annual meeting of St. Paul's Church last evening, but the business carried through with despatch by the chairman, Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr. The Session reported no outstanding event during the year, but Richard Lees, M.A., Clerk, revealed that there had been an increase in membership, so that the active roll has reached a total of 1004. Mr. Lees commented on the lack of interest shown by many in the church and its services, and referred to the general trend in church life today as opposed to the best interests of the community. Miss Walker, Deaconess, gave evidence of untiring effort in the work in the south end of the city, much progress having been made.

The Board of Management reported that expenditures amounted to $12,474.19, with a small deficit on the year's operations. The budget givings for missions, etc. amounted to $3,877.92, being an increase over the previous year. The total indebtedness of the congregation was reduced, and applause greeted the report of the Ladies' Aid, presented by Miss Lena Eakins, which indicated that the decorating debt had been liquidated.

The church's missionary organizations all measured up well. The Women's Missionary Society raised over a thousand dollars, and reached their allocation in full. So also did the Fraser Auxiliary. W.M.S. The Young Women's Auxiliary not only raised their allocation, but reported over $80.000 on hand to begin the new year.

Elections to the Board of Management resulted in the following being elected for three years: A. D. Runions, D. T. Diplock, Herbert Mason, Thomas Hendry, and Wesley Armstrong; for two years, Howard MacDonald; and for one year, Kenneth Mahood.

Reports were also presented from the Choir by Horace Hope; the C.G.I.T., by Miss Walker; the Boy Scouts by J. T. Hornsby; the Men of St. Paul's by A. D. McLeish; the Southend group by Mrs. McLeish; the South-end Sunday School by Mrs. G. Chapin. Mr. O. M. Steer presented the report of a very successful year in St. Paul's Sunday School. Everyone was thrilled by the report of the Margaret Ramsay Mission Band, presented in a clear voice and without any nervousness by ten-year-old Helen Jeffries from the South-end Sunday School.

The meeting was closed with the singing of "B'est be the tie that binds, and the Benediction by the chairman, Dr. Barr. The total amount raised for the year was over $18,000.00.

Long, Unbroken Lines Make for Slenderness

LONG, unbroken lines are what makes the larger woman look slimmer. If you are a "stylish stout" keep that in mind when you are buying clothes.

These two dresses which can be made at home, are designed for the stouter woman. They come packaged with the dress pattern, the correct number of yards of material, separate finished scarf, belt, buckle, piping, even the thread, binding, covered buttons and snappers. They can be ordered by number in women's sizes 36 to 46, or in 14 to 20.

The dress at the left is a hand-blocked printed silk crepe, which achieves long lines by piping. It comes in black with gold design, navy with red or brown with blue, and costs $16.50.

Stitching accents the long lines of the frock at the right. It is made of silk flat crepe with contrasting scarf, and may be obtained in black with aqua, navy with old blue, brown with green or wine with rose. It costs $11.75.

One of the outstanding fashions of the season has been and is being very kind to the larger woman. It is the fashion for trimming gowns with braid, especially the trimming that consists of a banding from neck to hem. These trimmings may be as colorful as you please on dark dresses, but they nevertheless give the slenderizing line that is so desirable.

Black and white is a favorite color combination for prints for mid-winter and early spring, and it is just as important in millinery. However, color is the thing in high style millinery, and the very latest thing is two or three faded, old-fashioned colors to trim dark hats. Vibrant shades like purple, violet and cerise used on one hat also are very smart. There is a turban among the latest imports made of chartreuse and purple leaves.

A most arresting fashion is for a brilliantly colored hat, like scarlet, to be worn with a dark or neutral colored suit.

The white on navy dress is a good choice for spring, and it will be just as popular for the season of 1937.

dress with contrasting piping; right, silk flat crepe with contrasting scarf, both for stouter women.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S. INSTALLS OFFICERS

Delegates Are Named To Attend Presbyterial In Trinity Church

The annual meeting of the St. Andrew's United Church W.M.S. was held in the church parlours on Tuesday afternoon, at which Miss Dixon presided. Mrs. M. Kerr read the scripture lesson and led in prayer. The reports of the various secretaries were read and approved, and the financial report for the year was given by the treasurer. Two very fine additional reports were given by Miss Dorothy Boyd and Miss King, representing the Canadian Girls in training and the Mission Band.

The devotional part of the meeting was conducted by Mrs. Kerr's group, the theme for this month being "Jesus, the Pioneer of Life." Interesting papers on this subject were read by Mrs. C. V. McLean, Mrs. A. McNab and Mrs. McNeely.

Miss Elizabeth Ferguson and Mrs. F. Johnson were nominated delegates to the Presbyterial meeting to be held in Trinity United Church on Tuesday, January 26th.

At the close of the meeting a social half-hour was spent at which tea was served.

The following officers for 1937 were installed by Dr. C. V. McLean: Honorary President, Mrs. M. Kerr; President, Miss F. Dixon; 1st Vice President, Mrs. F. H. Dearborn; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. A. Porteous; 3rd Vice President, Mrs. C. M. Scott; Treasurer, Mrs. W. Henry; Recording Secretary, Miss E. Ferguson; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. A. Pilling; Literature Secretary, Mrs. H. McClelland; Temperance Secretary, Mrs. F. Johnson; Press Secretary, Mrs. E. Humpage; Strangers Secretary, Mrs. R. Allen and Miss M. Ferguson; Supply Secretary, Mrs. H. Tremain; Missionary Monthly, Miss E. Best, Miss M. Ferguson; Christian Stewardship and Finance, Mrs. Nelson; Home Helpers, Mrs. M. T. Breckenridge; Pianist, Mrs. C. V. McLean.

TO ENTERTAIN ILLITERATE

LONDON—(CP)—Of the 10,100 penal institution inmates, about 1,000 cannot read or write, said the chairman of the Prison Commissioners, appealing for pictures and postcards to be made into scrapbooks for illiterate prisoners.

Kwantung Province, China, is battling a food shortage.

At the Theatres

AT THE CAPITOL
"Nine Days a Queen" and "Let's Make a Million."

There is plenty of contrast in this double bill. Here you have the tragic little lady, only a passing shadow on the field of history, who reigned only nine days and then passed on to the chopper's block, the goal that waited for so many of the tragic figures of the days in Merrie England when the progeny of the eighth Henry occupied the seats of the mighty.

Watching this picture, seeing the manner in which the tiny puppet king, the consumptive Edward of his warring uncles, "Edward the Fox" and "Thomas the Peacock," and then seeing the gentle Lady Jane Grey fall a victim also in the "Devil's Playground," one marvels that a kingship could survive. Strong men used these passing figures as chessman in a game that drew the headsman's block for the weak.

The curse of the king, Henry Eighth, passing to the shades, hung over the men who defied his dying commands. Warwick, the earl "without fear and without conscience," set his will against the dead and Lady Jane Grey, who ruled England for nine short days, was his tool. Warwick's part is well played by Cedric Hardwicke, and the pretty, frail figure of Jane, who enacts well the role of the young maiden entangled in webs of political trickery, is that of Nova Pilbeam, she of the weird name and the manner of letting the part down at strong moments. Desmond Tester is the boy king who resembles so strongly Freddie Bartholomew, John Mills is the youthful Dudley, and Gwen Davies is the ugly Mary of 'bloody' renown.

The contrasting comedy which forms the second part of the bill has Edward Everett Horton in his favorite role, that of a bemused and goofy gent who is drawn any way by fluttering winds. He has as two strong-minded aunts the two 'pixilaters' of "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," and he does a lot of damage to his own bank-roll and those of his friends before the picture settles to a sentimental finish, with Niagara Falls looming in the background for Harrison Gentry and his lady friend.

FRIDAY

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta

WERE we to take as much pains to be what we ought to be, as we do to disguise what we really are, we might appear like ourselves, without being at the trouble of any disguise at all.

—La Rochefoucauld.

Dear Friends:

Isn't it surprising how much trouble we will go to so that no one really knows us. The selfish do not want anyone to think them like that, the bully tries to hide it from strangers, the ones who give small wages want everyone to think they are generous, and the ones who are jealous of our small successes try to make us believe it is friendly criticism.

Even the ones who do good, do not want it to be known. How many times we read that our Lord, when He had healed someone, said, "Go and tell no man." Yet our good qualities like our bad ones shine forth from our faces disguise them as we will. The selfish ones have that grasping look, the grouches, no matter how they smile, still show what they are, the jealous ones give it away by their eyes.

And the generous and those who are trying to lead a decent life, also show in their countenances what their life is. But the worst thing I find is the vacant look so many have, as if they never used the brains that were allotted to them.

There are so many things for one to be interested in ,and yet they have so few interests of any kind, and those they have are so puny. Yet their desires are so hidden that one has almost to dig deep, before one finds the real person.

And yet, is there a nicer thing can be said of anyone than that they are a real person It means that they are themselves, that they do not pretend to be what they never will be, that they think of themselves as a worth-while personality, and that they want to be no one else but themselves.

So many men hide their real personality behind a grouch exterior, and by and by, everyone thinks of them as they have shown themselves so long. Then they wonder why people misunderstand and misjudge them. But how else can they be judged than by the side they show to the world.

And some want to be thought of as so good when there is mighty little that is good in them. Outwardly they are such Christians, but if ever they did a Christian act, I think they would even surprise themselves. Even the murders and thieves want people to think they aren't as bad as they have shown themselves to be.

But, if we would come clean and show ourselves as we really are, instead of pretending to be what we are not, we might find that the person we have been at so much pains to hide is a vastly finer one than we have been showing to the world.

And if we took as much trouble with our real selves, as we do in trying to prove we are something else, how much more courageous we would be, how unselfish, how many talents we might find, and how much nicer life would be for all concerned.

No longer would people doubt our word, for they would know we were trustworthy. No longer would they expect more than we could give, for they would know our possibilities, our strength and our weakness. No longer would we be misjudged, or misjudge others. Life would not be so complex, for we would have a better understanding.

In Scotland they call a person "sleekit" who gives a wrong impression of themselves, and a sleekit person is never trusted. Yet that is what we do when we do not show our real selves, when we disguise our motives and pretend to be what neither God or nature never intended us to be. So, don't be ashamed to show yourself as you really are, for you might be hiding a much nicer person that you are pretending to be right now.

And be sure that I do not pretend when I say I am,

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

MANVERS REEVE NAMED CHAIRMAN OF FINANCE BODY

Reeve E. C. McKeel Of Campbellford Chairman Of School Committee

HOSPITAL ACCOUNTS

(By A Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Jan. 21.—Reeve J. C. Cummiskey of Manvers emerged from the redistribution of chairships for 1937 with the finance committee and its portfolio entrusted to him, a recognition of the experience he has gained in the council of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham. Reeve E. C. McKeel, Campbellford, was again conscripted for the involved duties of the schools committee.

Other appointments were Reeve C. G. Mercer, chairman of the property committee; Deputy-Reeve G. Henry, legislative and bylaws committee; Reeve E. R. Ireland, agricultural committee; and Reeve T. A. Reid, roads and bridges.

It was rumored that Deputy-Reeve Robert Innes of Seymour would likely be the third member of the county roads commission.

A Peterborough county resolution, seeking support for a resolution urging the provincial government to assume the road from Norwood to Cobourg through Hastings village as a provincial highway, was endorsed on Reeve H. G. Fairman's motion, seconded by Reeve J. A. Deviney of Haldimand.

Regional Meeting Proposed

During the discussion of the Ontario Good Roads convention in Toronto, Reeve Stinson, Millbrook, expressed the opinion that regional meetings of road superintendents, members of road commission and others interested in this work, would be more profitable to the average man attending them than are the larger assemblies in Toronto.

"If the counties in this district Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland and Durham, Victoria, Ontario and Peterborough were to hold occasional meetings at Peterborough, Lindsay, Cobourg, Belleville, or elsewhere, I think we would all get more good out of them than by going to Toronto where everything is cut and dried. We would get an opportunity to exchange opinions and the results of our experience in conditions that are similar to all these counties. I don't know what these other counties would think of it, but it seems to me it might be a good move."

Reeve Stinson's suggestion includes the conjunction of county roads such as the South Monaghan road from No. 28 highway to Wallace Point, linking with the Peterborough system, or as was agreed upon last year the road northeasterly from Campbellford crossing the Hastings boundary toward Marmora and Madoc.

Regional meetings would enable the various counties to agree upon such connections which would make county roads continuous beyond county boundaries. Mr. Stinson believes that snow plowing services might also be adjusted to the best advantage of all interested groups of citizens. These are some practical possibilities of regional meetings, if they were adopted only as annual affairs; the road superintendents would be brought more closely together, and the counties would cooperate for their mutual benefit instead of each hoeing its own row as at present.

Reeve Stinson's idea was not discussed by the roads and bridges committe probably because it was presented for the first time, and almost at the stroke of 6 p.m.

At any rate the united counties are not sending a delegate to the Good Roads convention, but will be represented at the Municipal Association's annual meetings.

A. E. Miller was authorized to attend the road superintendents' convention, and he will probably remain in Toronto for the conclusion of the Good Roads sessions.

Hospital Accounts

The finance committee once more lamented the high cost of hospital care for indigent patients, not for the deserving poor, but the bills incurred by patients who are believed to have means or who have families that should pay for such treatment.

"Are you going to do anything about it, or are you going to let it slip by again," the chairman Reeve Cummiskey asked.

Members declared they desired some effective action to eliminate "chiselers," but they had no immediate method to consider. There are also patients who have been in hospitals two and even three years at the expense of some municipalities.

Warden Jones, Tuesday night, recommended that the municipal councils should try to "weed out" undeserving cases, and Reeve Stinson mentioned an idea of enlisting the aid of neighboring counties in forming a deputation to convey this hospitalization grievance to the Minister of Health. No definite action was decided at Wednesday afternoon's committee meeting.

BISHOP GALLAGHER PASSES IN DETROIT

Diocesan Head Since 1918 Is Victim Of Streptococcus Infection

DETROIT, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Laity and clergy—Father Charles E. Coughlin prominent among them—mourned to-day the death of the Most Rev. Michael J. Gallagher, Bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Detroit.

Lost to Father Coughlin, himself more familiar to the public than his church superior, was a counsellor and outspoken defender of his right to free speech.

Bishop Gallagher, 70, son of Irish immigrants, Diocesan head since 1918, died suddenly last night from complications following a streptococcus infection, and Father Coughlin, at his Royal Oak, Mich., home, said:

"I have lost my best friend outside of my family."

To members of his diocese Bishop Gallagher, a native of Auburn, Mich., was known particularly as a builder within the church, but the public knew him best for his defence of Father Coughlin during the heat of the United States Presidential campaign when the priest was attacking the Roosevelt administration.

OBITUARY

RALPH SEDGWICK

NORWOOD, Jan. 21.—The funeral of the late Ralph Sedgwick, whose sudden death took place at St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, on Friday, was held from his home in Asphodel Township on Monday afternoon. The large attendance from all parts of the district bore silent testimony of the esteem in which he was held.

Though in failing health for some time, his sudden passing was a shock to the community. He was in his fifty-first year and was the youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Sedgwick, pioneer settlers on the Ninth Line of Dummer Township. He lived his entire life in the district and by his integrity, neighborliness and high principles, endeared himself to all those he came in contact with.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. McIntosh of the Norwood Baptist Church of which Mr. Sedgwick was a member.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife, two daughters and three sons, Jean and Mary, Clifford, William and Everett; two sisters and two brothers, Mrs. Hugh Cuthbertson, Mrs. David Buchanan, Mr. Robert Sedgwick, all of Norwood, Mr. Jack Sedgwick, Durban, Manitoba.

The pall-bearers were six nephews, Malcolm and Walter Sloane, Ralph Cuthbertson, Clayton Buchanan, Leonard Sedgwick, Harry Williamson. Interment was made in the Norwood Cemetery.

COMMITTEE HEADS ARE APPOINTED BY COUNTY COUNCIL

ghan; Wallace Shearer, James Gifford, reeve of Ennismore, and Frank Leahy.

One Election

With the exception of the choice of the Property committee chairman, all selections were by acclamation. Reeve Tanner was nominated for chairmanship of the Property committee but was defeated on a vote. Excepting the House of Refuge board, the Foley Estate committee and the Agricultural board, all committees are of the council as a whole.

The council made two appointments to the county roads committee. Melville Johnston, North Monaghan's deputy-reeve, was chosen as the new member for a four-year term; John McColl of Asphodel was elected to take the seat vacated Tuesday by John Clark of Galway.

Law Library

The Property committee heard a plea by E. A. Peck, K.C. a member of the Law Society, and F. D. Kerr, K.C., that humidifiers be provided in the Law Library at the County Buildings and promised to give the matter consideration. The dry atmosphere in the library is causing serious damage to the books, it was said.

The committee authorized redecoration of the county council chambers, on the motion of Reeve McDonald, and left redecoration of the sheriff's offices to the discretion of the chairman.

The Finance committee decided upon a grant of $50 to the Institute for the Blind, in response to a written request.

A half-dozen reeves, including Warden Roy Brown, availed themselves of an opportunity to swear their allegiance to King George VI: Magistrate O. A. Langley administering the oaths. Others had already taken their oaths of allegiance.

House of Refuge

Reeve Mullen reported on the affairs of the House of Refuge during 1936.

"During the year there were 30 persons in the home, seven having been discharged, four deceased, leaving 19 in the home at the end of the year. Inmates who died during the year are Hugh Flood, Christopher Johnston, Angus McEachern, and Stephen Harrison.

"At the present time there are 11 persons receiving old age pensions in the home. The total amount of $20 for each pensioner is paid directly to the county treasurer, $18 dollars of which is kept in the treasury, and the balance of $2 is given to the pensioner each month.

"Various repairs about the home were attended to during the year, the only improvements which require mention would be the new electric wiring from the road to the house and barns. This work was done at a total cost of $192.56, and is a marked improvement to the condition of the wiring previously.

"The field which has been rented to the Law Construction Company for the past three years, has been levelled up by the company and has been left in good condition."

Reeve Mullen reported receipts during the year were $3,389.07 and expenditures, $5,978.35. The net cost of the institution during the year was $2,839.61, $3.33 per week per inmate.

CAR STOLEN IN CITY FOUND ABANDONED EAST YORK TWP.

Four Men Who Stole Eight-Cylinder Car Are Still At Large

While the four men reported to have stolen an 8-cylinder sedan from Curtis garage at Charlotte and Stewart streets here on Wednesday night are still at large, city police have been notified that the car owned by McColl Frontenac Oil Company was found abandoned in East York Township.

Recovery of the abandoned car reveals the thieves cut a hole in the roof of the vehicle to gain access to it, and started the engine by connecting-up ignition wires under the dashboard. They left the car by forcing open one of the doors.

It is believed the car was stolen from this city by the same quartet of men who earlier stole another car in Toronto which Peterborough police found abandoned on Highway 28 at the westerly limits of the city.

A car tallying with the description of the sedan stolen from Curtis garage, was seen Wednesday at Millbrook, Little Britain, Oakwood, Lindsay and Toronto.

While police here declared earlier that they were investigating the car theft with the possibility in view that the four wanted men were escaped prisoners from Ontario Reformatory at Guelph, it has since been learned by them that all escaped prisoners have been returned to the institution.

GERMANY MOVING RHINE VILLAGERS IN PATH OF FORTS

Hundreds Lose Homes As Hitler Builds Defences Opposite Maginat Line

MORE GUNS IN HELIGOLAND

METZ, France, Jan. 21—(C.P.-Havas).—Hundreds of residents of some 15 German Rhineland villages, between 50 and 75 miles from France's northeastern frontier, have been ordered to evacuate their homes, which will be destroyed to make room for fortifications, it was reliably reported here to-day.

The peaceful towns in the Valley of the Nahe and Glan rivers, tributaries of the Rhine, will make way for entrenchments facing France's famed Maginot Line, it was said.

The population of these villages will receive lands in Northern Germany in compensation.

Strengthening Islands

MANCHESTER, Jan. 21—(C.P.-Havas).—The Manchester Guardian reported to-day that Germany is strengthening her defences in the North Sea islands.

"The work of defences on the North Sea islands has been intensified since the beginning of December," The Guardian said. "Eighty heavy guns have been mounted on Heligoland. Subterranean aerodromes, arsenals and patrol depots are now complete; some of them are 100 feet under the surface."

Heligoland, a tiny island about 35 miles off the German coast, was a strategic naval base during the Great War.

DUST OVER RICE LAKE

A sand cloud from the Northumberland hills hung over Rice Lake Wednesday noon, but the wind's riders had changed to sleet and snow by night, just another vagary of January's variable moods. Demand Made On Police Department For Dental Treatment Increasing

There is small possibility that the Chief Constable will ask an appropriation for a dental chair when he presents his estimates for the year to the Police Commission. But if there are any further demands made on the Police Department for dental services, he might presumably have to consider some such course.

Recently Dr. W. N. Hayes, a dentist, developed a terrific toothache, and after an unsuccessful attempt to yank out the offending molar himself, he sought the services of Constable Bruce Menzies. The burly officer, an ex-blacksmith by the way, gave one mighty heave and the tooth came away as neatly as any professional might have done the job.

Shortly after this incident occurred, it is learned on reliable authority, a hobo-transient suffering evident torture from toothache approached an officer on his beat early one morning and asked where he could get free dental treatment.

Realising there were no dental practitioners open at that early hour, and recalling there was a brother officer on the force who could swing a mean pair of forceps, the constable escorted the suffered to the station.

Again volunteering for the job, Constable Menzies demonstrated his ability as an amateur dental surgeon. Getting a strangle-hold on the hobo's aching tooth with a pair of pliers, he gave a yo-heave-ho, and snatched it out neatly and expeditiously.

Expressing his gratitude and marvelling no doubt at the versatility of Peterborough's police officers, the hobo went on his way. Greatly relieved but feeling the natural after effects of having a tooth pulled, he called at Brooks' Grill following the operation and requested the glass of hot water and some salt.

INFANT MORTALITY IN CITY IS DOUBLE PROVINCIAL RATE

11.08 Deaths Per Thousand Live Births Highest In Five Years

20 T.B. PATIENTS

Infant mortality in this city during the past year stood nearly twice as high as the provincial rate, and maternal motality reached a five-year peak of 11.08 deaths per 1,000 live births, Dr. G. Murray Fraser, M.O.H., reveals in an annual report on health conditions in Peterborough made available this week. He urged an increased staff in his department and co-ordination of social services, to combat the rising tide of disease.

The report showed a higher birth-rate, a higher death-rate, a higher maternal death-rate than last year, with a lower still-birth rate.

Dr. Fraser claimed his department was understaffed and called for appointment of a food inspector who would be responsible for milk control and the inspection of all places where food is prepared or handled. He also asked that provision of adequate nursing facilities to carry on public health and bedside nursing activities be made.

Must Control Milk.

"Control of our milk supply is recognized as an important part of our health activities," the report stated. "Although this branch of the work has improved considerably in the past two years, it still falls far short of being satisfactory. Inspections are too infrequent to be of great value, but the situation cannot be improved under present conditions.

"With the exception of the nurse employed by an insurance company, all visiting nursing in the city is carried on by Miss Helen Anderson, employed by the Peterborough Health Association. She also visits homes which have, or have had, tuberculous patients, to arrange for examination of contacts. It is unreasonable to expect one nurse to do all this work when it is realized that there is enough work in tuberculosis alone to occupy the full time of a public health nurse."

20 T.B. Patients.

Drawing attention to 20 tuberculous patients being treated in sanatoria for which the city is responsible financially, Dr. Fraser reported the number was an increase over the previous year.

"Your attention is directed to the number of tuberculous patients being treated in sanatoria for which the city of Peterborough is responsible financially. The number shows an increase over previous years due to pressure being brought to bear to induce active cases to seek treatment in a sanatorium in the belief that while so segregated they cannot and do not spread the disease to others in the household. This is essentially preventive medicine, and its continued practice will eventually lower the incidence of tuberculosis in the community. One of our serious problems at present is the locating and examining of all contacts of active cases. Its solution may be effected by the provision of a public health nursing service through which control of the situation may be exercised. Only by discovering incipient cases among contacts and arranging methods for the prevention of spread of the disease can we hope to eventually lower the cost of tuberculosis to the community.

Vital Statistics.

Dr. Fraser reviews vital statistics of the year in his report. During the year there were 632 live births in the city, 27.4 per 1,000 population, and 35 still-births, 56.4 per 1,000 live births.

In the year there were 270 marriages, 11.7 per 1,000 population, and 373 deaths at the rate of 16.2 per 1,000 population.

He listed the chief causes of death as follows: Diseases of the heart, arteries and kidneys, including apoplexy, 141; cancer, all forms, 45; pneumonia, 41; violent and accidental deaths, 16; tuberculosis, all forms, 3; diabetes, 2; influenza, 4; communicable diseases, other than tuberculosis, pneumonia and influenza, 3; all other causes, 118.

"Of the 40 infant deaths registered this year, 18 occurred within the first 24 hours; 8 within the first week; and 4 died being under one month of age, representing 53.06 per cent. of the total number. The number of deaths of mothers from puerperal causes was 7. Including 2 deaths of non-residents, the rate for the municipality is 11.08 per 1,000 living births."

No Diphtheria.

"For the third consecutive year no cases of diphtheria have occurred in the municipality. This is a concrete demonstration that diphtheria can be prevented by inoculation with toxoid. Treatment is given regularly in the Public Schools by the School Medical Officer, and in the Separate Schools by the Medical Officer of Health. In addition, infants attending the Well Babies Clinic may receive treatment. Through these channels, about 90 per cent. of children in Peterborough are protected.

"Seven cases of infantile paralysis were reported during the summer and early autumn, with one death. Science is still uncertain of the exact cause and method of spread of this disease. It attacks individuals in scattered sections of the community and usually only one member of the family. One wonders if the methods of quarantine and isolation at present practised in every case are of value. Certainly, unrecognised cases occur from time to time in which diagnosis is not made until paralysis is far advanced, but it is a rare occurrence for other cases in close contact with the patient to contract the disease. Until more is known of this crippling disease, isolation and quarantine are our only weapons to prevent its spread.

Changes Made.

"A survey of health activities in the city was made by the Ontario Department of Health in the spring of 1936. Study of the report of the survey forces one to the conclusion that if satisfactory results are to be obtained and value received for money spent in public health, there must be a change in the methods of administration. Diversified activities, though carried on by well-intentioned groups of citizens, do not accomplish results consistent with the amount of effort and money expended. It has always been the wish of the Municipal Council to consolidate health activities in the community. In conformity with this, the Medical Officer of Health has effected certain changes which have improved conditions, but his efforts in this direction have reached an impasse. The next steps must be taken by the Council and should be guided by the recommendations in the report of the survey.

"It is doubtless the wish of all classes of citizens that public health in Peterborough be administered in such a way as to reflect credit on the community and reach its primary objectives, i.e., the prevention of disease and the saving of human life. Before credible results can be shown we need a different concept of public health and the officials responsible for its administration. We should know if these officials are doing the work in an efficient, orderly way with the idea in view of accomplishing the results expected. Unfortunately, the work here cannot be done as well as it should, not because of inefficiency, but because of lack of adequate staff. The sanitary inspector has done and is doing work in connection with communicable disease which should be done by a public health nurse. In addition, he is expected to supervise the collection of garbage and ashes, and to carry out a multitude of inspections of dairy farms, dairies, bakeries, restaurants, laundries, stores, back yards and lanes, houses, hotels—in fact, anything that might possibly need or does need inspection. It is impossible for him to do all this work expeditiously, and so considerable of the sanitary inspector's work is done by the Medical Officer of Health.

The reduction in the staff of the Queen Mary Isolation Hospital from July 1, has effected a saving of $1,467.30 compared with 1935. The building is kept in good repair and is ready for the admission of cases of communicable disease at any time. Except for one student nurse admitted for five days with mumps, there have been no patients in the hospital since July 1.

LIQUOR IS STOLEN FROM PARKED CAR ON GEORGE STREET

Bancroft Man Returns To His Car To Find Ten Bottles Missing

THREE YOUTHS ARRESTED

Entrusted with purchase and delivery of two liquor orders for his north country neighbors, Wilfrid Musclow of Bancroft was in a real stew when on Wednesday evening he returned to his parked car to find ten bottles of liquor missing.

Before making the return trip to Bancroft Musclow parked his car on Simcoe Street just west of George Street while he ate supper at a nearby restaurant. Around six o'clock he discovered his loss and reported to city police theft of the following items:

One 40-ounce bottle of gin; two 40-ounce bottles of rye; and one 13-ounce bottle of Jamaica rum, comprising a single order; and three 26-ounce bottles of gin; and three 26-ounce bottles of rye.

With meagre clues city police got to work and at an early hour this morning Acting-Sergeant John Thompson and Constable Joseph Wheeler apprehended a trio of youths. It is alleged they were in possession of a full bottle of liquor and two empties, and that they bore signs of having had more than enough to drink.

Charged before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning with theft of liquor the youths entered pleas of not guilty. They were remanded until Wednesday next.

Canada Not Issuing Edward VIII Stamps

Ottawa, Jan. 21. (CP)

THERE will be no issue of Edward VIII postage stamps in Canada, Hon. J. C. Elliott, Postmaster-General, stated last night.

The next issue will bear the effigy of the reigning Monarch, George VI, and will be in general distribution before the Coronation, he said. Immediately following the Coronation, a special commemorative issue will be released and remain in use for some weeks.

Mr. Elliott had no explanation to advance for not issuing the Edward VIII stamps, which have been in preparation for several months, other than that "there is no occasion to issue them now," since a new King was on the throne.

To avoid any possible shortage in stamp supplies before the new issue is ready, more are currently being printed from the George V plates, which have been in use up to the present.

COUNCIL REFUSES TO RESTORE CUT IN JAIL STAFF PAY

J. A. Middleton Is Appointed To The County Board Of Audit

COUNTY GAME PRESERVE

No action is to be taken by the County Council at its present session on a request by Jail Governor T. D. Johnston and the County Gaol staff for return of their 10 per cent depression salary cuts, according to a decision of the Finance Committee of the Council today. The request was tabled for consideration of the June council session.

The Peterborough jail governor is paid a salary among the lowest in the province, $900 a year, it was pointed out. Salaries elsewhere range from $1,000 to $1,800 (Cobourg). The Peterborough official received $1,000 until a 10 per cent cut was effected five years ago.

Reeve E. N. McDonald of Dummer reminded the committee that the Provincial Government is urging all municipalities to restore depression pay cuts. Reeve Griffith moved that the salaries of the jail staff be restored to the pre-depression level but abandoned the motion when other members argued that, if jail salaries are to be restored, salaries of all other county appointees should be also restored.

Payment Approved

The committee approved payment of the Equalized Assessment Appeal Board costs, $1,702.42, without discussion. Discussion of the equalized assessment findings is expected, however, before the conclusion of the session.

Supervision of the Chemong floating bridge and the Gannon's Narrows bridge will this year be directly in the hands of County Road Engineer Chalmers as a result of a decision by the Appointments committee under the chairmanship of Russell Thompson of Norwood. The matter came to the committee's attention when seven applications for the position of caretaker of the Chemong Bridge were reported. In the past it has been the practice of the Council to hire a caretaker for the Chemong Bridge but the present plan will allow for the hiring of workers as they are needed.

Filling the vacancy left by resignation of H. B. Rye from the Board of Audit, the Council named J. A. Middleton to the post. H. B. Coombs and Ray Williams were named auditors of the 1936 accounts of the county. Dr. J. A. Morgan was re-appointed jail surgeon at a salary of $200.

Reeve James Gifford, chairman of the Agricultural committee, was named delegate to the Agricultural Council Convention in Toronto this Spring and payment of the membership fee was authorized.

The committee agreed that active membership in the Rural Municipalities Association was of benefit to the county and appointed Warden Roy Brown and Reeve Charles Tanner to represent the county. Reeve William Anderson was named delegate to the Ontario Educational Association convention.

Discussion of the request of a representation from the Peterborough Fish and Game Association that the Council back the Association in its drive for a Peterborough fish hatchery, was scheduled for later today. The Council was addressed by B. W. Harvey, president of the Association. Mr. Harvey thanked the Council for assistance given in response to a similar request last year and suggested that the influence of the Council this year would be valuable in inducing the Department of Game and Fisheries to establish a fish hatchery.

Former game warden Fred Marshall addressed the Council again on his plan for a large Peterborough County game park in the northern section of the county. He urged the project as a possible asset which would bring great revenue from tourists. Frank Barrett accompanied the delegation.

LONDON TO TAX SLOT MACHINES

Council Considers Fees From $250 To $500 With Revenue Up To $30,000

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 21.—(CP).—Steps are being taken in city council circles to license all slot machines in London. The move has been officially launched with the adoption of a proposal from Ald. Towe by the Finance committee that the Police Commission be asked to discuss and consider the principal of licensing these devices and as to the control and amount of a license fee.

In connection with this report the Commission is asked to determine definitely whether there should be a license or whether the machines should be barred altogether.

It is understood hundreds of the machines are in operation at the present time and the contention continues to grow the municipality should obtain substantial revenue from such operation. One estimate was as high as $30,000.

The report has been received by the aldermen that the receipts are far above what might be expected and in many places there are at least five machines.

License fees ranging from $200 to $500 for each machine have been suggested with the information leading officials to believe that the owners would pay up to $500 a year and still operate the machines. A fee of $500 would automatically bar them altogether.

GARAGEMAN HURT REPAIRING TIRE WHICH EXPLODED

Harry Hegadoren Is Believed To Have Been Struck By Rim Lock

SUFFERED HEAD INJURY

Presumably struck by the rim lock when a heavy duty truck tire exploded Harry Hegadoren, 63 Western avenue sustained severe head and facial injury shortly after five o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Employed as a mechanic at the Magee garage on Hunter street, Hegadoren was engaged in changing the tires on a cordwood truck. He had removed a tire and rim, it is reported, and was in the act of straightening-up after placing it on the floor, when the inner tube exploded with a cannon-like report. The tires carry a pressure of 95 to 100 pounds of air.

Going to the injured man's assistance fellow employees found him bleeding from a deep gash in his forehead. He was rushed to Nicholls Hospital in Bellegheim's ambulance where he recovered consciousness shortly after admittance. Dr. T. G. Loudon who attended did not believe Hegadoren sustained a fracture.

ICE-COATED ROADS IN WHOLE DISTRICT

No Serious Accidents Reported To Drivers On Worst Night Of Year

Despite freakish weather conditions, which again coated sidewalks and pavements with a treacherous surface of glare-ice and covered auto windshields with an opaque crust that obscured the vision of drivers, no serious traffic accidents were recorded overnight. Provincial Constable Lloyd A. McClure declared that his traffic beat extending from Fowler's Corners on Highway 7 to Welcome on Highway 28, was so far as he knew, free of any accident of a serious nature. Department of Highways sanding trucks were out, he said, to cope with the situation. City police similarly reported there was nothing of an unusual nature resulting from the icy state of the roads and sidewalks. They investigated an early morning mishap at Weller and Monaghan, in which a woman returning home from a party escaped injury when her car skidded over to the wrong side of the roadway, mounted the sidewalk, and collided with a power pole. The pole was splintered at the base and the car sustained damage to the front bumper and radiator. Fred L. Roy, who drove from Oshawa after showing pictures there of "Britain on Parade," reported road conditions were very bad. He declared the drivers of heavy transports laid over at Bewdley waiting for an improvement in driving conditions, while he saw some cars that had skidded into ditches.

PROMOTION, ADVANCEMENT and preferment in employment, and enhanced success of a sudden nature, coming through toil or industry, are foretold by the predominant planetary influences. Changes quite unforeseen may figure in these. There may be a curious, intriguing or mysterious adventure in the emotional nature. Sign all writings cautiously.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of enhanced fortunes through employment, industry or labor. Their positions will be stabilized, possibly in an unexpected or unforeseen manner.

Relief Lists Climb Steadily Despite Pick-Up In Business

Many New Openings Going To School, Farm Youths—Better Machines Lessening Jobs

WAGES OFTEN TOO LOW

OTTAWA, Jan. 21—(CP).—Failure of relief figures to reflect the current economic recovery is an indication not only of a marked lag between business improvement and employment but also of the failure of unemployment and relief figures to decrease as employment increases, J. K. Houston, Labor Department statistician, states in the current Labor Gazette.

In a studious analysis of relief, employment and production figures of recent years, he deals separately with the two phases of the question.

He notes that in the three years from April, 1933, to April, 1936, the business index rose 55.9 per cent, while employment rose only 28.2 per cent. He pointed out, too that many unemployed are not on relief, and, on the other hand, the relief rolls include not only employables and their dependents, but also unemployables and their dependents and farmers and their families.

He finds that a large proportion of the new employment is going to employables not on relief, to boys and girls coming of working age and to young people from farms, who become competitors for jobs as employment improves.

Part-time employment, he said, is helping to raise the employment index, while not reducing the relief rolls to the same extent. The on-and-off movement is considerable, judging by provincial reports.

Wages Too Low to Live On

Partial relief in full-time employment complicates the situation from another angle, due to prevalence of wages so low as to be insufficient to keep a man in periods of idleness and which, in many instances, do not even reach the minimum level established by relief.

Added to low wages, as a factor in maintaining the relief rolls, is the growing unemployability of thousands of those still classed as employables. Another large section of those on relief are said to be unskilled, and only in limited demand even when there is a shortage of some classes of skilled workers. There are also continual additions to the rolls of those whose resources have gradually been depleted.

Technical improvements in production, rather than being retarded by depression, have been accelerated as employers sought new economies, thus increasing production and unemployment simultaneously.

Mr. Houston notes that the revival in industrial production also is only reflected after an interval in production of general services.

Railroaders Come To Decision After Week's Deadlock.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21 (AP).—A joint committee of five railroad brotherhoods announced last night it had decided to ask for a 20 per cent. wage increase applicable to all the unions. The decision ended a week-long deadlock over how a request for an increase would be presented by the United States railroaders. B. L. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Engineers, said the proposed increase would mean $116,500,000 annualty for some 300,000 members of the five unions.

PROFESSOR PRINCE TO ADDRESS FORUM

Meeting Will Be Held Sunday In Collegiate Auditorium

Continuing its policy of securing outstanding speakers to address its meetings, George Street Open Forum has arranged for the appearance here on Sunday, January 24, of Prof. A. E. Prince, Department of History, Queen's University, Kingston, who will address a public meeting in the Collegiate Assembly hall, on the international situation, having special reference to Europe.

Prof. Prince, who is a graduate of both Manchester and Oxford universities in the Old Land, spent considerable time in Europe last summer and is particularly well qualified to handle his subject from both the British and Canadian viewpoints. For this reason he is much in demand to fill speaking engagements and Peterborough people are fortunate in having this opportunity of hearing him.

In view of the extreme gravity of the political situation in Europe with its disastrous and far-reaching possibilities, Prof. Prince will no doubt be faced by a large audience. Queen's graduates resident in the city are planning to attend and the gallery will be available for ladies.

SENATE PASSES SUCCESSION ACT

Sauve Advocates Clearer Definition Of Canada's Defence Policy

OTTAWA, Jan. 21.—(CP)—The Senate today will continue debate on the address in reply to the Throne Speech after passing through second and third readings the bill changing the act of succession to conform with conditions arising from abdication of former King Edward and accession of King George.

No sooner did the Red Chamber return to the address debate yesterday than talk returned to the questions of national defence and economic conditions. Senator John T. Haig (Cons. Winnipeg) urged appointment of a Royal Commission to investigate financial difficulties of the three prairie provinces, saying the step was necessary to save their credit and prevent damage to Canada's financial standing in the world.

Senator Arthur Sauve (Cons. Rigaud) declared Canada's defence position should be more clearly defined, that a policy of national defence should have as its first principle the defence of Canada and that peace education should be prosecuted in times of peace.

"If the older nations do not improve their ways of understanding the needs of coming civilizations, we on the North American continent should give them a few lessons," he said.

Senator F. B. Black (Cons. Sackville) said he was willing to admit Canadian preparation for self-defence did not remove the possibility of this country's being compelled at some time to take part in a European war, but he believed it was essential for Canada to prepare herself against attack.

Senator J. J. Hughes (Lib. Prince Edward Island) was scheduled to speak first when debate resumes this afternoon.

REBELS RECAPTURE "HILL OF ANGELS"

Heavy Losses Sustained As Control See-Saws Back And Forth

CERRO DE LOS ANGELES, Spain, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Fascist bombing planes retaliated to-day for a Socialist attempt to seize the heavily fortified "Hill of Angels" which was repulsed in hand-to-hand fighting.

While explosives rained on the government lines facing the hill—which Madrid defenders called "Red Hill" during their brief possession of it—a double column of insurgent infantry swept around the base to wipe out Socialist snipers still concealed in the barren olive groves.

A Fascist commander estimated 60 militiamen were killed in the engagement as against 30 Fascists.

An insurgent force of 200 men, he said, was holding the hill when three battalions of Madrid troops crept down the Aran road under cover of darkness and a haze, and suddenly stormed it.

The Fascists barricaded themselves inside a hostel, the officer said, and blazed away at the Madrid force as it reached the crest of the hill and took up positions in a church and convent.

Separated only by a short distance, the two forces opened intensive rifle and machine gun fire until Fascist reinforcements arrived, he said, when a counter-attack drove the Socialists back down the slope in hand-to-hand fighting.

HOME NURSING CLASSES PLANNED

Classes Are Scheduled to Open In Y.W.C.A. Next Week

The Red Cross home nursing classes start next week. Mrs. Walter Perks, 530 Gilmour Street, has been the convenor of the nurses' committee on the Red Cross Executive for some years. This year Mrs. Perks has helping her the following nurses: Mrs. Frank Lynch, Mrs. T. DeForge, Miss Florence Vickers, Miss Helen Russell, Miss Marion Lauder, Mrs. Max Sloan, and Miss Dorothy McBrien. These nurses will teach the first eight lessons of the course, that is, the lessons dealing with care of the sick in the home, personal hygiene and good habits for healthy people. Following these lessons the doctors teach on: First aid, communicable disease and infant care. The last lesson is given by a dietitian on food values, correct diet. The classes are usually taken from groups already organized. In this way the girls study with their own friends, and thus get more benefit from the lessons. This year the majority of the classes are taken from the girls who work in industry. There is always space left, however, for any one who desires to take the course. Besides the classes that are held every evening at the Y.W.C.A., there are to be two afternoon groups for Collegiate girls and Girl Guides.

WILL SPONSOR BILL END SPEED LIMIT

Windsor Liberal Proposes Safe Driving Clause Be Substituted

TORONTO, Jan. 21 — (C.P.). — J. H. Clark (Lib., Windsor-Sandwich) will sponsor a bill in the Ontario Legislature to abolish the speed limit on the open highway. Mr. Clark's bill, now being prepared, would set a 30-mile limit in built-up areas, not incorporated as municipalities, and would abolish the present 35-mile legal limit on open highway and substitute a safe-driving clause.

Ontario cabinet discussed abolition of the speed limit and decided the Government would not sponsor such a measure. Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways, will oppose the Clark bill, it is understood.

Provincial police traffic officers were asked their opinion of the proposal. They were almost unanimous it would make convictions for reckless driving, hard enough to obtain now, they say, almost impossible.

Warsaw Held Draw By Canadiens' Team

Warsaw and Canadiens went to a 1-1 tie in a neat Westend Puck League game last night here. Warsaw had an edge the first two frames but Canadiens worked hard in the third to sew up the tilt. Miles got the Dummer boys' counter in the second, and Rennie evened it up toward the end. It was a fast, clean game. Kirkwood handed out a flock of hard bodychecks and Bowen, on the other defence, shone. Watts and Rennie also looked good. Both teams shape up well and will crowd All Saints and Keene. Teams:

Warsaw: Goal, Watts; defence, Morgan, Bowen; centre, E. Bell; wings, Cooper, Payne; alternates, Watts, Miles, Sharpe, F. Bell.

Canadiens: Goal, Townsend; defence, Kirkwood, Spencely; centre, Johnston; wings, Sproat, Rennie; alternates, Hickey, Edwards, Hunter.

Referee, H. McFadden.

St. Peter's In Draw With All Saints' 3-3

In a fast, even Junior City Hockey League game last night at the Brook St. rink, St. Peter's and All Saints went to a 3-3 draw. Play was quite speedy and even in every period with both teams turning in some good hockey going both ways. Shaughnessy shone in the first period as All Saints threatened but there was no score. Hoy scored for the S.P.S. crew on Craig's rebound in the middle chukker. The third was more open with Creighton and Hoy scoring for St. Peter's, and McDougall, Williams and Jamieson tallying for All Saints. The scorers and goalies were especially effective in this keen contest, while the defences toiled hard. The teams:

St. Peter's: Goal, Shaughnessy; defence, Prete, Curtin; centre, O'Leary; wings, Hoy, Craig; alternates, Thornton, Sullivan, Creighton, Hawkes.

All Saints: Goal, Jay; defence, Jamieson, Quirt; centre, McDougall; wings, Mortimer, Williams; alternates, Legon, Clarke, Rowbottom.

Referee, E. Wolff.

MARK ST. JUVENILES TIE WITH MURRAY ST. OUTFIT

Under unfavorable weather conditions, Mark St. Juveniles and Murray St. of the Church Hockey League struggled to a 1-1 tie last night. They looked up to the best juvenile type last night with Mark St. having more territorial play but Murray St. doing some rugged checking and fine goal-minding, K. Gillespie shining, to keep it even. Foster starred for the Baptists and got their goal in the second. Graham and Nicholls combined to sew it up in the third with Murray St. a man short. Dench, Craig, Nicholls and Graham went well for the

PETERBORO' WINS TANKARD GROUP OVER LAKEFIELD

M. Cruthers Gets Two 5-Ends In Succession Off Richard Butler

SOME FINE CURLING

(By Herb Martin)

Following many false starts the Tankard play-offs for this district were finally completed Wednesday afternoon and evening. After many years of plugging away and waiting Peterborough finally won.

Lakefield In Final.

In the final game with Lakefield, the Peterborough boys took command right at the start. Try as the Lakefield chaps would, they could make no headway against rinks that were curling like well-oiled machines run.

Big Game Of Day.

The game that drew the interest of the spectators was the Cruthers-Butler affair . . . "Bill" Cruthers and his entire rink, playing for the first time in Tankard competition celebrated their "coming-out party" at the expence of R. Butler and Company. So complete was the downfall of the Lindsay boys that the score was almost doubled . . . We believe that Cruthers skipped about the best game that has been witnessed for some time and if possible played a better one. He was well supported by a rink that did everything that was asked of them.

Took Two Five End.

Along about the 6th end and playing towards the south end of the rink Cruthers grabbed off a big 5-end and then just to show the Lindsay boys he was playing for keeps, grabs off another big 5 at the other end.

And we are just here to tell you that when you take ten points in two ends from Lindsay's "four horsemen" you are doing something that no man need be ashamed of.

Dicky tried hard with his last stone on the last end and succeeded in cutting a big four down to one.

Over on the other ice with Ray Best against Nugent it looked like as if the game might go over time until Ray Best made a beautiful raise to cut out his opponent's stone and lay one himself . . . and when Nugent tried with his last stone to remove Bests, he played a little wide and when his effort failed Lindsay's chances of going any farther in the 1937 Tankard games had "Gone with the wind."

Results were as follows:

St. John's Bantams Tie With All Saints'

St. John's Bantams and All Saints battled to a 1-1 tie in a good Church Hockey League game last night. St. John's forced play and had more finish in close and should have won. But All Saints got a second goal which was disallowed owing to a crease infraction. Carpenter went good all night and got the All Saints' counter in the first. St. John's did not tie it till the final few moments, Crowter passing to Thompson. Morley and Thompson went well, with Moore and Ackford also effective. It was the first game either team did not lose. The lineups.

St. John's: Goal, Castle; defence, Thompson, D. Moore; centre, Crowter; wings, Cranford, Matthews; alternates, J. Moore, Frank, Farrow, Batten.

All Saints: Goal, Lacheur; defence, Morley, Mills; centre, Maudsley; wings, Ackford, Carpenter; alternates, Burns, Cuthbert, Hotrum.

Referee, D Charlton.

Keene Takes 2-0 Win In West-End Contest

Keene took a 2-0 Westend Hockey League win over All Saints here last night in a rough struggle. The winners had an edge the first two periods and held off All Saints with close checking in the third. Fletcher and D. McCarthy scored in the second for the visitors. Pearson in All Saints' goal had plenty to do and looked good doing it. Besides the goal scorers, Shearer, Watson, Maudsley and Fisher showed up well. The teams:

Keene: Goal, Renwick; defence, Nelson, Richardson; centre, Campbell; wings, Shearer, D. McCarthy; alternates, Joyce, Fletcher, Gall, O. McCarthy, McIntyre.

All Saints: Goal, Pearson; defence, Seabrooke, Saunders; centre, Maudsley; wings, Fisher, Legon; alternates, Frost, Watson, Alton, Rusaw.

Referee, H. McFadden.

East City team. The lineups:

Mark St.: Goal, F. Agnew; defence, Mason, Strickland; centre, Nicholls; wings, Craig, Graham; alternates, Eason, Scriver, N. Agnew, Barringer, Gamble.

Murray St.: Goal, K. Gillespie; defence, Duncan, Crary; centre, C. Gillespie; wings, Whalley, Foster; alternates, Smith, Cox.

Referee, D. Charlton.

CITY LOOP TILT ENDS IN 1-1 DRAW

Canucks And Monarchs Battle In Rough Junior League Game

Canucks and Monarchs battled to a 1-1 draw in a rough Junior City Hockey League game last evening at the Brock St. rink. The rival players carried chips on their shoulders, looking for trouble, and twice free-for-alls occurred. Fleming and Berwick started one in the first and Giardino and Vitarelli one in the third. Langton of Monarchs scored in the third on a penalty shot, while Collins tallied on Fleming's pass for Canucks in the opening inning. The checking was close and the goal-minding good throughout, the low score having the players on edge and ready to fight at the drop of a hat. The teams:

Canucks: Goal, McKinnon; defence, Giardino, Ridley; centre, Fleming; wings, Coursey, Csumrik; alternates, Conroy, Connelly, Collins, Campbell.

Monarchs: Goal, Whaley; defence, Jordan, Vitarelli; centre, Conroy; wings, Todd, Berwick; alternates, Dorris, Langton, Boyle, McGinnes, Copperthwaite.

PERRY TROUNCES ELLSWORTH VINES IN RUBBER GAME

Briton Takes Two Of Three To Break Californian's Winning Streak

IN PHILADELPHIA NEXT

BUFFALO, N.Y., Jan. 21 (AP).—Fred Perry of England stopped Ellsworth Vine's winning streak in the seventh match of their professional series last night by taking two sets out of three, 6-4, 6-8, 6-2.

Perry thereby took the lead in the series. He has won four matches and Vines three. Perry has won 29 sets and Vines 24.

Vines, who recently came out of a hospital after an attack of influenza to win three straight matches, did not appear to be in his best form.

The Californian had net trouble and had difficulty getting his first serves in. Using a smash serve he aced Perry five times and was aced himself twice.

Perry, who won the first three matches in their series, fought with determination to stop Vines' string of victories. Several times the 4,000 spectators applauded him for sensational shots.

Vines outed more frequently. He had 100 outs and Perry 75.

Vines and Barnes defeated Perry and Lott in the doubles, 6-4, 6-3.

Several of Perry's fast placement shots brought exclamations from Vines. One of these won Perry the first set point, Vines slipping near the baseline as he reached for it.

Vines opened up with an ace near the beginning of the second set, and his fast serves won him the first three games. But after two more aces in the next game, his playing was less brilliant, although he won the second set. Twice he missed easy placements, hitting into the net.

In the final set Vines won only the third and seventh games.

In the preliminary, Bruce Barnes defeated George Lott, 6-1, 7-5.

Vines and Perry will go to Philadelphia for a match Friday.

Ski-ing

...today to ski—how? What is the snow like?

22—DETERMINING SNOW CONDITIONS

As mentioned in my previous article any good base wax will serve the average skier for all conditions of snow, Before applying the running wax however, we must know the snow conditions prevailing in order for best results. The three general snow conditions are as follows:

(A)—Dry or cold snow; when squeezed in the hand it does not pack but remains in a loose condition. This type of snow will prevail on a cold day when little or no thawing is taking place. Apply a running wax designated for dry snow.

(B)—Medium snow; when squeezed in the hand the snow will pack to some extent and is on the point of melting. Apply a running wax for medium or fresh snow. Parafin may be used quite successfully as a running wax for this type of snow.

(C)—Wet snow; this snow will pack into a solid ball and is practically thawing. It usually contains a great deal of water and you will need a running wax suitable for wet snow.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(C.J.P.)

THERE IS blood on the moon and there'll be thunder in the stands at the Brock tonight. 'Cause it's Senior City Hockey League night with a triple-header getting under way at seven bells. Millbrook meets Westclox in the opening number, followed at eight by Lakefield and ye Outboard Marines, and at nine by Bewdley and the Mayfairs. Needless to say, the Blood and Thunder Loopers will dish up action, excitement and fun in huge gobs in every melee, and high-strung lumberjacks from up Apsley way had better bring along smelling salts! Ought to be good, and should draw a big crowd of fans and fannettes.

THE FRENCH say: "Cherchez la femme," but the damsels may be located—at least, those who play basketball in the Ladies' Loop—at the Y.W. gym tomorrow in the gloaming. Four contests are booked in this order: George St. vs. C.G.E. Juniors at 7.45, "Y" Quakers vs. Marconi Seniors at 8.15, Westclox vs. St. John's Juniors at 9.00, and C.G.E. vs. Westclox Seniors at 9.30. Some swelegant hoop play was dished up last Friday in this circuit and the damsels ought to be in even better shape this weekend Or do modern misses ever permit themselves to get out of shape? Should be lively basketball, anyway.

WHEN A man bites a dog, that's not news—it's nuts. And when a ball game is called off because of rain, that is hardly news as it often rains without consulting the diamond moguls. But when a hockey game has to be terminated rather abruptly because of rain—well, it is a bit out of the ordinary. Such was the case last week when two Bancroft squads were battling it out on an open-air rink. A misty drizzle finally turned to a downpour and the disgusted pucksters, mumbling: "Well of all the blinkety-blank climates!" shuffled home, postponing the tilt.

TRENTON TOWN team plays the Petes an O.H.A. intermediate game here tomorrow (Friday) night at the Brock. As it is the Petes' first home game of the season, a good-sized crowd of rooters is expected to attend and whoop her up. The locals have one decision over the Trentoneers and hope to make it two here tomorrow. Coach Buckland has a pretty fair squad lined up and they'll do okay this winter yet. One loss to the Fliers doesn't mean a thing—they'll make the Airmen like it yet this season! But some support from fandom here will help the boys along muchly, both vocal and financial support. Fans ought to see a nice contest.

BELLEVILLE SCRIBE scribbles: "Hockey is doubtlessly well on the way to recovery and better days here, as last night's 1500 patrons at the R.C.A.F.-Peterborough game proves. The fans flocked to the local ice igloo to see a modern game of hockey between two fighting teams and were not disappointed. The Fliers forged to the fore with three goals in the initial frame, but from that point forward the visiting Petes played the Airmen rather evenly as the final 7-3 score shows. It must be remembered that the Fliers had the advantage of some 14 previous games, including a dozen in the Kingston loop and one O.H.A. fixture, under their belts, while the Petes had the advantage of only their lone O.H.A. game in Trenton. No doubt, the next Peterborough-R.C.A.F. game will be much more closely contested."

OUR COLTS copped another last p.m. in Tweed by a 13-8 count. Yeah, it was hockey—not rugby, in spite of the score. A wide-open and interesting tussle with the rival forwards firing more rubber than a statesman throws language. The Colts, handled by Bill Calladine last eve, took a 5-1 lead at first and started the second like a landslide, but the battling Tweedsters made it a keen, even fight the rest of the way. Harding had to be extra good in our net or the homesters would have made it much closer. A switch in goalies for Tweed as the middle chukker opened helped 'em a lot. The young Petes looked real good on the attack but their back-checking wasn't exactly the four-star variety. Tweed is here Monday.

* * * * * * *

THE KINGDON-G. CLARK-BRADY line went great in the opening installment, but the Starr-Heal-Wright trio carried the mail the last two chapters. Wright is going good this season along with those other two and it's a potentially powerful line when carrying the puck. The local defence looked pretty fair, too, considering the open type of tilt it was. All the Tweedmen turned in fine performances, especially in the last half. The game was 20 minutes late starting as one Peterborough car arrived late. And, man, oh, man, but it was icy on the highway coming back! That'll be the last trip to Tweed—a nice town—this winter, and Eddie Starr won't mind. He got a shiner playing there the first game, and some fan leaned over the boards last night and bounced a fist off his beezer. Was he mad?

* * * * * * *

TWO SMART Junior City Hockey League games were run off last eve, Canucks and Monarchs tying 1-1 in a scrappy affair, and St. Peter's and All Saints going to a 3-all draw in a speedy tussle. The boys gave all they had in both contests and showed some nice hockey. The 1-1 game saw the rivals ready to battle at the slightest excuse, two free-for-alls occurring. We are asked to bawl out one of the defencemen for dirty playing, but hesitate to do so since we didn't see the game. There is a difference between rugged and dirty tactics and players should stick to the former brand. The game is rough and risky enough without using unfair tactics and perhaps sending a boy to the hospital.

GRAB-BAG: Church and Westend Loops' puck dope is in tonight . . . . The school soccer banquet at King Edward tomorrow is for Cen'l and King Edward players, the two home and school association putting it up . . . . Referee Jerry Quinn of Tweed looks like an okay hockey arbiter to us . . . . Grove took an 8-4 nod over P.C.I. puckists at the Brock yestiddy, Nos. 1 and 5 shining for the winners, who had lunch later at P.C.I. and went to a show . . . . The P.C.I. cage teams are idle tomorrow . . . . Senior City Loop cage tilts at the "Y" on Sat'day e'en are: St. Paul's vs. P.C.I. at eight, and C.G.E. vs. Dominion Life at nine . . . . Coach Buckland said this a.m.: "I wish you'd leave out the scoring summaries of our junior games and then maybe the Colts would play hockey!" . . . . The ice is in good shape for Senior City Hockey League jousts this evening.

GANDHI DROPS MAHATMA

No Right To Honor, Now a Scavenger He Says.

BOMBAY, Jan. 21 (AP).—Mohandas K. Gandhi, aged leader of the Indian Nationalist movement, today publicly disowned the title of "Mahatma," maintaining he had no right to the honor. While touring the State of Travancore, Gandhi asserted the title often had embarrassed him so great, "it now stinks in my nostrils." Declaring he had no religion to give, the Nationalist leader added: "My humble role is that of a scavenger, both literally and spiritually."

The title of Mahatma means high-minded or great-souled.

STILL A HOLD-OUT

Hal Trosky will be the only holdover playing his regular spot in the Indians' first string infield this spring. Manager Steve O'Neil is going to try Roy Hughes at third and move "Bad News" Hale from third to second. Lyn Lary, of course, will be in Knickerbocker's slot at short. You might as well have the full name, its Robert William Andrew Feller, and boy, that's worth plenty in the right spot.

Going Great With Canadiens

The high-flying Canadiens gave Bill McKenzie, star defenceman, his big chance when he was put in the line-up to fill the shoes of injured Babe Siebert. Experts claimed the Canadiens' "old men" crack up without Siebert holding down a defence position. The other night when the Frenchmen met their inter-city rivals, the Maroons, they went wild and trounced Maroons to the tune of 5-0. Big Bill McKenzie, pictured here, scored two of his team's goals and played a bang-up defensive game. Bill formerly belonged to Maroons but was sold to Rangers to fill a gap created by injuries to Ching Johnson. He was later bought by Canadiens.

Trenton Pucksters Play Petes Friday

Trenton intermediates play the Petes an O.H.A. scheduled game here tomorrow (Friday) evening at 8.30 o'clock in the Brock St. rink. It will be the Petes' first home game of the season and the only appearance here this winter of the Trenton town team. In a previous meeting, the locals defeated this crew in Trenton. The locals hope to repeat it tomorrow but expect a good game. Smarting under their reverse two nights ago at the hands of the Fliers from the Trenton Airport—on Belleville ice—the Buckland gang will be in there battling for an early lead. A good-sized crowd of fans is expected to see the Petes open their home season on a fast sheet of ice.

Clarke will be in goal for the Petes, while four defencemen will be picked from Weir, Ellis, Gardner, Magee and Williamson. The first front line will see Calladine flanked by Vitarelli and Burton; and the alternate line will have Coughlin, McDougall and Creighton. This team looked good last game, in spite of a loss, and they should dish up a lot of speedy and smart hockey here tomorrow on a good surface. Trenton will trot out their strongest lineup in an attempt to knock over the Petes.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—(A.P.). — A good major league holdout would be worth what he wants in publicity now....Earle Brucker of the A's, Buck Newsom, Senators; Rudy York, Tigers, and Rip Radcliff, White Sox are about the only dissatisfied players in the whole field right now, and they've been pretty tame about the whole thing....Of course, there's the great and terrible Dean, but somehow we seem to have heard it all before....

But the worst crack of all came the other day from a coast scribe who accused him of getting married so that he could have somebody watch him play in the tournaments.

SPIDER ARMSTRONG FALLS TO MARTIN 10-ROUND DECISION

Toronto Boxer Lacks Experience Of Canadian Bantam Champion

SHOWS GREAT COURAGE

mic-charged fists of Frankie Martin, Canadian bantam-weight champion, carried him to a convincing ten-round decision over Toronto's Jackie "Spider" Armstrong in the main bout of Sammy Kellar's pro fistic offering at Maple Leaf Gardens last night.

Three thousand customers cheered the willing Armstrong as he piled into threatening disaster with a reckless abandon, but apart from the first two rounds, which he took with a beautiful display of boxing, the Spider was second best. Martin, once he found the range, shot hard rights and damaging left hooks to Armstrong's head and body to win the approval of the judges.

Irving Pease Kayoed.

Surprise of the night was the loss of Irving Pease to Max Kadin in the third bout of the night. Kadin was given the award on a technical knockout in the fourth round, when a deep cut over Pease's left eye bled so badly and invited infection that the referee, Herschel Osborne, had to stop the bout. Pease was ahead on points and likely would have won except for this unforeseen happening.

Bouncing Bobby Docherty was knocked unconscious for ten minutes when he waltzed into one of sturdy Matt Ozanick's shattering left hooks in the semi-final bout. The surly-looking Pittsburg bantam, who wields a mighty right fist, finally caught up with Docherty in the seventh round, and the Toronto boy crumpled to the canvas, out cold.

Mother Faints.

Carried to the Gardens hospital ward, it took Dotcors M. M. Crawford and James Barton ten minutes to bring him around. Meanwhile, outside in the corridor, the mother of the injured boxer, unnerved and unstrung, collapsed and had to be given medical assistance.

Both boxer and mother responded to treatment and were able to remain for the rest of the show—the main bout.

While Martin's title was not at stake in the main go, Armstrong had a chance to do things in a big way if he won the nod. But he was in against an experienced boy, who knew all the tricks and was much superior in punching power and infighting. The Spider gave a great exhibition of courage and ring generalship, and while he was forced back by the power of the champion's blows, he kept coming back. In the tenth, with the champ leading by a big margin on points, Armstrong was told by his handlers to carry the fight to his rival. And he did. And how he did. He started slugging toe to toe with the slugger, but the Montrealer revels in this sort of going and not only outslugged him, but made the Toronto boy tire.

Armstrong has never looked better in a local ring, and he deserved a lot of credit for putting up a good show, but Martin was a good winner.

In the sixth round a left hook which the champion uncovered, hit Armstrong at the belt and "Spider" reeled to the ropes and had to take a rest. Many claimed it a foul blow and away from the ringside it may have looked that, but it wasn't. After a rest, and attention in his corner, Armstrong came back.

The claim of a foul seemed to upset Martin and he tried his best to punch out an early win. In his over-anxiousness he looked bad a couple of times, missing badly when Armstrong stepped neatly aside But he found his timing again and went on to win handily.

Colts Grab 13-8 Nod In Hectic Puck Spree To Clinch Group Lead

Local Juniors Outscore Tweed In Lively O.H.A. Tussle Last Night To Take Firm Grip On Top Rung

HANG ON TO EARLY LEAD

In a wide-open and high scoring O.H.A. junior "B" fracas last night, the local Colts took a firmer grip on first place in the group standing by trouncing Tweed, 13 to 8, on the latter's ice. A fair-sized crowd saw a lively battle with both teams on a scoring spree that produced more counters than any O.H.A. tilt seen so far this season in the district. The ice was fast and the game extra speedy all the way.

The Colts had a 5-1 lead as the first frame finished and they looked to have a cinch at that time. But Tweed came back strong to hold them to a 4-4 draw in the second inning and to have the short end of a 4-3 count in the third. The loss leaves Tweed with but a mathematical chance of making a playoff berth, and a reverse for them here next Monday will kill off any chance.

The squad, coached by Bill Calladine last night, looked great in the opening stanza and managed to play on even terms the rest of the game. They were skating fast, passing and shooting hard. Their backchecking fell down the second and third periods. Tweed put up a fine fight after the first frame and gave the fans plenty to yell about, while matching stride for stride and shot for shot with the visitors. Play was quite clean, despite nine minor penalties of which the homesters drew six.

GOALIE SHINES.

Harding starred in the young Petes' net. Although beaten eight times, there were no soft shots, and he repeatedly robbed the ganging Tweedsters with lightning jumps. Kingdon, Connelly, Wright, Heal and Starr were all effective offensively, with the other forwards also turning in a good game. The second forward line shone in the first period while the first trio went best the last two innings. The defence played a good game. Sayers, sub goalie, Courtneyes, Ellsbury and Long were outstanding for Tweed, all the team showing up well. Mouck was replaced in goal at the end of the first heat.

The game was 20 minutes late in starting and the Colts early showed an edge in the fast going, with the Kingdon-Brady-G. Clark line pressing hard. Gee Clark scored first in a nice try and later Wright circled the net to counter. Harding broke his skate and time was called. Kingdon pulled a lone, tricky rush to score and T. Tummon went off hurt. Courtneyes took Ellsbury's pass-out to tally for Tweed but Connelly got it back shortly with a smart solo rush. Kingdon took Brady's pass to make it 5-1, and Brunton went off for tripping, followed by Embury for tripping.

Lively Inning.

Heal opened the second with a lovely try and score, with Wright getting another fast in close. Heal batted in Webb's rebound to make it 8-1. Heal went off for tripping and just got back as Wright was chased for charging. Harding had to be good as Tweed suddenly opened up to threaten in ganging. Brady was robbed but Gee Clark's snap shot beat the goalie. Leonard was hurt and T. Tummon got the gate for chopping. He was followed by Courtneyes and Brady for mixing it, and then Webb for tripping, leaving both sides short two men. Alexander got a goal for Tweed on a pass from Ellsbury, and then Courtneyes took Ellsbury's pass to score. At full strength again, both sides fought hard with Tweed having an edge. Voyer got one in close, aided by J. Tummon, and then Ellsbury scored on a pass from Courtneyes. Wright's goal as the bell rang was not counted.

Tweed ganged up most of the third and made things warm for Harding. Heal scored a nice one, aided by Wright and Starr. Ellsbury went off for tripping and Starr took Wright's pass to tally. Long broke through alone to bury the disc in hemp but Starr got it back, assisted by Heal. Long scored in a scramble, and after J. Tummon climbed the boards for tripping, Long again tallied from close range. Brady nearly hooched one as play swept back and forth redhot to the finish, with Kingdon getting the last one on Connelly's pass.

SENIOR CITY LEAGUE

The Senior City Hockey League stages a triple-header to-morrow (Thursday) evening at the Brock Street Rink, starting at seven o'clock. It is Millbrook vs. Westclox, at seven; Lakefield vs. Outboard Marines, at eight; and Bewdley vs. Mayfairs, at nine. Admission is 15 cents, and five cents for children. Plenty of rousing action and good hockey is assured in these Blood and Thunder Loop battles, and another good crowd is expected.

Hornsby Gets Joe Vosmik

The hot stove league is again burning with baseball trades. The latest is the trading of Joe Vosmik, Cleveland Indians' slugging left fielder, to St. Louis Browns. Baseball men are now wondering if Joe will remain long with St. Louis. He fell from .348 to a meagre .287 last season at bat. Along with Vosmik, Cleveland also traded Shortstop Bill Knickerbocker and Pitcher Oral Hildebrand in a straight trade for three St. Louis players who play the same positions. The one-time slugging Vosmik is shown here.

LAKEFIELD TEAM WINS GAME 5-2

Fans Disappointed When Only One Team From Campbellford Appears

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 21.—The exceptionally large crowd of Lakefield hockey fans who turned out on Tuesday night to see Campbellford Intermediates play Lakefield were disappointed when the Campbellford team failed to arrive, Lakefield Juveniles played Campbellford Juveniles, however, in the second game of the double-header scheduled, the hometown youngsters defeating their Campbellford friends in a 5-2 victory. The Juveniles gave the fans lots of excitement which started when Jarvis scored for the visitors in the first five minutes of play. Loyst tallied for Lakefield in the next five, and Marquis Bullock brought the score to 2-1 for Lakefield when he pushed in a fast shot toward the end of the first period.

Neither team scored in the second canto. Although Lakefield was handed a penalty, Campbellford failed to take advantage of it.

During the last session, Lakefield got three more points, when Loyst tallied once again and C. Birch pushed in two fast shots.

Campbellford made a noble attempt to tie the score, but succeeded in getting only one goal, when D. Free scored.

The goal-keepers for both teams put up some spectacular defence plays. Stabler on the Lakefield defence, and Jack Birch, Marquis Bullock and Charlie Birch on Lakefield's second forward line were in the limelight throughout the game. Kennedy and Free starred for the visitors. John Sabatino was referee. The line-up was as follows:

Rain Spoils Game

The hockey game between the L.O.L. and Bancroft Continuation School teams was held on Wednesday evening. Both teams were playing good hockey when the game had to be called in the middle of the second period due to an unexpected downpour of rain. The 30 minutes of play resulted in a tie, each team having two goals to its credit. Due to the unsuitable weather, this was the first opportunity obtained by the boys to have a game, and the rain did not brighten their spirits. However, the present cold weather is hoped to improve skating conditions, and fans are looking forward to another game this week.

ARMING OF GUARDS LIKELY AT GUELPH

Store Tear Gas Also Nixon Hints Indicating Policy To Be Changed

TORONTO, Jan. 21 — (C.P.). — Acting Premier Harry Nixon said to-day the Government was considering, even before it received an official report from Judge James Madden, the question of arming guards and storing tear gas at the Ontario Reformatory near Guelph.

Judge Madden, he said, would open a public inquiry into Sunday's prison riot, at Guelph, Tuesday, January 26. Counsel for the investigator, who will question reformatory prisoners and members of the staff, has not yet been named.

Reports that guards would be given firearms and that tear gas would be stored in the reformatory were described as "substantially correct." It was believed definite announcement of the change in policy would be made following the investigation.

Since the reformatory was established 25 years ago for men sentenced in Ontario courts to terms of less than two years, guards have never been armed. The riot Sunday was the first serious disturbance there.

ONTARIO BUCK LAW MAY BE REPEALED

Deputy Minister Points To Large Increase In Deer— Statute Operating Year

TORONTO, Jan. 21—(C.P.)—Ontario's buck law for the past two years a worry to deer hunters, may be repealed at the present session of the Legislature, D. J. Taylor, Deputy Minister of Game and Fisheries, said to-day. The law has prohibited the shooting of does and fawns. Light snowfall of the past two winters, together with the nature have resulted in a large increase in the deer population. Mr. Taylor said repeal of the buck law will be proposed in the Game and Fisheries Committee, and Government action will depend on the committee's attitude.

Severe winters of 1933 and 1934 took heavy toll of Ontario's deer population, said Mr. Taylor. To conserve it the buck law was made effective in 1935.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—(CP)—Senator Harry Fountain Ashurst—long a student of the English language—advocated the nation forget some of the words cluttering up the dictionaries.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE COLD TURTLE

"Ouch! Ouch! Oh, my nose! My poor nose!"

Baby Bunty, the little orphan rabbit, cried this out loud one morning in Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow where she lived.

"Why, Bunty, what happened?" asked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, who was out in the kitchen baking cabbage pancakes which, very soon, would be eaten by all the bunny rabbit children on their way to school, with carrot maple sugar.

I mean the pancakes were to have carrot maple sugar on them, not the rabbit children going to school. Gracious! If you put carrot maple sugar on little rabbits they would be so sticky they never could hop to school.

"Oh, I bumped my nose!" cried Baby Bunty and she held one paw

"It will be a fine door-stop."

over it and she danced on the other two paws, and in the third paw she had a school book, her first reader.

"Where did you bump your nose?" asked nurse Jane making a hop back to the stove for she smelled some of the pancakes beginning to burn.

Bumped Nose on Door

"I bumped my nose against the kitchen door," cried Bunty. "That door is always swinging shut when you don't think it's going to and you think it's going to stay open and you hop through it and then you bump your nose. Oh, dear!"

"Never mind," soothed Nurse Jane. "I'll bake you an extra pancake, Baby Bunty."

That made Baby Bunty feel better, especially as the pain in her bumped nose was easing a little. And when Nurse Jane had baked many pancakes and served them to the bunny children, away they hopped to school. I mean the bunnies hopped to school. But of course the pancakes went also for they were inside the bunnies, keeping them nice and warm in the cold, Wintry weather.

When Uncle Wiggily hopped down to his breakfast he asked:

"What was all the crying about, Nurse Jane?"

"Bunty bumped her nose on the kitchen door that won't stay open," said the muskrat lady housekeeper.

"Hum," said Uncle Wiggily as he ate his carrot pancake breakfast. "I must find some way of holding the door open. I don't want Bunty's nose to be bumped again."

A little later, when he was hopping through the woods looking for an adventure, all of a sudden he saw what he thought was a smooth, round stone on the ground.

Thinks of Door Stop

"Oh, ho!" said Uncle Wiggily. "That smooth, round stone will be just what I need to hold open the door so Bunty won't bump her nose. It will be a fine door stop."

He was about to pick up the stone when he noticed that it was moving a little. Now Uncle Wiggily had never seen a stone move before, unless it was rolling, so it wouldn't gather moss, unless some one had just thrown it. So the bunny said:

"This is funny!"

"No, my name isn't Funny!" said a little voice coming from the stone. "My name is Pokey!"

"My goodness! Who are you? Aren't you a stone?" asked Mr. Longears.

"No," was the answer. "I am a cold turtle and my name is Pokey. Oh, please help me to get warm. Oh, how cold I am!"

And if the Jumping Jack doesn't turn the doll house upside down to see what's in the cellar, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Hokey Pokey.

Wheeler's Hunch Netted Culprits

Not even within the broad scope of police regulations is a constable permitted to arrest a man on suspicion that he is devising a breach of the law. And sometimes the circumstances almost warrant police intervention when some little overt act seems to betray guilt before the fact. That's what Constable Wheeler quickly concluded the other night when he came upon two youths near the corner of Charlotte and George streets, one of whom he knew had some minor record on the files around at the Water street office.

The young man halted strangely when he caught sight of Officer Wheeler, and something about that involuntary desire to avoid recognition looked shady. That was around midnight. The constable continued along his south beat, and about fifteen minutes later two men swung around the Customs House corner going south. They saw Wheeler and reported excitedly that a Canada Dry truck had been stolen from in front of the Empress. The constable remembered having heard a truck pass down Water street and turn into George at Sherbrooke, and his suspicion flared up again as he recalled the incident of the two youths.

The night wore on and news reached Provincial Constable Silvester that a store had been broken into at Warsaw. He mentioned it to Wheeler who connected the two depredations. Nothing turned up in the way of a livelier clue at Warsaw, and Constable Wheeler suggested that the truck would probably be found at a house somewhere north of Lindsay. His surmise proved correct for when Silvester and Detective Sergeant Meagher drove out there the green truck was parked in front of the house. Saturday morning in police court one of the youths pleaded guilty to both offences and the other admitted only one.

NEED MORE ROOM FOR CORONATION WITH QUEEN TOO

Plans Were All Fixed For Bachelor Crowning At Westminster Abbey

REVISING SETUP

By GODFREY ANDERSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 21—(A.P.)—After 10 month's preparation for the crowning of a bachelor King, harassed coronation officials have had to revise their plans as a result of Edward's abdication.

One set of regalia, one throne, one crown, are no longer enough. There is a Queen to be crowned, too. The Queen's crown, with its famous Koh-i-noor diamond, the Queen's throne, the Queen's regalia must be prepared for Queen Elizabeth.

Architects who designed a bachelor King's robing room—already partly erected at the west door of Westminster Abbey — are bending over their plans again. Somewhere a Queen's robing room must be fitted in. The Duke of Norfolk, Earl Marshal, has a host of fresh problems. Somehow he has to allot seats in the already-crowded Abbey to Queen Elizabeth's family, the Strathmores and to her friends.

Crowning of the Queen is expected to follow historic precedent. On the same altar steps where Queen Mary knelt at the side of King George V 26 years ago, a commoner Queen will kneel at her husband's side to be crowned and anointed.

The dean of Westminster will hand the Archbishop of Canterbury the holy oil in the anointing spoon and the archbishop will anoint the Queen upon the head. A Queen is anointed upon the head only, but the King is anointed on the head, breast and the palms of each hand.

While the Queen is anointed she is supported by her two bishops and a magnificent golden pall is held over her head by four ladies-in-waiting. The archbishop then places on the fourth finger of her right hand the Queen's ring, encrusted with jewels, saying as he does so:

"Receive this ring, the seal of a sincere faith; and God to whom belongeth all power and dignity, prosper you in this honor, and grant you therein long to continue, fearing Him always and always doing such things as shall please Him, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."

At the concluding words of this prayer all the peeresses in the Abbey will raise their arms and place their coronets upon their heads. The archbishop will then hand the Queen her sceptre in the right hand and the ivory rod—surmounted by a dove—in the left.

As the Queen returns to her place on the throne, supported by the bishops and her ladies-in-waiting and trainbearers, she makes deep abeisance to the King as she passes him. Later they kneel side by side again as the communion service marks the closing stages of the ceremony.

PREPARES FOR EXPANSION.

WINDSOR.—An expansion program, involving a capital investment of $5,000,000, was forecast for the Canadian automobile industry in 1937 by John D. Mansfield, Windsor president and general manager of the Chrysler Corporation of Canada, Ltd., in an address to more than 700 Chrysler dealers from all parts of Canada here. His optimism backed up with facts and figures, Mr. Mansfield said there was unmistakable evidence Canada was marching back towards prosperity.

MARMORA'S FAIR BOARD GOES IN RED BY 67 CENT DEFICIT

W. A. Sanderson Is Returned As President—All Prizes Paid In Full

SHOW SET OCTOBER 18-19

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Jan. 21.—The annual meeting of Marmora Agricultural Society was held in the Council Chamber on Wednesday afternoon with the retiring president W. A. Sanderson in the chair.

H. W. Sabine, secretary-treasurer presented the financial statement in which it was revealed that the total receipts amounted to $2,967.25 with total expenditures at $2,968.02 leaving a debit balance of sixty-seven cents.

Included in the expenditures was the reduction of the mortgage on the building by $100.00, the payment of outstanding accounts which amounted to $300.00 and the payment of the 1937 fair prize money in full.

The election of officers resulted in the return of W. A. Sanderson as president, C. Jones as first vice president and T. E. Neal as second vice president.

The directors for the ensuing year were chosen as follows: F. S. Johnston, J. A. Bell, W. J. Pack, T. B. Moffatt, W. Billings, G. Wellman, J. McCoy, Raymond Bonter, S. A. Stephens, D. Shannon, S. A. Lowe, T. Bateman, E. Barrons, J. Finnegan and John Doyle. E. C. Prentice and C. A. Bleecker were appointed auditors.

The president and secretary were appointed as delegates to the Central Ontario Fairs Association meeting in Belleville on Jan. 28th.

Application will be made to hold Marmora Fair on October 18th and 19th.

At a meeting of the directors held following the adjournment of the general meeting, H. W. Sabine was reappointed secretary-treasurer.

This meeting adjourned until February 12.

Flying time between all points in the British Empire will be cut one-half.

Northumberland and Durham left few openings for protest or criticism However, the debate may come later in the week.

Wants $30,000 More

"If you give me $30,000 of the $60,000 which you are being relieved of this year, I think the ratepayers will thank you just as much for the improvement which this money will provide for," Mr. Miller said. "You were all elected on a better road program that was discussed in December, and I don't think the members of the council will hear any complaints in their municipalities.

Mr. Miller assumed the duties of county road superintendent a year ago at the lowest point of the council's budgeting for road maintenance and construction. Only $40,000 has been allotted to that department for several years, and with the government paying half the total the counties' contribution was only $20,000 each year. This low ebb of road drafts on the treasury represented the nadir of the period when a program of county road paving costs reached a zenith of expenditure before the full force of the depression reached the tenth concession. The council tightened its belt, and went in for economy in a broad way. The effect of that rigid policy was reviewed by Mr. Miller in a general statement that the county roads are wearing down to their base in many places, and increased expenditure could be no longer delayed if additional expense was not ultimately to be incurred by increasing disrepair of the road structure.

Road Program Items

Some of the items in the $122,000 county road budget which Mr. Miller tentatively proposed to the committee with Reeve T. A. Reid, Clarke township, chairman, were as follows: 27,000 for gravel and crushing; purchase of four or five new trucks; bridge work $3,500; concrete culverts $6,000; metal culverts $3,000; ditching and grading $7,000; removing brush and weeds $3,000; sanding hills $1,000; dragging roads $4,500; operating power graders $4,000; snow fence $3,000; ten miles of stabilized road $3,500; one new road grader and maintainer with additional snow plows $6,000. And so on down the itemized estimates. One of the accounts was for patching paved county roads in which the Department of Highways has a half interest and is demanding that necessary repairs be made costing $1,100; surface treating pavements $4,400; insurance $2,500; salaries and office expenses $3,000.

The total outlay for the spring and summer amounted to $107,000, but Mr. Miller explained that washouts since January 1 had damaged various roads in the county to the extent of $15,000, and the Spring freshets were yet to come. Including this amount and with it the $6,000 on a new road maintainer and snow plows, $1,500 for the operation of the power grader and several other items the cost of operating the road department of the united counties would reach $28,000, Mr. Miller said, apart entirely from the ordinary appropriation which last year had been $40,000. He declared that the county road system had broken down to the stage at which they would create an expense to ratepayers in damages to their cars from driving over the county roads.

Reeve Stinson enquired whether Mr. Miller had extended his program of work and purchasing of equipment subsequent to the Hon. Mr. Croll's anouncement of the $50,000 relief to the counties. The Road Superintendent replied that his original budget slightly exceeded $60,000. He said that if we were to be in a position to carry on the work the council realized was required he should have at least $100,000 this year, of which $50,000 would be paid by the counties.

Comparison of Counties

Mr. Miller presented to each member of the council a comparative statement showing the amount of money appropriated by each of thirty-seven counties in the province, together with their county road mileage; county road mill rate and other pertinent facts. The Northumberland and Durham county road rate for 1936 was the lowest in the province. Excerpts from this tabulated statement are quoted as follows:

Appropriations per mile by other counties were cited as follows: York $1675; Waterloo $1056; Wentworth $740; Norfolk $785; Halton $765; Frontenac $500; Ontario $435; Hastings $290; Peterborough $545; Prince Edward $355; Middlesex $305; Renfrew $210; Lambton $256; Lincoln $660; Kent $615; Elgin $290; Victoria $510.

The average for 37 counties were: 2 mills county road rate; 223 miles of county roads, appropriation of $503 a mile; and the average of gravel roads 73 miles.

Peterborough has 138 miles of county roads; Middlesex 422; Lincoln 136; Prince Edward 147; Victoria 173; Hastings 291; Northumberland and Durham 278; Brant 92; Ontario 212; Frontenac 159.

According to the report Peterborough's mill rate of 3.7 for county roads was the highest last year; Hastings 2.3; Victoria 1.4; Northumberland and Durham .56; Essex .84; Renfrew .79; Simcoe .77; York 2; Haldimand 3.6; Ontario 1.9; Prince Edward 1.7; Frontenac 2.8

Some of the appropriations for county roads last year were: Northumberland and Durham $40,000; Peterborough $75,000; Victoria $88,000; Hastings $85,000; York $503,000; Prince Edward $52,500; Bruce $150,000; Frontenac $80,000; Ontario $92,500; Huron $150,000; Kent $167,000; Welland $75,000; Dufferin $45,000.

The government pays half the total expenditure on county road construction and maintenance.

Mr. Miller stressed the fact that Kent county with about the same road mileage as Northumberland and Durham expended $167,000 on its county road system last year as compared with $40,000 by the united counties.

South Monaghan Petition

Farmers of South Monaghan petitioned the council to assume the township road from Wallace Point bridge to No. 28 highway at the Millbrook turn. The purpose of these ratepayers is to obtain an improved road through the township to Peterborough connecting with the road extending southwest through Otonabee.

Some of the signatories were, O. B. Johnson, Jay Whittington, J. O. Jackson, George Anderson, Harry Barnard, Harold Howson, Offa W. Williamson, Robert Kelly, Charles Barnard, Gordon Moncrief, A. J. Pue, W. T. Donaldson, Wm. Bradshaw, R. J. Isbister, Fred Wood, W. S. Darling, H. Brackenridge, Thompson Huggins, N. D. Willan, Reg. Atchison, Wm. Brackenridge, Allan Ray and others.

Reeve Fred Waterman supported the petition explaining that the section of road in South Monaghan was only a little more than 2½ miles. It afforded direct communication between Millbrook and Pontypool on the west and Keene and Hastings on the east, and also joined the Peterborough county road at Wallace Point bridge. Reeve Waterman said the township could not properly maintain it because of the heavy traffic over it.

On Reeve Stinson's motion, seconded by Reeve R. Innes of Seymour, the petition was referred to the incoming county roads commission for a report at the June sessions.

LADIES' NIGHT HELD BY MARMORA CLUB

Excellent Mixed Program Is Put On By St. Paul's Group

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Jan. 21. — Ladies' Night was observed by St. Paul's Men's Club on Wednesday evening, as this organization assembled in the Parish Hall.

The president, W. J. Cottrell, was in the chair, and the first number on the program was an instrumental selection by a trio comprising B. Kouri, W. Hart and D. Prentice. Glenn McColl then gave two songs with his own guitar accompaniment.

Rev. A. S. McConnell, rector of Stirling and guest speaker of the evening, gave an excellent talk on "Enthusiasm," taking three headings: Personal Enthusiasm, National Enthusiasm, and Religious Enthusiasm. The president then gave a comic song, after which W. R. Reynolds discoursed on some of the current events. The trio came next with another musical selection. The final number was a question box, conducted by Rev. A. S. McConnell, which evoked interest and much humor. The thanks of the club was extended to Rev. A. S. McConnell in a motion introduced by C. H. Buskard and seconded by Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell. Delicious refreshments were served at the close, and social intercourse was enjoyed for an hour before departure was taken for home.

POLICE DECLARE WOODCOCK SET FIRE TO CROSSES

DEATH PARTS RONDEAU QUADS AS THREE DIE

Day-Old Tots Fail To Survive Baptism At Church, 40-Mile Dash To Hospital

WITH CAR WRECK INVOLVED

Girl Clings To Life In Incubator —French-Canadian Mother of Ten Others Fine At Home

MONTREAL, Jan. 22.—(CP). — Death broke up the Rondeau quadruplets to-day, taking in swift succession three of the four children born yesterday in the Quebec village of St. Thomas.

Death of three of Mrs. Arcade Rondeau's children left little Marie Rita, the second oldest, as the only survivor of the 1½-day-old quartette. And her life hung in the balance as doctors tended her in a big hospital incubator.

The other two boys and one sister all had died within 10 hours of their arrival at hospital after a 40-mile midnight ambulance ride that climaxed in a smash-up outside Montreal.

Hospital authorities, however, attributed their deaths to premature birth rather than to any shock they might have suffered in the collision of the ambulance with a snowplow.

Tiny Marie Lise, last of the quads to be brought into the world in the big Rondeau farm house, died first with Joseph Achille Alfred, the oldest. Their feeble little pulses flickered out almost together around dawn to-day.

About five hours later, Joseph Gaston Andre's body was taken from the incubator at St. Justine Hospital.

First and Last Accident.

The two sons and two daughters of Mrs. Arcade Rondeau, speeding toward hospital early to-day from their farm home 40 miles north, were involved in their first accident when the ambulance collided on an ice covered road with a snowplow. The tiny French-Canadian youngsters emerged apparently unhurt, but the driver, doctor and one nurse were injured.

In hospital, doctors marshalled the forces of medical science to keep them alive. At the time of their premature birth in a farm house early yesterday, it was feared they would not survive.

Peering into the big incubator, doctors watched tensely as tiny pulses flickered, as tiny limbs kicked with all the feeble strength of one-day olds. The quads were getting the hospitalisation missing from the more famous "quintuplets" lives at Callander for months.

Their diet was restricted. At this stage of their brief span of living, they were being fed only on water, doled out drop-by-drop with an eye-dropper.

Short Lively Life

For infants, the quads had gone through considerable action on that meagre diet. The bustle of multiple birth in the flustered Rondeau household; the church christening when they were a bare 12 hours old; the long and—for them—dangerous drive to hospital. And, finally, the accident.

For the last two events, their 40-year-old mother was not with them.

2 PLANES MISSING IN EUROPEAN GALE

One Overdue Over English Channel—Other Irish Sea—North Coasts Lashed

LONDON, Jan. 22—(A.P.).—Two airplanes were missing over water to-day as wild storms continued to pound most of northern Europe.

A newspaper plane, carrying a pilot and wireless operator, was feared lost over the English Channel with a cargo of London newspapers for delivery in Paris.

Two persons aboard a civil plane were unreported on a flight across the Irish Sea from Liverpool to Belfast. They were more than a half day overdue on a flight which normally can be completed in several hours.

A third plane, also carrying newspapers, developed engine trouble over the English Channel and was forced to dump its half-ton freight into the sea in order to fight its way back to Lympne airport.

High winds, which battered coastal resorts, prevented the Pando liner St. Ailmaird from entering Plymouth harbor. A lifeboat was launched from Aberdeen to reach the British trawler Strathebrie, which wirelessed for help in the North Sea.

Blizzards carried on gale-force winds battered Scandinavian countries relentlessly after five days of continuous storms while the Thames River, whipped by winds and rain, overflowed it banks at Windsor Castle and Eton College.

THREE MONTREAL BOYS SURPRISED ROBBING STORE

Shots Fired Into Owner's Dog Bring Police—All Caught After Chase

LOOT FOUND IN HOUSE

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Jan. 22 (C. P.), — Detected early to-day in the act of robbing the hardware store of R. H. Smart, Limited, into which entry had been made by means of a rear window, three Montreal boys, each of them 15 years of age, were remanded to jail for one week when they appeared before Magistrate G. A. Wright.

Patrolling a laneway, Constable Eric Kirby noticed a pane missing from a rear window in the store and heard three shots being fired. Kirby summoned assistance from the police station and the police were about to close in on the building from either end of the lane when a trio of youths bolted from the front doorway with the officers in pursuit. Shots fired into the air failed to halt them, but eventually one of the boys was captured in another lane, the other two being taken at the caretaker's house in St. Lawrence Park, west of the town and closed for the winter, where the youths had been living for some days. Goods taken from the H. F. Johnson hardware store, on Wednesday night, were recovered there as well as a .32 automatic revolver in possession of the trio.

The boys fired bullets into the body of "Prince," a police dog owned by Edwin Smart. The animal has bullet wounds in the head and chest.

EXPECT ROOSEVELT STEP INTO STRIKE

Both Sloan And Lewis Hint Move Is Only Logical One Of Present

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP).—A new stalemate in U.S. Government attempts to negotiate the widespread General Motors strike made intervention by President Roosevelt appear inevitable today.

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., company president, and bushy-haired John L. Lewis, strike generalissimo, indicated their belief a White House conference was the next logical step.

The White House has given no indication, however, that Mr. Roosevelt would make any immediate move to take over the role of peacemaker.

A final effort by Francis Perkins, Secretary of Labor, to bring about a peace agreement broke down last night when Sloan expressed disapproval of a statement by Lewis there would be "no half-baked compromise."

"We found it useless at this time to discuss further any ideas we might have," said Sloan before leaving for New York early today.

"Any time the President sends for us, we'll be here."

Lewis, who declared his campaign to organize Ford and Chrysler workers would follow settlement of this walkout, was asked if he believed time for White House intervention had arrived.

"That's up to the President," he said, "but Labor intervened for him."

TORIES LOSE MOVE TO RULE ROEBUCK IS OUT OF ORDER

Henry And Cohorts Protest In Vain Attorney-General Discussing Matter Before Courts

DIVISION GOES 58 TO 13

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—(CP)—Ontario Legislature today waits expectantly for the Conservative answer to Attorney-General Arthur Roebuck's claim Hydro legislation now before the House follows precedent established by Sir James Whitney, Ontario's great Conservative premier.

Mr. Roebuck yesterday quoted Whitney's words in 1909 when he asked the legislature to speed a bill to render of no effect judgments which might be obtained by two Galt citizens plaintiffs in an action respecting a contract between the Provincial Hydro Commission, recently established, and the city of Galt.

Whitney's stand at that time, contended Mr. Roebuck, was identical in principle with the stand of present Ontario government in bringing in legislation to nullify the effect of any judgments obtained by Quebec power companies for nonperformance of contract by Ontario Hydro.

"If it is possible for the best lawyers private power interests can hire, supplemented by the best efforts of the lawyers on the opposition benches, to find a hole in this act," declared Mr. Roebuck, "I can say I'm ready to come back to this Legislature and pass another act and keep on passing acts till it sticks."

"Whitney set aside the courts except where the Attorney-General permitted action," said Mr. Roebuck. "Does it lie in the mouths of those who profess to be his followers today to talk about setting aside the court?"

Move Lost 58-13.

Efforts to have Mr. Roebuck ruled out of order failed on a 58 to 13 division. Mr. Henry and his followers protested he was discussing a matter now before the courts. Mr.

The Karmt's master said his 1,610 ton ship's hatches had been battered in by high seas and "she is drifting." He declared the vessel could remain afloat only a few hours.

LOCAL ANESTHETIC DISCOVERY MADE

New Artificially-Made Chemical Lessens Danger Of Bleeding

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (A.P.). — A new, fast-working local anesthetic, which reduces danger of bleeding, was announced yesterday in Science, official journal of American scientists.

The anesthetic is a new, artificially-made chemical, it combines, in experiments on animals, the announcement states, the chemical effects of novocaine and epinephrine. It has not yet been used on human beings.

The announcement was made by Raymond L. Osborne, M.D., of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University. The idea of the new anesthetic, he explained, is to constrict the blood vessels, so that the pain-killing part of the drug is not washed away, and the anesthetic effect can last longer.

In medical practice, this constriction of blood vessels has been accomplished with epinephrine, or adrenalin. But these drugs, Dr. Osborne states, cause nervousness in some persons.

The new substance is named epicaine and its chemical structure given as alpha beta diethaminoethoxybenzoin.

11 DIE IN FLOODS 80,000 HOMELESS MILLIONS DAMAGE

15,000 Flee City Of Portsmouth, Another 10,000 From Cincinnati

POWER LINES BREAK

CHICAGO, Jan. 22—(A.P.).—Relentless rivers of the Ohio Valley, swelling toward the highest crests in their history, swept man and his puny barriers before them to-day.

Flood waters along thousands of miles of riverfront in 10 states claimed at least 11 lives, made more than 80,000 homeless and caused property damage that mounted into the millions.

The grim prospect of a major catastrophe hung over cities and towns along the banks of the yellow Ohio, with 15,000 homeless in the Portsmouth area and 10,000 in the Cincinnati district.

Added to the homeless, the injured and the ill were the unemployed, thousands of them forced from water-logged factories.

The United States flood panorama stretched from Pittsburgh, where waters eddied again into the business district, the "Golden Triangle," to Northeastern Arkansas and Southeastern Missouri, plagued by heavy rain, swirling backwaters and the rising Mississippi.

The Ohio reached a stage of 70 feet at Cincinnati to-day. Meteorologist W. C. Devereaux predicted the "greatest flood on record" for Cincinnati and lower river points.

Convicts Man Pumps.

Twenty-nine hundred convicts in the Kentucky State Reformatory at Frankfort manned pumps when flood waters of the Kentucky river swept into the institution.

At Pittsburgh, water crept through the streets of the industrial district for the first time since the devastating inundation last March. Some street car service was halted and power failures were reported.

Rampaging streams in Middle Tennessee brought new human misery and property damage, with the total refugees exceeding 1,500. More rain threatened to add power to the swollen Cumberland river, now at 51 feet, 11 above flood stage, at Nashville. The city water supply at Clarksville was threatened.

River front areas of Johnstown, Pa., were inundated by flood waters from the Stony Creek river and residents retreated to higher ground.

The list of dead by States was: Illinois, 3; Ohio and West Virginia, 2 each; Mississippi, Pennsylvania, Kentucky and Missouri, 1 each.

"We Have Washed Our Hands Of Case" Inspector Gardner Said

INCURABLE DISEASE

Village Arranged To Send Family Out Of The Municipality

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Jan. 22 (CP) —No further investigation will be made by Provincial Police in the case of George Woodcock, 60, who described dynamite explosions and blazing crosses as attempts to force him out of three municipalities where he had sought to make a home for himself and his children, Inspector Francis Gardner said to-day.

"We have washed our hands of the case," said Inspector Gardner, declaring Woodcock had set fire to the crosses he had blamed on neighbors in Frontenac County near Kingston and in Dummer Township near Peterborough. Police doubt neighbors were responsible for the dynamite explosion Wednesday night near his home in Coe Hill, 60 miles northwest of Belleville.

Examined In Belleville

Woodcock was being examined today by Dr. G. S. Cronk, Medical Health Officer, who will forward his report to the Department of Health at Toronto.

Woodcock came by train last night from Coe Hill to see Reeve Charles A. Rollins of Wollaston Township, who is attending Hastings County Council here, regarding living in Coe Hill. Woodcock's visit was made after the village had arranged to send him and his children out of the municipality with sufficient provisions for two days.

Treated A Year Ago

Woodcock is in the final incurable stage of a disease which has eaten away a part of his face. He told police whom he was sent to by Reeve Rollins today that he had been treated at Toronto General Hospital more than a year ago.

Members of Hastings County Council yesterday discussed the matter yesterday, each declaring his municipality would not give refuge to the ailing man and his two daughters, aged 16 and 14.

Councillors declared that his care was a provincial matter. They said the law provides one year's residence necessary in one municipality before indigent hospitalization may be charged up to any other municipality, and said Woodcock has lived in Frontenac, Peterborough and Hastings counties within the past year.

His disease has apparently not affected his children, said Provincial Constables David Silvester, Pet-

REBELS RETREAT WITH HEAVY LOSS

Socialists Capture Trench Lines North Of Madrid In Charge Behind Tanks

By Jean Rollin
(Copyright, 1937, The Havas News Agency.)

MADRID, Jan. 22.—(CP-Havas)—Militiamen were busy today clearing out the dead from trenches in the La Moncloa sector northwest of Madrid, which they captured yesterday after an advance behind tanks.

The victory was scored in the midst of an insurgent bombardment of Madrid by airplanes and artillery. A dozen Fascist trenches were captured, largely by hand-to-hand fighting in the gathering darkness, it was claimed.

The attack was launched yesterday from the Government positions at Cascada and Kiosko. Government trench mortars laid down a destructive barrage behind which tanks began the advance.

As the tanks rumbled up to the very rim of the enemy trenches, Government infantry charged in the face of heavy machine-gun fire. For a moment the first line wavered, but a few well-placed hand grenades silenced several of the machine guns and the advance continued over 40 yards of the worst possible terrain for an attack.

Reaching the trenches, the militiamen engaged the enemy in hand-to-hand fighting which continued for more than an hour before the insurgents retreated, leaving their former positions in the hands of the Government troops.

Shakespeare, Dictionaries Popular Reading With M.P's

Complex Phraseology resorted To In Technical Debates Keep Members Busy

BENNETT STARTS IT

OTTAWA, Jan. 22—(C.P.).—First it was Shakespeare, and now it is Dictionaries most in demand at the Parliamentary Library.

Conservative Leader Bennett's quotation from Othello on Monday was followed by a new demand for the bard's works on the part of the members of the House and during the last few days technical debates on abdication and Social Credit have been followed by an unprecedented run on the Library for dictionaries.

Erudite members, gone slightly rusty on complex phraseology of constitutional law or monetary terms involved in exposition of Social Credit principles, have invaded the Library, staff officials said to-day, for law dictionaries, dictionaries on economics and finance, but above all dictionaries.

Demand for light reading and books of reference remains normal.

Guards Will Not Carry Guns Inside Guelph Reformatory

Some May Be Armed On Grounds But None Within Prison Says Nixon

NONE PUNISHED AS YET

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—(CP)—Ontario reformatory guards will not carry guns inside the Guelph prison, Acting Premier Harry Nixon said to-day. "There will be no armed guards in the reformatory," said Mr. Nixon. "There may be some on picket duty out around the grounds who are carrying guns at the moment, but there will be none in the reformatory." Mr. Nixon said, however, he did not see why anyone could object to the guards carrying guns.

"Every policeman carries one and only about one in each 10,000 people they meet is a criminal," he said.

Mr. Nixon said no punishment had been given any prisoner as a result of last Sunday's reformatory riot.

"I expect the Commissioner (Judge James Madden) to advise the government if he recommends such charges as arson and damage to property be laid," said Mr. Nixon. "The Commission will advise what punishment should be handed out, if any."

COUNTY TO URGE ROAD BUILDING PLAN THIS YEAR

Entire County Council Will Form a Deputation To See Government

PAVE HIGHWAY No. 7

The entire Peterborough County Council plans to go to Toronto and talk over the highway program for Peterborough County in 1937 with the Department of Highways at an early date, according to a decision reached by the council Thursday. T. P. Lancaster, M.L.A., J. J. Duffus, M.P., and James Hawthorne of Dummer will be asked to lead the delegation.

Reading of a letter from Mr. Duffus in which he urged the Council to petition the Department to continue various highway enterprises in the County this year, opened the discussion.

Mr. Duffus suggested for recommendations to the Department the paving of No. 7 highway east of Peterborough, completion of the unfinished portions of the highway from Apsley to Bancroft and on to Pembroke, completion of the unfinished portions of the Buckhorn-Gooderham, Buckhorn-Bobcaygeon and Bobcaygeon-Kinmount roads, reconstruction of the road from Lakefield through Clarina which is now being used extensively by the Canadian Nepheline firm and completion of the work on Highway 28 from Lakefield to Burleigh Falls.

A free-for-all discussion loomed. Councillors representing different sections of the County taking the floor to urge the road needs of their own communities. Reeve Anderson suggested that a general discussion with the Department would be better. Reeves Tanners and Clark both urged that the entire council be included in the delegation.

Uniform Nomination

A circular petition seeking support of the Peterborough County Council in a petition to the Government urging that uniform dates be set for municipal nominations and elections throughout the Province and urging November 30 as the uniform close of the fiscal year, aroused discussion.

Reeve Anderson said a fiscal year ending November 30 would not fit tax collections. Warden Brown voiced opposition to fixed dates for nominations on the grounds that meetings could not then be set in accordance with local convenience. On the motion of Warden Brown and Reeve Clark, no action was taken.

The Council also decided to take no action on a resolution from Grey County urging that the Workmen's Compensation Act be amended to take care of all compensation problems of the counties and eliminate need for the counties to carry insurance against awards by the Compensation Board. Reeve McDonald said he understood any county can work under the Compensation Board plan if it is willing to pay the rate.

Brief consideration was given a resolution also from Grey County urging that the Government take over the entire cost of distributing insulin to needy patients. At present the Government pays 75 per cent. and the municipalities 25 per cent. No action was taken.

Four appointments of County representatives to municipal school boards, filling vacancies left by expired terms, were made. E. W. Bailey was named to the Lakefield board and Franklin Webster to the Norwood board. Harrison Wing was chosen as one of the County representatives on the Havelock board and George Patton was returned to his post on the Peterborough Board of Education. The four will hold the appointments for three years.

Fill Vacancies in November

The Council decreed that henceforth the vacancies left by retiring school trustees will be filled at the November sessions of the Council.

On the motion of Warden Brown, the Council approved a grant of $10 as a prize to the highest-standing county pupil of the year.

Consideration of a request by J. M. Brownlee, caretaker of the County Buildings, for an increase in salary was deferred to the June sessions. Mr. Brownlee now receives $66.66 per month with house, light, water, and fuel free.

$229 DAMAGE FOR CABLE

Ship Line Ordered to Pay for Captains Sudden Dropping of Anchor.

MONTREAL, Jan. 22.—(CP)—Superior Court yesterday awarded the Bell Telephone Company of Canada $229 for damage to its submarine cable in Welland Canal by an anchor dropped by S.S. Bernie of Canada Steamship lines September 2.

Canada Steamship Lines were at fault, the court held, because the master of the Bernie who ordered dropping the anchor to avoid collision of his ship with a lift bridge should have ascertained whether the bridgekeeper was prepared to let his vessel pass.

SOCIAL CREDITERS' DEBT-FREE MONEY MOVE IS DEFEATED

Condemned By Dunning, Rogers And Bennett As Step Straight To Inflation

TWO LIBERALS BACK PLAN

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—(CP)— Opposed by two Cabinet Ministers and the Leader of the Opposition, but supported with varying degrees of reservation by several Liberal and C.C.F. members, aspirations of the Social Credit group to have their doctrines adopted by the Dominion Government have met with defeat, for the moment at least.

Almost the whole of yesterday's session was devoted to the resolution of John Blackmore, Social Credit member for Lethbridge and leader of the Federal group. He urged the immediate issue of State, debt-free money to increase purchasing power. His resolution was smothered under an avalanche of nays.

A second resolution, moved by Victor Quelch (S.C., Acadia), for a scientific scheme to "finance consumption" met with short shrift. No members spoke except the mover and the motion was declared lost on a call of ayes and nays.

A third private member's resolution, moved by H. E. Brunelle (Lib., Champlain), called for a House committee to study alleged inequalities under the redistribution of 1933. It was brought down late in the evening and was still being debated when the House adjourned.

To-day the House will take up government business the first item being second reading of the bill to amend the precious metals marketing act of 1928. Next in order will be second reading of the bills to amend the British and Canadian insurance companies act, to amend the weights and measures act and to amend the Dominion franchise act.

Mr. Blackmore's resolution was condemned by Finance Minister Charles Dunning and Labor Minister Norman Rogers as a step leading straight to inflation, adoption of which would give an altogether wrong impression abroad.

Collapse Final Move.

Opposition Leader R. B. Bennett also condemned the resolution as an inflationary measure, declaring that inflation once started could end in no other way but total collapse. Mr. Bennett also seized the opportunity to flay the Government for failing to adopt the money and credit poli-

CHAPTER 45

SELDEN sat in the study waiting. On his face a look of calm satisfaction, for his plans were nearly completed, and everything was working smoothly, but he had enough sense to know that there was always a chance of something going wrong. The telephone rang sharply, and he picked up the instrument James called on the private wire.

"Mr. Selden?"

"Right, James—I am ready."

"Colindale is coming now. I saw him pass along the corridor."

"You have the microphone fixed?"

"Yes, sir, you hear everything in your room if you leave the telephone on the table. You need not hold it to your ear."

"That will leave my hands free for writing," Selden said grimly.

There was silence for a moment, and then James spoke.

"Good morning, Mr. Colindale. You wished to see me."

A door closed, and the reply came. "I wanted a few words with you, James."

"Certainly; was it about the estate?"

"Partly. You see, now that fellow Reid has gone sick, something will have to be done. I have had a talk with Lady Severinge. She is far from well, and I am afraid she will have a breakdown if she stays here much longer. I understand from her that the children and their governess are safe, though I don't know where. Perhaps you do?"

"Yes, Mr Colindale," James said in a firm tone. "No harm will come to them."

"I suppose you had a hand in their abduction?" Colindale's voice had assumed a venomous tone.

"There was no abduction, Mr. Colindale. They were merely taken to another part of the house for their own safety."

"Humph!" That then makes it easier for Lady Severinge to go for a complete change. The only question is that of finance."

"I should be only too happy to provide her ladyship with funds for that purpose."

"I have no doubt you would. Having scooped up most of the old man's money, you can afford to be generous."

James remained silent, and the other went on.

"That's not good enough. Undoubtedly the money was left to you in a fit of jealousy. It's a most unfair law in this country. Lady Severinge should have inherited as his wife—she would in any civilized country."

"I had no hand in the matter, Mr. Colindale, and if you don't mind, I would rather not discuss it."

"Oh, I dare say" Colindale's voice was raised, and he was getting angry at the smooth impassive face in front of him.

"You've done very well for yourself, but if those detectives had been worth their pay, you might have found yourself in another place than Severinge Abbey."

"Where, may I ask?"

Colindale banged the table. "In jail, James—where you ought to be."

"Indeed! I wonder you don't tell that to the detectives. They could then take action."

"I have no wish to see you hanged. I bore no particular love for that old humbug. But do think that you might reasonably make a respectable settlement to the widow, which is only justice."

"Which, if I may correct you, is only blackmail," James said in a dispassionate voice

"Call it a bargain," Colindale sneered. "You would rather have your liberty, I suppose, even with a diminished income, than die a felon's death at the hands of the public hangman."

"I hardly thought you would sink to blackmail," James said calmly.

Selden, listening intently, heard the sound of a chair being thrown back, and then Colindale spoke.

"So you are armed, are you? I can quite understand that. I should have taken precautions when dealing with a murderer."

"Sit down, Mr. Colindale. I am no match for you physically. Say what you have to, and then go."

"This is like a scene from some third-rate picture," Colindale remarked; the man had courage anyway.

"I would have been prepared to do something for Lady Severinge had it been in my power to do so," James said cryptically, "but as you have taken this line of argument, I shall absolutely decline to have any further dealings with you."

"Wait till I have finished with you, James. Mind, if you shoot, hoping to hide your crime, it may interest you to know that others are in possession of the facts, and should anything happen to me you won't escape."

"Go on please," James said coolly.

"On the night of the murder, Sir Henry summoned you to his study?"

"Quite correct—he wished to see me."

"You told Mrs. Thornton that it was Lady Severinge who had rung for you."

"She told you that, did she? A most mischievevous woman."

"It was true," Colindale snarled. "Sir Henry went down to the chapel carrying a silver candlestick, and you followed."

"You seem very well informed."

"You murdered him, and hid his body, and then brought the candlestick and left it in Lady Severinge's bedroom."

"How much safer if I had placed it in the coffin," James observed.

"You may laugh, I can see your motive—you wanted it found there to fasten the crime on her."

"You should have been a detective, Colindale."

"You had planned the whole thing. You had the key of the chapel, and you knew the house better than anyone. And you knew also that all the money was coming to you."

"What a pity I didn't wait a little longer."

"You may smile. You've got some nerve staying on as butler and pretending that you would look after the children and Lady Beringe."

"Is that all?"

"There is plenty more circumstantial evidence, but that is good enough for what they call a prima facie case."

"It would seem so," James answered quietly. "And how much do you propose to ask for your silence?"

Colindale laughed harshly.

"I am not as simple as that. What we say in the privacy of our room is one thing, what we do outside is quite another. If you care to make a grant to Lady Severinge to restore the wrong her husband did her, it will be a generous gesture on my part and will receive much praise. It must be enough for her to live in comfort for the remainder of her life, and to provide for the children. In that case, and I must have it in the form of a letter to her—what has taken place in this room will remain a secret between us"

"And your confederates?"

"I will see to that," Colindale said eagerly, seeing that the butler appeared to be weakening.

"There would be nothing to prevent you from asking for more."

"I shall marry Lady Severinge and go abroad. The Abbey can be let, and the children will go to boarding school."

"You have it all nicely worked out, Colindale. The only place where your schedule breaks down——"

Selden heard sounds that could not be clarified, and then a voice he knew only too well—Inspector Hutchins' thick hard tones.

"James Conolly, I hold a warrant for your arrest on the charge of wilful murder of Sir Henry Severinge, Bart., and I have to caution you that anything you may say on the matter can be used in evidence against you in subsequent proceedings."

Selden waited to hear no more. He hurried from the room and round to the corridor to the servants' quarters, where maids were staring wide-eyed in the direction of James' rooms.

Selden slowed up as he approached, and entered in a casual manner. A uniformed constable was standing by the door, and Hutchins has just completed reading the warrant through. James was standing quite composed and as though waiting at table, but Colindale was by the window biting his nails furiously.

Hutchins turned, annoyed at the interruption.

"Ah, Hutchins, so you've got him, have you?" Selden said, darting a swift glance at James as he spoke.

"There's something to be said for the old methods after all." Hutchins spoke in a voice of satisfied triumph. "You see, your London methods are not so wonderful."

"You have done very well. I congratulate you. It only shows how easily one can go wrong."

Hutchins made no reply, but searched James in a business-like way, and motioned to the constable who clapped a handcuff on James' wrist, and fastened the other to his own.

"Now march—we have a car outside... ", Selden, perhaps you would care ... come and hear about it."

"I shall see you presently, Inspector," Selden said pleasantly, as James was being taken out

Colindale stood silently listening to the conversation, and uneasy in his mind at the turn of events.

"Fancy—James? I wouldn't have believed it of him," he said, glancing at the detective to see how he took it.

He saw a face very different from the usually cheerful boyish countenance of the young detective. The eyes were boring into his own, and there was a square look about his firm jaw.

"Colindale, I'm not going to mince matters with you What this latest development means I don't know. I expect your confederate, Mrs. Thornton, has laid information and sold you. I have been listening to the whole of your conversation with James from the study, through that microphone, and have it all down in shorthand. So let me give you a piece of advice; the only one you'll get from me. Clear out, or I shall have you arrested for attempted blackmail. For reasons that I do not wish to tell you, I don't desire to take that step unless it is necessary You haven't gone very far down the road yet, and the fact that you were trying to get James to make over a sum to Lady Severinge, though obviously to save yourself, weighs with me in my decision. If you have a spark of manhood left in you, you will take Lady Severinge out of all this. The children will be safe without her, and, as you said, she needs a change. Get married and get a job yourself and live a decent life in the future."

COUNTIES' CLERK HAS SALARY CUT OF 1934 RESTORED

United Counties Will Spend $70,000 For Road Purposes This Year

HIGHWAY DEBT

(By a Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Jan. 22—The salary of E. L. MacNachtan, clerk and treasurer, which was clipped $1000 three years ago, was restored to the original $3000 by a recommendation of the finance committee of the counties council, with Reeve J. C. Cummiskey presiding, Thursday night.

Mr. McNachtan told the committee that the by-law fixing his salary had never been amended, but three years ago he had voluntarily accepted a cut of $1000 when the council was agitated by a spirit of economy.

"But, as it turned out, it wasn't a year of economy at all except as it affected the salaries of officials", the clerk stated.

Letters were read by Reeve Cummiskey showing the salaries paid by other counties. Victoria, for example pays its clerk and treasurer $3900 with the assistance of an accountant and stenographer, and that county has only seventeen municipalities to twenty-four in Northumberland and Durham.

Hastings pays $4400 to its clerk and treasurer who has three assistants. Mr. McNachtan has no office help.

Warden Jones said the reduction was to have been for only one year, and by that fact the clerk could legally claim payment of the reduction for the succeeding years, but he had not mentioned that right.

The motion to restore the clerk's salary, beginning January 1 last was made by Deputy-Reeve Edmonstone, Bowmanville, seconded by Reeve John Currie, Seymour.

Road Expenditure.

Opinions of the amount of money that should be expended on the county road system ranged from $60,000 to $100,000, and finally in a spirit of splitting the difference settled on $70,000, the appropriation proposed by Chas. Calver of Campbellford. Half this amount will be paid by the Department of Highways. The council spent $40,000 of which only $20,000 was drawn from the counties treasury. The total increase this year will be $35,000.

Reeve Innes of Seymour said he was in favor of a generous allowance for the roads department, be-

TWO OF MEMBERS COUNCIL RESIGN

Another Municipal Nomination Is Necessitated In Bancroft Village

Another municipal nomination is necessitated at Bancroft with the unseating of two members of the Village Council, and the possibility that the Reeve also will resign his office.

Acting on behalf of a Bancroft taxpayer, whose name he declined to disclose, the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., recently launched proceedings against Reeve Dr. S. S. Lamb and Councillors D. E. Hawley and Theodore Tryon, on the grounds they failed to qualify under provisions of the Municipal Election Act.

This (Friday) morning he received notification in the mail that the two councillors recently elected for their first terms to Council, have filed their disclaimers with the municipal clerk. Mr. Gordon said he has not yet had word from Dr. Lamb, but if his disclaimer is not filed, he intends to make a motion for his disqualification and an application for costs against him before the Hastings County Judge.

It is alleged that Mr. Hawley failed to resign as a member of the School Board before becoming a member of the Village Council, and that Mr. Tryon took his oath of office as councillor without owning property.

Reeve Dr. Lamb has been asked to file his disclaimer because it is claimed he disposed of his property, consisting of a mill and freehold property, and had not properly qualified under the Act.

HASTINGS COUNCIL WILL DEFER WRITS

No Action To Be Taken Against Defaulting Municipalities For Present

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 21.—Members of Hastings County Council decided to defer writs against defaulting municipalities at least until the June sessions of the Council. The decision came after nearly two hours heated discussion.

Municipalities at present in arrears of payments to the county are Wollaston-Faraday, Herschel-Monteagle and McClure-Wicklow-Bangor. The decision was made when a motion sponsored by Reeve W. H. Sayers, of Tweed, and seconded by Reeve J. L. Churcher of Dungannon, passed unanimously.

School Grants

Regular school grants were passed $800 will be granted to the North Hastings Inspectorate, and poor school grants of $90 to Elzevir township; and $35 to North Hastings Schools were ordered paid for 1937. On motion, Council also requested the Provincial Department of Highways to take over St. Lawrence street in Madoc, as a part of Highway No. 7. The street forms a connecting link between the two sections of the highway.

No Wage Increase

Council defeated a motion that wages for labor on a stretch of county road between Monaghan's Crossing and Drum's Crossing in Wollaston, be raised. Workers at present receive 20 cents per hour, with 25 cents for teams. The motion, calling for a five-cent-per-hour increase, was defeated. On motion, it was decided to grant $100 to the County Seed Fair to be held in Belleville this year.

Drifted Five Days On Raft Mid-Ocean

YARMOUTH, N. S., Jan 22—(CP)—Captain Nehemiah Larkin, retired Yarmouth mariner, recounted some thrilling tales of the sea and its perils when he spoke before a service club in this town.

Once, in the days of "wooden ships and iron men," he and two companions drifted helplessly on a makeshift raft in mid-Atlantic for five days before being sighted.

Larkin was aboard the old windjammer, Regina, bound from Philadelphia to London. Battered by heavy seas, the vessel sprang a leak and the crew crowded into the only lifeboat, leaving behind Larkin, the cook and a sailor.

They rigged up a raft and launched it as the ship filled with water. Five days later, when the raft was sighted, Larkin's two companions had died.

WESTWOOD

SCHOOL BOUGHT 17 CORDS OF WOOD FOR TWO DOLLARS

Expenses Light In Westwood's Early Days W.I. Speaker Shows INTERESTING HISTORY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WESTWOOD, Jan. 22. — The January meeting of the Women's Institute was held on Tuesday afternoon in the Town Hall, and was well attended. The convenor of historical research, Mrs. Jane Thompson, had charge of the program and gave a most descriptive and entertaining account of the Westwood Public School. Much credit is due Mrs. Thompson for her extensive search for material and dates. Going back to the year 1828 when the first log school was erected, the speaker traced important events up to the present.

The present brick building, built in 1856, was at first a two-storey structure, later being condemned, was remodelled into a one-room school house. Many humorous incidents were recounted of the pranks and misdemeanors of our forefathers. Ink was bought at 50 cents per gallon and in 1863 a fuel tax was levied on the parents, netting the treasury $11.80. Twenty cords of wood were purchased for $17.00. In 1882 the present well was dug, the pump costing $130.

First Arbor Day.

On May 1, 1885, the first Arbor Day was held, the date set by the Department of Education, has been observed ever since. The first Christmas tree and concert was held in 1880 under the leadership of Miss Sarah Comstock.

Short but very interesting accounts of S.S. No. 12 (Birdsall) and S.S. No. 2 (Boundary) were given. S.S. No. 12 by Mrs. F. E. Birdsall, told of the destruction by fire of two school buildings, and when the present building was erected, in order to secure an insurance policy, residents of the community took turns as night watchman. The school teacher's salary was $15.00 per month.

S.S. No. 2 was dealt with by Miss Irene Kidd. The present stone building was built in 1867, and for a time the scholars sat on a carpenter's bench, later more modern seats and desks were purchased. The present teacher, Miss Helen Cameron, is a great-granddaughter of one of the first trustees.

Ancient Souvenirs.

In keeping with the topic on historical research, various ancient records, school books, tintypes, and photographs were on exhibit. These included a Crown deed which was 103 years old, and was executed in the reign of William IV. Community singing of "School Days" was appropriate.

During the business discussion, which was conducted by the president, Mrs. F. E. Birdsall, it was decided to hold a progressive euchre card party in the hall on Friday evening, January 29. A committee in charge was appointed, namely: Mrs. Birdsall, Mrs. S. Graham, Mrs. D. McColl, Mrs. S. Elmhirst, and Mrs. F. Faux.

A report of the first course on Buymanship was very ably given by the delegate, Mrs. James Clysdale. Helpful hints on the texture of goods, manufacturers' name on hosiery, shoes, etc., were important to the purchaser. Mrs. Clysdale will continue the report at each monthly meeting until the course is finished.

The Girls' Work.

The leader, Miss Helen Bray, of the girls' training course on the clothes closet project, gave a splendid report of the girls' work. Twelve girls are members of this club, and are profiting, not only in learning the various lessons of the course, but also are being instructed on the proper method of conducting a business meeting.

The treasurer, Miss Edith Bray, reported the sum of $38.96 in the treasury. A letter of appreciation for flowers was received from Mrs. R. Walsh. Current Events were given by Miss Rita Faux.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the group of which Mrs. W. Renwick is convenor, and all enjoyed a social time.

WARSAW BAPTISTS LISTEN TO REPORTS

Annual Meeting Hears Encouraging Statements And Re-elects Old Officers

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Jan. 22.—The annual meeting of the Warsaw Baptist church was held at the home of Mr. John Moore, with a good attendance.

Rev. Mr. Walker presided. The different reports were read with encouraging results. Miss Mabel Kidd and Miss Helen Tedford were appointed to plan for the church services which will be held in the different homes during the next three months.

The anniversary services, usually held in May, were discussed and it was decided to leave the choice of a speaker until a later date. It was moved and carried that all the old officers be re-elected. The meeting closed with a hymn and prayer.

Worried About Wheat

Farmers are becoming more anxious about the Fall wheat and meadows, also about the soil for Spring crops. With the pouring rains fertilizing agents are washed away.

In many places gulches are washed across road beds. Near the post-office on both sides of the paving the earth is washed away quite deeply.

Trevor Little is in a very serious condition in Nicholls Hospital.

Willie Miller and Miss Margaret Miller are both in Nicholls Hospital with flu. W. McIvor is looking after things for them.

Little Ice Cut

The ice harvest usually a good season for men during January has so far been nothing on the river at Warsaw. There is no good ice so far, nearer than the head of Stoney Lake where it is thirteen inches thick and being harvested.

Swamps are too full of water for men to lumber. One young man bought a large number of elms and engaged men to help cut them, but they cannot get at the trees.

W.M.S. Social

Owing to bad weather conditions there was not a large attendance at the Warsaw United W.M.S. social on Wednesday evening, but those present thoroughly enjoyed themselves. The cafeteria supper was splendid, following by a cent contest; community singing; piano selections by Ruth Wilkinson; mouth organ selection, Kenneth Drain; song, Lenore McIlvena; recitation by little Grant Taylor; piano solo by Mrs. Roland Payne; an object contest; musical festival in four groups; round questions and answers.

HAVELOCK MASONS RENOVATE BUILDING

Old Queen's Hotel To Be Made Into Lodge Rooms—Finest In District

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Jan. 22.—The Havelock Masonic Lodge No. 435, A. F. and A.M., having gained possession of the property formerly known as the Queen's Hotel, are busy making the necessary arrangements for renovating and re-decorating the building. It is expected that their new lodge rooms will be among the nicest in the district, when completed.

Their new site is directly across from the Canadian Pacific Railway station on No. 7 highway, just a short distance from their former location, which was destroyed by fire in the winter of 1932-33. The building is a well-built brick structure, three stories in height, the two upper stories of which will be turned into Lodge rooms, and the east half of the ground floor a banquet hall. The Masons do not intend to use the west half of the ground floor but will remodel it as a store and offer for rent.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 22.—Mrs. J. R. Eakins was hostess to members of the Supper Club, a recently organized unit under the supervision of Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, district girls' leader of Women's Institute Work, when eleven members, the leader and four visitors met at her home and continued their study of foods, food values and the planning of menus.

Miss Beatrice Fallis, president, occupied the chair for the brief business session. The roll call was answered by 'A menu planned at home,' and Miss Marion Belch gave the secretarial report. Plans were made for the next meeting being held January 23 at the home of Mrs. Allen Mitchell, when Misses Dorothy Smith, Wilma Armstrong and Marion Belch will give a demonstration on the making of "salads." Kathleen Smith will act as housekeeper, and Misses Audrey Nill and Margaret Smith were appointed assistants.

Present Menus.

During the study period on menu planning each member presented two menus, previously planned. They contained scalloped cabbage and cream of carrot soup as the main dishes. Discussion also centred on milk, eggs and cheese as valuable proteins in supper dishes.

Various supper dishes, including rice and tomato, rice and cheese, cheese strata and croutons were demonstrated by Misses Beatrice Fallis and Anna Rowland. "Making a foamy omelette" was the title of a demonstration presented by the leader, Mrs. Armstrong. Assistants at the meeting were Misses Kathleen Davis, Dorothy Smith, and Norma Gillis.

Home work assignment for the next period will be the preparation of two dishes, using tomato sauce and to estimate the cost of each.

A delicious luncheon was served by Mrs. Eakins during the social hour enjoyed at the close, and a generous vote of appreciation to the hostess was voiced by Misses Marion Belch and Audrey Nill.

At The Right Moment

This is good. A youth of 16 years was in court at London, Ont., and he had been stealing goods from railway trains. His home is in Blenheim but the youth had left that place and had been riding railway trains.

Before court dealt with the sentence to be imposed a representative of the Rotary Club of Blenheim made the offer that the club would become responsible for this young man's conduct, and on that basis the accused was released for a term of two years. The Crown Attorney agreed the plan was a good one.

The value of that plan is that instead of being interested in boys and youth in general the Blenheim Rotarians were at the moment interested in one youth in particular. He was off on a detour and some place of correction or confinement was straight ahead of him. There is something direct and commendable about an organization stepping forward at that particular moment and becoming responsible for the supervision of such a boy. One can only hope that this youth of 16 understands that the Rotarians of his own community have faith in him.

The Idea Was Dropped

The suggestion that Canada should have a Ministry of Sports gave opportunity for some plain speaking in the House at Ottawa, but that is as far as it went. Nothing was done about it and nothing should be done. The custom of sending teams to Olympic games was also placed in its proper light. It was described as a row before the team went, a row when it was there and a row after it came back. And the public purse was tapped for the purpose.

Amateur sport is the only field where sport for the sake of sport has a chance to survive. Any community which finds its corner lots and playgrounds filled during the playing season, and where the hockey and skating rinks are well utilized and where its long hills are centres of attraction during the winter season is doing well. The number of people who are actually participating in any sport is the place to judge its worth rather than by the amount of money being made from it.

Canada has no money to spend on a Minister of Sports. This country has miles of outdoor spaces for winter and summer activity and our young people are making great use of them. The wonder is that the creation of a federal sports portfolio would be seriously considered at a time when we are spending $75,000,000 per year on relief.

A Man And His Car

The owner of a car drove into the garage. When he got out he coughed and blew his nose. The cough was of the variety which seemed to start down deep and it had that intensity which threatened to tear out some tubing.

He called the man who generally looks after his car, and from a note book read over carefully the things he wanted attended to. The timing was not exact, and the carburetor seemed set a little too fine for winter driving; there was a little rattle in some other section.

After that he coughed some more and blew his nose some more, and admitted he was feeling rather ragged, but had decided to fight off what he thought was a bad cold or a touch of the flu.

He remarked: "I admit I am fussy about the car; I like to have it in perfect mechanical condition all the time; when I step on it I like to know I am going to get 100 per cent. response."

And then he coughed some more and blew his nose some more. Yes, very careful about the car, but the truth is he needed to go in for an overhauling himself more than his car did. Men are rather queer that way.

How Far Will It Reach?

"To relieve the Hydro-Electric Commission of any obligation in connection with court judgments."

Those words are quoted because they were taken from a report telling the reason for the legislation which is being put through the Ontario Legislature.

Whether people realize it or not, they are interested in this matter, because it is something which has to do with their own property. They are interested too in the passing of legislation which seeks to set the Hydro-Electric Commission in a position where no court awards can be effectively lodged against it. Just where such legislation will lead the Examiner admits it does not know. We doubt whether the best legal mind in the country would care to make a prediction.

The Ontario Legislature has in mind heading off awards which might be made by the Supreme Court or the Privy Council itself. It would build a wall around Hydro through which no recognized power could penetrate, and place it in a position of extreme preferment.

We believe there is a general feeling that Hydro should be protected from overloading of contracts, and there is general support for any such movement, but to make Hydro above all existing laws and above the powers of all existing powers of our present system of judicial dealing is entering a field which is closed to all other individuals, corporations or agencies. It is a distinct addition to the powers which provincial governing bodies take to themselves, and it is also an emphatic enunciation of the principle that legislatures need have no regard to the powers, laws and regulations by which civilians are made to abide. We cannot recall any legislation which is destined to have such far-reaching effects. In daring it is superb, but in practical effect it is dangerous.

A Hard Thing to Attempt

The Examiner doubts if there will ever be a system of mass handling of Western wheat which will be satisfactory to the farmers. J. W. Coldwell, M.P. for Rosetown-Biggar, Sask., reviewed events of recent months when he spoke in the Commons. He recalled that when the last session of parliament concluded late in June he started home by car. When going through Dakota he could see a drought in the making and the fields were withering. When he reached his own riding he saw the same thing, and it was apparent there was going to be a short wheat crop throughout the entire North American wheat belt, and for that reason wheat was going to be a valuable commodity. Yet during July the Wheat Board had sold 62,302,891 bushels. Mr. Coldwell does not believe that wheat was sold to ultimate consumers, but his claim is that it went into the hands of other speculators, and these people have since reaped a greater profit.

Basing his statement upon investigations conducted by the University of Saskatchewan over a period of years and including grain of all types, Mr. Coldwell said the cost of producing a bushel of grain in his province was $1.04 per bushel, so when the Wheat Board set the minimum price at 87½ cents per bushel it was certain a loss was going to be sustained.

We do not see how the situation can be changed just because we have a Wheat Board in existence with the backing of federal government finances. A bushel of wheat remains a bushel of wheat, and the price at Liverpool continues to dominate the situation regardless of the figures and findings of the University of Saskatchewan or any other agency.

Can Hardly Overdo It

In an interview published in the Stratford Beacon-Herald, Hon. Nelson Monteith admitted he had considerable to do with starting the first reforestation scheme in Ontario. Mr. Monteith was Minister of Agriculture in the Whitney government of 30 years ago, and is the one surviving member of that cabinet. His farm home, a pleasant and inviting one, is on the Embro Road a short distance from Stratford. The first piece of ground bought was a sandy stretch at St. Williams, not far from Port Dover, and the price was 50 cents per acre. That sandy ground which would hold no moisture at all now conserves water to an amazing extent.

Mr. Monteith believes in reforestation. On his own farm there is some gully land which never could be used for crop, and there some years ago he started the planting of trees, not merely adding beauty to an unsightly spot, but creating a growth from which he can now take all the wood he needs for the home.

Looking over reports of meetings of county councils being held at various points in Western Ontario it is noticed that tree planting is receiving more attention than ever. An organization to promote the idea has been formed, and county officials are becoming active. The real reason for the new movement is that the people in the district know that something has to be done. They realize that methods of former years of cleaning out swamps and cutting down trees and draining all the land has been as wrong as anything could be. They are actually trying to save their land now by restoring it to the condition of forty or fifty years ago.

In our own district we have land which is suitable for reforestation and nothing else, and we have much of it. For years we have been taking out the wood and the timber and that's all, and when that operation is completed there is nothing much left. Fur-bearing animals desert such an area as there is no shelter. Much of the land in such areas will never be cultivated because it is of the wrong sort and too rocky. Since the days of which Hon. Nelson Monteith speaks when the first efforts at reforestation were made there has been a great change. Obstacles which existed then have been overcome; the question of securing stock suitable to any district has been solved; the cost has been reduced and methods are superior. All that means success is more readily achieved. We need a concerted and well-planned and long-time movement in that direction right in our own district.

The British government will make an exhibit at the Canadian National Exhibition next year and will probably erect a building for the purpose. The Ontario government already has a building but there is no intimation from Queen's Park that an Ontario exhibit is being contemplated.

NOTE AND COMMENT

This will probably be a short session of the Ontario Legislature but you would never suspect that fact from the length of Attorney-General Roebuck's speeches.

A Colborne man suggests that automobiles be equipped with a gadget that would cut off the gasoline as soon as a speed of thirty-five miles was reached. Cutting off the license whenever reckless driving is done would be an even more effective way of reducing the accident list.

IT WOULD HELP

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Some European statesman talks, and people gather there for blocks, he threatens what he'll do; he speaks of guns and fighting hordes, says he is buying greater swords, they'll cut ten men in two.

¶ That makes a neighbor nation shake, and knees and spines begin to quake, he has not talked in vain; if Number One buys guns and gas, they cannot let the challenge pass, they'll have to do the same.

¶ Another speech and just as strong, tells of new cannons wide and long, shoot fifty miles away; they're ready any time to fight, they have the guns and men in sight, just waiting for the day.

¶ And that makes nations nervous too, for they believe the speech is true, they study guns' new styles; and they in turn plan great surprize, they build a gun of larger size, 'twill shoot for eighty miles.

¶ Another man of pompous name, deals with the bombing fighting plane, they're bigger than before; another nation reads of that, their agent grabs his coat and hat, and buys four hundred more.

¶ I think the world might happy be, and from the shivers be quite free, might even learn to smile; if these mad men who shake their fist, would for a month or so desist—and close their mouths a while.

Culled From The Ottawa Debates

House of Commons Debates, Jan. 19

Mr. BENNETT: Does the hon. gentleman suggest that the government of this country could prevent the king from resigning?

Mr. WOODSWORTH: No, but I do say that because of Mr. Baldwin's stand—apparently that stand was endorsed by the Prime Minister of this country—the king was put into a position where he was almost forced to go.

Some hon. MEMBERS: No.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: Again this is a matter upon which, without the documents being before us, we can have only the very vaguest of ideas.

Mr. BENNETT: We have his word for it.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: We have his word for it!

An hon. MEMBER: That should be enough.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: An hon. member suggests that that should be enough, but anyone who knows what goes on during a long series of negotiations realizes how much such statements may mean if they are taken without regard to the circumstances.

How Disraeli Did It

Mr. BENNETT: Just as Disraeli, without parliamentary authority, provided for the purchase of the Suez canal shares and subsequently had his action confirmed by parliament and the money provided—he had been able to secure a loan for the purpose before parliamentary action was taken—so now we are about to confirm by statutory legislation some necessary action that was taken. If the government had not behind it the support of the majority of its members, it would never have passed the order in council in question, but with sure and certain knowledge that under our representative institutions it could at all times command that support, because that is the basis upon which our institutions operate, the government took the action it did. We are here, without a dissenting voice I hope, to give that action the approval which its importance demands and which I feel sure will remove any doubt which may arise in the mind of anyone as to the necessity for its being enacted.

About Duplication

Mr. POWER: My attention was also drawn to the observations made by the premier of one province with respect to health, but I may say that at the present time there is no duplication in health services.

Mr. STEWART: He said that there was.

Mr. POWER: Perhaps he knows, but after careful inquiry made in our department we have found that nowhere is there any duplication of work—

Mr. BENNETT: It depends upon what you mean by work.

Mr. POWER: —or expenditure.

Mr. BENNETT: There is duplication of activities.

Mr. STEWART: There is said to be a duplication of services, or activities or organizations.

Who Gets the Money?

(Advisory committee on agricultural services $5,000.)

Mr. STEWART: Is this the same amount as was voted last year?

Mr. GARDINER: Yes.

Mr. STEWART: Will the minister explain how the $5,000 was spent last year?

Mr. GARDINER: This vote is to finance committees which will work cooperatively with the provinces in carrying out certain investigations having to do with agriculture.

Mr. STEWART: Are any reports of the activities of this committee available? If so, where are they to be found? In the meantime could the minister give us more details of the expenditure?

Mr. GARDINER: There are no formal reports of the investigations. Meetings were held of the national committee on barley to investigate the different types of barley that might be grown for different purposes, to encourage the spread of certain types of seed and to facilitate the marketing of barley. These investigations are carried on with different organizations in the province. Discussions take place, and the information is available to those who take part in the discussion and is also made available to others, but no detailed report is made in connection with it.

Mr. STEWART: That is all theoretical. What we would like to know is how this money was spent last year and who received it.

Mr. GARDINER: I shall get the details for the next sitting.

WIFE RENTS FARM.

(St. Mary's Journal-Argus)

A WALKERTON farmer has been having a hard time of it. It seems he doesn't enjoy work. So he rented the farm to his wife so she could do the work while he loafed. Feelings ran high one day when she gave him a swift kick in the seat of his trousers as he was going out the door with a pail of swill in each hand to feed the calves. He had refused to buy pigs to feed the milk to. One hot day during haying, he was lying under the cool shade of a lilac bush when his wife passed on the way to the hay field and wouldn't condescend to ask him to help. This made the poor man awfully mad. He decided to go out of farming completely and advertised an auction sale. But when his wife explained that he had rented the farm to her and couldn't sell it, a stubborn magistrate, according to the Walkerton Herald-Times, made him call the sale off. Some men have to put up with a lot!

THE BEST MEDIUM.

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

THE NEWSPAPERS are the best place in which to advertise, says Fred W. Read, of the California Fruit Exchange of Sacramento. He told members of the Sacramento Ad Club that 75 per cent. of all advertising appropriations should be spent with the newspapers. The reason is simple. The people see the advertisements in the newspapers, because the papers go into the homes where they are read daily.

Death of Four Indian Boys.

(From the House of Commons Debate, January 19.)

On the orders of the day:

Mr. ANGUS MacINNIS (Vancouver East): I wish to ask the Superintendent General of Indian Affairs whether he will make a statement to parliament with reference to the death of the four small Indian boys who were found dead on the ice of Fraser lake in northern British Columbia on the morning of January 2. The circumstances under which these boys died have been commented on in the press throughout Canada and I think that, inasmuch as they were wards of Canada, parliament is entitled to a statement from the Superintendent General of Indian Affairs.

Hon. T. A. CRERAR (Minister of Mines and Resources): I thank the hon. member for giving me notice this morning that he intended to ask this question. May I correct him on one point. There is no longer a superintendent general of indian affairs, since that office was merged with the Department of Mines and Resources.

The information we have at the present time with respect to the sad occurence to which the hon. member refers is very briefly as follows: On New Year's Day, January 1, four small Indian boys, ranging in age from seven to nine years, left the Indian school at Lejac in Northern British Columbia, on the main line of the Canadian National Railways, for home, and were frozen to death. An inquest was held a few days later. As far as the facts are disclosed by the report of the coroner's inquest, and also the report of the Indian agent for the district, they appear to be as follows: On January 1, which was of course a holiday, these youngsters asked in the morning or some time later in the day if they might be allowed to visit their parents some seven miles distant across Fraser lake. Permission was refused by the school authorities for the reason that the distance was so great. The boys were present at four o'clock in the afternoon when refreshments were served to the Indian children. At six o'clock they were reported absent from attendance at the evening meal by the Sister Superior. Apparently that report did not reach the principal of the school until nine thirty, according to the information we have. In the meantime these youngsters had left to travel seven miles to their home. The weather was rather severe at that time, and as hon. members will know, since this district is in the neighbourhood of the 50th parallel of latitude, the evening falls early there. They probably did not leave the school until dusk or approaching dusk. The principal assumed that they had gone home. Now here there comes a conflict in the reports. In a letter which the principal of the school sent to his superior in Winnipeg he stated that there were a number of Indian families visiting at the school on this day, the parents of these children not being among them, and they surmised that the youngsters had gone back to the reservation with one of these families. Unhappily this turned out not to be correct.

The bodies were not discovered until the next day. The following forenoon, or about noon, the school authorities dispatched a sleigh to bring the youngsters back to the school. When the homes of the parents were reached it was discovered that the boys had not arrived; search was instituted and in a short time the bodies were discovered on the ice of Fraser lake.

An inquest was held on January 4, and the school was exonerated from any blame. It may be of interest to the house, because the occurence is a very sad one, if I give the finding of the inquest. After stating that death was due to exhaustion and consequent freezing, the jury reported:

We, the jury, feel that such circumstance was unavoidable in view of the evidence in this case.

We feel, however, that more definite action by the school authorities might or should have been taken the night upon which the disappearance took place.

Further, it is our opinion that more co-operation between the authorities and the parents of the children would in future help to lessen the danger in the future of any repetition of such an incident.

Also that excessive corporal discipline, if practised, should be limited and that better understanding would exist between pupils and disciplinarians if the latter were English-speaking.

There is no evidence that there was any corporal punishment. It is true that a report appeared in some of the western papers that the youngsters had received corporal punishment as a result of which they had left the school. I think that is unlikely, especially in view of the fact that they left on a holiday when the ordinary school was not in session and when apparently they were having the festivities usually associated with New Year's Day. We have not yet received, although we have wired for it, a copy of the evidence taken at the inquest. In fact I am not sure the evidence was reported verbatim, and I am unable at the moment to inform the house on that point.

Cruel Steel Traps.

(From the Kitchener Record.)

AN injured dog recently limped into the accident room of a hospital on his own accord. Its right front paw was mangled, apparently by a trap. Attendants cleansed and bandaged the injured foot. In an Ontario town a number of pet dogs have been caught and mangled in traps, evidently set for the purpose of injuring them.

There has been for some years a very definite crusade against the use of steel traps but owing to the power of those who oppose such a movement nothing has been achieved. Minnie Maddern Fiske, one of the greatest American actresses, devoted several years of her life and much of her salary fighting against this particular type of cruelty.

So long as there are trappers and animals to be trapped, the providing of furs for commercial purposes will continue as a business. It is a long way between a handsome mink coat and the death of a little animal in the hinterland. Milady is not going to allow a little mental uneasiness to spoil her pleasure in her handsome wrap. The Humane Society and other organizations, to say nothing of individual objectors, do not seek to prevent the use of skins in the manufacture of coats and wraps but they are striving for a merciful method of catching the animals that provide the skins. There are traps that do not maim and that do not cause suffering. A law compelling the use of these would go a long way towards alleviating the prolonged agonies of some little wild creature doomed to endure hours of torture before being put out of its misery. The trappers have their rights but their methods of capture should be made as painless as possible.

FURTHER PROOF.

(Windsor Star)

DEFINITE proof of the measure of recovery in Canada during the past year is to be found in statistics issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. They show that employment increased by 4.3 per cent. over 1935, and is the highest since 1930.

This increase has been a natural one, not accelerated by any material public works programs. Private industry has provided the greater employment. The analysis shows that improvement took place in practically every industry. And the improvement was steady, every month showing a gain over the same month in 1935.

Of interest is the fact that gain was the best in Quebec, with 5.6 per cent. In the Maritime Provinces it was 5.5 per cent; in the Prairie Provinces 4.3 per cent; in British Columbia 3.5 per cent and in Ontario 3.3 per cent. This province has lagged behind other parts of the Dominion in the matter of recovery.

Experts believe that the tempo of recovery will be greater during 1937 than it was in 1936. During the past couple of years, the fight has been against the pessimistic spirit rampant throughout the country. That battle has now been pretty well won; pessimism has been displaced by optimism. This optimism, based upon sound experience, will be a great factor in determining the industrial progress to be made during the next 12 months.

SAVING WILD LIFE.

(North Bay Nugget)

THE DEPARTMENT of Game and Fisheries will be remiss in duty if effective steps are not taken to preserve the desirable wild life of Northern Ontario forests. With the woods being invaded by persons employed in other industries, there is every likelihood of this section being quickly depleted of a great tourist lure, wild life.

Enclosed sanctuaries, which guard against kills by humans and predatory animals, are the only means of ensuring maintenance of moose and deer. One hundred deer were this year slaughtered in the Rondeau Park sanctuary because of over-population. This definitely establishes the worth of sanctuaries for game breeding. Had it been possible to transfer the hundred deer to a sanctuary in this region for protection for a further period, the forest would have been restocked with this highly essential animal within a short time.

A WATER RECORD.

(Australian Press)

CANBERRA, Australia's new made-to-order Capital, has just made a world's record among cities for a day's water consumption per head. The figure was 450 gallons.

This was an unusual quantity. Canberra's average daily consumption of water per head is 172 gallons. Even this figure groups the city with Washington, Buffalo and Philadelphia as the world's greatest water users.

The explanation is that Canberra is a garden city with enormous areas of flowers, shrubs, and trees, and these [illegible] water nourishment.

CREATING REDS.

(Ottawa Journal)

JOHN GALSWORTHY once wrote that the vulgar ostentation of the rich did more to create Communists than all the volumes of Marx that had ever been published. One thinks of this upon reading a report (reproduced in that excellent weekly, the San Francisco Argonaut) of a Washington New Year's Eve party given by Mrs. Edward Beale McLean (the former Evelyn Walsh, author of "Father Struck It Rich"). Thus:

"The biggest affair of the evening was the Babylonian jamboree given by Mrs. Edward Beale McLean for 600-odd guests at 'Friendship,' scene of many lavish parties in former days. Half a floor was reserved at the Shoreham for out-of-town guests. Statistics of the McLean jubilation include two orchestras, 480 quarts of champagne, 288 fifths of Scotch, 48 quarts of cocktails, 40 gallons of beer, 15 plain-clothes men to keep out gate-crashers, and an estimated $80,000 for the evening's bill. A special annex was built on to the house for the occasion, one room was set aside for poker, gold satin tablecloths were spread for the supper, and loud speakers carried the music all over the house for the convenience of those who preferred to do their dancing where they happened to be.

"The hostess wore, among other things, the massive Hope diamond, which failed to dazzle the Russians last year, and six diamond bracelets."

FEWER FROM FARM.

(New York Times)

STATISTICS revealing only 61 members of Congress born or raised on a farm are hard to believe. This would mean, for a body of 531 senators and representatives, that only one in nine is a farm boy. But that is obviously impossible. Assume a low average age of 40 years for members of Congress and we are back in the year 1890, when half the population of the country was on farms. At least half the babies of 1890 and half the future Congressmen should have been born on farms.

The explanation is quite simple. A great many Congressmen who were born on farms did not mention the fact in their personal sketches for the Congressional directory. Farm ancestry is not the political asset it used to be. A great many lawmakers nowadays would no more boast of being born on a farm than of being born on a Thursday. We are getting urban-minded.

BEAR LICENSES.

(St. John Telegraph-Journal)

THE decision of the New Brunswick provincial government to issue complimentary bear licenses to any visiting sportsmen who may apply for them suggests that this decision, as well as the conditions which prompted it, might be used as an excellent means of publicity for the province, and as an added attraction for tourists.

It might be a worthwhile move for the province to send out, through its tourist organization, a number of complimentary licenses to former visitors, and those whose names appear on the tourist bureau's list of enquiries.

It seems likely that, if the fact were brought home to a large number of people across the border that New Brunswick has more bears than the province knows what to do with, and these folks were furnished with an invitation to come and indulge in the sport of bear-hunting, quite a few would be attracted to the province. The widespread distribution of complimentary licenses bearing the crest of the province and attractively printed should, in itself, be a good piece of publicity for New Brunswick.

OTTAWA SAINT JOHN CAMPBELLTON HALIFAX

Mrs. Rondeau remained behind in the big 10-room home at St. Thomas with her other children, given a fine chance of recovery by Dr. Joseph E. Forest, who presided at the births.

Of strong habitant stock, she was believed by youthful Dr. Forest to be "in no danger," and besides, in the last 18 years she had brought seven girls and three boys into the world, all with the French-Canadian farm-wife's indifference to the ordeal of childbirth.

But these latest came before her time was up. The 35-year-old Dr. Forest was ready for bed early yesterday morning when the call came from the Rondeaus. He had just delivered a baby to a woman in Jollette, four miles away, but he drove right over to the farm.

He was too late for the arrival of Joseph Gaston Andre, who hurried into the world at just about three o'clock, 2½ hours ahead of his brothers and sisters. By six o'clock the others began arriving—Marie Rita, Joseph Achille Alfred, and finally little Marie Lise.

Take Unawares

They had no names then. For the Rondeaus had been ready for no such multiplicity of births as came around yesterday's dawn. Arcade could just murmur dazedly, "Oh, gosh."

More efficient, the doctor and local midwife adjusted themselves to the situation and soon had the commodious home ready for the four new occupants. Bundled up in blankets and warmed with hot water bottles, they were distributed about wherever room could be found.

There was not much excitement, to hear Dr. Forest's matter-of-fact recital later. "We just took the usual precautions," he said. He didn't think he needed any help. But if there had been one more, he admitted, he would have felt very much like calling up Dr. A. R. Dafoe, physician to the Dionne quints at Callander, 420 miles from St. Thomas as the crow—or maybe the stork—flies.

Must Be Baptized.

There was fear then the quadruplets would not survive, and their parents wanted them baptized. So the little youngsters, wrapped up against the cold, were brought to the Roman Catholic church a half mile away, where Abbe Napoleoen Aumont christened them.

The church ceremony differed from that of the Dionnes, who were baptized in the emergency of birth by Dr. Dafoe without removal from their homes and not taken to church until they were safely out of danger.

After the baptism, the Rondeaus were rushed back home and made ready for the fast ride against time to hospital in Montreal. The ambulance carried Dr. C. Bisson and nurses Beauregard and Talbot, who brought along oxygen equipment so the quads might be fed plenty of air.

At Point aux Trembles, on Montreal's outskirts, the plow and ambulance met. Driver M. Beaudry of the quads' machine suffered two cracked ribs; Dr. Bisson was badly cut about the head and face, though not seriously; and Nurse Talbot also was cut. The driver was taken into hospital on a stretcher, and another ambulance had to be brought out for the quads.

Babes Taken to Nearby House

While the second machine was coming, Sergeant Delorme of the Point aux Trembles police brought the babies into a nearby house for warmth. When they finally reached hospital, the four were pronounced out of danger for the time at least.

If they had survived they would have been the second set of quadruplets to live in Canada. The others are the Mahaneys of Saint John—three girls and a boy born on Christmas Day 13 years ago.

Their case parallels that of the Dionnes also in that the parents of quints and quads are French-Canadians and both sets of parents are farm people. The parallel, though, appears to end there, for the Rondeaus are somewhat more prosperous than were the Dionnes at the time of the quints' birth.

COL. F. E. BIRDSALL WILL AGAIN HEAD FAIR AT NORWOOD

Annual Meeting Of East Peterborough Agricultural Society Elects Officers

SATISFACTORY REPORTS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Jan. 22—The directors' meeting of East Peterborough Agricultural Society was held on Monday, January 18, with the president, F. E. Birdsall, in the chair. Minutes of previous meeting were read and adopted on motion of Messrs. Elmhirst and Elliott. The auditors' report and financial statement was read by the secretary-treasurer and accepted, on motion of Messrs. Bailey and Thompson.

The directors' meeting then adjourned and resolved into the annual meeting, and minutes of previous annual meeting were read and approved on motion of Messrs. Thompson and Breckenridge.

The matter of the Convention of Fairs and Exhibitions was then discussed. On motion of Messrs Elmhurst and Brethen, W. Burgess and R. A. Deen were named delegates to attend the convention, to be held in Toronto, February 11 and 12.

Mr. Elmhurst, for light horses, reported entries decreasing and expressed his opinion that this class should be given wider scope in regard to same horse or horses being shown in more than one section. Messrs. Thompson and Brethen reported that cattle classes were quite satisfactory with very little complaint.

J. Humphries reported a good exhibit of sheep, but regretted the lack of interest taken in this class by the local people. Max Humphries suggested changes in the nature and classes of sheep exhibited and offered to prepare a new plan of procedure to be presented at next meeting. The idea was approved and Mr. Humphries was asked to proceed with a draft of his plan.

The swine section showed increased entries, but lack of local interest.

Vegetables and roots were very creditable, considering the dry season.

The poultry exhibit was increasing in quantity and quality.

Officers Elected

Officers for 1937 are: Col. F. E. Birdsall, president; W. Burgess, 1st vice-president; W. G. Barrie, 2nd vice-president. Directors—Col. R. E. Birdsall, G. J. Elmhurst; P. M. Grover, W. Breckenridge, J. F. Elliott; S. McGee; G. A. Brethen, J. A. Robb, A. Stinson, S. Buck, R. Tedford, H. McLaughlin, C. Would, W. Thompson, A. D. Runions, R. Scott, M. W. Bailey, A. Elmhurst, W. J. Peoples, R. McMillen, R. Webester, also that Gus Boland, Bruce Graham, Archie Clysdale, and William Hefferman be appointed associate directors if their consent can be obtained.

On motion of Messrs. Brethen and Elmhurst, the secretary was instructed to write A. D. Runions expressing the appreciation of this society for services rendered in connection with the junior farmers' activities and to assure him their further support. At this juncture Mr. Runions arrived and was asked by the president for a report regarding his department. Mr. Runions reported a most successful year and that the special clubs in the county had shown a decided improvement over previous years, giving great credit to the aptness and ability of the young men who had formed the classes.

Issues Are In Demand On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Jan. 22—(C.P.). — The buying was better than the selling on the Toronto Industrial section to-day, and the price average was slightly higher at the close on larger volume than on Thursday. Brazilian and Ford "A" stood out with price gains and heavy action, former reaching a new high for recent years at 22. DOUBT NEIGHBORS WERE RESPONSIBLE erborough and Arthur V. Dymond, Madoc.

An inspector of the Provincial Department of Welfare has been ordered to investigate the case.

Woodcock came here with his two daughters, to live with his third daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. James Menzies. They arrived here two days ago from Dummer township, near Peterborough, where a large cross was burned in front of his home and where he heard reports of a plan to dynamite his home.

A dynamite stick exploded in front of his new home in Coe Hill Wednesday night, but the group fled before they had set fire to an oil-soaked wooden cross placed on the lawn.

Drank From Village Well

The demonstration against Woodcock was made a few hours after he was seen drinking from a chained cup at the village well.

Woodcock had lived at Coe Hill nearly a year ago, but his disease had not affected him to its present extent. He moved with his family to Prontenac county about 25 miles northwest of Kingston, but was frightened from there by neighbors who burned several crosses in front of his home. He had then located near Peterborough.

The children had started attending public school at Coe Hill after arrival there.

TORONTO, Jan. 22 — (C.P.). — Unless a danger to public health can be shown to exist, the Ontario Health Department can take no action in the case of George Woodcock, Eastern Ontario farmer, who claims he has been forced to move at least three times by neighbors, Dr. B. T. McGhie, Ontario Deputy Health Minister, said to-day.

Dr. McGhie said the department a few weeks ago had received a report on Woodcock, which said he was not in need of hospital treatment.

"If a medical officer of health now reports Mr. Woodcock is in need of hospitalization it will be up to the municipality to provide it," said Dr. McGhie.

Asked to comment on reports from Coe Hill that George Woodcock, 60-year-old farmer, who moved there with his family this week from North Dummer Township had again been terrorized by a dynamite blast, Provincial Constable David Silvester hinted that he is inclined to believe the aged man is suffering hallucinations.

"Confound it all," the officer declared, "I believe the chap is doing it himself. I have come across cases like that before in my experience."

Recently Constable Silvester went out to a sparsely settled area near the head of Stoney Lake where Woodcock with his wife and three children made their home, to investigate the burning of a fiery cross in front of the Woodcock home. He brought the cross back with him to Peterborough and made full investigation of the matter.

Apparently distraught by the fiery cross incident Woodcock visited the local office of Provincial Police on Saturday afternoon last, and sought aid to frustrate an alleged plot to blow up his house.

Gossip reaching his ears, he said, led him to believe that certain individuals whom he named, were planning to dynamite his home and force him to move off the farm, ownership of which was in dispute. He was living on the place rent free until earlier in the present week he and his family moved back to Coe Hill, from whence they orginally came.

On his visit to Constable Silvester's office Woodcock sought information as to what steps could be taken to repel any night marauders who might endeavor to harm him, his family or the property. He asked if he would be permitted to shoot at the feet of anyone who might interfere with him, but was warned by the officer against adopting such a drastic course.

Even though he received Constable Silvester's assurance that the matter would be investigated further, Woodcock expressed his intention of moving out in any event. He declared he had been afraid of going to bed at nights and had been on watch almost hourly since the demonstration of the blazing cross.

Constable Silvester told The Examiner that during the present week he returned to the head of Stoney Lake and made full enquiry into the allegations made by the aged man. He said he was not able to find much truth in what had been reported to him.

LONDON LIFE HAS BUSINESS INCREASE

Successful Year Reported At 62nd Annual Meeting Of Company

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The London Life annual report, which is always awaited with interest, was presented yesterday to the shareholders and policyholders by the president, J. Edgar Jeffery, K.C. It was the company's 62nd annual meeting and the account of the year's work revealed outstanding results in every department.

Edward E. Reid, vice-president and managing director, analyzed the statement at considerable length and summed up by saying, "The results of the year on all counts indicate in a most emphatic manner that the operations of the company are on sound lines, that the policyholders' interests are fully secured and that we are thoroughly justified in viewing the future with assurance that the company's progress will continue to afford gratification to all whose interests are involved in its welfare."

The total amount of insurance in force increased by $24,411,152, reaching the substantial figure of $541,417,397 net. The new insurance purchased from the London Life during 1936 was $85,953,692, exclusive of annuities or business re-insured—an increase of approximately 10 per cent. for the year.

The company's assets for the protection of policyholders' interests are greater by $8,540,430 than at the end of 1935 and now amount to $109,101,346. Recognizing the necessity of increased vigilance concerning the security of all holdings during a period of gradually decreasing interest rates, a principle of vital importance in the administration of institutions of trustee nature, the London Life has continued its rigid pruning of investments and building up of investment and policy reserves. Substantial additions were made to the general investment reserves to take care of possible losses and depreciation. The free surplus was increased by approximately half a million dollars and is now $4,542,557, while the total of all surplus funds in excess of the statutory requirements, excluding dividend funds, is $13,137,411.

The assets of the company are invested in widely diversified securities. High-grade bonds and debentures, chiefly government and municipal bonds, make up 29 per cent. of the total. The mortgage investments are 40 per cent. Policy loans and liens are 14 per cent., while stocks, real estate, including the company's premises and miscellaneous items, make up the balance of 7 per cent. The rate of interest earned on the invested assets was 5.22 per cent.

The London Life which was founded in 1874, commemorates this year the fiftieth anniversary of the establishing of its industrial branch.

Merland and Commonwealth about 5 cents each, and East Crest about 8 cents.

LIVESTOCK EASED DURING PAST WEEK

Lambs Only Section To Register a Gain—Other Branches Declined

HOGS DROPPED 50 CENTS

TORONTO, Jan. 22 (C.P.)—Lambs gained 50 cents cwt. on the Toronto Live Stock Market this week, the Dominion Live Stock Branch reported, but all other market classes declined. Most grades of cattle eased 25 cents and calves moved 50 cents to $1 lower.

The hog division dropped 50 cents on Monday, but held unchanged for the balance of the period.

Bulls and fed calves were the only cattle grades to escape the early decline. Monday's holdover of 1,800 head was reduced to around 100 by the close. Export shipments to the United States were light, totalling only four loads of steers on order and a few cars of bulls. American markets were dull and easier.

Choice weighty steers made a general top of $6.50, with a few heavies up to $7.00 cwt. Butcher steers ranged fro m$4 to $5.75. Top butcher heifers sold at $5.50 to $5.60. Good butcher cows brought $3.75 to $4, with plain downward to $2.75. Canners and cutters were lower at $1.75 to $2.50.

Butcher bulls sold for export at $3.85 to $4.25 and bolognas at $3.50 to $3.75. Fed calves moved between $8.50 and $7.75, one top bringing $8. A few lots of store cattle traded from $4 to $5 cwt. Tested milkers and springers were around $65 to $70 for tops, with best untested springers at $60.

Calves opened steady at $11 to $11.50 for choice vealers. The division moved lower Wednesday, following declines in United States markets. The close was at a general top of $10.50, with common vealers as low as $5. Heavy Western calves brought $4 to $5.50, and grassers, $3.75 to $4.

Off-truck hogs firmed from Monday's price of $8.10 to $8.25 to close the period at a general price of $8.25, with some long hauls reaching $8.35. Thursday's small supply sold steady. Sows were generally at discounts of $2 to $2.50 below bacon prices.

The small supply offered contributed to the rise in sheep and lamb prices. Good Western lambs and some Ontario-fed Westerns sold at $10.50 cwt. Common to medium lambs were priced from $8 to $10.35. Sheep were mostly $5 to $5.50 cwt. For good light ewes with occasional tops up to $5.75. Good yearlings brought $6 to $7 cwt.

ONTARIO'S HYDRO FUTURE VERY ROSY SO ROEBUCK CLAIMS

Even Northern Systems Showing Surplus—Action This Year On Muskosh

LOWER TRENT LEVELS?

TORONTO, Jan. 22 (CP)—Ontario today held the assurance of Attorney General Arthur W. Roebuck that Hydro's future is rosy. Each Hydro system returned a profit in 1936, he told the legislature yesterday.

From the Niagara system with its profits of $3,118,177 to the tiny Manitoulin system with its 176 customers and $715 surplus, the outlook is bright, he said. Mr. Roebuck, one of the two government representatives on the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, carried further his outline of power development plans, aimed at making the Hydro utility independent of purchased power.

For the first time since the opening of the Abitibi canyon properties, the Northern Ontario Power Systems will show a surplus this year.

First power development to be undertaken this year will be in the Georgian Bay system at Ragged Rapids on the Muskosh River, four miles from Bala, Lake Muskoka's outlet. The $1,700,000 project can be completed for the delivery of 10,000 horse power early in 1938, he said.

May Lower Level of Trent

Other projects outlined by Mr. Roebuck, some not in the immediate future, were:

Agreement with Ottawa for lower water levels when required on the Trent River to provide increased flow for power development.

Surveys completed on the Mississipi and Madawaska Rivers with view to development on the latter. There is now 6,500 horse-power developed; potential capacity in 85,000 horse-power.

Additional units at Cameron Falls and Alexander Landing on the Nipigon River in the Thunder Bay system. Ogoki River division will provide flow for 30,000 more horse-power at these two plants at an estimated plant cost of $2,000,000. Cost of the diversion would be $3,000,000, not all chargeable to the Thunder Bay system.

Estimated rural line construction for 1937 of 1,000 miles at a cost of $2,500,000 for 7,000 more customers.

Construction of a $500,000 storage dam on the Frederickhouse River to control levels of the river and Night Hawk Lake and thus provide for 40,000 more horse-power at Abitibi.

Five Systems Show Surplus

Mr. Roebuck listed 1936 surpluses on five systems:

Niagara, $3,118,177.13; Eastern Ontario, $25,297.42; Georgian Bay, $82,298.12; Thunder Bay, $146,101.07; Manitoulin, $715.80.

"And I am glad to say for the first time since the opening of the Abitibi Canyon properties, the northern properties this year will show a surplus," said Mr. Roebuck.

Limbers Up

Charles "Chuck" Klein, substituting the confines of a gymnasium at Philadelphia for the wide open spaces, pedals away on a stationary bike as part of his training routine while awaiting the spring camp call. The former Chicago Cub slugger, now, with the Phillies, hopes to set a new home-run record for the National League in 1937.

Elevators Get Him After 48 Years On Job

Chicago, Jan. 22 (AP) CHARLES Reynolds quit his job as an elevator operator today, explaining he finally discovered he couldn't "stand the sensation of an elevator stopping."

Reynolds, 68, first began running elevators in 1888. "I'm glad this is over," he said as he retired on a union disability pension.

Bomb Wrecked Madrid Street And Subway

Made by an English ex-officer now fighting with the international brigade in defence of Madrid, this photo shows a bomb crater made by a rebel airman in one of the streets of Madrid. The Madrid subway runs underneath. The bomb penetrated through to the railway, where many had taken shelter, and an unknown number were killed. Note the tramlines twisted into the air by force of the explosion.

In the Eastern Ontario system, $133,200 was cut off the bills to the municipalities, but gross revenue increased $139,249 to $3,322,197.80, a new peak.

Reductions in power bills of Eastern Ontario cost municipalities were:

Belleville $25,900, Carleton Place $3,600, Cobourg $9,500, Lindsay $8,300, Napanee $6,000, Oshawa $19,300, Perth $4,400, Peterborough $11,600, Port Hope $8,800, Smith's Falls $6,000, Whitby $2,600.

Kingston, which operates on a contract basis, reduced rates to customers, $34,500.

In addition to rate reductions, refunds totalling $139,000 were given customers on the Eastern system.

An agreement, now being completed with the Dominion Government, will, said Mr. Roebuck, reduce charges for water at power sites on the Trent Waterway to $75,000 from $89,880.

Action on Madawaska

On the Eastern system, the commission has completed surveys of the Mississippi and Madawaska Rivers with a view to development on the latter. Plants at Galetta and Calabogie have an installed capacity of 6,500 horse-power. They were purchased for $1,800,000 and bring developed and undeveloped capacity on the Madawaska to 85,000 horse-power.

Rates were reduced $45,290, and refunds of $35,140 made to customers on the Georgian Bay system in 1936, he said. Steady growth in the peak load, which reached 29,539 horse-power in 1936, presented a problem. To meet a threatened shortage, the Commission purchased 2,000 horse-power from the Orillia municipal development at Minden. Additional power is also required in the summer from Niagara to meet the shortage caused by low-water at the developments in the Georgian Bay system.

To meet the Georgian Bay system demand, Mr. Roebuck outlined a possible development on the Muskosh River.

Hydro engineers have selected Ragged Rapids, four miles downstream on the Muskosh from the outlet of Lake Muskoka at Bala. This will produce 10,000 horse-power. A site at Bala will be the next to be developed. Other power sites are at Big Eddy, Sandy Grey and Go Home Bay.

"If the development at Ragged Rapids is commenced this spring, it can be brought into the system's supply by the summer of 1938," said Mr. Roebuck. "Its cost would be in the neighborhood of $1,700,00, but the added carrying and operating charges would be immediately offset by the discontinuance of purchased power from Orillia and the Niagara system."

Two New Units Needed.

"The Commission is facing the necessity for further development of Nipigon River powers," he said. "This can be cheaply accomplished by additional units at Cameron Falls and Alexander Landing, providing further water can be obtained."

Added water will be available, he continued, from the Ogoki River diversion, giving an added capacity of 35,000 horse-power.

"Cost of the Ogoki River diversion is estimated at $3,000,000, and cost of the proposed extensions at Cameron Falls and Alexander Landing is estimated at $2,000,000," he said.

Manitoulin system, founded in 1933, had a surplus of $715 on 176 customers, Mr. Roebuck reported.

Abitibi power showed a surplus of $70,997.81 in 1936, he said, without provision for sinking fund. Figures for November showed Abitibi had reached the stage where it would provide for capital charges and sinking fund.

Combined balance of all the Northern Ontario districts in 1936 was only $41,233.24 short of discharging all its operating expenses, fixed charges, and providing for a sinking fund. In 1939, predicted Mr. Roebuck, the northern properties will meet all charges and have a balance.

Deafness May Be Due To Catarrh.

People should be taught to recognize the symptoms of catarrh, because here is one ailment which can do a lot of damage if treatment is neglected. Loss of taste and smell and a general, lazy, let-down feeling often result from neglect of this trouble. The hearing becomes impaired to such an extent that partial deafness may result. Too, catarrh causes head noises, a roaring, hissing in the ears; the ears have a full, stuffy feeling in the morning when you awake. All these symptoms should have immediate care.

For this purpose secure from your druggist a bottle of Parmint Concentrate (double strength) which is an old reliable English formula. One ounce of this concentrate will make 8 ounces of medicine by adding a little sugar and water.

Parmint Concentrate is a handy home treatment for those symptoms which lead to catarrhal deafness and head noises and should be used by everyone who is troubled, this way. Any druggist can supply Parmint Concentrate and you can easily add water and sugar to make a big bottle of the medicine. It is an excellent preparation and is widely used by our English cousins. If you have the annoying symptoms of catarrh, don't run the risk of letting it become so deep seated that you may lose your hearing.

POOR YOUNGSTER!

Her Mother Forgot to get PENETRO!

Don't be careless about your child's cold. Treat it at once. A simple cold may develop into dangerous illness.

A safe, effective home remedy for colds is PENETRO—made with a mutton-suet base, like our grandmothers used. But now medical science has combined modern medicaments of proven worth with this base to produce this marvellous, effective remedy.

PENETRO works in two ways to relieve cold. First, when rubbed on chest and throat, it penetrates to the congested areas, relieving the inflammation and easing the pain; and, second, it releases volatile aromatic vapours which soothe and heal the irritated nasal passages.

Never be without this great family remedy. It is useful, too, in the treatment of muscular aches and pains, neuralgia, lumbago, etc. Pure white, it does not discolor fabrics. At any druggists, 25c.

Fashion Service

Here are two smart mid-season blouses—and made with a single pattern. So simple to sew, that even an amateur will stitch them up in an amazingly short time.

They're excitingly new looking. Aren't they?

The dainty voile lingerie shirtwaist blouse is femininised by its fled trim vestee effect. The ruffling also trims the collar and sleeve cuffs. Decorative pin tucks add soft front fulness. You can wear it with your tailored suit 'neath your fur coat. It's adorable with a silk suit for spring of plain navy or a peasant print.

The vestee blouse of bright crepe silk widens its shoulders with shirring. The quite full sleeves are shirred into tailored cuffs that fit snugly at the wrists. It ties its soft shirt collar with stitched bias self-binds. It may have short sleeves that puff above the elbow if you life.

You'll wear it to the office or for bridge or restaurant dining. It has grand above-the-table appeal. It will be nice for your spring suit.

Style No. 3477 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46-inches bust. Size 36 requires 2¾ yards of 39-inch material for lingerie blouse; and 3 yards of 39-inch material for blouse with vestee.

Invitation to Executive

A matter of interest was brought up by the president, Mrs. Scott, with reference to the annual meetings of the executive committee of the National Council of Women of Canada totalling between thirty and forty women. Her suggestion that the Peterborough Local Council extend an invitation to the National Council executive to hold its 1938 meeting (probably in February of next year), in Peterborough, was met with approval and Mrs. Scott will extend this invitation at the meeting of the executive in Toronto on February 5th, which she will attend in her capacity as president of a Local Council.

The president outlined briefly the proceedings of the Provincial Council meeting attended by her in Toronto on November 26th and 27th. She read also a letter received from Mrs. Spencer, president of the National Council.

Mrs. Scott asked that the members, one and all, strive to refrain in the coming year from destructive criticism of the Council's activities, and do all they can to assist by constructive criticism.

It was decided to do everything possible to assist in the endeavors of the Canadian Dental Hygiene Council and the meetings to be held here from February 1st to 5th.

A committee to consider the list of nominations for the National Council of Women which is submitted to each Local Council, was appointed, in Mrs. C. M. Scott, Mrs. E. Wand and Mrs. B. W. Harvey.

Gown Of 1882

Scores of old-fashioned wedding gowns and dresses were resurrected to be worn by girls of Trinity United church in an exhibit of what the well-dressed lady wore about 50 years ago. Miss Addie Wright is wearing the oldest wedding gown in the parade. It was made in 1882 and worn by Mrs. C. Dean, daughter of the late Judge Weller, on its first appearance.

Pastor Lectures On 23rd Psalm

Members Of Trinity Church W.M.S. Hear Exposition Famous Message

The first meeting for the New Year of the Women's Missionary Society of Trinity United Church was held in the church parlors on Wednesday afternoon, the president, Mrs. S. D. Carver, in the chair.

Following the devotional exercises the pastor, the Rev. G. S. Easton, brought a very inspiring message from the 23rd Psalm. He explained the meaning of the phrases used in this Psalm, with references to customs still in use in Palestine, which are much the same as those adhered to in the days of the Psalmist. He referred to it as being one of the most familiar as well as the greatest of the Psalms, also the most sacred and beautiful, embodying David's greatest message to humanity.

Annual reports were read at this meeting, the treasurer's report showing the allocation reached last year.

Delegates were appointed to the Presbyterial which will meet in Trinity Church on January 26th.

The guest soloist, Mrs. A. H. Radford, sang very beautifully "O Come Unto Me," accompanying herself on the piano.

At the close of the meeting, a social hour hour was spent, when refreshments were served by members of Group A.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta

NEVER the lotus closes, never the wild-fowl wake.
But a soul goes out on the East wind that died for England's sake—
Man or woman or suckling, mother or bride or maid—
Because on the bones of the English the English flag is stayed.
—Rudyard Kipling

Dear Friends— And now I will write of England and the English. I cannot say with truth that they are better than the Irish or Scotch or Welsh, but I do think they are grand people. Of course, like every other country, they have their bad ones, ones we wouldn't want to wipe our boots on, but in the main they are the finest people I have ever met.

Having an English father and a highland Scot mother, I have a warm spot for either country. But criticize the English as we like, it is very evident that they are favored by God.

They get the name of being phlegmatic, but I can assure you that there is no more romantic people in the world. And why shouldn't they be like that? Isn't the evidence of romance with a capital R all around them? Aren't they breathing the air of it every day. Who would expect an Englishman to write of lotus-flowers, when we mainly connect them with foxhunting, races, and shouting hurrah to their beloved king and queen.

And their cultivated speech, don't you like to hear them talk? I don't mean those who drop their aitches, altho' even they have a beauty in speech which others lack. But they have a cadence in their voice, not the flat monotone which we hear so often on the American continent.

When I lived there I was entranced with all the old buildings, some of them with walls six feet thick. And those Christmas cards you see with lovely houses on them, there are many like them still there.

One of my earliest recollections are the hampers of goodies we used to have sent to us in Scotland from my father's people. Quail and partridge already cooked, small mince pies of which we never seemed to get enough, roast beef of course, apples, grape nuts, everything in fact to make our dinner on that day a feast indeed, because we could not all get away at the same time to have our dinner with them.

And always at the bottom of the hamper, (which was as large as a clothes hamper) there were lovely woolies for us children. How I used to feel such inward ecstacy at the lovely colors, soft blues and reds so skilfully blended, that we had no doubt what Joseph's coat must have been like, and how his brothers must have envied him the possession of it. At that time, Scotland did not have a holiday at Christmas, but we always had special dinners, got up early (3 a.m.) went to communion, off to the office, and home to open our presents.

One girl used to ask for all details of our dinner, but could not come home with me to share it. So one day I brought a little of everything on a dish, even plum pudding, and did I have a time keeping upright carrying that dish on the icy streets. But it was worth it all to see how much she enjoyed what she could get of it, for they all insisted on sharing with her, and we had great hilarity over it all.

Belgrave Gate, in Leicester Meeton Mobray not far away. Meeting the nobility shopping, high-stepping horses, and on the outskirts of town the fox-hunting group in their red coats, and the "view-haloo" when they sighted the fox, but I never could bear to see it killed, and the brush given to the winner.

Did you ever see a coster dressed up in his "pearlies"? Every available part of his clothing covered with pearl buttons, and a dialect all their own. They did not think their men loved them, unless they beat them up every so often. Punch, the humorous English magazine had a cartoon once where a coster and his girl were walking along the street and the girl said "Bill her boy-friend: "Does yer love us Bill?" And he said, "Yus, yer know I do." And she said, "Then why don't yer knock us about?"

And I haven't said a word about the Tower of London, nor the Crystal palace which was burned down recently. Nor Madame Tussaud's nor a hundred and one things. But I have a nostalgia to see it all again so here's hoping.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Weddings

FITZGERALD—MARTIN

TWEED, Jan. 22—A very pretty wedding took place recently at the Holy Rosary Church, Toronto, when Valentine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hermos Martin, Whitney, Ontario, became the bride of John Edward, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael E. Fitzgerald, Maynooth.

The church was decorated with chrysanthemums and ferns. Rev. Father Sharpe officiated.

The bride, entering the church to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, looked lovely in a gown of Coronation blue crepe, silver lame hat, and matching accessories. She wore a corsage of Sweetheart roses and carried a white prayer book.

Miss Mary Fitzgerald, Maynooth, as bridesmaid, was gowned in Cuba rust crepe, made on princess lines, gold lame hat and old gold accessories. A corsage of Talisman roses completed her costume.

Mr. Ambrose Trudeau, Tweed, supported the groom.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the "Old Mill" for immediate relatives.

Following a trip to Montreal and other eastern points, the young couple will reside in Maynooth.

COUNTY COUNCIL TO PRESS FOR FISH HATCHERY

Will Invite Fish and Game Association And City Council To Join Deputation

HATCHERY A NECESSITY

Convinced that Peterborough County needs a fish hatchery if its lakes are ever to be restocked with bass and lunge and the tourist traffic built up, the County Council decided to take the fight for a hatchery in its own hands at its session Thursday. The Council will invite the Fish and Game Association and the Peterborough City Council to co-operate in a delegation to interview the Department of Game and Fisheries.

The Council's decision grew out of discussion of the Fish and Game Association's request for assistance in seeking a hatchery voiced before the Council by President B. W. Harvey Wednesday.

"I think we have been going about it the wrong way," Reeve James Gifford declared. "We have been leaving the thing in the hands of the Fish and Game Association whereas a fish hatchery is a matter of vital concern to us. I do not wish to reflect on the efforts of the Fish and Game Association for they have been highly commendable. I think we should take members of the Association along on our delegation."

Vital Necessity

He said a hatchery is a necessity here as the stock of fish in local waters has been declining steadily. Well stocked lakes and rivers are a greater attraction for tourists than even the biggest campaign of advertising, he declared.

Reeve William Anderson of Otonabee voiced the opinion that delegations from the Fish and Game Association have little influence on the Department. The Department of Game and Fisheries receives more advice from public delegations than any other department in the Government and a delegation from the Peterborough Fish and Game Association is apt to be looked upon as just one more delegation, he suggested.

"If the County Council goes to them with a definite request for a fish hatchery I think we'll get it for an elected body of the people's representatives carries considerable influence. Peterborough County should have had a fish hatchery years ago."

Warden Endorses Plan

Warden Roy Brown endorsed the plan, stating that the findings of the Goverment biologist, who surveyed the district waters last summer should also be followed up with a definite plan for restocking the waters.

The Council named the Warden, Reeve Anderson and Reeve Gifford to the task of arranging for a delegation.

The Council decided to take no action on the plea of Fred Marshall, former game warden, for creation of a large game park and preserve in northern Peterborough County.

Reeve John Clark of Galway and Cavendish said he was in favor of the idea but that there is still opposition among the residents of the area. He urged that the proposal be "stalled off" until the residents become educated to it. Warden Brown and Reeve Wallace Shearer endorsed that view but urged that the plan could be kept in mind as something to work out in the not-too-distant future. They suggested that the delegation to the Department seeking a fish hatchery should let it be known that Peterborough is planning a game park in order that no other nearby county will beat Peterborough County to it.

COUNTIES' CLERK HAS SALARY CUT OF 1934 RESTORED

cause the entire county road system was "in bad shape". He said that reduction of a half a mill in the tax rate this year would be acceptable to most ratepayers providing sufficient money was allotted to roads in a noticeable improvement.

Reeve Waterman, South Monaghan, said that at least $100,000 would be required annually for three years to restore the roads to normal condition. "If you keep it down to $60,000 we won't be any better off next year than we are now."

Reeve Currie said that only half a program would leave a lot of municipalities without any county road work being done this year.

Deputy-reeve Alf Merrill of Percy was inclined to agree with Mr. Waterman, but if the committee was hesitating about the full amount of $100,000 probably they would compromise on $80,000.

Deputy-reeve J. G. Honey, Cramahe, favored that amount, stating that he had heard many complaints about the roads from his ratepayers.

Leslie Campbell and Chas. Burrison expressed the belief that the people who paid the taxes would be quite happy to know that only $60,000 was to be spent on the roads.

Reeves Fairman, Wood and Reid said they thought a moderate increase would be sufficient for the 1937 program, and Reeve Mallory of Percy township clinched the case for the intermediate amount by declaring that even if the council wanted to spend $200,000 on road improvement the work could not all be done this year. It was, therefore, the finance committee's duty to strike a sensible medium that would provide more money than last year, and enable the road superintendent to show some accomplishment by next fall.

Relief In Sight.

Reeve Stinson reminded the council that by the end of next year the counties would have paid their indebtedness for provincial highways at the rate of $27,000 a year for a total of three years. At that time, also, a debenture was maturing, and the council could lay out a progressive plan of road improvement that would be promoted by more available money when the obligation to the government had been wiped out.

"Let us show the government that we intend to put our roads in good condition again," said Deputy-reeve Calver, "and I think they will be satisfied with $70,000 outlay this year. After all they have a half interest in our county roads."

Walter M. Fowlds of Hastings, Warden of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham in 1924, addressed the new council on Thursday afternoon from the dais on which he once presided, advocating again, after a memorable experience, a campaign of publicity for the Kawartha Lakes district as directed by the recently organized Kawartha and Haliburton Tourist Association, of which G. K. Fraser is president.

Mr. Fowlds was accompanied by A. J. Meyers, J. M. Bygott and C. H. Davidson of Campbellford, and with them Don Sidey and Robt. Holdaway of Bewdley.

They appealed to the council to grant $500 to the new association, saying that other delegations were simultaneously applying to the councils of Peterborough and Victoria counties. Funds of the association were to be spent in advertising the tourist attractions of the Kawartha district.

Mr. Fowlds, Mr. Meyers and Mr. Sidey declared that the tourist business had become Canada's major industry, that the governments were advertising Canada and Ontario, and by that same policy local districts should advance their own interests by trying to get as large a share as possible of the tourist trade. It was pointed out that merchants in the towns and villages report increased sales during the summer months, that farmers supply butter, milk, eggs and other produce, and that municipalities gain an advantage in the taxes paid by owners of summer cottages and resorts. The deputation's request was referred to the Finance committee on Reeve Fairman's motion, seconded by Deputy-reeve Calver of Campbellford.

Schools Committee.

A sub-committee to assist Reeve E. C. McKeel, Campbellford, chairman of the Schools committee, in the scrutinizing requistions for school grants was appointed, composed of Reeve Stinson, Millbrook; Reeve R. R. Mallory, Percy township; Deputy-reeve T. G. Shield, Cavan township; and Reeve Leslie H. Wilson, Cobourg.

Reeve Stinson remarked that as a provision for the future it was advisable to train some of the newer members in the specialized work that devolves to the chairman of the Schools committee, and also that all the arithmetical details should not be thrust upon Reeve McKeel.

The Schools committee endorsed the action of Reeve McKeel on the requisition of the Peterborough Board of Education amounting it was said to $1,400. The account of the Peterborough Board is being held up until information is received showing the number of days

Request for a grant toward the cost of lighting the Campbellford bridge was referred to the Roads and Bridges committee on Deputy-reeve Calver's motion, seconded by Reeve McKeel.

Reeve H. G. Fairman gave notice of a motion to ask for $50 to assist in paying attendance of each student from the United Counties attending the Collegiate Institute at Peterborough.

$25 to Seed Fair.

Quinte Seed Fair was granted $25 on the motion of Reeve Wood in the Agricultural committee.

Reforestation Plan.

A. W. Martin, representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture in Northumberland, urged the council to expand its reforestation policy by encouraging the planting of more trees. His proposal included exemption of wood lots from taxation by township councils, the holding of public meetings to explain the necessity of a broader understanding of the need of reforestation, especially on lands and hills that are adaptable for that purpose.

This program was referred to the Reforestation committee for a report in June. Reeve L. Campbell, Cramahe, and Reeve Stinson expressed the opinion that the entire plan sketched by Mr. Martin might be transfered to the reforestation committee which in the past has mainly supervised the two forest plantings in the United Counties.

MAY ESTABLISH COUNTY SHELTER FOR ITS CHILDREN

County Council Debates Care Of Its Own Dependent Children

CAN ELIMINATE COST

Care by Peterborough County of its own dependent children in boarding homes and even the possible establishment of a County children's shelter was foreshadowed at Thursday afternoon's session of the County Council. Councillors decided something must be done to reduce the bills the County is paying the Peterborough Children's Aid for care of its wards.

Reeve James Gifford outlined his findings resulting from a study of the problem during recent weeks. He said he first investigated the possibility of keeping the County's wards in the House of Refuge but found that statutes do not allow such a course. The deputation approached the Peterborough Board of Education and sought to relieve a portion of the burden to the County through obtaining cancellation of the school costs of the children, he related. The request was turned down, he said.

"We can not blame the city for they have their own heavy share of Children's Shelter costs and we must all pay our own way. The only way we'll get anywhere with the problem is to work in a spirit of co-operation with the city."

How to Eliminate Cost

Reeve Gifford said officials of the Department of Public Welfare pointed out to him that the cost of caring for wards can be almost entirely eliminated by an ideal functioning of Children's Aid Societies. Shelters should be used merely as clearing houses for dependant children rather than permanent boarding homes, he said. Every effort to move children out for adoption as fast as the cases appear should be made, he explained. He said the officials stressed the importance of prevention work through social workers—work designed to correct the family troubles and conditions which result in children becoming dependant on public support.

Municipalities to Blame

Reeve Gifford also suggested that the local municipalities are partially responsible for the heavy burden on the County in being too ready to send to the Shelter in Peterborough children who should be given care in their own communities. Concluding, he said the County Council should be definitely represented in the work of the Children's Aid Society if it is expected to contribute to its support.

The problem of its child wards has been given close attention in several past sessions of the County Council. Originally, the Council contributed a grant of $1,000 a year to the Society and its responsibility ended there. Last year the Society began to demand 75 cents a day for each County ward in accordance with its statutory rights.

Suggests Committee

Deputy-reeve Melville Johnston of North Monaghan suggested a committee should be named to investigate thoroughly the affairs of the Children's Aid Society and inquire into the possibility of starting a Peterborough County shelter, reporting to the June session of the Council.

Commenting on a suggestion that the County might find it practical to place its wards in boarding homes in the County, Reeve Charles Tanner of Lakefield said such a course would likely reduce the 75-cent-a-day cost considerably. He opined the cost of keeping a ward, especially a young child, is not nearly 75 cents a day and that overhead expenses would have to be unduly heavy to justify that price.

On motion of Reeve McDonald of Dummer and Deputy-reeve Johnston, a committee of the Warden, Reeve Gifford and Reeve Milby was named to inquire into the entire problem and see what can be done.

TORIES LOSE MOVE TO RULE ROEBUCK AS OUT OF ORDER

Roebuck said he was discussing Hydro and Speaker Norman Hipel upheld him. Conservatives protested the ruling and lost on division.

Mr. Roebuck contended no court had passed on the justice of the 1935 legislation outlawing the Quebec power contracts. They had ruled against Ontario on constitutional grounds, a technical procedure."

The Legislature was being asked to re-affirm and make possible of performance what is decreed in 1935, he said.

Mr. Roebuck charged the Conservative opposition with being tied "in some mysterious way to financial interests trying to strangle the people of the province."

On a speaker's ruling Mr. Roebuck had to withdraw the statement so far as it pertained to any member of the Legislature.

Two Hydro bills, introduced in the Ontario Legislature yesterday, supplemented one introduced previously to nullify effect of judgments against the commission in connection with power contracts declared invalid by the Legislature.

What the Bill Provides.

First of two bills was entitled an act to amend the Privy Council Appeals Act. It provided:

(1) Provisions of the Appeals Act with respect to posting bonds for appeals shall not apply to any appeal heretofore or hereafter taken by His Majesty in the right of the Province, by any minister for the Province, or by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

(2) Any moneys already paid in by Hydro for such an appeal shall be returned on production of a certified copy of this act to the accountant of the Supreme Court.

(3) Payment out of court of such moneys shall not prejudice or affect any appeal.

Second of the two bills was entitled an act to declare the meaning of subsection 4 of section 6 of the Power Commission Act. It provided:

(1) Meaning and effect of the section is and always has been that without the consent of the Attorney-General no action of any kind whatsoever shall be brought against the Hydro Commission.

(2) No action shall be brought against any member of the Commission for anything done or omitted by him in exercise of his office without consent of the Attorney-General.

COLT PISTOL IS FOUND IN PARK BY CITY POLICE

Believed To Be Weapon Used By Druce On Night Of Attempted Hold-up

.45 CALIBRE REVOLVER

Claiming it is the gun used by Gordon Druce recently sentenced to imprisonment and a strapping along with John McClennan for the wounding of Edgar D. Carson, south-end grocer in an attempted hold-up on the night of November 3 Last, police today recovered a United States army model .45 calibre automatic Colt pistol.

The search which has been carried out systematically by police almost daily since Druce and McClennan were arrested a few hours after the shooting, terminated shortly before ten o'clock this morning when Inspector James F. Reid found the weapon in Jackson Park near the south-east entrance.

Sharply etched against the background of a light fall of snow the pistol was seen by the officer lying in the position where it had presumably been tossed by Druce as he and McClennan fled the scene of the crime.

Dirty Handkerchief

Nearby Inspector Reid also recovered a dirty handkerchief, probably the one referred to at the preliminary hearing of charges against the pair as being used by Druce to mask his face as he entered the store and commanded the defenceless storekeeper to "stick 'em up," prior to firing a bullet into his left upper arm that coursed into the chest wall and abdomen and came within a shade of killing Carson.

Tied up in a knot the handkerchief contained about two-dozen rounds of .45 steel-nosed cartridges, corresponding to the type of bullet recovered by surgeons from Carson's body; while the inspector's find also included a cartridge clip for the .45 automatic partly loaded, as well as a box of .32 calibre cartridges.

Commenting on the fact that Druce carried a .32 calibre revolver in addition to the .45 pistol with which he was armed, and recalling the fact that McClennan also had a .32 calibre revolver fully loaded, Chief Constable Samuel Newhall remarked, "Any men who will go out with an arsenal like that are in my opinion intent on something much worse than the crime for which they were sentenced."

He displayed the .45 automatic pistol, which showed signs of exposure to the elements in the rust that was beginning to form on its stub-nosed blue-steel barrel.

CITY ENGINEER IS ASKED FOR REPORT

Board Wants Detailed Report On Proposed Works Program

The city engineer has been instructed by the Board of Works committee of the City Council to prepare a detailed report bearing on the proposed works program for the current year.

In making his report the engineer is to be assisted by recommendations from the various members of the committee. He will further consider a five-fold recommendation placed before the committee in which Alderman James Dutton urges:

1—Appointment of a competent assistant to the city engineer.

2—Appointment of a supervisor of work done by the Board of Works.

3—Establishment of a requisition system for all goods bought or issued by the Board of Works.

4—A scheme to find permanent employment for more men on civic works undertakings, with particular consideration to men of fifty years of age, who own their own homes.

5—That the city yards be cleaned up and fenced in and that old buildings be torn down, and if necessary a man placed in charge.

A special committee to be composed of Alderman Max Sloan, chairman; Mayor George A. Macdonald, and Aldermen Malcolm McIntyre and Robert S. Cotton, was appointed to go fully into a study of the parking problem, with a view of improving the situation.

The city engineer was also asked on motion of Alderman G. N. Gordon, to secure samples of sand from different sections of the city with a view of a municipal sand pit being acquired.

Suggestion that the city should purchase a sand pit was made by Alderman Walter Stocker and was well received. The chairman stated that during the winter months the Board of Works spends an average of $200 per month for sand.

Exports of Philippine cigars are falling off.

TOO MUCH HOT AIR.

County Councillors turned their learned attentions on the matter of weather stripping for the windows in the Council Chamber on Thursday. Members had been complaining of draughts.

"I think the cold air blowing in through the window endangers Reeve Tanner's bald head," Deputy-Reeve Melville Johnston of North Monaghan said.

"Will weather stripping keep the hot air out?" Reeve Tanner countered. "There's more danger from hot air than cold air around here."—C.P.K.

YOUTH CHARGED WITH ENTERING

George Crisp Of Collingwood Pleads Guilty—Remanded For Sentence

When he pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking and entering and theft, George Crisp, 21, whose home is stated to be in Collingwood, was this (Friday) morning remanded before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. He will be brought up for sentence on Monday next.

The charge alleges that Crisp broke into the residence of Harry Gausein in North Monaghan on December 31 last, where he had previously been boarding and stole a Rolls razor, a club bag and wearing apparel. At the time of the alleged offence the accused was working as a wood cutter for Herbert Doig.

Leaving here at half past two o'clock Thursday afternoon, Provincial Constable David Silvester motored to Collingwood and took Crisp in charge, returning to the city around five o'clock this morning with his prisoner.

30 NEW MEMBERS ADDED TO Y.W.C.A.

Total Membership Of Gymnasium Classes Now Reached 587

Thirty members are registered in the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium classes to date through the membership campaign. This brings the total number in the gymnasium and dancing classes to 366, with badminton, junior club, and basketball a total of 587 enjoying the facilities of the Physical Department.

The new swing and stretch exercises and Medau rhythmics have proven very popular among the business girls' and ladies' classes. Gymnasium exercises in the last few years have changed greatly from the old marching tactics and jerky drills and now tend to give one that feeling of confidence that all muscles are under control and every movement a rhythm of grace.

Badminton is one of the most popular winter sports. The Y.W.C.A. traces badminton back twenty years ago when a few members started the game.

In the junior classes the tap or ballet dancing is proving very popular.

Business girls in all occupations find it is essential that they keep in perfect health, if control and ability are to be increased. These times summon one to greater endurance, patience and confidence. Through gym and dancing classes both beginners and advanced pupils have the opportunity of developing poise, initiative and the love of doing. Gym classes include all the new exercises, tap and interpretive dancing, apparatus and games, and there are classes for little tots, school girls, business girls and women. This is the season when healthful recreation is needed to keep one feeling well and now is the time to join the "Y" classes.

VETERAN MEMBERS ARE GIVEN JEWELS

Peterborough Lodge I. O. O. F. Honors Veterans Of The Craft

One of the biggest nights in the long history of Peterborough Lodge No. 111, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, was held on Thursday evening, when jewels were presented to some of the grand old veterans of the craft. C. R. Hall, Grand Warden of the Grand Lodge of Ontario, made the presentations, and in some he was assisted by Bro. E. J. Leeson of Havelock, Deputy District Grand Master. A very large turn-out of members, their ladies and also brethren from sister lodges were present.

To Bro. T. M. McFadden went the honors of the evening, for he has over sixty years been a member of Peterborough Lodge, being initiated on August 31, 1876. Three members all initiated in Peterborough and all members of 50 years or over received the 50-year jewels; the members were Bros. James Long, initiated April 1, 1885; T. T. Emmerson, initiated February 21, 1886, and T. H. Hooper, initiated April 1, 1886.

His Worship Mayor George A. Macdonald led the group of nineteen members who received 25-year jewels, and others were Bros. R. W. Jones, Peter Nicholls, William Mellis, N. Kling, D. A. Loomis, Walter Hughes, W. E. Curry, P. H. Rowan and James Bath, all of whom were initiated in Peterborough Lodge; and also E. W. Young, who transferred from Coaticooke, Quebec; C. E. Blewett from Lindsay; Dr. D. W. Clark from Pontypool, Charles Cummer from Meaford; O. M. Steer from Victoria Harbor, and P. G. Wallace from Saskatoon.

Fred and John Hooper, grandsons of T. H. Hooper and sons of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hooper, rendered a most appreciated piano duet, while Mrs. Percy Hooper delighted the audience with a beautiful violin solo, and Mr. and Mrs. George Nicholls rendered in a most able manner a piano duet.

ELOQUENT PLEA IS MADE BY COUNSEL FOR LINDSAY MAN

Pleads Guilty To Theft From Store And Office-In Warsaw

TWO ARE REMANDED

There was an affecting scene in Magistrate's Court as Cleveland Bonnisteel, 26, of Lindsay, threw his arms around his widowed mother to comfort her distress, as he was on his way out of the courtroom after being remanded for sentence.

Implicated along with Royden Rowe of the same town in theft of some cigarettes and postage stamps, which were stolen when the pair broke into Darling's store and Geo. Taylor's office at Warsaw a week ago, Bonnisteel pleaded guilty to a double charge of breaking and entering and theft.

His companion Rowe, who once served two years at Kingston Penitentiary for burglary and theft, pleaded guilty before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to theft of a motor truck and to a double charge of breaking and entering and theft. The pair were remanded for sentence until Wednesday next.

Stating that he was appealing at the request of members of the Bonnisteel family who were held in high regard in Lindsay, L. M. Frost, K.C., of that town made an eloquent plea on the young man's behalf.

Ask Suspended Sentence.

While he did not attempt to minimize the seriousness of the offences, Mr. Frost strongly urged that the court give Bonnisteel an opportunity to re-establish his former good name by placing him on suspended sentence. He outlined the full circumstances of the case and asked the Magistrate to take into consideration the fact that the accused is married with a family.

At one time a prominent member of Lindsay Curling Club, Bonnisteel got in with bad companions and started to drink when he became a victim of the depression, Mr. Frost stated.

Magistrate Langley, who intimated he was strongly opposed to suspended sentence in matters of that nature, declared he had a duty to the public which must be performed.

Promising that he would give the case further consideration before delivering sentence, His Worship commented: "The thing that worries me most in connection with any trial is the punishment. One has a duty to society on the one hand and a duty to the accused person on the other. But we must not lose sight of the fact that the courts are not for the immediate purpose of making good men out of bad, but they are also courts of punishment for the protection of society."

Addressing Rowe, who was represented by the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., and remanding him for sentence along with his companion, the Magistrate said: "I cannot promise you anything less than a year since you have pleaded guilty along with the other two charges of stealing a motor truck."

AT THE EMPRESS.

Among the guests registered at the Empress Hotel are D. E. Bright, of Chicago, Ill., A. Bridge of Montreal, F. A. McDougall of Algonquin Park, G. R. Kahrs, of Buffalo, N.Y., and H. M. Douglas of London.

POOR ICE SUPPLY.

Reports from all over the district continue to show anxiety over the ice supply. The Rice Lake ice crop is poor, but the Trent River is running wide open and in many of the northern lakes the ice is of uncertain quality. The east end of Stoney Lake is reported as an exception to the general conditions and the ice harvest is under way there. Indian told the Examiner this morning that there is much open water in the Buckhorn sector and it is possible to paddle on several of the lakes, which is an unusual condition for mid-winter.

IN NEED OF REPAIR.

The city clerk has been instructed to write to the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railway Company authorities advising them that several of the railway crossings in the city are in a dangerous state of disrepair, and requesting that the condition be remedied. The motion made by Alderman G. N. Gordon and seconded by Alderman R. M. Glover at the Board of Works Committee meeting Thursday night included directions that the crossings in need of repair be designated and that a copy of the letters be sent to the Railway Board.

HAS MARRIAGE CERTIFICATE.

Walter Mullis, 164 Dublin Street, has asked The Examiner to deny a report that a child recently in the hospital for treatment belonged to an unmarried woman. Mr. Mullis says the baby, now 14 months of age, is the child of his wife, and to substantiate his claim he produced a marriage certificate dated June 13, 1931, showing a marriage between William Walker Earnest Mullis and Margaret Luella Robinson. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. F. Battersby of the Church of England, Hastings.

Minor Catastrophe Narrowly Averted

A million to once chance averted a minor catastrophe at the police station when a pot of coffee accidentally knocked off the charge room table lit on the floor right side up with only partial loss of its steaming contents.

It was lunch time, and members of the force sat around sniffing the appetising aroma with keen anticipation. Their faces expressed keen misgiving when a newshound rambled in and upset their pot of java.

Executing a neat flip in mid air, the pot bounced off the floor and landed right side up with the loss of a mere cupful or so of the precious fluid.

As a member of the force mopped up the floor forceful opinions were heard from a certain quarter bearing on reporters in general, and on one red faced individual in particular.

Three Shillings a Week Paid Apprentice When George P. Malsch Learned His Trade

George P. Malsch, of 421 Edison Ave., Peterborough, has in his possession a formidable looking document, being his indenture papers made out in October of 1899 by which he was to learn the trade of engineer, gas and hot water fitter. Wilbraham Randle Ford, solicitor of Windsor, prepared the document, which is gay as well as impressive by reason of the many seals and revenue stamps attached. The stamp of the Royal Courts of Justice cost one pound.

Mr. Malsch was bound to serve six years with David Holden of 93 High street, Eton, and the wages agreed upon were not such that the apprentice was likely to have much spare money left. For the first year he received three shillings per week, and if he worked overtime it was at the rate of one penny per hour. In the second year the wage was five shillings per week and two pence per hour for overtime, while in the third year seven shillings was the weekly wage and three pence per hour for overtime. In the fourth year Mr. Malsch was paid nine shillings per week and the rate for overtime had risen to three pence half-penny per hour. In the last year 13 shillings per week was the reward and five pence per hour for overtime.

The conditions set forth in the indenture papers were extremely rigid regarding what the apprentice should and should not do, and Mr. Malsch admitted the strictness. "I was bound to him in every way and had to live up to the letter."

Mr. Malsch believes he is the only family in this country of that name. "I have tried on several occasions to find if there were any others of the same name and I have never been able to locate them. Before coming to this city a good many years ago Mr. Malsch was engaged in British ship yards and various other places following his trade.

TO MAKE SURVEY OF CITY'S STREETS AS TO NUMBERING

Considerable Confusion Exists At Present Time Board Of Works Advised

SENTIMENT IN NAMES

To avoid existing confusion City Engineer Roy H. Parsons has been instructed to make a survey of certain city streets with a view of having them renamed and doing away with the duplication of house numbers.

Bringing the matter forward at a meeting of the Board of Works committee of the city council Thursday night, Alderman Max Sloan said representations had been made to him by the postmaster of the inconvenience and confusion often caused because many of the streets are numbered doubly from the centre of the city.

He mentioned particularly such streets as Park, George and Stewart, which run from north to south of the city, with a duplication of numbers at each end. He believed it was time a change in the system was made.

Of the same view Mr. Parsons reminded members of the committee the matter had been a subject of discussion almost annually, but Alderman James Dutton expressed a belief that while there is a certain amount of confusion the general system of numbering of streets was good.

Opposed to a suggestion from another quarter that the streets of the city be designated by numbers, Alderman James Hamilton felt there was a certain sentiment about names that made it desirable they should be retained.

The chairman together with Mayor George A. Macdonald, Alderman E. R. Wilson, and Robert S. Cotton and the city engineer were appointed as a special committee to look into the matter of snow plow and grader equipment; and were also requested to secure prices and other information relative to flushing and oiling equipment for the cleaning of the city streets. The committee will report back to the Board of Works.

During a brief discussion all present were generally agreed that the streets of the city should be flushed with water as the best means of keeping them clean. They were in accord with Dr. G. Murray Fraser, Medical Officer of Health, who recommended in a recent report to council that flushing of streets is desirable in the best interests of public health.

Purchase of gasoline in bulk as a financial saving to the Board of Works was discussed, but the matter was deferred for further consideration. The gasoline bill for Board of Works motor vehicles averages $73 to $100 per month it was stated.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, January 23

A VERY lively and busy day, but not an auspicious one, is forecast from the predominant lunar transits. There may be many difficulties, impediments, postponements and possibly a bereavement in the private life as well as in business activities. There might be some stirring events in connection with writings or contracts.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of delays, frustrations, obstacles and stagnations, which may stop the wheels of progress despite lively and earnest endeavors. A bereavement may be at the root of this situation. Writings and contracts are under good auspices if energy is directed toward their negotiation.

A child born on this day may have a fine and active mentality and a studious nature, and it may be fond of probing into deep and difficult lines of thought.

Y.M.C.A. BOARD REPORTS REVEAL OUTSTANDING YEAR

Retiring Directors Are Re-elected At Annual Meeting of Association

INCREASED MEMBERSHIP

One of the best annual meetings in recent years was held Thursday evening by the Young Men's Christian Association. The Board of Directors and members met with the Y's Men at their regular weekly meeting and a fine and representative group were on hand to hear the reports of the year's work.

Y's Men's Club president, Roy Lewis presided during the early part of the evening and later turned the meeting over to the president of the association, G. S. Matthews.

Mr. Matthews in his opening remarks pointed out that the association had enjoyed a very satisfactory year and had made real progress in current finances showing an improvement of over $800.00 over the same date last year. The president spoke of the splendid work of the ladies auxiliary in redecorating the building including the dormitories, men's club room, boys' rooms, reading room and hallways. The ladies had raised and spent approximately $800.00 on this work and were planning to proceed with further redecorations in other parts of the building.

The president referred to changes in the staff as the result of the resignation of Mr. Loomis. The secret of success he pointed out was the fact that objectives had been reached in both the annual financial canvass in the spring and the membership campaign in the fall and he expressed confidence that the association would receive the usual generous support of the citizens in the annual campaign for subscriptions to be held in April.

Membership now stands at 904 compared with 924 last year at the same time.

The work of the Y's Men's Club, Friday Night Club and the Leaders' Corps was highly commended by the president.

A Gratifying Gain

General Secretary G. H. Roper reported that the financial position of the Y.M.C.A. was steadily improving and showed a gratifying gain over the position of twelve months ago. Mr. Roper referred to the changes in staff made necessary by the resignation of Doug. Loomis from the position of physical instructor, remarking that the influence of Mr. Loomis' work would continue for many years to come. Regret was also expressed at the loss sustained by the departure of Rev. C. D. Daniel, one of the directors. Mr. Roper reviewed the work of the different departments, showing general progress. The membership of the men's department, he said was 723, compared with 651 the previous year while the boys' membership stood at 271 as compared with 273. Thanks were extended to the ladies' auxiliary for raising and spending nearly $800 on decorating and improving the building and to President G. S. Matthews and the directors.

The Physical Department.

The report of the physical department as given by J. L. Gillespie, chairman of the physical committee and supplemented by reports from Jack Wolstenholme for the leaders' corps, Don Crawford for the volleyball committee and Fred Williams for the wrestling class showed that 1936 had been a most successful year. Features were a revival of interest in handball and the capture of the Ontario intermediate volleyball championship.

The Boys' Division.

W Donald McHoull assistant secretary presented the report of the Boys' department indicating a busy year for the 271 members of this department. Mention was made of the activities of the handicraft club, the meccano club, the Hi-Y club and other organizations functioning under the jurisdiction of the department.

PLANS ARE MADE FOR CONFERENCE

Mayor Urges Federal Member To Have Dominion Architect Present

ON SATURDAY NIGHT

Mayor George A. Macdonald has telegraphed J. J. Duffus, M.P. at Ottawa making final arrangements for a special meeting of the Board of Works to be held here Saturday evening.

Mr. Duffus has been requested by the mayor to invite Mr. Winters, Dominion architect for Ontario to come here for the conference being held relative to proposed new public buildings.

His Worship stated in his message to the local Federal member, "I am instructed that Mr. Winters has a complete knowledge of the situation here and his presence at the conference would be most important to the success of the enterprise."

The mayor's action followed on Thursday evening's meeting of the Board of Works committee held under the chairmanship of Alderman Max Sloan, when the possibility of having the Federal government include an appropriation in the supplementary estimates for new customs and post office building here was considered.

Over a period of years there has been considerable discussion and several requests made of the Federal government to erect a public building in this city, but owing to the splendid condition and locations of the present post office and customs house the matter has been deferred from time to time.

In a recent letter to the city council in which he promised his support to any representations that might be made to the government with reference to the matter, Mr. Duffus stated:

Becoming Inadequate

"Admitting the buildings are in good shape and well located, the general improvement in economic conditions is rapidly causing them to be inadequate." With this thought in mind Mr. Duffus proposed that the council should take up the matter at an early date and send a deputation to Ottawa.

The pending meeting Saturday evening is the outcome of the proposal, when the matter is to be thoroughly gone into from every possible point of view.

In moving that Mr. Duffus be invited to bring the Dominion architect to the conference, Alderman G. N. Gordon said he had in mind that the present market building which he believed was pretty well obsolete, might be traded in to the government for the present custom house. The custom house building, he declared, could then be used to house the police station and utilities commission offices, while the city hall could be located in the present post office building.

NASH, DORIS GREY WIN BADMINTON TOURNEY MATCHES

Western Association's Championship Games Down To Quarter Finals

SENIOR MEN PLAYING

KITCHENER, Ont., aJn. 22 (C.P.)—Competition is scheduled to resume early to-day in the Western Ontario Badminton Association's championship tournament and by night the 350 original entrants are expected to be whittled down to the quarter-finalists in each division.

Last night's play like the opening night failed to produce any upsets but there were several keenly fought duels. Jack Nash, London and Doris Gray of Guelph made their first appearance in defence of their singles' titles and passed their tests without difficulty.

Nash beat Bruce McBurney, Kitchener Granite Club, 15-11, 15-9, and Miss Gray lost only two games to Miss P. McDonald, London, winning 11-1, 11-1. Miss Gray is also co-holder with Mrs. D. C. Cullen Niagara Falls, of the women's doubles championship and the pair is scheduled to meet a Hamilton Thistles team to-day in defence of their crown.

In a men's doubles second-round match, McLelland and Earon, of Guelph, lost their first set 12-15 to Clare and Hilborn, but rallied to take the next two and the match 15-2, 15-8. In first-round mixed doubles game Cameron and Cameron of Woodstock and Cressman and Becker, Kitchener, went three sets before the Woodstock team emerged on top.

Opening shot was fired in the senior men's doubles which is restricted to men 40 years of age and over. Koehler and Pollock, Kitchener Granites, outscored Forester and Barbour, Stratford, to win 15-5, 15-6.

St. Paul's Juveniles Beat Trinity 5 To 2

St. Paul's Juveniles took a 5-2 win over Trinity in a Church Hockey League game at All Saints' rink last night. Both teams were short regulars. Trinity especially being handicapped, inclement weather keeping players away. Trinity tallied in the first frame and also got the final goal, E. Patterson scoring both. St. Paul's ran in four in the second by Ascott, Taylor, J. McMillian and Mackness. The latter repeated in the third heat. It was St. Paul's fourth straight win and almost assures them a playoff berth. McBain, R. Horton, Easton and T. McMillian went well. The teams:

Trinity: Goal, McBain; defence, Patterson, J. Horton; centre, R. Horton; wings, Fowler, Stanley; alternate, Andrews.

St. Paul's: Goal, McBride; defence, J. McMillian, Ascott; centre, T McMillian; wings, Dunsford, Easton; alternates, Mackness, Perks, Taylor.

FOUR TOWN LOOP TEAMS PLAY AT CAMPBELLORD

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 22.—Four teams entered in the Town League put on a good show before a small crowd at Davidson's Arena last night. Although the ice was sticky and rather spoiled any chances for real hockey, there were nevertheless some good efforts by the players.

The games resulted with Fergusons' being defeated by Pethericks by a score of 2-0, and Warkworth defeated Menie 4-1.

LIFFORD LINE

SKATING PARTY IS HELD ON POND

Members Of Lifford A. Y. P. A. Have Enjoyable Evening Ending With Supper

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LIFFORD LINE, Jan. 22.—On Tuesday evening a group of young people connected with the Lifford A.Y.P.A. numbering about twenty congregated at White's mill pond for a jolly evening's skate. The fine moonlight night and perfect ice left nothing further to be desired for those who were enthusiastic for this healthy outdoor sport.

About eleven o'clock the desire of the young people to glide about the glassy ice became appeased and they gratefully accepted the kind invitation to enjoy the freedom of the home of Mr. Ezra Steer and family, which is not far distant from the field of ice. Several cans of appetizing baked beans were opened and heated and these with other tasty edibles provided the fulfillment of every desire of the inner man. The young people, after extending genuine, grateful thanks to the Steer family, departed for home.

All Saints' Seniors Beat Murray Street

In a rough, rugged Church Hockey League game at All Saints' rink last night, All Saints copped an 8-4 verdict over Murray St. Seniors. The players seemed to enjoy the going immensely and fans hated to see it end. All Saints were too good for the short-handed Murray St. gang, Watson got three of the Anglicans' goals, with Seabrooke, Fisher, Frost, McDougall and Mortimer getting the rest. E. Spencely, Johnston, Mann and Pammett scored for the Baptists, some of the latter counters coming through faulty clearing, Watson and Pammett shone for their teams. While the tilt was rough, most of it was in good spirits, though E. Spencely earned a major and Fisher a match penalty. The teams:

Murray St.: Goal, McNabb; defence, E. Spencely, T. Spencely; centre, Johnston; wings, Mann, Pammett; alternate, Foster.

All Saints: Goal, Jay; defence, Seabrooke, Rusaw; centre, McDougall; wings, Watson, Mortimer; alternates, Hope, Charlton, Frost, Fisher.

KING OF WINTER SPORTS
Ski-ing
By Charles Schaer

Method of applying—first in dabs, then smooth out with ball of the hand.

23—APPLICATION OF SKI WAX

The first step is to thoroughly rub down the running surface of the ski with the fine steel wool. This is particularly necessary with new skis to remove the varnish or shellac, applied by the manufacturer. If this is not done the wax will not impregnate the wood. Wax should be applied whenever possible indoors in a moderate temperature and the skis should be thoroughly dry.

BASE WAX —If a solid or semi-solid base wax is to be used, it can be applied first in small dabs over the running surface and well up to the points. It is then spread out and rubbed in with a ski cork or piece of leather until the whole surface is covered with an even layer. It may be rubbed both ways from toe to heel and the reverse and rubbing should continue until no lumps or dabs of wax remain and the surface is smooth.

RUNNING WAX—Determine the snow conditions and select the proper wax as outlined in the last article. Semi-solid wax is applied in dabs and a solid wax is rubbed on over the ski surface. The wax is then thoroughly distributed in an even layer by stroking firmly with ski cork or leather from toe to heel of the ski. Generally speaking, it is not advisable to rub in running wax from toe to heel although with some waxes this is permissible.

If a ski cork or leather is not available the ball of the hand may be used to rub in and to smoothen the wax as shown in the illustration.

Next—Carrying Skis.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(C.J.P.)

TONIGHT AT the Brock, fans will have their first peek at the 1937 Petes in action, the locals tackling Trenton at 8.30 by your ticker. The flashily-garmented Buckland squad expects to knock over the Trenton team but looks for quite a game before the final gong sounds. Having split even in two starts with a win and a loss, the Petes are out to cop their contests from now on and take group honors. Fans will enjoy seeing such former stars as Shrimp McDougall, Red Creighton, Jack Gardiner—who were absent last year—in action once more along with the ex-juniors, Clarke, Coughlin and Burton. Also those standbys, Calladine, Vitarelli, Ellis, Weir, Williamson and Magee. A good gang of puck-chasers.

* * * * * * *

DON'T SELL the locals short because they dropped their first clash to the Fliers. Granted the Airmen are good, they'll lose more than one game yet to the locals this season and they'll like it. Well, maybe they won't like it, but they'll have to take it. The Petes have the makings of a smart squad and they're rapidly rounding into top shape with hard nightly drills. A tough two-hour session the other p.m. didn't bother 'em a bit, and don't forget they played on even terms with the Fliers the last half of that game. Despite the fact that the Aviators must be in the proverbial pink with 14 games under their belts and their daily P.T.

OUR JUNIOR Colts entertain Tweed here Monday night, though it may not be too entertaining for the Tweedsters. Still, we imagine it'll be a rousing junior struggle—especially after seeing Tweed rally so strongly against our gang the last game. The Colts will be back at full strength again after Bun Kingdon being on the injured list first and then Don Crowe getting bodychecked by a flu germ. This game is here Monday and then on Tuesday the Belleville intermediates play the Petes here.

BILL PRINDIBLE prexy of the Junior City Hockey League says he'll stand for no more of the rough stuff that marked the Canucks-Monarchs' tussle the other eve. "Any player guilty of dirty tactics or even a whole club" he stated "will be put right out of the league and that's final." Quite right, too. The loop appreciates some puck equipment donated by Gord Hill. By the way, we noted in the Canucks' lineup—a team name that starts with a "C"—six players' names with a "C": Coursey, Csumrik, Conroy, Connelly, Collins and Campbell.

* * * * * * *

OF THE three Senior City Hockey League games seen by a good crowd last eve at the Brock, only the last one between Bewdley and Mayfairs was close—it ending 2-1 for Mayfairs. This team wore odd stockings for some odd reason, probably to bring 'em luck. Westclox 5-1'd Millbrook in the opener while Lakefield took a 6-1 verdict over Outboard Marines. At present, Westclox and Lakefield look like the class of the circuit, and Mayfairs will be hard to knock off, too. The games last p.m. were plenty lively and not too rough, the final tilt being a dandy for stiff bodychecking on defence. The Clockmakers have a well-balanced club and that Lakefield trio of Chittick, Jewell and Blewett plays together like the Dionne quints.

* * * * * * *

PROTEST COMMITTEE of this circuit—Vince O'Connell, Bill Prindible and Herb Payne—met at the rink last night to deal with the Bewdley protest of Buster Whitton of Lakefield. They discovered that Whitton is an O.H.A. player for Belleville this year, signed and having played for the Quinte crew, and that he had not received a release. So they barred him from the City League and threw out that Lakefield win over Bewdley. The game will be replayed if it has any bearing on the standing later. Incidentally our published standing now will be incorrect—due to this change—and Lakefield will have a win and a loss while Bewdley will have two reverses. Thus Mayfairs hold second place back of Westclox The games listed for next Tuesday will be played Wednesday instead.

SIX TEAMS have entered the local Boy Scout Hockey League and the schedule is in tonight. Teams are St. Andrew's, St. Luke's, St. James, St. Peter's, Sacred Heart and Immaculate Conception. They start it off tomorrow afternoon and play Saturdays at the Sacred Heart rink. Second and third teams have a sudden-death game at the finish to meet the first-place squad in the finals, also a sudden-death tussle. The way new puck loops are forming this year, we must have some 70 teams and maybe 600 puckists performing around town now, even if there isn't much hockey weather.

NO P.C.I. cage contests tonight, but four Ladies Loop basketball games are listed for the Y.W.C.A. starting at 7.45 o'clock. Besides the Church League scraps billed for the Y.M.C.A. tomorrow evening, two Senior City League melees will be run off. St. Paul's play P.C.I. at eight bells and C G E meets Dominion Life at nine. Leaders Corps drawing the bye. The cage contests at the "Y" on Saturday nights are drawing good crowds and promise to be plenty lively all season.

Lakefield And Mayfairs Are Tied For Second Place In Standing

O.H.A. Intermediate group standing to date:

Team	P.	W.	L.
Fliers	2	2	0
Belleville	3	2	1
Petes	2	1	1
Trenton	3	0	3

Trenton and the Petes tangle tonight (Friday) at 8.30 o'clock in the Brock St. rink. This will be the Petes' first home appearance this year, and the only game Trenton will play in Peterborough. The visitors will be battling to break into the win column, while the locals will be in there to repeat their previous victory over this squad. Fans can look for lots of action.

The Petes' lineup will be the same as in their last tilt in Belleville, with the possible exception of one change in the defence. Jim Ellis will probably see action this game The Petes have a good outfit, being in fine condition now, skating fast and showing a neat passing attack. There appears to be no weak spots on the club and the team is likely to go quite a distance this winter.

Now that the din and noise from the bonspiel and tankard has somewhat abated, we are able to resume things along regular lines.

We hope that we are back to normal again—and now for the schedule.

Thursday night's games were played on sticky ice but nevertheless it was far better than postponing them.

Saturday afternoon we expect to have our weekly bonspiel with chickens as first prize . . . so don't be late.

We just about forgot this one . . . Walter J. Oke was the first one on the ice Thursday night—Can you imagine that?

AMERKS FOOL CONNIE SMYTHE TRIM LEAFS 6-3

Cellar Squad Lick In Four In Final Session To Toronto's Two

HAWKS BLANK RANGERS 2-0

Boston Bruins Take Montreal Maroons By 2-1 Score

By A. E. Fulford
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, Jan. 22. — Those Americans are in again. Tucked snugly behind the eight ball by hockeywise experts, the erratic New Yorkers have moved out with another threat to Toronto Maple Leaf playoff hopes. From now on they may as well be counted in as a member of the family with possibilities for a shot at Lord Stanley's Mug.

The latest show of strength from Red Dutton's team came last night when they whipped Leafs 6-3 in New York, scoring four goals in a thrilling six-goal third period. They drove to within three points of Leafs but Conny Smythe's men have the advantage of having played two games less than Amerks.

It was a cellar team night in both sections of the National League. While Amerks were whipping Toronto before only 9,000 New York fans, Black Hawks shut out New York Rangers 2-0 in Chicago before only 5,000. It was the second time recently that Hawks won a home game before a poor turnout of fans. They don't seem to be able to get anywhere when the rink is packed.

Still 9 Points Down.

Hawks' seventh victory of a disastrous season left them still nine points behind Rangers and Boston Bruins who moved into a tie with Rangers for second pace in the American division by trimming Maroons 2-1 in Boston last night before another crowd of 5,000.

Sweeney Schriner and Art Chapman swung back into form in the game against Leafs. The Amerk sharpshooters each got two goals and three assists, bringing Schriner up to second place in the scoring lists, two points behind Larry Aurie of Detroit. Playmaker Chapman tied Harvey Jackson of Toronto for fifth spot.

The break of the game came in the third period with the score tied 2-2. Nick Metz was penalized for tripping, and Chapman and Schriner rapped in goals while he was off. Toronto forgot about defence then, but their wild thrusts got them only one goal, through Gordon Drillon, while Schriner and Carr tallied for the New Yorkers.

Chapman had given Amerks a lead in the first period and when Horner tied the score in the second Allan Shields put the New Yorkers ahead. Sylvanus Apps scored in the second minute of the final period to set the stage for the American rush to win.

Jackson's Goal Not Allowed.

In the second period Harvey Jackson beat Lorne Chabot on a penalty shot, but the officials ruled he had carried the puck out of the circle before shooting, and it was not allowed.

Glenn Brydson, prominent lately in the little scoring Hawks have done, scored the first goal for Hawks against Rangers in the opening period, taking a pass from Pete Palangio to beat Dave Kerr. Rookie Harold Jackson got the second goal, his first in the majors, late in the third period on a double-pass play with Wildor, Larochelle and Johnny Gottselig.

Red Beattie was the hero of the Boston win over Maroons. He banged goals in the first and second periods to give Bruins a lead that a third period rush by Tommy Gorman's team couldn't overcome. Herb Cain spoiled Tiny Thomson's shutout by beating the Boston netminder with a close-in shot in the final period.

Mayfairs Get Nod Over Bewdley Team

Senior City Hockey League standing to date:

Lakefield	3	2	1	0
Mayfairs	3	2	1	0
Millbrook	3	1	1	1
Outboard Marines	3	0	2	1
Bewdley	3	0	3	0

Mayfairs moved into a tie for second place by nosing out a 2-1 nod over Bewdley in a good game before a fair crowd of fans last night at the Brock St. rink. It was a rugged, hard-checking affair with the rival forward lines getting a tough passage when they hit the defence. Play was fast and fairly clean all through, with both sides scoring in the middle chukker and the winners getting one in the third.

Bewdley Starts

Farr put the Bewdley bunch one up in the initial inning with a nice marker, assisted by Jewison and P. Sidey. The second frame was well along when Vitarelli burned one in from the side after taking a pass from Cournyea. Halfway through the third, Gardner tallied the winning goal on a corner passout from Vitarelli as Mayfairs ganged up. Both forward lines for the winners went fair but Vitarelli and Gardner starred defensively. The same applied to Bewdley, the forwards looking good but the honors for stiff bodychecking going to Walker and D. Sidey. Sloan turned in a lovely game in goal, and had more to handle than Currie who also showed up well.

The teams:

Bewdley: Goal, Sloan; defence, Watt and Dusette; centre, Farr; wings, P. Sidey and Jewison; alternates, Walker, D. Sidey, Mercer, Elliott and Morton.

Mayfairs: Goal, Currie; defence, Vitarelli and Gardner; centre, O'Leary; wings, Hill and Driscoll; alternates, Meyette, Cournyea and Mowry.

Referee—Herb Payne.

Louis Does Not Frighten Him

Few boxers have been known to beg for a match with Joe Louis ,the Detroit Brown Bomber, generally it is the other way—too frightened to face the Dark Destroyer—but Bob Pastor is one of the few who begged for a chance to show against Louis. The former New York University footballer claims he will defeat Louis in their bout at Madison Square Garden, New York.

Lakefield Beats Outboard Gang

Flashing a beautiful passing game, the Lakefield entry in the Senior City Hockey League climbed into second place last night at the Brock St. rink before 200 fans by trouncing Outboard Marines, 6 to 1. The Marines couldn't get clicking and found it hard to stop the speedy, combining Northerners. It was fast all through with nice hockey shown, exciting in spots but quite clean. Lakefield had a 2-0 edge in the first and were leading 3-0 going into the third.

Chittick took Blewett's pass early to notch the first goal, and then Chittick went in fast alone before the bell. In second frame Chittick hung up his third straight goal with neat stickwork at close range. The third was lively with the Outboard outfit sending four men up at a time, but Lakefield got one first when Chittick scored on Blewett's forward pass with the rival defence slow in clearing. Jewell shot one from the side in off the goalie on passes from Chittick and Sabatino. Payne flashed the light for the Marines in a scramble for their only marker. Just before the final, Chappell and Deeth combined neatly to tally.

Chittick Shines

Chittick was the big star for the winners, being in on five counters. Jewell and Blewett on the same line also shone, while the alternates looked effective also, and the defence and goalie were strong. None of the Marines starred but Archibald, Payne, Cournyea and Cripps went well at times. The team appeared to have an off night against the strong Lakefield squad and the score mounted fast. The teams:

Lakefield: Goal, Junkin; defence, Sabatino and Morin; centre, Chittick; wings, Blewett and Jewell; alternates, Pearson, Charlton, Lennox, Deeth and Chappell.

Marines: Goal, Beavis; defence, Howe and Lebarr; centre, Payne; wings, Cournyea and Archibald; alternates, Wood, Coursey, Cripps and Whatman.

Referee—Herb Payne.

Millbrook Loses To Westclox 5-1

Westclox took their third straight Senior City Hockey League victory last night at the Brock St. rink by beating Millbrook, 5 to 1. A fair-sized crowd saw a fast, lively contest with the Clockmakers showing an edge all through. They outplayed Millbrook by a good margin in the first two frames, but penalties held them back and play was more even in the third. It was 3-1, 2-0 and 0-0 by periods.

O'Leary opened the scoring for the local squad with Williams getting through next to tally. Field got the third one, aided by Dinesen and Williams. Sloan scored the lone Millbrook marker on a lovely piece of stickhandling. In the second inning, O'Leary broke away as Millbrook ganged up to notch an easy one. Whatley later got in close to end the counting. Both sides tried hard in the third but failed to score. Play threatened to get rough at times with considerable slashing and the odd bit of boarding, the winners earning most of the penalties.

Both Goalies Good

While both goalies looked good, Ferguson in the Millbrook net had a busier evening. Nice checking on defences were shown on either team, but the Westclox passing attack and speed made them hard to stop. Field, Williams, Dinesen and O'Leary proved most effective but the whole classy squad showed up well. Of the losers, Wainman, Sloan and McCarthy seemed best, the others also working hard from start to finish. The teams:

Millbrook: Goal, Ferguson; defence, Hunter and Spencely; centre, McCarthy; wings, Calbwart and Edmunds; alternates, Wainman, Sloan, Skitch and Gray.

Westclox: Goal, Tharby; defence, Whatley and Parsons; centre, Field; wings, Dinesen and Williams; alternates, Slante, Calladine, Padgett and Thirnbeck.

Referee—Herb Payne.

Sport Spice

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (AP) — Brooklyn Dodgers apparently have been by the papers that their ace pitcher, Van Mungo, insists on a pay increase this year. The club announced today the big right-hander's 1937 contract will call for a salary higher than he received a year ago.

Whether the terms have been boosted to meet the $1,500 or $2,500 increase Mungo has been reported as seeking is not known. The Dodgers said only that "many players received increases" in the club's mailed contracts that Mungo was one of them.

The temperamental fireballer was supposed to have received $12,500 in 1936. The rumors are he wants at least $14,000, maybe $15,000.

Contracts for the veteran Heinie Manush and the 1936 American Association slugger, Jack Wisnett, already are in the Daffy Dodgers' office safe.

If you don't think trader Hornsby came out on top again in that three-for-three deal with the Indians, the record books should change your mind. And if they don't, listen to Hornsby's latest: "The Browns won't surprise me if they finish in the first division."

Hornsby gets Joe Vosmik, who has shown plenty of class in his seven years in the big time. And the records show he has a poor season every third year, which may explain that 1936 performance. Also, he was head and shoulders over Jule Solters in fielding. In Billy Knickerbocker, Hornsby gets a 25-year-old shortstop, compared to the aging Lyn Lary at 31. And if the Rajah can't take Billy in hand and improve his defensive work, then he's been slipping lately.

MOUNT PLEASANT

HUSTLERS HEADED BY ALBERT KEMPT

Mount Pleasant Organization Elects Officers—W.A. Has Good Meeting

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MOUNT PLEASANT, Jan. 22.—The Hustlers' class met in the W.I. hall on Friday evening, with a large attendance present.

A very interesting paper was given by the president, Bert Visee. The minutes of the last annual meeting in 1935 were adopted as read.

The treasurer, Annie Graham, reported $17 on hand. Archie and Jim Stewart were appointed as auditors for 1936. It was moved by Harry Tully and Jim Stewart that the class carry on as an organized Bible class and not join the Y.P.U. and the secretary was requested to write and inform the Presbytery of the same.

Rev. Mr. Trumpour presided for the election of officers for 1937, which resulted as follows: President, Albert Kempt; vice-pres. Harry Tully; secretary, Margaret Best; treasurer, Perla Handley; teacher, Mrs. G. Shield; organist, Annie Graham; convenor of devotional committee June Shield; convenor of program committee Bert Visee; convenor of social committee, Margaret Lawson; convenor of membership committee, Lois Windrem. The auditors for 1937 are Annie Graham and Lois Windrem.

After the close of the meeting several games of crokinole were enjoyed.

W.A. Meeting

The first meeting of the year of the W.A. of the United Church was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Thos. Graham. The devotional period was taken by Mrs. H. Gardiner. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Rutherford.

It was moved in the meeting that a "travelling apron" be started as a means of raising funds. The program was in charge of Mrs. Rutherford and Mrs. Best and was as follows:

Mrs. Rutherford, "How to make your pastor succeed"; Mrs. Lowe, "Sunday Morning"; Miss D. Morden, "New Year's Thoughts"; Mrs. B. Morden, "The Perfect Husband"; Mrs. C. Best, "Her Darling." Mrs. Miller spoke a few words to the members.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. H. Lowes with Mrs. Gardiner and Mrs. B. Morden as program committee. The hostess served a dainty lunch at the close assisted in serving by Mrs. Lowes and Mrs. Best.

FIRST BASKETBALL TO BE RE-ENACTED

No Running, Striking With Fist, Holding, Tripping, Pushing Or Shouldering Allowed

By Whitney Martin
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

LAWRENCE, Kas., Jan. 22.—The young instructor, a soccer ball in hand, addressed the group of lightly-clad youngsters whose gaze wandered questioningly toward two peach baskets, one nailed to the balcony railing at each end of the gymnasium.

"The idea," he explained, "is for one side to get the ball in a basket without running with the ball, striking it with the fist, or holding, tripping, pushing or shouldering an opponent. Let's see, there are 18 here. That will make nine on a side."

That scene, enacted at the Springfield, Mass., Y.M.C.A. College back in 1891, marked the origin of basketball. The originator, Dr. James A. Naismith of the University of Kansas physical education department, expressed keen interest today in plans for the re-enactment in Madison Square Garden, New York, Jan. 27 of that first game. The erect 75-year-old educator was born in Renfrew, Ont., and is a graduate of McGill University, Montreal.

"I recall very clearly the boys' reaction when they entered the gymnasium that day and saw the baskets," chuckled Dr. Naismith. "They said: 'Oh, oh, just another game,' but, full of vigor and vitality, they welcomed any change from the 1-2-3-4 routine of dumbells and Indian clubs.

"Yes, that first game was a pretty wild affair, but the boys soon caught on."

Women Soon Took It Up

"The gymnasium was next to the street," he recalled. "The laughter and shouting lured passersby, and among them was a number of teachers from a nearby public school. Soon they asked if they couldn't organize a team. Consequently women were playing the game within a month after our first efforts."

The original 13 rules drawn up by Dr. Naismith were type-written and posted on the gymnasium door. Twelve still are in effect. No mention was made of the number of players.

Oddly enough, Dr. Naismith never played the game, except a few times on faculty teams.

"I had some good workouts as an official, though," he said. "Play was more spontaneous then, the primary purpose of all players being to get the ball to the forwards so they could score."

Duncan Patton of Toronto, retired Y.M.C.A. secretary, and Eugene Libby of Redlands, Calif., real estate operator, captained the two original teams. They correspond frequently with Dr. Naismith.

LAKEFIELD

PLAY TO BE GIVEN BY YOUNG PEOPLE

United Church Y. P. S. Entertained By Slides—Women's Association Meets

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 22.—The meeting of the Young People's Society of Lakefield United Church, held on Monday evening was arranged by Miss Irene Darling, the society's missionary convenor. After an hour of recreation led by Mr. Kelly, and the usual business, a set of slides was presented by Rev. Mr. Kelly and Robt. Spence. The slides, entitled, "The King of Kings" depicted some of the outstanding events in the life of Christ, such as the last supper, the crucifixion and the resurrection.

Plans are under way for a play to be given by the society toward the end of the winter. The cast has been chosen and rehearsals will commence very soon. The play will be directed by Rev. George Kelly, dramatic convenor.

United W. A. Meets.

The Women's Association of Lakefield United Church held their first meeting of the year in the Sunday School on Tuesday afternoon, January 19. Miss N. Webster, one of the joint-presidents, presided. The meeting was in the nature of a business session and was very well attended. The business of the year was arranged for. It was decided that the society would be divided into four groups, as in previous years and that each group should have a convenor. Arrangements were made for an executive meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Kelly on Friday afternoon for the purpose of dividing the society into groups. At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served.

BONARLAW

On Thursday evening last a successful euchre party was held by St. Mark's Men's Club in the Sunday school rooms. Eleven tables were played. Miss Phyllis Barlow won the ladies' prize and Mr. Ralph Fleming the gentlemen's. The door prize went to Mrs. Wallace McInroy. A bountiful lunch of sandwiches, coffee and cake completed a very enjoyable evening. The committee are planning to hold two more social evenings before Ash Wednesday.

Miss Lulu Brown, R.N., returned from Montreal Saturday last, where she has been employed as special nurse to Rev. W. H. Towle.

Members of the Masonic Order who attended the installation ceremony and banquet afterwards at the Royal Hotel, Marmora, on Monday of this week were Rev. Canon W. G. Swayne and Messrs. S. S. McComb, Geo. E. Thompson, Thos. H. Prest, W. J. Barlow, Jno. A. Bell and J. P. Baker.

On Wednesday night of last week in addition to breaking into L. C. Bateman's store at Springbrook, as reported thieves also looted the C. N.R. tool house nearby, taking a quantity of gasoline, engine oil, a can and a funnel.

Acquaintances of the late Rev. W. H. Towle, D.D., were very sorry to hear of his death recently at Montreal. Mr. Towle was rector of St. Mark's church, Bonarlaw, from April, 1921 to the spring of 1924.

PROVINCIALS LEAVE GUELPH

GUELPH, Ont., Jan. 22 (CP).—A squad of 10 Provincial Police officers, here since rioting broke out at the Ontario Reformatory Sunday left for their various posts throughout the province today as normal conditions were gradually restored at the institution. The police have been held here in case of emergency. For two or three days after the rioting they searched the district for escaped prisoners. Work was pressed today on rehabilitation of the riot-torn building. There was every indication that order would be restored by the end of the week.

JAPANESE LEADER THREATENS SUICIDE

Ready To Die He Says If Charge Military Interfering In Government Is Disproved

TOKYO, Jan. 22.—(A.P.).—Kunimatsu Hamada, leader of the Seiyukai, second largest party in the Japanese Parliament, offered tonight to kill himself if his accusations that military leaders are interfering with the government were disproved.

His threat to commit hari-kiri climaxed an angry discussion with Count Juichi Terauchi, Minister of War, over what Hamada described as the army's desire to dictate to the political administration.

The party leader insisted on examination of the stenographic transcript of his remarks after Count Terauchi charged him with "insulting the army." Hamada warned the War Minister if the accusation could not be confirmed, he (Terauchi) "must assume full responsibility."

The heated session adjourned shortly afterward and Premier Koki Hirota, assailed by Opposition leaders controlling a majority of the membership, went to the palace to report to Emperor Hirohito.

Diet Suspended 2 Days.

On the Premier's request, the Emperor issued an Imperial degree, suspending Diet sessions for two days.

Hamada charged the government, under the influence of a military clique, had bribed the Diet to obtain passage of a bill creating new army divisions. Premier Hirota denied the allegation.

Count Terauchi agreed with Hirota, expresing resentment at Hamada's statements with the counter-assertion the party leader has falsified the issues.

Hamada replied with his offer, angrily declaring he was backed by 90,000,000 Japanese who objected to increased military expenditures and asserting he had given Count Terauchi no occasion to criticize his statements.

The members earlied had booed ranking Cabinet members when they rose to defend their policies.

HITLER DRAFTING FOUR-YEAR SCHEME

Aims To Reshape Germany Into Fully Federalized State—Goering Leader

BERLIN, Jan. 22—(A.P.). — The forthcoming session of the Reichstag has been called, it was learned to-day, to hear two cabinet decrees initiating the reshaping of Germany into a fully federalized state.

A high official of the Nazi party said the Reichstag would be used as a platform from which to announce the decrees to be passed by the Cabinet shortly before the session. The laws, he said, were merely preliminary to a comprehensive rearrangement of Germany which will be announced four years hence.

At that time—coinciding with the end of the four year plan to make Germany economically self-sufficient—the old state lines will disappear completely and the country will be re-organized by "gaus" or districts based on similarity of customs, dialect and origin.

Goering to Take Over.

After the comprehensive regrouping of Germany, the Nazi spokesman said, Air Minister Hermann Goering, Hitler's chief aide, will automatically succeed him as Reichs-Chancelor Minister-President.

(Reports have been current for some months Hitler was planning to turn over the political direction of Germany to Goering, retaining only his position as Fuehrer or "Leader" of the German people.)

The plan originally was to have been put into effect on January 30—the date of the Reichstag session—but the four year plan which Hitler deems of transcendant importance, caused it to be postponed.

One of the decrees to be announced to the Reichstag will make every government official a Federal employee, even though his functions are limited to one of the subordinate states.

With 1,500 troops, General De Slovitsky held off Bolshevists in the Crimea while the Dowager Empress Dagmar, Alexandra's sister, was placed aboard a British ship.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND HOKEY POKEY.

The Fox, the Wolf and the Bob Cat, sneaking through the woods, saw Uncle Wiggily bending low as if looking for something on the ground.

"There he is" whispered the Bob Cat. "He's lost the twinkle off the end of his pink nose! It's our chance to catch him!"

"What makes you think Uncle Wiggily has lost the pink twinkle from his nose?" asked the Wolf.

"He may have lost his watch," suggested the Fox.

"Have it any way you like," mewed Bob Cat. "Anyhow Uncle Wiggily is stooping over as if he had lost something. As he is, and has his back turned, he can't see us, so we can sneak up on him and catch him."

"Come on!" barked the Fox. "Quick! Before he straightens up!"

Just as the Bad Chaps were going to make a rush for him, Uncle Wiggily straightened up. As he did so the Bob Cat cried:

"Stop! We'd better not rush him!"

"Why not?" asked the Fox.

"Is he a friend of yours?" asked the Wolf.

"No," mewed the Bob Cat. "But I just saw Uncle Wiggily pick up a big, round, black stone. He's going to throw it at us and he may hit one of us or all of us. We better not try to get him now."

The other two Bad Chaps saw that Mr. Longears had in one paw what looked like a large black stone.

Doesn't Want to Get Hit.

"I don't want him to hit me!" growled the Wolf.

"Nor I," barked the Fox. "Let's run away."

"Run fast!" mewed the Bob Cat.

But you know and I know that what Uncle Wiggily had picked up wasn't a stone. Those of you who didn't read last night's story need to be told what the rabbit gentleman had was a cold turtle, the black, smooth shell of which looked like a stone.

Having picked up the turtle and feeling somewhat disappointed because it wasn't a smooth stone that could be used to hold open the kitchen door so Bunty wouldn't bump her nose, Uncle Wiggily said:

"What did you tell me your name was?"

"Pokey," answered the turtle, who was a young one, like a small boy. "My other name is Hokey," he went on.

"Oh, so you're Hokey Pokey, are you?" asked the rabbit.

"Yes, if you please," said the turtle. "Oh, but Uncle Wiggily, I'm so cold. I didn't know it could be so cold."

"Why are you out in such cold weather?" asked Mr. Longears. "Why aren't you sound asleep as you should be, until Spring comes? You should be in the warm, muddy hole of your den. Even if you are half frozen there you would take no harm. But out in the open, as you are, is bad for turtles in Winter."

Didn't Mind His Father.

"I know it is," said Hokey Pokey. "And I'm very sorry I didn't mind my father and stay in our warm hole. I crawled out to see what it was like in winter. But now I'd like to crawl back again, only I don't know my way and I'm so cold! Oh, so cold!"

"Never mind," said Uncle Wiggily kindly. "I'll take you to my warm bungalow for the Winter. In the Spring I'll take you back to your home. And, I just happened to think, you can hold the kitchen door open as you might if you were a stone. A turtle will make a fine door stop as you won't be crawling away during the Winter."

So the rabbit took hom the cold turtle, who was soon warm and he held the door open so Bunty didn't bump her nose any more. So it all happened for the best. And if the umbrella will turn upside down to make a swimming pool for the rubber boots, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's ice boat.

MILLBROOK

WILL SEND BALE TO ALBERTA GIRL

St. Thomas W.A., Millbrook, Hears Encouraging Reports At Initial Meeting

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Jan. 22. — A goodly number of members of the Women's Association of St. Thomas Anglican Church met at the home of their president, Mrs. C. M. Westmacott, King street west, Monday evening.

Mrs. C. M. Westmacott presided. The meeting was featured by the annual reports, which were splendidly prepared and proved most encouraging. Statements were given by the secretary, Miss R. MacNamara; treasurer, Mrs. J. E. Allen; Dorcas secretary, Mrs. H. J. Russell; Little Helpers' secretary, Mrs. J. W. Hinton; Superintendent of the Junior W.A., Miss Margaret Simpson; and the Leaflet secretary, Miss Bella McCarry.

A summary of the year's activities was given by the president, Mrs. Westmacott, who also voiced an address of appreciation for the loyalty and support of officers and members. Special tribute was paid Miss Bella McCarry for her faithful services in giving prompt delivery of the leaflets, and to Mrs. W. Hilton, who, assisted by her husband, sold forty church calendars. Through her efforts the society was the recipient of an added $4, each calendar sold netting the W.A. the sum of 10 cents.

This year's Bale

It was announced that the bale to be prepared this year will consist of a complete outfit for an Indian girl who is a member of the Blackfoot Indian School, Alberta. The annual presentation of slides on the study book will be given during the Lenten season, and Archdeacon Simpson will give the accompanying address entitled "Consider Africa."

The W.A. will again unite with the Missionary Societies of Grace Presbyterian Church and St. Andrew's United Church in observance of the annual prayer service being held in Grace Church on the Women's World Day of Prayer, Friday, February 12.

During the past Christmas season needy families in the local parish were cared for in preference to the usual distribution of Christmas cheer boxes to foreign fields.

To Sell Home Baking

In compliance with a suggestion from the chair, it was decided that one of the usual teas be featured also by a sale of home baking. Mite box funds will be given toward the Missionary Appropriation Fund and it was agreed to sponsor a number of quilting bees during the coming season. Mrs. J. E. Allen will visit the sick and shut-in members during the coming month.

The Program

A splendid summary of the study book, "Consider Africa," was given by Miss Rose MacNamara, who gave a description of the African laborer, the effect of mine and home life on the natives. "A missionary's service among the Eskimo," was the theme of an address by Mrs. C. Westmacott, taken from the "Living Message."

Following the meeting a pleasant social hour was enjoyed, during which time sandwiches and coffee were served by the hostess, Mrs. H. Russell.

UNITED COUNTIES HOPE TO CUT RATE IN 1937 TWO MILLS

Expenditure Of $343,100 Is Estimated By E. L. MacNachtan, Clerk And Treasurer

INCREASE ROAD GRANT

(By A Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Jan. 22.—Reduction of two mills in the 1937 tax rate of Northumberland and Durham, as compared with last year's levy, was held forth as a possible accomplishment of the counties council by E. L. MacNachtan, clerk and treasurer, in a provincial budget outlined to the council Thursday afternoon. He estimated that expenditures might be restricted to $343,100 as against $413,000 in 1936. and intimated that a 9.5 mill rate might suffice for the counties needs.

The suggested budget would provide for an appropriation of $100,000 to be spent on county roads, an increase of $60,000 over last year's, but amounting to only $50,000 charged against the counties by reason of the governments 50 per cent contribution.

The summarized estimates for the new council to consider before the rate is determined next June were: general purposes, $201,000; county roads, $50,000; debenture payments, $87,629 and schools $4,500, total of $343,100.

Major MacNachtan also included in his proposed and prospective budget the expenditures grouped together under the heading of general purposes as follows:

Administration of Justice, $17,000; indigent patients, $17,000; Mothers' Allowances, (Jan., Feb, March), $6,500; Old Age Pensions, (Jan., Feb., March), $6,000; Registry offices, $2,500; printing, postage, $2,000; counties' home, $9,000; counties' jail, $6,500; Children's Aid, $7,000; municipal salaries, $3,500; municipal expenditures, $7,800; rents, $2,900; office upkeep, $500; anti-corn borer, $500; highschools etc., $50,000; public and separate schools, $300; grants, $6,500; instalment of highway debt, $27,000; interest on highway debt, $2,600; sundries (to apply on deficit), $20,000; total, $201,000.

Plowmen's Request

A deputation from the Cavan and South Monaghan Plowmen's Association asked the council for a grant of $100 to assist in financing their annual plowing match, the only one held in Durham county. The delegates were L. H. Winslow, Vernon R. Hunter, and E. A. Summers, county representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Winslow, a past president of the Provincial Plowmen's Association, said that it was rather difficult to sustain a local plowing match because it had no source of revenue. Grants and contributions enabled the directors to carry on from year to year. On the other hand plowing was essential to farming, and an effort should be made to encourage men to take a deeper interest in this work. The association provided classes for young men, and on its record, especially as the only plowmen's association in Durham, it deserved the recognition and support of the counties council.

The petition was referred to the finance committee, on Reeve Stinson's motion, seconded by Reeve W. A. Wood.

"T.B." Testing

Mr. Summers endorsed Mr. Winslow's appeal, and also referred to the "T.B." cattle testing which is in progress. There are five veterinary doctors now engaged in Durham, two in Hope township, two in Clarke and one in Darlington. The number of cattle rejected and eliminated in the northern townships was 4½ per cent of those tested, and at present in the southern part of Durham the number of reactors exceeds 6 per cent and may be 10 per cent when all the herds are tested.

"In the long run you will all be glad we got this work started," Mr. Summers said. "We expect that the testing will be finished by the middle of March. Victoria and Peterborough have both signed up 80 per cent, and it is likely that the veterinaries will be started there next summer."

HASTINGS

GOOD MEETINGS BY YOUNG PEOPLE

Hastings Societies Have Excellent Programs At Their Regular Sessions

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Jan. 22. — The regular meeting of Trinity United Young People's Society was held on Monday evening with an attendance of thirty members. The meeting was in charge of the Christian Citizenship convenor, Miss Rhea Preston, and opened with the worship period under the direction of Miss K. German. Miss German gave a splendid talk bearing on the theme of the Scripture reading, after which Miss Merle Seabrooke gave a reading on the same theme. The program included the following numbers:

Reading, "He Remembered," by Miss Helen Collins; solo by two little girls, Misses Clarine and Margaret Scriver, accompanied by their mother, Mrs. J. B. Scriver; the topic on Edward VIII, by Mrs. Clifford Baker; a duet, "Whispering Hope," by Mrs. J. M. Baker and Mrs. C. Baker, accompanied by Miss C. Doxsee. A hymn and the Mizpah closed the meeting and a geography match between the two sides was greatly enjoyed. Robert Collins and Mrs. F. W. Newell were winners.

St. Andrew's Y.P.S.

St. Andrew's Y.P.S. meeting was held on the same evening, when twenty-eight young people were present. The chief business for the evening was discussing the next Monday's meeting, when the local society will have as their guests the Young People of Havelock Presbyterian Church. The young people are very grateful to all who assisted in making their home cooking sale on Saturday a success. Messrs. Everett Whitred and Francis Kennedy as literary convenors were responsible for the meeting. The topic was given by Roy Johnson, a reading by Miss Edna Graham, an instrumental by Mrs. Roy Johnson, and a reading by Francis Kennedy.

BAILIEBORO

FARMERS ARE BUSY WITH AXE AND SAW

Much Wood Is Being Cut In Bailieboro Area—Supply Getting Scarce

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BAILIEBORO, Jan. 22.—There has been a great quantity of wood cut on farms in the district during the past month. Both wood for fuel as well as logs for lumber have been cut down and should snow come soon there will be a busy season of hauling the wood from the woods of the district.

Many who have had wood to haul a distance have hired trucks to bring their supply out as they fear the season for hauling on sleighs will be brief.

Some residents of the district have purchased their wood supply from Apsley and have had it trucked all the way here as reasonably as they could buy local wood.

The wood supply is getting very scarce in this district and the majority of farmers are reluctant about selling what they have left.

SOCIAL CREDITERS' DEBT-FREE MONEY MOVE IS DEFEATED

cies its prominent members had advocated when in opposition.

Two Liberals and the entire Co-operative Commonwealth Federation group rallied to the support of the Blackmore resolution. But they made it clear they were not believers in Social Credit. The Liberals were T. J. O'Neill of Kamloops, and W. A. Tucker of Rosthern. M. J. Coldwell of Rosetown-Biggar announced the C.C.F. group would line up with the Social Crediters.

Both Mr. O'Neill and Mr. Tucker claimed the Blackmore resolution was in line with true Liberal principles while Mr. Coldwell believed it would involve inflation, but that a measure of inflation was desirable.

Purchasing power could not be distinguished from goods and services, argued Labor Minister Rogers. It was possible for a Government to create conditions within which people could create more purchasing power for themselves by increasing production of goods and services, but it was beyond the power of Government to create purchasing power itself.

Issuance of new or additional money could result only in a rise in the price level which would counter-balance any advantage derived. For this reason he believed the proposal would contribute nothing to the economic improvement of the Canadian people.

Easy Money Plan Best.

Although the Dominion Government is convinced "an easy money policy" is best for Canada, it is opposed to inflation as certain to bring ruin and misery, Mr. Dunning made clear.

"From the domestic point of view parliament has entrusted to the Bank of Canada the function of regulating currency and credit in the public interest," said Mr. Dunning. "Obviously information regarding the day-to-day discharge of this function cannot be given, but results show clearly the broad line of policy which has been followed by the bank.

"I think it can be said with safety that today lower interest rates for credit-worthy borrowers, individual, corporate, municipal, provincial and Dominion, prevail in Canada than ever before in Canada's history.

"And I submit that an easy money policy is the best policy for Canada at the present time, however unpopular it may be to those who have money to lend.

"But our testing-time will come whenever, by means of a too high price level, inducing wild speculation in commodities, stocks, etc., it becomes desirable in the public interest for the Bank of Canada to exercise the credit control powers conferred upon it by parliament to check this tendency. That I say will be the testing time."

Vindication of Tory Policy

Conservative leader Bennett said Mr. Dunning's speech was a vindication of the policy pursued by the former Conservative regime. He could not help sympathizing, however, with Liberal members like Mr. Tucker and Mr. O'Neill who still held to the doctrines the Liberal party preached in opposition.

It did not come with good grace from Mr. Dunning to make the speech he did when a few years ago Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of National Defence, with the approval of and cheers from Prime Minister Mackenzie King, advocated inflation, just as proposed in the Social Credit resolution before the House.

It was no wonder, he said, that some Liberal members went into the constituencies during the last election with the words of their leaders in their ears, and promised things which could not now be done.

It was true, said Mr. Bennett, that under the stress of a great emergency and against great opposition, the former government had tried inflation to the extent of $35,000,000. That practice had not been continued because the Bank of Canada was set up to take care of future situations.

One thing should be remembered, however, and it was that in the depth of depression no bank in Canada had closed its doors and no depositor wrote a cheque, when he had funds in the bank, which was not honored.

The whole financial policy of the present Government was that of its predecessors and not the policy of the Liberal Party when in opposition, Mr. Bennett declared.

He was against the resolution, the former Prime Minister said, because it meant inflation, and inflation always brought the same result. There was no end to it until it had brought complete collapse.

Points to Germany.

He recalled that during the height of German inflation one United States cent would buy enough marks to pay off the entire pre-war debt of the German Empire.

Closing the debate Mr. Blackmore declared that all those who opposed the resolution apparently had misunderstood it. They had talked about uncontrolled inflation and "we don't advocate inflation at all." The word inflation had been applied to all money not issued by banks.

"It is too bad intelligent minds in this House could not have concentrated on realities instead of foolish distortions," Mr. Blackmore observed.

"And why did you drag in Alberta?" the Social Credit Leader asked. "We have not mentioned Alberta and we have not mentioned Aberhart."

Application of Social Credit in Alberta had been cramped and handicapped by many influences, Mr. Blackmore declared. "Talk about the right to govern, about financial influence over Government! It's terrible!" he declared.

Since there was no active proof that issue of national money would cause inflation and because there was a great obvious need for more purchasing power, he had no hesitation, Mr. Blackmore said, in asking members of the House to support the resolution.

The motion was declared lost without division.

BAILIEBORO

ICE SUPPLY IS SOURCE OF WORRY

Mild Weather Has Left Rice Lake Covered With Poor Stuff

BAILIEBORO, Jan. 22.—Residents of the community are beginning to be concerned about their supply of ice for 1937. The recent mild weather has practically ruined what ice that remains on Rice Lake and although the head of the Lake remains covered with a winter ice surface it is of poor quality. There is from two to three inches of good quality blue ice and six to seven inches of snow ice in places where the earlier frosts made ice in November and December. The ice varies out from the sheltered places and in places is very thin.

The north shore is mostly all open and it would be practically impossible to hawl the ice off until colder weather arrives to seal it securely to the shore line.

Farmers and citizens fear that the ice will not be of good quality this season and if the present colder weather continues many will take advantage of it and put away their ice supply within the next couple of weeks.

BANQUET IS HELD BY YOUNG PEOPLE

Enjoyable Event Is Staged By Stewart Hall Y.P.S.

STEWART HALL, Jan. 22.—The annual Y.P.S. banquet which was held on Thursday evening last, was a marked success. A large number from the community enjoyed the splendid supper served. The tables were decorated with red streamers and red candles in silver holders. Following the supper hour W. Thorne proposed a toast to the King, which was responded to with God Save the King. Livingstone Stewart proposed the toast to the "Country," which was responded to by "O Canada."

Mr. Rowland led in community singing, with Mrs. Rowland at the piano.

Rowland and responded to by Rev. Tyler.

EGANVILLE MAN FATALLY SHOT, VILLAGE STORE

Claims Brother-In-Law Fired Unexpectedly As They Stood In Building

DOUBLE WEDDING IN '36

Arrest Is Made — Police Say Bullets Fired At Three Others

PEMBROKE, Ont., Jan. 23 (C.P.).—George Tracey, 22, of Eganville, Ont., died in hospital here to-day as a result of wounds received when shot in the abdomen in the general store of J. P. Tracey at Eganville last night, allegedly by John Millar, his brother-in-law, 21.

Eganville is 95 miles west of Ottawa.

Before he died, police said Tracey made a statement charging his brother-in-law, John Millar, shot him with a shotgun. Both men were residents of Eganville, near here.

After he finished making the statement, Tracey took a turn for the worse and he was rushed to the operating room. For an hour doctors worked over the wounded man, but he died a few hours later.

Gregory Tracey and John Millar were among the principals in a double wedding ceremony about a year ago. Millar was married to Tracey's sister Anna. Tracey married the former Miss Frances Vitsiskie, who survives, as well as a small daughter.

Millar was arrested.

Statement To Police

Tracey, Constable D. J. Carnegie said, gave him a statement at the hospital, saying: "Millar and I had gone over to the store to get the keys of the Tracey car, to take his wife to her father's home. When we entered the store, Millar lit the lights and as I walked to the back of the store he picked up a shotgun and walked over to me. I never for a moment imagined that he meant to shoot me and I just stood there. Suddenly the gun was fired and as I dropped to the floor he stepped over and said 'You're done.'

"What caused him to do it I cannot say. I have no idea as to what made him do that."

Millar, meanwhile, was under arrest at Renfrew where he was taken from Eganville. He was charged with wounding. Police said he admitted shooting his brother-in-law in J. P. Tracey's general store at Eganville.

They claimed he also fired at his father-in-law, Michael Tracey, his sister-in-law, Tracey, and another brother-in-law, John Tracey.

Police seized Millar as he lay in bed at his father's home at Eganville.

They said Tracey was found lying on the floor of the store after pedestrians, alarmed at the sound of firing, entered the building.

FASCIST VICTORY DUCE, JESUIT GAIN

Ludendorff Angers Nazi By Declaring Mussolini Wants Spain As Province

BERLIN, Jan. 23—(A.P.)—Gen. Erich Von Ludendorff, who has turned to Neopaganism, aroused the ire of Nazi authorities to-day by a magazine article referring to German "volunteers" in Spain—with the quotation marks.

The article, in "Am Heiligen Quell Deutscher Kraft," also charged "the Jesuits and Mussolini" would profit most by Fascist victory in the Spanish war.

Copies of the magazine were summarily confiscated.

Said General Von Ludendorff: "Franco (Insurgent Dictator-Designate) must repay the assistance given him by foreign powers somehow. There is little cash at his disposal unless the Jesuits and Il Duce advance it to him in order to be repaid a thousandfold.

"Far more important, however, for the Jesuits will be the recovery of their immense real estate, which their faithful believers willed them in order to secure for themselves a place in heaven.

"Mussolini does not want the Balearic Islands and he does not want Spanish Morocco.

"What he wants is a Fascist Spain, which will follow him willingly and which will be a province of the Roman Empire.

Henry Challenges Liberals To Go To Country

Resign, Let Province Speak Up At The Polls On Power Cancellation

Claims Both Hepburn And Roebuck Hitched To Power Barons Now

"GOOD BUSINESS"

Fears Trent Might Fail As Electricity Source—Present Margin Too Small

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—(CP)—Ontario Liberal government today faced a challenge from George S. Henry, Conservative House leader, it resign and appeal to the people on its power contract nullification policy.

Mr. Henry, who in 1930 succeeded Premier Howard Ferguson whose government in 1926 had initiated contracts for power with four Quebec companies, declared the contracts were justified by an imminent power shortage. None forsaw, he said, an industrial depression which would seriously affect power consumption.

Legislature in 1935 passed a bill authorizing the contracts be declared null. The act has been declared ultra vires of the Legislature. Attorney-General Arthur Roebuck had brought in a bill to makeof no effect brought in a bill to make of no effect strength of the disputed contracts. Mr. Henry spoke in the Legislature yesterday on second reading of the bill.

"This legislation should not go on the statute books till the people speak," he said. "The government should withdraw this bill and go to the country on what they call a major issue."

Mr. Henry, first opposition speaker of the session that opened Tuesday, attacked the Hydro bill in a two-hour speech. He didn't get down to discussion of Hydro until a storm, caused by an accusation in connection with the Hastings East by-election, December 9, had subsided.

Regret at the absence of Premier Mitchell Hepburn, now on a health trip to Arizona, came first in Mr. Henry's speech. Then he sounded a note of triumph over the Hastings East Conservative victory.

The East Hastings Vote.

"No doubt if the Prime Minister hadn't attempted to purchase the riding with the funds of this Province, the majority would have been treble what it was," he said.

Acting Premier Harry Nixon objected to the charge. Speaker Norman Hipel ruled the remark must be withdrawn.

"I bow to your ruling but the people know the facts are true," said Mr. Henry.

Niagara Power System now operates on a 10-per cent reserve margin, said Mr. Henry. This was too low. The people are more anxious for an assurance against a power shortage than for lower rates, he contended.

Attorney-General Roebuck was challenged by Mr. Henry to prosecute those who negotiated the Quebec power contracts.

"He refers to them as being engaged in something sinister, dishonest and iniquitous," he said.

There could be no question of the power of the Legislature to do what the government was asking it to do said Mr. Henry. The question was its wisdom.

The Attorney-General erred in citing action of Sir James Whitney, ALBANY, N.Y., Jan. 23.—(CP).—The Very Rev. Edward R. Welles, Dean of All Saints' Cathedral, turned prophet temporarily during a talk yesterday before a meeting of parish women.

Explaining that his imagination and newspaper gleanings on the trend of world events provided the basis for his predictions), Dean Welles "saw" among other things:

Canada electing to become part of the United States in 1952 or 1953. Spain going Fascist in 1937. Germany and Japan winning a war against Russia and China in 1940, Hitler dying the following year, 'cause unknown," another depression in 1942, a second "World War" between 1946 and 1949, Germany, under Emperor Hermann Goering, conquering the Italian Empire in 1952.

TRIO FACES DEATH ON EDGE OF CLIFF OVER TWO HOURS

Slip While Getting View Of Montreal—Bushes Stop Drop Of 200 Feet

FIREMEN SAVE THEM

MONTREAL, Jan. 23 (CP).—More concerned over their personal belongings than their safety, three Montreal youths talked lightly today of how they were rescued by firemen from Mount Royal after clinging for more than two hours to small trees at the crest of the 200-foot cliff.

"I was wondering if I had broken my pipe," said 20-year-old James Brady, whose fall on the ice-covered slopes of the mountain overlooking this city carried him within a few inches of death on jagged rocks at the base of the cliff.

"Perhaps you were wondering who would break the news to the girl friend," suggested Harry Warren, 21, who with George Dean, 20, unintentionally followed his companion to the edge of the cliff while attempting to bring him aid, and like him clung to a slender tree until rescued.

Showing Him The City.

Brady and Dean were showing Warren, recently returned from a Northern Ontario lumber camp, the view of the city below.

Brady, walking along a narrow path, slipped and slid 400 feet over the icy surface to the edge of the cliff. He managed to grab a tree, but only after his body had swung out into air.

"I went down alone," he said, "and Harry went to look for help. The tree I was hanging to was about six inches thick. I used both hands to hang on and I didn't have any foothold. It was almost a straight drop. I went over first and grabbed the tree as I went by. I was hanging over for a good few minutes before being able to work my way to the edge."

Warren and Dean, attempting to reach him, also fell and slid to within a few feet of the cliff, where they, too, "grabbed trees."

Two hours later a passing policeman and W. B. Robinson noticed their plight and summoned firemen, who after two hours manoeuvring on the ice-covered surface reached them with ropes and dragged them to safety.

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—(CP)—Dr. B. T. McGhie, Ontario Deputy Health Minister, said today no action was required by his department in the case of George Woodcock, cancer sufferer, who again yesterday refused to enter a Belleville hospital.

Woodcock has had difficulty locating a home in Eastern Ontario. "Any action now is up to the local health officer," said Dr. McGhie.

Skinned Shin Kills Daylight Time Idea

Manilla, P.I., Jan. 23 (AP)

IT took some skin off a Presidential shin to end daylight-saving time in the Philippines — two weeks ahead of time. Yesterday President Manuel Quezon told why. Under daylight saving, the day begins while it is still dark.

Habitually an early riser, he was groping about Malacanan Palace last Saturday morning for the light switch when he stumbled over something. Without waiting to check up on his injuries, he telephoned his secretary to cancel the executive order which instituted daylight time last November.

SURVIVING QUAD HAS CHANCE OF LIFE

Kept In Incubator--Ambulance Driver Hurt In Race To Hospital, Very Low

MONTREAL, Jan. 23 (C.P.). — Marie Rita, last of the Rondeau tots who survived as Canada's second set of living quadruplets little more than 24 hours, still was given a slim chance for life to-day by doctors who brought all medical science's learning into use to keep her breathing.

Marie Rita, whose two brothers and sister died beside her in hospital here, was in "not bad' condition, hospital staff members said to-day as she entered her third day of life.

They reported unchanged the condition of Donat A. Beaudry, whose ambulance rushed the quads from their farmhouse birthplace at St. Thomas, 46 miles away. Donat had been given little chance to survive injuries suffered when ambulance and a snow plow collided on the ice-crusted highway on Thursday night.

Drops of milk and water still was the only nourishment being fed Marie Rita, now all alone in a glass incubator after death separated in quick succession yesterday morning the four premature-born children of Mrs. Arcade Rondeau.

Inquest into the death of Joseph Gaston Andre, Joseph Alcide Alfred and Marie Lise was to be held today. One by one yesterday morning they were carried from the incubator to the hospital morgue, and whether the accident had injured them was not known.

FRANCE TO DEMAND GERMANY CEASE HER ARMING RACE

First Condition Of Obtaining Financial Assistance, Says Blum

FIVE PEACE PROPOSALS

PARIS, Jan. 23.—(A P)—Premier Blum will ask Chancellor Hitler to halt Germany's "feverish" armament program as the first condition for economic assistance from France, authoritative sources said today.

The Socialist Premier will make his request tomorrow in an address at Lyon when he will diclose pending plans for a Franco-German political and economic agreement.

Flanked by 16 cabinet ministers, Blum will lay down five suggestions for stabilizing the troubled European situation which, informed sources predicted, may be answered by Hitler at the German Reichstag session six days later.

The proposals were expected to include:

1. Cessation of the German rearmament program.
2. Adaption of a "conciliatory" attitude toward Europe's political problem as the price of French economic help.
3. Immediate publication of national defence budgets.
4. Publicity for arms programs followed by limitation and eventual reduction.
5. Formation of a European "United front" around mutual guarantees of assistance between Britain and France.

Violent 'Quake Rocks Japan As Cabinet Is Overthrown

First Time In History Lower House Has Wrecked Government

FRICTION WITH ARMY

TOKYO, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Japan's parliamentary political parties overthrew the cabinet of Premier Koki Hirota today, forcing the government to resign under their bitter attacks against the army.

The Premier, unable to reach a compromise between the angry military leaders and the political parties, presented the cabinet's resignation to Emperor Hirohito after a final session of the ministers.

He was expected to request the Mikao to extend the present suspension of the Diet to allow time for formation of the new cabinet. He would remain in office, it was expected, during the four or five days necessary for the governmental reorganization.

It was the first time in Japan's parliamentary history the lower house had succeeded in wrecking the government, which always before had resorted to dissolution and a general election when the Diet's opposition became too strong.

Outcome in Balance.

Whether or not it will be a true victory for the political leaders depends, observers said, on the membership of the succeeding cabinet which the militarists are striving to capture.

Japan's stern minister of war, General Count Juichi Terauchi, brought the constitutional crisis to a head when he termed the repeated assaults from the floor of parliament "insults to the army" and demanded dissolution of the Diet.

Tense days of negotiations failed to find a basis for compromise on the firm opposition of the United major and minor parties, not only to the military and financial policies of the Hirota government, but to what they charged was a growing tendency to Fascism and domination by a military bureaucracy.

Scarcely had Hirota informed the emperor of the cabinet's resignation when a violent earthquake, interpreted by some as an unfavorable omen, shook Japan.

Woman Washes Hands Of Pastor - Cop Job

Farmington, Me., Jan. 23 (AP)

RESIGNATION of Miss Jean M. Neely, 31, attractive pastor of the Union Baptist Church, who obtained appointment as a constable a year ago in an effort to preserve order during services, left church officers seeking a successor today.

"Perhaps some one else can do better," she said, in resigning.

Miss Neely had been pastor of the church since 1934. A year ago she told town officials she wished appointment as a constable because "boisterous groups of young people had interrupted and broken up church services and special meetings," and that she believed the appointment would help "keep the young men and women under control."

Troops Halt War Watch Scared Dog

Madrid, Jan. 23 (UP)

A collie dog yesterday brought an hour of peace to one sector of the Madrid front.

Soldiers held their fire as the frightened animal ran back and forth between rebel and loyalist trenches until, finally, a loyalist marksman was ordered to shoot it through the head.

Tonight a soldier slipped into "No Man's Land" and dragged the dead animal to the Government trenches.

SCORES ARE KILLED AS REBELS RENEW MADRID BOMBING

Insurgent Ship Reported Sunk At Cadiz In Socialist Plane Raid

GERMANS BOMB AIRBASE

MADRID, Jan. 23.—(CP-Havas)—A sustained insurgent artillery bombardment battered Madrid today, sending scores of persons to their death and thousands scattering from shelter through choking fumes and debris.

Huge 155 millimetre shells ripped into the city's streets and dwellings with unnerving persistence, crumpling the stoutest walls like cardboard.

Rebel Warships Sunk

MADRID, Jan. 23 —(AP)— The ministry of air announced today that socialist planes had bombed an insurgent fleet concentration in the harbor of Cadiz, sinking one of the vessels.

Among the many ships anchored in the fascist port on the southwestern coast of Spain was the insurgent cruiser Canarias.

As the government aviators flew away after loosing their deadly cargo, they said they saw one ship slowly sinking in the harbor.

A government squadron also bombed the town of Motril in the southern province of Granada, the ministry reported.

Charge German Air Raid.

VALENCIA, Spain, Jan. 23.—(AP). —Almeria Port authorities, reporting officially to the Spanish Socialist Government, charged to-day German seaplanes bombed the government airbase at Roquestas on the southern Mediterranean coast.

The report, delivered to the office of Air Minister Indalecio Prieto, asserted five Nazi planes, based on a German warship, dropped a number of bombs on the airfield 12 miles southwest of Almeria.

One of the five planes, it was charged, came down near the vessel after the bombardment and was taken aboard. The report said the warship was believed to be the picket battleship Admiral Graff Spee.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(CP-Havas). —Fort Belvedere, favorite residence of the Duke of Windsor, will remain closed and unoccupied until further orders, it was officially announced to-day. It will neither be sold nor taken over by the Duke of Gloucester, as reported, it was added.

Milk, Food Shortage Increases Sufferings Across Dozen States

Several Drownings Reported From Indiana With Many Missing

MANY TOWNS ISOLATED

Majority Of Rivers Continue To Rise Slowly—All Relief Forces Mobilized

CHICAGO, Jan. 23 (AP)—Freezing weather, hunger and dwindling supplies of drinking water intensified the suffering of United States flood refugees today as the Red Cross launched a campaign for $2,000,000 to aid an estimated 270,000 homeless or needy.

But the cold brought hope of surcease to the ravaged valley of the swollen Ohio River, most destructive of the overladen streams in the 12 states of the flood belt.

At the Pittsburgh confluence of the Ohio, Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers their stage became about stationary and fears of a major disaster there were allayed. The Ohio crept up only fractionally after midnight at hard-hit Cincinnati and its crest was believed near.

Downriver communities still faced rising waters as the yellowed stream coursed toward the Mississippi River with its burden of unwonted winter rains.

At least 190,000 were homeless and 17 dead in Indana, Ohio and West Virginia — designated by the Red Cross as the critical areas—Pennsylvania, North Carolina, Louisiana and Mississippi.

Cincinnati's estimated 41,500 refugees shivered in sub-freezing temperatures of a blizzard. The river stood at 72.5 feet early today, or more than 20 feet aboye flood stage and at the crest predicted by Meteorologist W. C. Deveraux. He added it would "exceed all records" downstream to the Mississippi.

Light Plants in Danger.

Officials of the Cincinnati pumping and electric light plants said these might survive a crest as high as 74 feet but citizens were advised to prepare for a possible drinking water shortage.

A hundred miles upstream Portsmouth, Ohio, had only enough food for two days. Gas was shut off in flooded parts of the city to forestall explosion threats. More than 15,000 refugees took any shelter they could find. The Mayor of suburban New Boston appealed for food and medical assistance for 3,500 homeless residents.

Ohio's 300 miles of lowlands had almost 75,000 homeless in all and damage was estimated at nearly $10,000,000. Across the river from Cincinnati the water covered about a third of isolated Newport, Ky., and 10,000 were driven from their homes.

Reports received at Cincinnati that eight had drowned and 50 were missing at Lawrenceburg, Ind.—surrounded and almost engulfed by the Ohio river waters—discounted by Red Cross officials at Evansville but they pressed efforts to establish communications with the isolated city of 7,000.

The Ohio climbed near 50 feet at Evansville and was expected to crest at 51, which would inundate a fifth of the city.

Fear Gasoline Tragedy.

In Cincinnati the city's fire chief warned of the danger of more than 1,000,000 gallons of gasoline floating on three miles of the millcreek bottoms.

The Cincinnati area strove mightily to care for 56,500 refugees, while the Portsmouth district, 100 miles upstream, reported 20,000 of its 70,000 residents homeless.

A milk and food shortage threatened in industrial Portsmouth, half covered with water to a depth as great as 11 feet.

Damage there was officially set at $1,000,000, while Cincinnati's loss was officially forecast at $5,000,000.

19 Prisoners Try Escape.

FRANKFORA, Ky., Jan. 23 (A.P.). — Nineteen prisoners made a break from the flooded Frankfort State Reformatory to-day, and guards opened fire, but Warden James Hammond said all had been recaptured and that none had been killed.

Drownings Reported.

AURORA, Ind., Jan. 23 (A.P.). — State and Federal relief agencies hastened to-day to set up communication with flood-isolated Lawrenceburg, about four miles up swollen Ohio River from this southeastern Indiana town, after reports that "several had drowned and are missing there."

LAST OF SCIENTISTS' STUNT

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 23.—(CP). —If you should see and hear something you don't believe while motoring merrily along the highway—especially at night—don't be alarmed; don't run your car into the ditch, jam on the brakes or jump. Just give the spectacle a wide berth because it will most likely be three young men on roller skates carrying a dizzy array of motor accessories.

For instance—Frank G. Fielding, 28 year old University of California medical student, has rolled through 81 countries with his companions in the past six years carrying a suitcase fitted with a radio, headlight, tail lights, horn, bell, rear view mirror, clock and dashlight. His white dusk trousers make him appear as a ghost at nights, which is when the trio has done its 31,455 miles of travelling.

Fielding's chums are classmates, George Richards and Maurice Walker. It all started when they answered an advertisement but now they're on their way home— Los Angeles.

Richards and Walker also carry suitcases. One has a refrigerator unit to keep perishable goods fresh. It weighs 42 pounds and a fellow has to have plenty of stamina to carry it while skating 60 to 80 miles a day, the other case contains a rubberized tent and other camping equipment. They carry few clothes and no overcoats.

17 Died Out of 100 Enrolled.

The ad called for Jewish group of Viennese scientists, travelling around the world on prescribed diets and being injected with various diseases, according to Fielding.

"We were united with about 100 others," Fielding said, "and we're the only three remaining. Seventeen died and the others quit."

He said they were given tests at various medical institutions and their route was planned in advance.

"So far," Fielding continued, "the scientists' theory, which contended that by living on certain diets men was able to fight off any disease, hasn't been so good. In many cases, various diseases injected into us failed to apply to the method of diet and we were compelled to receive medical attention "the old-fashioned way."

"How many zero days have we had this Winter?" was asked yesterday. As Winter began December 21, there have been only two—December 22, when temperature was 1 below; the other being a month ago to-day, when it was even zero. In November there were two zero days, and on December 1, the coldest day since last winter, 13 below was registered. Therefore zero days since last Winter number five. In same period one year ago there had been 16.—A.C.P.

SEYMOUR DEPUTY IS GIVEN REWARD FOR LONG SERVICE

Named To Road Commission By The Council Of The United Counties

OTHER APPOINTMENTS

(By A Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Jan. 23—The last division of the counties council, concluding its January sessions Friday afternoon, was like the first, sharpened by a dominant political majority that appointed Deputy-reeve Robert Innes of Seymour township a county road commissioner by a margin of 33-16 over Reeve Ray R. Mallory of Percy township.

The presiding Conservative strength in the council this year made a few concessions to the Liberal majority, another aspect of the old Northumberland-Durham custom, but in the disposal of the places of preference for this year the spoils went to the victors in the local elections during the first week in January. A Liberal majority in the assembly of forty members would have asserted its force in precisely the same manner, allotting chairmanships and other minor offices to its own followers with a show of consideration here and there for the minority opposition.

Mr. Innes was appointed to the road commission for two years. The other members are Warden Jones, and former Reeve Fred Lovekin of Clarke township who is completing his second term. Reeve H. L. Brisbin of Hamilton township presented a motion to remove Mr. Lovekin on the ground that he was no longer a member of the council. That action would have required support of two-thirds of the members, but the Brisbin motion failed to attract a seconder, and was withdrawn.

The road commission involving probably more administrative work throughout the year than any other position except the wardenship is one of the plums controlled by the council, a reward of long service and regularity. With a substantial increase in the appropriation for county road work this year, the commission faces more responsibility than its immediate predecessors in an advisory relationship to the road superintendent, A. S. Miller, because of the realization that the county road system has suffered from lack of funds for essential maintenance and repairs since the expenditure was reduced annually to $40,000.

The council approved on Friday the recommendation of the finance
